Meet Strong Leopards At Easton Tomorrow

Prying the lid off of the post war football machine assembled at Muhlenberg College, the Mules travel to Easton tomorrow where they will face the highly regarded Lafayette Leopards.

Although Lafayette has not been scouted and no indication of their strength has been given, the team is rated among the ten best in the east and one of the toughest teams in the nation. Outstanding among the pre-season reports on the Leopard squad are such men as Graham, end; Saylor, center; McGee, back; and Stanczak, back.

The head coach at Lafayette, "Hooks" Mylin has been renowned as one of the leading coaches in the country and in 1937 was voted the outstanding coach of the year. Mylin has had a wealth of material to work with and it is rumored that his team is four deep in all positions.

Muhlenberg has had one of the finest group of prospects in many years and the hopes of the Mules are high. Under the very able guidance of Major Ben Schwartzwalder and his staff of Bud Barker, "Hoss" Lough, and Ernie Fellows, the 'Berg squad has had a rugged conditioning treatment and should be in fine shape.

On the roster are many names familiar to Muhlenberg fans of the past. Returned from service and once more performing are men like Bibighaus, Reimer, Sweatlock, Mirth, Sikorski, and others. Many new men have joined the ranks and a squad of about

Tuesday Rehearsal Set By Jagnesak

Anthony Jagnesak, band master of Muhlenberg College, has announced that there will be a rehearsal of the newly forming Muhlenberg Band on Tuesday, October 1, at 7:00 p.m. in the Science Auditorium.

Plans are being formulated to return the Muhlenberg band to its former high standards of pre-war days. Mr. Jagnesak has been associated with Muhlenberg bands for several years and in the past has developed aggregations of high merit.

Notices have been posted on all the bulletin boards of the college so that men interested in playing in the band will attend the meeting. It is important that all men be present at this rehearsal as plans are made for the band to play at the Albright football game on October 5.

All men are asked to be present with their instruments if possible so that this first meeting may not only be to organize, but hold a rehearsal as well. At this meeting the men in the band will set the time and the dates best suited to hold future rehearsals.

Muhlenberg Tradition Goes; Women Allowed For Fall Term

Before an academic convocation of more than 1200 Muhlenberg students in the Gideon F. Egner Memorial chapel last Monday morning, President Levering Tyson in his opening address to the student body revealed that wives of veterans now a part of the campus community would be permitted to enroll for regular college work.

This precedent breaking policy will provide the opportunity for a limited number of women to enroll at Muhlenberg College as regular full-time students. The initial announcement came as positive evidence that Muhlenberg College is prepared to assume even more responsibility than it accepted in doubling its facilities to accommodate 1200 students.

Although in a sense it makes Muhlenberg Co-Educational for the first time in its history, it is emphasized that in no way is Muhlenberg committing itself to the future program of co-education which has been under consideration for a number of years. The provision, authorized by the executive committee of the board of trustees just last weekend, is a temporary one, and was initiated to open the college facilities to these wives of veterans believed by the administration to be an essential and inseparable part of the college community taken in the large viewpoint.

President Tyson said that there was no indication at this early date as to the number of women who would take advantage of this, but

"Dover Road" Set As Mask & Dagger Play

Tryouts for Dover Road, a comedy of modern marriage by A. A. Milne, are scheduled for 8:00 p.m., Monday, September 30, in the college Little Theater in the Science Auditorium. The play, directed by Mr. Andrew H. Erskine, will be presented this fall by the Mask and Dagger Club.

Director Erskine emphasized that all men interested in dramatics should attend the tryouts. Dover Road has several parts calling for real talent. Many behind the scene workers must be recruited for the stage crew. Whether you've had experience or not, put a big circle around September 30 and report promptly.

Dover Road had a long London enjoyment as well as a Broadway record breaking run. Director Erskine's previous successes include Romeo and Juliet, Death Takes a Holiday, Journey's End, Macbeth, East Lynn and Nancy Otters. With Mr. Erskine calling signals on the comedy, another hit is promised.

The Mask and Dagger Club, which sponsors the play, was created in 1932 from two dramatic organizations which flourished on and off for many years. The club fosters interest in dramatics and develops appreciation of the arts in the entire student body. Within its program is the study of all phases of work connected with dramatic production. The production of Dover Road signifies that Mask and Dagger is continuing to bring top-rate dramas to our student body.

There are about forty pictures in the collection so those students who are interested should make it a point to arrive early. First come, first served!

Ciarla Release Scheduled Soon

The 1946 Ciarla, first post-war edition of Muhlenberg's yearbook, will appear between October 15 and 25, it was announced this week by the staff. The fall publication date is in line with the new Ciarla policy of including complete spring sports and graduation events in the book the same year they occur. Copies are to be forwarded to last year's graduates.

The new book will be seven by ten inches in size, and all pictures will be full page. In all, there are over 100 pages of pictures. The book will attempt to present a complete story of what happened at 'Berg from July, 1943, when the last Ciarla appeared, and July 1946. Special coverage will give a history of navy units at the college. All students who are credited with five dollars in yearbook activities fees as of June, 1946 will receive a book.

The book is being published by the class of '47. The Editor is Jack Reumann, and James Gross is Business Manager. Associate Editors included Jack Schwalm, Jack Yohe, Foster Blair, Paul Gesregan, and Bob Oswald. Any Junior interested in serving on the staff for next year's book is requested to see any Student Council member. A new staff will be elected shortly.

NOTICE!! Veterans

Public Law 679, effective August 8, 1946, requires each veteran enrolled in scholastic training to complete Veterans Administration form 7-1961. This estimate of anticipated earnings must accompany the forms certifying your induction or re-induction into a full-time course of training.

It is absolutely essential that these forms be accomplished, since your subsistence payments will be delayed until this form has been signed and completed by you. Watch the bulletin boards for information as to when and where the forms may be processed.

Berg Bulges With 1200 Men; Frosh Fill Half Of Campus

Muhlenberg's student body expanded to the enormous and unprecedented total of approximately 1200 students as the college commenced the new academic year with convocation exercises on Monday, September 23. Fifty percent of the students are newcomers to the campus, Registrar H. A. Benfer revealed. Allentown and its surrounding communities contributed approximately 700 students to Muhlenberg's record-breaking enrollment, while 500 of the men trooped to college from more distant communities, ranging from nearby Philadelphia to far-away Bagdad.

Enlarging the dormitories' capacity to the limit of their facilities, the administration was able to provide quarters for 400 boarding students. In answer to an appeal from the college for rooms for students who could not be accommodated in the dormitories, many citizens of Allentown opened their homes to provide quarters for approximately 100 "Mules".

The new enrollment peak of 1200 is in sharp contrast to Muhlenberg's normal enrollment of approximately 525 students. The faculty has also been increased to almost 100 instructors in order to provide the students with the efficient pedagogy for which Muhlenberg is justly famous. This is an increase of over twice the normal number of professors which, before the war, was only 45. All classrooms are also being utilized almost every hour of the school day.

Prefabricated dormitories are expected to be ready for many students, now living in temporary quarters, before the end of the

Cheerleaders

With the new term, interest in cheerleading has revived considerably. Try-outs were held Tuesday evening and practice started immediately. Head cheerleader is George Katchmerik, with Hank Moyer, Paul Elson, Louis Wence, and Jim Bensinger as assistants.

New cheers are being worked out, along with the old favorites. Together with the reorganized band, the boys are expected to put a lot of pep into the seasons' games.

Engagement

The engagement of Miss Nancy L. Williams, of Pottstown, to Mr. Sam Krouse, also of Pottstown, was announced this week.

Nancy is a senior at West Chester State Teachers College and will be graduated in May. She is majoring in voice and organ music. Sam, a Muhlenberg senior, is majoring in religion and philosophy and in the past has been actively engaged in Baseball, Choir, Alpha Kappa Alpha, The Muhlenberg Weekly and the Ciarla.

No date has been set for the wedding.

"The Community of Muhlenberg is prepared to demonstrate this year that at least there is one little corner of the globe in which a group of intelligent people can live and work and play, where selfishness and deceit and jealousy and distemper and greed are pretty well eliminated."

EDITORIAL

WORDS vs. ACTION

It is the custom for all new staffs of newspapers on the occasion of their first issue, to state in great detail all about their policy, and rant on to great length about fancy plans with fancy proverbs. This Weekly staff will endeavor to change the accepted custom. We shall conserve our strength and energy for work rather than words, and you will be able to see results rather than rantings.

The staff of the Weekly asks nothing more of the student body, faculty, and administrative staff than cooperation. This cooperation, combined with our hard work will go together to make a fine college publication.

WHY EDITORIALS?

The editorials in the following issues of the Weekly will not necessarily be written by the editors. We shall, from time to time, request various students and faculty members to write these editorials for us. In this manner we will give many, a chance to present their views and opinions to the student body. They may deal with any subject at all pertaining to activities on or around the campus.

STRIKES OR STRICKEN

We heard on the campus the other day a comment which we think worth passing on. A student recently returned from China remarked, "These strikes are a pain in my, you know what, but I'd rather have strikes every day than be stricken with the fate of those poor suckers in foreign lands".

The language may vary in many instances, but we are quite sure that any smart thinking person will feel the same way.

BE A REGULAR

Like the other columnists and writers on the Weekly staff we are taking this opportunity to urge your whole-hearted support of the football squad. A couple of losses along the way shouldn't toss a wet rag on the rooters' spirits. We haven't had losses yet, and we hope not to have them, but regardless of what occurs, the men on the team and coaches deserve our backing.

It is needless to say what a little bit of encouragement will do for morale, so as one booster to another, be regular and be with the boys.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

OBITER DICTA

At the opening of college in other years, the student has had to buck up against a flood of pep talks, bits of advice, words of encouragement, and exhortations to "Hit the books: get in there and fight!" These were handed down in Chapel, in the classroom, in private conferences with the professors, and in the pages of the WEEKLY. Maybe you noticed the absence of such ballyhoo this year. Every one seems to be taking it all a lot more seriously, glad the war is over, and glad for once to get back to the books.

But things are a lot different. The sheer size of the college for one thing is almost alarming. 1200 students is no garden party. It means Standing Room Only, literally. Some of the traditions of the college have been wiped out by the war. Take that Freshman Class, for instance. Back in the old days the Frosh were whipped into shape in the Fall with a rugged program of inter-class games and pajama parades and with Freshman Regulations which specified how the Freshman was to live and breathe, even as to how high his trousers were to be rolled from the ground (10-inches). But a Freshman Class of 600, larger than the whole college back in those old days, poses quite a problem. How in the name of John Peter Gabriel could the upperclassmen handle 600 Freshmen? Why, that's half the college. Where on earth could you get 600 dinks, Freshman caps, for the class to wear? And trying to enforce Freshmen Regulations would cause no small embarrassment in many cases. Picture an old 'Berg V-12er for instance, who was sent on by the college to win his commission as an Ensign, back now as a sober and austere Senior, telling a member of the Freshman Class "Square that dink, Frosh!", only to be pounded into the turf by a mighty blow from what turns out to be a big grisly former Boatswains Mate.

The tradition of Freshmen Regulations has been broken now, but every effort should be made to restore it just as soon as Muhlenberg settles down to a normal routine. When that time comes, it will be hard to explain by what right today's Freshmen will impose Regulations when they are upperclassmen, inasmuch as they themselves are never to suffer such chastening. And this all raises the question of how Freshmen Regulations ever got started in the first place and by what right years ago a Sophomore for the first time ordered a Freshman to sing the Alma Mater while standing on his head. Somebody had to start the ball rolling and somebody will have to start it rolling again.

COUNCIL ANNOUNCES POLICIES

The Student Council will meet Monday evening, September 30th, to plan an extensive program of activities for the new school year. Many of the old customs and events which were neglected during the war are being revived this year to provide the student body with the many enjoyable and worthwhile activities traditional to this campus. President of the Student Council Harold W. Helfrich, Jr. addressed a plea to the students for enthusiastic support of the many events which the Council is planning for their enjoyment. Mr. Helfrich asks that the students make their wishes known to the Council through their respective representatives on the Council.

It is quite probable that Freshmen Regulations will be revived in the near future. However, the new regulations will be very light and non-restrictive in character and will in no way offend the personal dignity of any of the Freshmen. This revival of Freshmen Regulations will be the most puzzling and controversial issue to be faced by the Student Council when it meets on Monday.

Several other Freshmen activities will also be revived in the next few months, among them being the traditional tug-of-war between the Freshmen and the Sophomores. In addition to the tug-of-war, there will also probably be a football game, which is expected to promote a good deal of friendly rivalry. The annual flag rush is another traditional custom expected to come into prominence again this year. This flag rush, staged by the Freshmen, usually occurs between the halves of the first football game on the home field. The revival of this colorful and, sometimes, bloody contest depends upon the wishes of the student body. The Student Council fervently hopes that the Upper-classmen will join with the Freshmen in supporting these events.

The Council plans to place a plaque, in the main hallway of the Administration Building, displaying the pictures and names of the various council members so that all the students may become acquainted with their representatives. It is hoped that this innovation will encourage the students to contact their representatives and make their wishes known to the Council through its members. Pep rallies will also highlight the football season and all Mules are asked to turn out to cheer on their fine team.

MULE KICKS

Are you unhappy, tired, down and out? Does your wife beat you? Get a load off your mind and pour your heart into the WEEKLY press box in the Ad Building. We are reserving this column entirely for those poor lost souls who have no one to turn to with their "beefs". This column is for you; the fellow with the falling hair, the man with three women on the string and the freshman who forgot to bring enough underwear. Let us know what your trouble is and we will inform the world. Perhaps the world may return a solution to your individual problem.

All names will be withheld if so requested.

Dear Sir:

Won't somebody please turn on the lights. I can't see a thing. Everytime I walk into a room in the Ad building I black out. I know it's not because my eyes are poor, they're only 80-10. I have a sneaking suspicion that the lighting in the before mentioned rooms is not up to par. Perhaps some kind soul of authority may see this pitiful plea and look into this matter. I sincerely hope so. I could never afford a seeing-eye dog.

Blind Man Bluff

.. The Awful Truth ..

By Mike Rogers

For the benefit of those who are new to our hallowed halls here at Muhlenberg, your reporter attempts, during the course of the scholastic year, to bring you news of the campus, items of interest to all and any other stray material which cannot be placed elsewhere in the paper. . . . For the benefit of those of you who are NOT new to the Ole' Alma Mammy—lookout guys, we're off again. . . .

Quite a BEEG welcoming ceremony we thought for such a leetle school. But that seems to be typical of the outlook around the place, growing faster than we can see and it's really a big thing to be in on something like this. What started out as a small time college has blossomed out like your kid brother in his brand new long pants. . . .

Lotsa new faces and plenty of old around the "jernt", good deal to see guys like Jim Kessik, "Bilbo" Fitzgerald, John McKinney and many others around. Sorta lends the distinguished touch, tch, tch. . . .

Top priority ought to be given to the matter of social affairs by the Student Council. The leading question by all hands is in regard to social functions and their whereabouts. A word to the wise ought to be sufficient, and you S.C. fellas are pretty much on the ball from what I've noted. Your boss, Harold Helfrich, got you off to a flying start with that great "keynoting" speech at the welcoming ceremony this week. Now don't drop the ball, the student body will be all for you if you give them the kind of action we know you can. Keep us posted as to what goes, let us in on any deals that come off in regards to student activity on campus, and try for plenty of socializing. The boys want to get around, meet each other, open a few kegs of nails, and display the new crop of fraus.

In case you haven't heard, John Sweatlock made with the cigars about six weeks ago and John Jr. and the Mrs. doing O.K. Also among the additions to the census is one man child chalked up to Steve Sivcho and the Mrs. Everyone is in good shape over that way and by the way; for the tops in insurance, see Steve. The ex-meat wagon driver for the Limeys in Africa during the recent "hot-spell" which Montgomery cooled off, is now stumping the city to give you the best of service and salesmanship in the insurance line. . . . (PLUG).

For those of you who have asked as to the whereabouts of Dick Whiting, the basketeer; we have the dope that Dick has entered some school in the east that his Pappy is a grad of, and doing right well up there. . . . Yep, he would have added a lot to Berg's court hopes this year but we understand that there are a couple of fellows here who have played a wee bit of the game before and we might be able to scrape together a scrub team or something; you know guys like, I think some of their names are Baldwin, Donovan, Combs, Graner, Capehart, McGee and a couple of others. Oh we'll just get the fellows together and take on some soft touches like Navy, Long Island, and others, ho hum, here we go again, gimme a drag of that weed bud. . . .

Well, fellow studes, the Fall has fell and the hours of the three R's are upon us. The best of luck to all you who study, and happy dreams to the rest of you. See your reporter for tips on the most comfortable lounge chairs in the various class rooms.

By the way, Easton is about 18 miles as the crow flies, so grab some Old Crow, (soft drink heh, heh) and break loose with one and eighty and we'll look for you when we "poosh" the Mule across tomorrow. . . .

Alumni
Memo

By John Wagner, Alumni Secretary

GREETINGS. Welcome to Muhlenberg. With this, the first issue of the WEEKLY for the new scholastic year, may I, on behalf of fifty-seven hundred Alumni, welcome you to the College of which we are all so proud. The men who are returning, know the College and her work. You, the newcomers to our campus, will soon learn to love the place and understand her traditions and customs. May you have a happy, successful and thoroughly enjoyable year as a member of the college community.

Each week, in this same spot, this Memo will appear in it, we will discuss various items of interest to all of us, bring you news of alumni and their accomplishments, discuss traditions, and problems. The Alumni Office is located on the first floor of the Administration Building and our facilities are at your disposal. The Alumni Magazine is available, six times a year, and you are urged to procure your copy. When published, copies will be placed in the lobby of the Ad Building for distribution.

Get into the habit of looking for this spot each week when the WEEKLY is published. You may find something of interest here.

ACCENT
SPORTS

by Herb Needleman

Fall is here, the only season during which a fellow can be seen with a blanket on one arm and a girl on the other without causing a whoop and holler from the civic Purity Board. Pass me another reefer, Elmer, while I peer into the crystal globe.

No doubt you've seen Messrs. Schwartzwalder, Barker, and Lough putting the squad through the rigors of pre-season practice. This year's club presents one big question mark. Potentially they are the fastest, heaviest, hardest hitting and most experienced team 'Berg has fielded in many a year; however, as the poet once said, "There's many a slip between the scrimmage line and pay dirt." If hard work should tell in this Saturday's tiff with Lafayette, we can look for a 'Berg victory, unless Hooks Mylin uses a longer whip on the Leopards. Mylin is back at Lafayette after a few years absence, and word has gotten out that the Easton boys will be tough. What d'ya say we get down there tomorrow and make with the rah-rah so that the boys know there's more behind them than a set of goalposts when they trot out on the field.

Note that Pete Gorgone, who used to do his sparkling right here at 'Berg, stepped into the quarterback spot for the New York Giants. Seems to us we've heard of the fellow whom Pete replaced—name of Steve Filipowicz. "Way to go, Pete."

Here's a hello to Bill Breisch, Asst. Prof. of cuts, bruises, and charleyhorses. Bill came here from Allentown High to give "Scotty" Renwick a hand. Let's hope they don't have too much business this season.

Although the football season has yet to get under way here at 'Berg, "Bud" Barker is already beginning to worry about his basketball prospects. Candidates for the team will start seasoning drill about the second week of October, and workouts at Rockne Hall the first of November. Four men will be back from last year's varsity which went to the semi-finals in National Invitational tournament at Madison Square Garden. They are Red Baldwin, whose two-handed pivot shots often were the deciding factor in many close-knit games; Harry Donovan, highly touted forward; his brother Ed, another stellar pivot man; and Van Combs, of the windmill hook shot. Also on hand will be "Chuck" Theisen of the 1944-45 cage campaign, Jim Capehart from the year before, and Ben Celian of the 1942-43 season. Look for Al Schwab, a fireball in Northern Jersey high school league and "Red" Graner, of the champ A.H.S. club and American Legion teams.

Just one more reminder to get down to Easton tomorrow. The boys will be "up" for the game; don't let them down.

Ed Note:—In every succeeding issue of the WEEKLY, predictions of the outcome of the major games across the nation will be given by a member of the staff. This week's dope is the product of John Fitzgerald's tea leaves.

PETE GORGONE

Peter Gorgone, lieutenant in the 5th Marines, who landed in the first wave on Iwo Jima, was the starting quarterback for the New York Giants when they played the Green Bay Packers in the eighth annual Tribune Fresh Air Fund night football game in the Polo Grounds on September 16.

After graduating from Windber High school in the class of June 1939 in Windber, Pa., Gorgone entered Muhlenberg in September of the same year. While working at 'Berg towards his Ph.B., Gorgone was a member of the football squad under Alvin "Doggie" Julian, participated in intermural, and was a member of the Varsity "M" Club and the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity.

Enlisting in the Marine Corps on November 11, 1942, Gorgone was sent to Oceanside, Cal., where he was attached to the 11th Amphibious Battalion. Going overseas, he was commissioned and then promoted to First Lieutenant. Upon returning from the war area, the former Mule player was stationed at the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., when he was discharged on January 26, 1946.

Although Gorgone had received his degree in 1943, he returned to his Alma Mater in March of this year in order to take special cour-

Hopin'
& Dopin'

As the football season swings into high gear tomorrow, the Mules journey to Easton for their annual pigskin joust with the Lafayette Leopards. The team has survived six weeks of rugged conditioning under tough Coach Schwartzwalder and is prepared to enter their initial major engagement at fighting trim. The program dished out by "The Major" will result in tender thoughts for many a 'Berg man when he gazes at the scoreboard at the conclusion of the fourth quarter to see Muhlenberg 21—Lafayette 6.

Easing to other games in the area—Moravian is a cinch to lose number two to Buffalo, Lehigh to trounce Gettysburg, and Rutgers just doesn't have enough to stop Columbia.

In the intersectional games it looks like: Southern Methodist over Temple, California over Wisconsin, Purdue over Iowa, Army over Oklahoma, Notre Dame over Illinois, Michigan over Indiana, Kentucky over upstart Cincinnati, and Dartmouth and Holy Cross in a tie.

Thus, fellow scholars, you have the ace cheat sheet of the week. Keep your eyes on the terrific twelve winners and breathe a tenderizing prayer for the pulverized vanquished.

ses and have practice teaching at Allentown High School, which he hopes to use when he teaches and coaches later.

Gorgone was not seriously regarded when he reported for Giant duty at Superior, Wis., last month, but worked so hard that he ultimately won himself recognition. Coach Steve Owen compares him favorably with Nello Falaschi, great Giant blocking back of pre-war days.

The former Cardinal and Gray griddler will supplant Steve Filipowicz, of Fordham, in the starting backfield. He will not call the plays, that duty being in the hands of Frank Filchock, left halfback. His chief assignment will be blocking, except in the Giants' T formation, when he will play full-back.

Soccer Squad
Shaping; Play
Hard Schedule

With the opening game with Lehigh scheduled for October 5, the Muhlenberg soccer squad started practice Tuesday, September 24. Many of the candidates have had considerable experience and all indications point to a successful season.

Coaching this year is "Chillie" Altomose, right halfback for the Pro Philadelphia Nationals. He filled in the latter part of the season last year as coach, and came through with a good record. Under his leadership, the boys are already rounding into shape. However, the coach would like more material to work with, and urges anyone interested to come out for practice. Experience isn't necessary he says, just the spirit to learn and enjoy the game.

Among the candidates are John Lesko and Hank Moyer, holdovers from last year's team, and Don Boyer from 'Berg's '44 team. Others on the squad are Howard Harris, Frank Gotshall, Art Taylor, George Brick, Elden Zorak, Harold Albert, Donald Baird, Fay Morse, Edgar Orman, William Davis, Homer Robinson, Chandler Malinbury, Ross Hughes, Don Klickner, Gail Koplin, Dale Snyder, and James Slack.

Nine games are on the schedule, as follows:

Oct. 5—Lehigh	Away
Oct. 9—Princeton	Home
Oct. 16—Stroudsburg	Away
Oct. 19—Johns Hopkins	Away
Oct. 23—Temple	Away
Oct. 26—Haverford	Home
Nov. 2—Lafayette	Away
Nov. 9—Rutgers	Home
Nov. 16—Stevens Institute	Away

Little Mules Face
Lehigh In Opener

by Dave Tyson

Forty-two men reported for the first Jayvee football practice on Monday afternoon, and by the middle of the week the squad was swelled to over fifty candidates. With the first game coming up against Lehigh only a week from today, Coach Ernie Fellows is working frantically to whip a team into shape. Yesterday the squad was cut down to three teams, and as soon as complete uniforms are issued, heavier work will begin. Thus far Coach Fellows, assisted by Line Coach Blair Krimmel, has been concentrating on a few basic plays. Later scrimmages against the Varsity are anticipated.

Most of the members of the squad have had previous football experience, although there are a few who have had none whatsoever. A few of the candidates were cut from the Varsity squad earlier in the month. Those on the Jayvee squad who show real promise may have a chance to play with the Varsity in some of the later games.

The last Jayvee football team at Muhlenberg was coached by Ernie Fellows in the Fall of 1942, and played three games, losing to Brown Prep 6-0, losing to the Lehigh Jayvees 6-0, and finally beating the Lehigh Jayvees 13-0. Prior to that season Muhlenberg each year had been fielding a Freshman team, and it is expected that next year will see a resumption of Freshman athletics.

The Lehigh Jayvees have been practicing for three weeks, which bodes no good for the Little Mules, but it is still too early to make any predictions on the outcome of the game. Other games on the Jayvee schedule at present are Delaware at Home on October 18 and Gettysburg at Home on November 8.

Ernie Fellows hails from East Orange, New Jersey, and graduated from Muhlenberg with the Class of 1942. He was active in football and track while here, and was elected President of the "M" Club in his Senior year. In that year he also took on the job of Track coach, and came back in the Spring of 1943 to lead the Muhlenberg Track team to the Middle Atlantic Championships.

At their first meeting, held on September 24, the members of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity elected new officers for the coming year. Those selected for the various administrative positions include James Hemstreet, as President, William Otto as Vice President, Robert Bosch as Secretary, and Walter Mentzel as Treasurer.

The active strength of the fraternity has been greatly swelled by returning veterans in addition to the pledges. Many of the men joined the fraternity while Navy or Marine trainees in the V-12 Program and now are returning to their studies. While not all the brothers can be quartered in the house, accommodations for 33 men are available.

Many improvements to the ATO House on the corner of Chew and 23rd Streets have been undertaken. Extensive painting has been completed, and new furniture puts the house in fine condition. Under the leadership of Ray Nies, Chairman of the House Committee, the brothers are hard at work squaring the house away in anticipation of a busy social season.

present semester. The three buildings now being erected across from the campus on Chew Street are expected to be ready for occupancy by October 1st. One of these buildings will be a dormitory accommodating 62 men, while the other two buildings will be one-story apartment units in which 12 students and their families will have suitable living quarters.

On that part of the campus along Liberty Street adjacent to 23rd Street, two prefabricated units, accommodating 50 men in each unit, will be constructed to provide more dormitories for the college's swiftly growing student body. The administration announced last week that they expect these two dormitories to be ready for use by November 30th.

PKT

Eta chapter of Phi Kappa Tau, installed at Muhlenberg in 1917, flung out its red and gold banner, elected new officers and began its thirtieth year this week. The men put in office to take charge of the fraternity activities and supervise its social functions were as follows: President, Harold Helfrich; Vice President, Louis Cotanis; Secretary, Robert MacDonough; Treasurer, Leonard Ellis; Asst. Treasurer, John Kerin; House Manager, Edwin Minner; Steward, Hal Wagner; Sgt.-at-Arms, George Baker; Rushing Chairman, George Schmidt; Pledge Manager, Earl Bender.

The regular dances have not yet been scheduled by the student council; however, P. K. T. has planned frequent Saturday evening dances in addition to the annual spring formal and interfraternal dance. Also on the agenda are many activities that were curbed by the war, among these are serving meals at the house and a Christmas party for orphans in the Allentown vicinity.

Eta chapter has its first post-war project, a physical face-lifting. New flooring was laid, new wall paper hung and the dimness that covered the house over a period of years was dispelled by a fresh coat of paint.

Rushing is scheduled to begin in three weeks and the initiation ceremony will take place sometime in October.

Football

thirty-three will make the trip.

An unrated Mule team might well hold the key to a lot of inside football information in the east. A startling upset, or a closely fought ball game would make many sit up and take note of men like "Diz" Dean who received favorable comments after a scrimmage last week against Princeton. Dean is a halfback with a triple threat punch which may explode in the faces of the opposition at any time.

Highly regarded by teammates and undoubtedly by opponents soon is Mike Bogdziewicz, a tackle from New Jersey. High on the list of 'Berg hope toters are John Sweatlock and Carl Reimer. Center and guard respectively, they will act as Co-captains for this opening game.

Experts are rating the Leopard team over the Mules by 24 points in pre-game selection; however a hard hitting first team with capable reserves such as the Muhlenberg squad has may upset the dope to a great degree.

Starting line-up:

Miller	LE
Averno	LT
Reimer (C)	LG
Sweatlock (C)	C
Sbordone	RG
Bogdziewicz	RT
Bibighaus	RE
Barker	QB
Bell	LH
Crider	RH
Sikorski	FB

Dr. Tyson

was of the opinion that the number would be small.

The new policy revelation was in general keeping with the theme of Dr. Tyson's message in which he emphasized the importance of each individual in the college community. Voicing a confidence in the spiritual values which have always been Muhlenberg's cornerstones, he challenged the assemblage to prove once more that "at least there is one little corner of the world in which a group of intelligent people can live and work and play together—where selfishness, deceit, jealousy, distemper, and greed are pretty well eliminated."

Also participating in the service which formally opened the academic year 1946-47 were Dean Sherwood R. Mercer and Harold W. Helfrich Jr., president of the student body. Dr. John W. Doberstein, chaplain of the college, conducted the devotionals.

Mr. Helfrich, speaking to the students both as a veteran and as a former student at Muhlenberg, urged the men to apply themselves earnestly to study, but not to the exclusion of participation in extra curricular activities which he extolled as the training grounds for the well rounded personality.

LXA

The active chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity held its first meeting of the fall semester on Tuesday evening, September 24 at the Fraternity house.

Pertinent business was attended to and a new vice president was elected to complete the complement of officers. The officers for this year are: Leslie Warger, President; Frank Tucker, Vice President; Richard Brown, Secretary; Jack Haring, Treasurer; and Eugene Ruppert, Pledge Promoter.

Two new assignments were made to the Inter-Fraternity Council. These are Jim Wilder and Russell Kirk. Robert Kishbaugh is also on the council and has served previously.

There are now twenty-five members living in the fraternity house at 407 North 23rd Street. The dining room is also now in operation again for the first time since June of 1943.

Plans were drawn up at the meeting for activities this fall and the fraternity is looking forward to an active and gala fall season.

Council To Discuss 'Berg Traditions Monday; Dance October 19

Seeking to continue the traditions that make Muhlenberg a college the like of which there is none other, the Student Council and the deans of the college will discuss the revival of these traditions in a meeting Monday evening at 7:00 p. m. in the West-Hall Auditorium. Throughout the war these traditions suffered, but it is the hope of the governing group of the student body that they be going full blast once again by 1948 when Muhlenberg celebrates its one hundredth anniversary. All interested freshmen are asked to attend the meeting.

These traditions are the things that distinguished 'Berg from so many other colleges, and they are the things that stand out most in the mind of alumni. The average student of this college feels these traditions keenly because he is a Muhlenberg man and they become a part of his life.

Among these traditions that are so much a part of college life are the Christmas service with Cedar Crest, the various Christmas parties, intramural athletics, and daily chapel services. Also in this group are included such events as the shoe race at football games, the annual pajama parades down Hamilton Street, upsetting garbage cans and making "excursions" into theatres with the participants clad in varying shades of loud and conservative pajamas, and the interclass tug-of-wars at Cedar Creek with one or the other group being wetted. The yearly football brawls, the "Pansy Bowl" between Freshmen and Sophomores and the struggle of Pre-theologs versus the Pre-meds, might also be added.

Dance plans made

Phillip Mitterling, treasurer of the Council, was elected chairman for the first dance of the semester, planned for night of October 19th. Place, time, and orchestra details will be announced later.

60 Men Accepted For Chapel Choir

A choir of almost sixty voices, the largest group in the history of Muhlenberg, and containing the best voices of over 1200 students, began its first rehearsals Tuesday under the capable direction of Dr. Harold K. Marks, director and chapel organist.

A singing schedule, which at present calls for the choir's first appearance at the joint reformation service of all the Lutheran churches of Allentown, the evening of October 27th, in the Allentown High School Auditorium, is being planned by Dr. Marks and Bob Kishbaugh, choir manager.

Traveling mostly by bus, the choir has sung in the past in churches within an 80-mile radius. However, in an effort to make more distant churches and towns Muhlenberg conscious, Dr. Marks considers increasing that radius. About 15 trips a year are made by the choir.

In past years the Cedar Crest (all girl) College Choir has joined us in a musical service in our chapel, usually in the winter. This service is one of the few in which the choir is at home.

The works of the classic composers, Bach, Handel, Haydn, and others comprise most of the choir's renditions.

Info Released On Scholarships

Elections to Rhodes Scholarships in all states of the union will be resumed in December of this year according to a news release received by Mr. Rickey. Applications are due on November 2, and candidates will enter the University of Oxford in October, 1947.

Rhodes Scholarship elections have been suspended since 1939. Therefore, candidates who would have been eligible in any year since 1939 will be allowed to compete, provided they have had at least one year of military or civilian war service. Sixteen extra scholarships have been allotted to the United States for the years 1946 and 1947 making the total of 48 scholarships for these two years.

For war service candidates, certain conditions have been altered in the requirements. A veteran may be between the ages of 19 and 32. He may be married and have only one year of college work completed at the time of application. Veterans attending Oxford will have the added aid of receiving benefits under the G.I. Bill equivalent to those which they would receive in an American University.

The qualities which Rhodes specified in his Will as forming the basis of selection are: (1) literary and scholastic ability and attainments; (2) qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindness, unselfishness, and fellowship; (3) exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates; (4) physical vigour as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways.

There is no restriction on a Rhodes Scholar's course of study.

Murder, Documentary Films Shown Tonight In Library

Free movies for Muhlenberg students and their dates will be presented this evening at 8:00 p.m. in the studios of the Art Department, on the third floor of the Library building. The movies this evening will be the first of a series of unusual films to be presented on the first Friday of each month by the Art Department as its contribution to the college's recreation program. While all others must pay a subscription fee, admission will be free to all Muhlenberg students and their lady friends, as well as to Cedar Crest students, and faculty members.

The films to be shown this evening will include a German murder production, titled "M" and starring Peter Lorre. This is a psychological drama, produced in Germany in 1931, before the advent of the so-called Nazi "cultural" films. The second presentation will be "The Movies March On", an entertaining documentary history of the cinema.

At this first showing, the audience will actually be allowed to choose the films to be shown during the ensuing six months. Thus, the Art Department is particularly anxious that all interested in these films be present for the first performance so that they may choose the reels to be shown during the coming months. Featuring motion pictures that can not be seen in ordinary theaters, the programs will consist primarily of revivals and documentary films of special interest to students and the general public.

Non-students wishing to attend these performance may secure subscriptions for the next six months' presentations, the cost of which is $3.00, by phoning Prof. Rickey at the college or contacting him in his office on the third floor of the library building.

Date Announced For Annual Hymn-Sing

Advance notice has been received that the annual joint Muhlenberg-Cedar Crest Christmas Service will be held in the Muhlenberg Chapel on December 19 at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The choirs of both Muhlenberg and Cedar Crest will participate in the service, and the speaker will be Dr. Moore of Cedar Crest, in accordance with the custom of the alternation of speakers between the presidents of Muhlenberg and Cedar Crest.

The joint service is one of the oldest Muhlenberg traditions, and one which managed to survive during the war years, unlike so many of the other college traditions that became war casualties. This occasion will be a part of the college's time-honored Christmas celebrations, and will be engaged in this year by the largest student body in the history of Muhlenberg.

The service is always the highlight of the series of college activities before the holidays.

Victorious Mules Face Den Of Well-Fed Lions In Tomorrow's Game

The local gridiron is scheduled to feel the pounding cleats of the victory flushed Mules as the home season is opened with Albright's Roaring Lions this Saturday.

The meeting of these fierce rivals marks their first inter-collegiate tussle since the 1944-45 basketball season.

Veteran's Wife, Helfrich, Rossi Get Play Leads

With rehearsals being scheduled, Dover Road, the first fall production of the Mask and Dagger, is moving along rapidly, under the direction of Andrew H. Erskine.

As a result of the tryouts held in the Science Auditorium on Monday evening, September 30, a well rounded cast has been selected.

The part of Dominic, the servant of Latimer, will be taken by Gerald Rogers, experienced dramatist. Dominic is an ex-prize fighter and enforces Latimer's wishes. Harold Helfrich, who portrayed Mercutio in Romeo and Juliet, will play the part of Latimer, an elderly, wealthy man who is continually interfering with other people's marital affairs. A newcomer to the stage, Louis Rossi, will give his rendition of a shrewd, useless nobleman who courts a much younger woman than himself because he is not content with his own wife. He will play the part of Leonard. Nicholas, an irresponsible young man, will be played by Robert Bosch, veteran of many Mask and Dagger productions. Ernest Walender and Robert Hale, also veterans of M and D productions will take the part of two footmen.

Two female parts in Dover Road, will be taken by Mrs. Earl Feight and Miss Ann Hurdell. Mrs. Feight will take the part of Eustacia, Leonard's wife. She is a flighty woman who is constantly fussing and fluttering around. Miss Hurdell will depict, Anne, a sweet young girl, upon whom Leonard centers his affections.

The Albright coach, Dave A. Strong, and assistant coach LeVan "Fat" Smith, (Muhlenberg Class of 1930), will bring a rugged aggregation to do battle with the 'Berg. Reports leaking from the Lions stronghold indicates that the undefeated Mules will be in for a busy afternoon. A line averaging over 200 pounds and a backfield averaging 187 pounds promises to offer titanic opposition.

Albright is just opening their season, but their strength is by no means untested as fourteen veterans of the successful 1942 squad have returned. The team has shown marked ability in scrimmage sessions with both Lebanon Valley and Lafayette College.

Muhlenberg, though happy with the thought of the recent Lafayette victory, is beset with injuries. Such capable performers as Reimer, Mirth, and Barker are sidelined and several minor injuries will prevent a full strength starting lineup.

Albright	Muhlenberg

Following the practice of last week, co-captains were appointed for this week's game. They are Ed Sikorski, track star and starting fullback who went 62 yards for the final touchdown last week, and George Bibighaus, right end who caught two touchdown passes against Lafayette.

EDITORIAL

The Library stacks have been closed to all students. No more are we allowed to browse in the stacks selecting from the great bulk of books those which best suit our reading and studying purposes. We of the WEEKLY hold that this policy is unnecessary and harmful in many ways.

Students are discouraged when looking for books—whether they are texts or reference books, biography or novels. Confronted with the Card Catalog and the time-wasting, inefficient, elaborate 'call system' the student is tempted to ignore all but the required reading. The system hinders the freedom of choice of the student.

At the University of Colorado, with a student body of several thousand, all students are allowed to enter the stacks. Attendants check books as the student leaves the stacks and student-assistants restore the books which have been used to the shelves. A system patterned on this model might prove very successful.

We believe that with the free access to the stacks the student would feel free to do much more pleasure reading. The abolition of the 'Call System' would free the Librarians from much of the tiresome routine and enable them to aid more completely in the many details of library operation.

Furthermore we ask that the Library remain open on the week-end. Not all of the assignments from Friday's classes can be completed the same day. With the Library closed many students haven't the time to complete the necessary, basic requirements for their instructors.

Muhlenberg has a fine, modern, well-equipped library—one that we should all use to the greatest advantage. With these reforms we earnestly believe that study and reading conditions would be far more agreeable and we could get maximum efficiency from our library contacts.

OBITER DICTA

by Dave Tyson

There were a few Muhlenberg students in the crowd of 2200 which jammed the Allentown High Palestra last Tuesday night to hear a big wheel in the Labor world, Walter Reuther, sound off about the Labor movement in this country and its part in the future of America. As President of the United Auto Workers, Reuther was in Washington at a series of conferences seeking to settle the strike which has stopped work at the Mack Truck plant in Allentown for five months, and he arrived late at the rally, which was sponsored by Local 677 of the UAW-CIO.

Speaking to a sympathetic audience, Walter Reuther's words and manner did much to dispel the belief that all present-day Labor leaders are wild-eyed radicals. Any student interested to know what is behind the Labor-Management uproar in this country, would have done well to hear him. He is a young, forceful, magnetic person, and his name is going to be mentioned quite often in the years to come. Even today as President of the largest union in the world, he is a nationally known figure, and has been mentioned as the successor to Philip Murray as head of the whole CIO.

Reuther made some interesting observations in his speech, pointing out, for instance, how easy it was to fight the war in comparison to winning the peace. All we had to do was build more tanks, and planes, and guns than the enemy, and kill more men. At that time national unity was the least of our problems. It's a different story today.

Reuther did not go into the whys and wherefores of the situation, but they seem to be this: So long as we as a nation are faced with some sort of an external danger, like Nazism, we are united. Many people marvel at this fact, remarking how wonderful it was that right after Pearl Harbor everybody got together and knuckled down to fight the war. It's a phenomenon, to be sure, one of which the Nazis and Nipponese never took account. But there's nothing particularly commendable about it. There is a great deal of emotion stirred up during a war, and it's one of the easiest things in the world to rally the people behind the flag in a fight against tyranny and oppression in the tangible form of an enemy dictator. This has always been the case.

But once the victory is gained and the danger removed, the people are let down without a cause and unity collapses. Such has been the course of events in this country. Right after V-J Day pleas were made to maintain national and international unity so we could win the Peace. But Peace is not a particularly tangible term, and there are many interpretations as to just what is Peace. And as everybody had struggled to win the war, so everybody began to struggle to win the Peace. In this country, the traditional tug-of-war between a planned economy and laissez-faire, between Labor and Management, began anew. Internationally, the United States and Soviet Russia began their own struggle, the purpose of which is not exactly clear, but is supposedly to guarantee the national security of each. It is interesting to note that on the subject of Foreign Policy, we in this country have been united up to now because in the minds of most people we are faced with an outside danger in Soviet Russia.

So a world united in war is divided in peace. What's to be done about it? In the universal enthusiasm at the time of the San Francisco Conference, the United Nations were the last great hope of mankind. In the past year the United Nations have become a seemingly lifeless body, but it is not too late to give that body a shot in the arm. The people have no genuine interest in the United Nations. It's just another outfit like the OPA to most of us. A little showmanship is needed. Why not launch a big booster campaign for the United Nations, in this country and abroad? Adopt a United Nations flag, and perhaps a United Nations Anthem. Organize that International Police Force we heard so much about, if only as a token force, but build it up as something in which service is an honor, and give it a distinctive uniform. Wonders might be done with a little hoopla like that. During the war they sold bonds with cheesecake; why not strike up the band for the UN?

This is certainly not offered as a sure-cure for the ills of the world; there are too many serious factors which enter in. But such an attempt to popularize the United Nations might possibly open the way towards breaking the deadlock which exists on the international scene today. Genuine enthusiasm for the UN in this country might also turn our minds outward once again and regenerate national unity. People might be made more conscious of the fact, for instance, that we have certain obligations to the world in the form of food and vitally needed manufactured and raw materials, and that our foreign policy can best be served, as Walter Reuther pointed out, if we demonstrate to the world that under our system, people can live in peace and prosperity.

MULE KICKS

Dear Editor,

I am a peaceful, law-abiding, tuition-paying student. I am overflowing with school spirit and I always like to know what's going on and who's doing what to who on the campus. However, my aspirations along these lines have been completely frustrated due to the congested conditions existing around the Bulletin Board (Ad. Building). I have only had one look at the "board" since my arrival, thirty-two years ago, consequently I have missed out on just about everything. Won't somebody please do something to alleviate this condition. I'm not even sure what year it is.

HOPELESS CASE

"Muhlenberg Victory" Strike Bound

The S. S. Muhlenberg Victory, freighter named after the college, is strike-bound at Savannah, Georgia, in the current walk-out of the National Maritime Union. A recent order issued by union heads which permitted longshoremen to return to work on foreign ships in Savannah Harbor, in no way affected the crew of the Muhlenberg Victory and thirteen other American ships tied up at their piers.

The Muhlenberg Victory was built by the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyards in Baltimore, Maryland, and was launched in that city on July 12, 1945, with Mrs. Levering Tyson acting as sponsor. The 10,000-ton ship served as a troop transport on the transatlantic run until recently, when it was converted to a cattle ship to carry dairy cattle to Europe for UNRRA.

... The Awful Truth ...

By Mike Rogers

Well, what else is there to talk about than the Lafayette game? Go on, tell me something better. Seriously tho, it isn't necessary to go into details, you who were there saw it for yourselves, those of you who weren't there are still kicking yourselves for missing the game. We've got a gang of guys playing football for us who don't know what the word, "quit" means. Many and many a moon has passed since 'Berg has fielded a team with that extra kick and extra bit of "Guts" which makes the difference between a winner and an also ran. Orchids, and lots of them to the coaches Schwartzwalder, Barker, Lough, and Fellows for the terrific job they have done and more posies to the guys who lugged the skin and threw those blocks. A first class job, from some first class guys...

We have received many cracks and comments regarding the Constitution of Muhlenberg College which many think need a bit of attending to. We would like to state here and now that the WEEKLY and its staff will do all it can to step things up in checking on the matter. In fact we have several men on the job now and should have some red hot info for you soon... Note to "Collitch Campus Cut-Ups"; Mrs. Kohler in the book store has received a package from the American occupation zone in Germany. Yep, that's right, the old man is home, ain't it a shame a gal like that has to be married; some guys have all the luck...

You will note elsewhere in the sheet that the date has been set for the joint Christmas Carol sing with the gals from across the way. The old chapel will have to do some deep breathing to allow all hands entrance to the festivities. Your reporter has received definite information that a movement is underway to have the young ladies seated in the laps of the young men; you know, a sorta cheery Yuletide spirit... Speaking of Cedar Crest, you guys who weren't around this summer for the "Slumber Session" really missed the gravy. Muhlenberg looked like heaven, and the gals were really in evidence, and such evidence!! Everyone had a good time, in and out of class and the lawns resembled Cedar Beach at times. But now they're gone and we are once more alone, tch, tch, tch. (Why is Asbury Park so far away)...

Cheez, Jim, we're sorry about the slip last week. This will serve to let all know Jim Doran is on campus and still doggin' those classes. Brother, with a gal like yours, I'd save myself too; hmmm!!! Have you checked "Tex" Baldwin ala Chevrolet 1946? Big time for all when Mrs. B. shoves off...

"Rabbit" Myers, please confirm, has sir stork been your way recently, and if so, why no "SEEGARS"? Also on the long legged bird's list of customers are the Bell people. Bill is the Eisenhower of our grid outfit and did a bang-up job last Saturday at Easton...

Time to go get in line for ducats to watch the "Mules" go against Albright. And I do mean go; don't stop now guys, and don't stop rootin' the rest of you! Best of luck to Ed Sikorski and George Bibighaus the co-captains for this game.

Alumni Memo

By John Wagner, Alumni Secretary

It's a bit of a handicap to be directly under anything written by Mike Rogers, but I'll try to bear up under the strain.

I'd like to pay tribute, on behalf of the Alumni, to that great team that took the curl out of the Leopard's tail last Saturday afternoon. We saw the game and, as a result, are still having a hard time trying to talk in a normal voice. The many alumni who were in Easton last Saturday were loud in their praise of the Mules and their fine coaching staff. When you consider all the implications involved in defeating Lafayette, a team rated as tenth in the nation, and one whom, in the past twenty seven games, we have been able to defeat only four times, you can see how much the victory meant to the men of the Alumni Association. We are going to be in their solidly, cheering the team on, Saturday after Saturday, and we know that you, as students, will be giving the same kind of support to a fine group which is truly representative of the real spirit of Muhlenberg.

I'll look for all of you out there tomorrow afternoon when we will tame the Albright Lion.

MULES LASH LEOPARDS, 32-20

ACCENT
ON...

by Herb Needleman

Don't look now, but that air minded Byron from over Lafayette way is now literally chewing over his recent poetic predictions as to the outcome of last Saturday's ball game in the privacy of his room. 'Seems that the fellow who buzzed the campus Friday and bombarded the place with his free verse was answered in his own language by the aerial attack of Bell, Crider and Co., and they say that actions speak louder than words... 'More truth than poetry in that, too.

We'd like to toss a couple nice adjectives at Will Weisel, Frank Stanzack, and Bob Magee of the Leopards. Weisel was a mean man on the defense, and an octopus when it came to snagging passes. Stanzack, a product of Northeast High, Philly, made many a play go with his sharp blocking. And Magee?—Well let's let it go by saying Magee did almost everything that day but lead the Lafayette cheering section and sell hot dogs in the stands.

That block that Beers put on the Lafayette backer-up was a joy to behold. Crider could have hopped over on one foot behind it. . . . Mule ball carriers were as hard for the Lafayette team to keep down as the cost of living is for the O.P.A.

This Saturday brings the Albright herd up here, and after looking over their weight chart, we decided that herd was the advisable word. We saw a representative group of them at Lafayette and they looked big enough. Coach Schwartzwalder's boys will have to hustle plenty, what with the loss of Reimer, Mirth, and Barker. Reimer, last week's captain, is suffering a leg injury from the Princeton scrimmage and Mirth is having knee trouble. Bill Barker, who played a standout defensive game in the first quarter of the Lafayette fracas, is still in bad shape with a concussion. To add to the coaches' woes, the Albright squad has had a chance to look us over, but they present an unknown quantity to us. However, we can look for some surprises to be pulled by Schwartzwalder and company to overbalance the above handicaps.

Check in at the stadium Friday for what promises to be a sweet ball game as Ernie Fellows' Little Mules open against the Lehigh Jayvees. The boys show plenty of stuff even though they haven't had too much practice time.

Just a quiet word to the characters with the rose-tinted specs who've already decided that 'Berg is an unstoppable powerhouse. Just as four walls don't make a hoosegow, neither does one ball game make a season.

Hopin'
& Dopin'

Having opened their season successfully last week against Lafayette by a 32-20 score, the "Mauling Mules" should continue on their winning ways against a heavier Albright team, which has yet to be tested. The Mules may have a tough fight on their hands especially since it has been announced that Barker, Mirth, and Reimer will not see action due to injuries. However the boys should have too much power and speed for the Lions and should win a close one.

Bucknell, whom Muhlenberg plays next week should be swamped by a vastly superior and larger Penn State team, with State's depth in reserves being the margin of victory.

Army, still minus Blanchard, will find the going easier and beat Cornell on Saturday. One thing was conclusively shown last week in the tough time with Oklahoma, and that was the fact that Arnold Tucker at quarterback, is the main cog in the Army football machine.

Led by Rossides and Kusserow, Lou Little's Columbia team could easily pull an upset over the Navy squad. Too many fumbles and not enough close teamwork in the Villanova game made many sit up and take note. We say Columbia.

Lujack should lead his Notre Dame outfit with a terrific line to victory over Pitt. Also in the east; Yale to trim Colgate, Lehigh to beat Dickinson, Villanova over Wesleyan.

The Mid-West and South stack up thusly: Michigan over Iowa after Doc Anderson's upset pullers make a tough fight of it, and Minnesota should take Indiana in a

"Help Wanted" Call For X-Country Men
As Season Starts

Muhlenberg's fall track practice may get under way the middle of this week, according to a statement from Coach Ernie Fellows.

This call will be intended for any men who do not report for football or basketball. The main purpose, for this fall training, is to get the men ready for the spring sports.

The training will be highlighted by a cross-country run with Franklin and Marshall at the 'Berg homecoming on October 26.

The final course of the run is still undecided. It is believed, however, that the course will include Trexler Park and will probably cover a distance of four and one-quarter miles. The finish will be on the football field at the half of the F. and M. game.

Depending on the outcome of this event and what material the coach has to work with several other events may be scheduled later.

typical Big Ten knock down affair.

Texas, always a Rose Bowl possibility, should take a hard fight from Oklahoma A. and M., Texas A. and M. should turn the tide further in favor of the Lone Star state as they whip Oklahoma. Duke over Tennessee, 'Bama to take South Carolina, Tulane over Florida, and Georgia over Temple.

The far west has tough ones to pick, Southern Cal has "Bowl" fever and will give Ohio State a real game, even though the "Bucks" are plenty tough this year. U.S.C. will win.

Kick Back In Second Half To Win Opener

Lafayette's Fisher Field was the site of Muhlenberg's hard fought victory over a favored Leopard team in their opening game of the 1946 football season last Saturday. Eight thousand shirt-sleeved fans watched a heady and determined 'Berg team overcome an eight point half time deficit to pull the game out and win going away.

'Berg Booters
Open Season
At Lehigh

The Muhlenberg soccer squad is starting its 1946 series of contests this Saturday with Lehigh in Engineer territory after a two week practice session. Many of the candidates have had considerable experience and all indications point to a successful year.

Coaching this year is Charles "Chillie" Altemose, right halfback for the Pro Philadelphia Nationals. He filled in the latter part of the season last year as coach, and came through with a good record. Having played with sandlot and Bethlehem High School teams, "Chillie" has a valuable store of experience and knowledge to aid him in his task which is shown by the progress the boys are making. However the coach would like more material to work with, and urges anyone interested to come out for practice. Experience isn't necessary he says, just the spirit to learn and enjoy the game is all.

Aiding Coach Altemose in his work is Joseph Saurino, who played with sandlot, Bethlehem High School, and amateur Lehigh Valley teams in the past.

The squad this year has several holdovers from last season's squad, namely, Harrison Moyer, John Lesko, and Lawrence Delp, along with Donald Boyer from 1944.

Coach Altemose is having difficulty choosing his 18 man squad for traveling this season, although last Wednesday's intersquad scrimmage should greatly help him in his choice this evening of tomorrow's line-up.

Coach Schwartzwalder's team exhibited strength and skill in practically every department. The line, sparked by Captain Carl Reimer, George Bibighaus, Mike Bogdziewicz and Alex Schreiber, proved more than a match for the Lafayette forwards, opening up gaps for the backs to slip through time and again. Bibighaus caught two passes, one from Jack Crider and another from Bill Bell, for touchdowns, and was in on every play around his side of the line. Reimer and Bogdziewicz excelled on both offense and defense, consistently stopping the Lafayette running attack, and pulling out of the line to lead the interferences.

The 'Berg offense, running from the single-wing, worked as smoothly as one of those well-oiled 1946 autos you'd like to get your hands on. Jack Crider, scab-back from Canton, Ohio, proved to be a thorn in the side of the Maroon team all afternoon, scoring twice himself, and passing for one more touchdown and conversion. Ed Sikorski and Irv Dean were powerhouses at line bucking, the former going 62 yards in the last quarter for 'Berg's final score. Bill Bell showed some fine field generalship, mixing the play and the Lafayette team up thoroughly at times. The secondary would close in to stop the ground attack, and Bell would sneak a short pass over their heads.

Winning the toss, the Mules elected to receive, and ventured to score as they moved from their own 29 to the Leopard's 37 on five plays when a fumble gave the ball to Lafayette.

Lafayette scored first on a pass, Magee to Weisel and converted, but the Mules snapped back as

Notice To All Veterans

Those veterans who have not yet applied for their letters of entitlement are urged to do so at once. You are not entitled to any of the benefits made available by P. L. 346 until form 1950, the application for a course of education or training, has been completed by you and submitted to the Veterans' Administration.

To accomplish this, take a photostatic copy of your discharge paper and, if married, certified copy of your marriage certificate to the V. A. Office, located at 1124 Turner St., Allentown, Pa. There you will be assisted in filling out and filing form 1950, thereby covering your period of training until you receive your letter of entitlement.

Parking Lot, Walks Near Completion

In a recent interview, Mr. A. W. Hartzell, superintendent of buildings and grounds, disclosed the fact that the proposed parking lot, next to the A.T.O. fraternity house is nearing completion.

Contractor difficulties have delayed completion of this project, but Mr. Hartzell has expressed confidence in a not too distant completion.

Inclement weather has delayed resurfacing of the walks and drives adjoining the Administration Building, Library, and Science Building.

When completed, the parking lot on Chew Street will ease facilities greatly, and the work on the other projects will make commuting easier as well as add beautification to the campus.

L. Samuel Krouse, who was elected first alternate in the student body election last June, was seated in Council at the meeting, replacing Paul Balze, who is now attending medical school. Balze was originally elected to the Council, and under the Constitution the first alternate candidate is seated in such a case.

The head cheerleader, George Katchmerik, was appointed to head the pep committee. Other cheer leaders are to work with him, and they will be in charge of all pep meetings.

This week Student Council members completed the job of handing out the 1946 copies of the "M" Book and identification badges to all upper classmen.

Famous Paintings May Be Rented

A series of showings of outstanding paintings, both originals and copies, will be held in the studios of the Art Department on the third floor of the Library, from this date to October 13th. These shows will consist mostly of reproductions available for rental to students for use in decorating their rooms. The rental fee for an individual painting will be the nominal charge of 50c per semester. Students wishing to rent these paintings may contact Prof. Rickey, at any time, in the Art Department's offices.

Prof. Rickey also announced that the art studio, on the third floor of the Library, is available to any students who wish to draw or paint. A student wishing to paint or draw during his free time need only go to the Art Department where Prof. Rickey will provide him with paints, brushes, canvas, and all other materials. The Art Department is hoping that many students who follow art as their hobby will take advantage of this opportunity to improve their artistic prowess.

Lafayette Game

Bell whipped one to Crider in the end zone. Miller's try for the extra point was wide.

Stanzack, Leopard halfback, refused to be fooled by a Muhlenberg trick pass play, pulled the ball down and scored standing up. Durstine failed to convert. A feeble kick gave Lafayette the ball on 'Berg's 27. Magee passed to Shirley and then bucked for the score. Schler's kick put the score at 20-6.

The Mules found the aerial route more effective after Keefe almost got clear on the kickoff. Bell to Crider was good to the five yard line. Then Bell took the pass from center, spun, faked a buck and lobbed a basketball pass to Bibighaus in the end zone. The kick was short and 'Berg trailed, 20 to 12 as the half ended.

As soon as Muhlenberg took the field in the second half, it became evident that they had tired of playing their pre-game assignment of the underdog and decided to play ball their own way. They marched to the Lafayette 12, only to lose the ball on a fumble. Coming back on runs by Dean, Sikorski, and Crider, 'Berg scored on a pass from Crider to Bibighaus, and converted on a pass.

With victory only one point away, the Mules were not to be denied, and scored handily on an off tackle buck by Crider, set up by a beautiful block by Beers. Bell's pass to Miller converted, and 'Berg led, for the first time 27 to 20.

Sikorski sewed up the game in fitting style as he bucked the line, and out-ran the secondary 62 yards for the final score.

Details On Ticket Sale Announced

Mr. Gurney F. Afflerbach, of the Athletic office, this week announced details on the sale of tickets to students and friends for the Albright and succeeding home games.

Students of the college will be admitted at the South gate upon presentation of an activities card. This week, since activities cards are not issued yet, admission to class cards are to be used.

A student's wife or girl friend may sit with him in the student section upon purchase of a $1.20 ticket (tax included).

Any student wishing to sit with parents or friends outside the student area may do so by paying thirty-three cents tax. In order to make arrangements for such a seat, the student must leave his activities card in the Athletic office.

Scholarship

Oxford offers about the same variety of instruction as any large American University.

The stipend of the Rhodes Scholars will remain the same, 400 pounds, in English money, per year. However, those scholars who will not receive any benefits from the G.I. Bill will receive an additional 100 Pounds. In addition, Rhodes Scholars going to Oxford for the first time will receive from the Rhodes Trust a refund of one half of their steamship fare.

Information and applications may be obtained from Professor Rickey who is a representative of Rhodes Scholarships here at Muhlenberg.

The school is interested in being able to send applications for the scholarship so those students who are interested, see Mr. Rickey as soon as possible because applications must be in by November 2.

'BERG "GI's" TO MARCH IN GALA VETERANS' WELCOME PARADE, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15th

Sport Dance At Armory To Feature Bob Harry

Beginning an extensive social program at the college for the semester, "The Fall Dance", an informal sport dance, sponsored by the Student Council, will be presented on Saturday evening, October 19 at the Armory. Music for the evening will be provided by Bob Harry and his Orchestra.

In announcing this dance, the Student Council also revealed that dates have also been set for another sport dance and a formal, all coming before Christmas during the present semester. Dates and other details on these will be revealed later.

Bob Harry, the featured band at the first dance, is new to Muhlenberg students, but the Philadelphia aggregation has proven very popular in the past, playing at various colleges and this Summer at Steel Pier, Atlantic City. The group includes fifteen men and a girl vocalist.

The Armory, located at 15th and Allen Streets in Allentown, has been a frequent spot for 'Berg dances in the past and now is one of the few places in the Valley offering adequate room for the college's large student body.

Admission to the dance will be by presentation of activities cards at the door. This will admit both the student and his date. Phil Mitterling is in charge of the dance, Jim Wilder heads the decorating committee, and Ernest Hawk is taking care of the publicity.

On The Campus

Bollier Coaches Debaters

Muhlenberg's debating team will be coached by E. Philip Bollier, this year. Mr. Bollier is a member of Muhlenberg's 1943 graduating class and debated for three years as an undergraduate. He made an extensive tour of the South and was one of two men who participated in the Grand Eastern Tournament in 1942.

This English instructor served in India for two years with the Army Air Forces and edited his group's newspaper while stationed there.

He became a member of Muhlenberg's faculty in March of this year. On October 12, Mr. Bollier will represent this college at a meeting of Pennsylvania debate coaches in Harrisburg.

Although preliminary work will be done this fall, actual debating will not be done until the second semester.

Christian Asso. Organizes

At the first meeting of the M. C. A. this fall, plans for reorganization were discussed. The meeting was attended by thirty-one students and six faculty members.

Richard Rushmore presided and Franklin Sherman explained the purpose of the meeting. The Rev. Harold Viehman, regional secretary of the Student Christian Movement, discussed plans for this year with the group. A committee was formed to digest the discussions and recommend plans for this year's activities.

The group showed considerable interest in the discussions. Many different points of view enlivened the meeting.

Famous Movies Prove Popular, More Follow

Peter Lorre, portraying the part of a psychopathic child murderer in the German film "M", cast an eerie spell on the capacity crowd which filled the studios of the Art Department on the third floor of the Library building last Friday evening. The picture was the first in a series to be presented by the Art Department on the first Friday of each month as its contribution to the recreational program of the college. Although the dialogue was in German and a challenge to the second and third year language students, the plot and actions evolved with enough suspense to hold the interest of the entire audience.

A program of six more films is to be offered to students and their dates this school year. In order to determine which shows to procure for succeeding programs a list of movie titles in the form of a ballot was distributed last Friday evening. Upon the results of these preferences the Art Department will attempt to present a popular show each month.

The result of a poll on the basis of the 63 casting votes are as follows listed by type and in descending order of preference: Drama—Crime and Punishment, 39 Steps, Informer; Documentary—Forgotten Village, Comedy—Marx Brothers; Fantasy—Blood of the Poet, Historical—Henry VIII, Birth of a Nation; others—Hunchback of Notre Dame, Boom Town, and Test Pilot. The selection for next month will be one of these and will be announced at a later date.

Field House Fund Now $411,000; Goal Near

It was disclosed by Mr. John Wagner, Alumni Secretary, that already $411,000 has been obtained for the new Field House. Money is being received daily for this project, which, when completed, will bring notable exhibitions and competitive events to Muhlenberg. Mr. Wagner stated, "Prospects look very good." An effort will be made from now until the end of the year to conclude the campaign successfully.

This much needed structure will house one major basketball court, 1/7 mile running track, jumping pits and runways for track events, a baseball battery, four tennis courts, spectator facilities to accommodate over 6,000 persons, a swimming pool, three handball courts, two boxing rings, wrestling equipment and possibly bowling alleys. These and many other features will be available to the college community upon the completion of the proposed Field House.

Because of shortages of all kinds, construction plans are incomplete. With a building of this type, Muhlenberg College will take its place among other colleges with adequate room for indoor physical training and development.

Largest Single Unit Will Feature 500 College Vets

Hold on there fellow, don't put that uniform away. You are going to have use for it in the very near future. The day you have been waiting for is about to arrive. The grateful citizens of Lehigh County have inaugurated Tuesday, October 15 to be official "Homecoming Day" for the Veterans of World War II. According to reliable sources, great rejoicing is to be had by all. By decree of the local government, all places of business and education are to be closed Tuesday afternoon to make way for a full agenda of activities.

Band Success, Will Play On Saturday

Muhlenberg's newly organized band performed before the Student Body for the first time this fall, on Saturday, October 6. This outstanding organization of the college was the recipient of many favorable comments concerning their playing and marching accomplishments. The band, during the half time of the game, faced Albright's spectators, formed an "A", and played "Invercargill". They then reversed and played Muhlenberg's Alma Mater while in the formation of an "M".

The band, consisting of over 40 members, is looking forward to a full schedule. An outstanding event of the band calendar will be the annual Home Coming Game on October 26, when Muhlenberg plays Franklin and Marshall.

Anthony Jagnesak, director of the band, expressed a desire to have as many more students, who play musical instruments, try-out for a position in the band.

YMCA Reduces Fee

The Allentown Y.M.C.A. has offered students of Muhlenberg a half price season membership. The membership will cost $7.50 a year. This is quite a saving for anyone who wishes to make use of the facilities offered by the Y.M.C.A.

"Law And The Citizen" Is New Course For Seniors

One of the most practical curricular innovations to augment the Muhlenberg roster in recent years, a course entitled Law and the Citizen, is now being offered to seniors only by the History department, under the direction of Mr. Henry L. Snyder, prominent Allentown attorney.

Mr. Snyder has substantially qualified himself to teach this new course on the campus by virtue of his wide range of experience both in the field of law and politics. A Muhlenberg graduate of the class of 1925, he has distinguished himself not only as a noted member of the Lehigh County Bar Association for well over 20 years, but also as a leader in community action. He was elected to the state Senate in 1931 and served faithfully in that capacity until 1935. The introduction of this course to Muhlenberg students is largely due to Mr. Snyder's initiative and persistence.

Marshall "Mike" Rogers has been appointed Unit Commander for the Muhlenberg Unit and has in turn appointed as his deputy commanders Paul Markavage, Wallace Hunter, John Rogers, Jim Kessik, and Les Warger. These men will have the job of stimulating interest in, and making the necessary arrangements for, the successful carrying out of the plan. These men are available with the necessary information to answer any questions which the men may have regarding the parade. Actual signing up for the parade will not be required. However the Unit Commander has stated, "We hope to see all the 'G.I.'s" on hand at 1330 next Tuesday, October 13th, in the quadrangle at East Hall. This day has been planned for our honor and participation. It will be a great show of spirit and willingness to cooperate if we all get together and make this a real boost for Muhlenberg, in the form of a fine unit of at least 500 men on Tuesday".

Theoretically, all of the veterans in Lehigh County will muster at the Allentown Fair Grounds at 3:00 p.m., Tuesday afternoon and will proceed without caution to 5th and Hamilton Sts. Upon arrival at the designated spot, they will disperse to their respective billets namely, the American Legion, Vets of Foreign Wars, The Armory and other various veterans organizations where the cheer will flow like wine.

Rank will have no authority, officers and enlisted men will march together, drink together, and tell each other off.

All institutions and sections will be represented by their respective (Continued on Page Four)

Important Notice

Ed. Note: Dean Mercer has asked that the WEEKLY publish the following notice for all students. It is of utmost importance, read carefully.

Each man who plans to take his degree in June of 1947 or June of 1948, must have his program for his majors reviewed by the head of the department concerned.

Each man must present a statement from the department head to Dean Mercer, not later than November 1st. Responsibility for obtaining this statement rests with the student and not the department head.

Choir Rehearsing For Busy Season

The 1946-47 version of the Chapel Choir is well under way toward a more brilliant year than previous aggregations have enjoyed. Director Dr. Harold K. Marks and manager Robert Kishbaugh are arranging an ambitious schedule of engagements that may even go beyond the state line.

At present, the choir is hampered by a shortage of music and gowns. When these articles come through, Muhlenberg can expect a choir of outstanding quality that will do credit to 'Berg's good name.

It has long been the dream of Dr. Marks to have a choir of present proportions. Now that his dream is being realized, Dr. Marks will have the opportunity of developing the choir into a group of which Muhlenberg College may well be proud.

November 7 and 8 Dates Announced For "Dover Road"

Presentation of the Mask and Dagger's fall production, "Dover Road" by A. A. Milne, has been set for November 7 and 8, Thursday and Friday evenings on the stage of the college Little Theater in the Science Auditorium. The dates for opening curtain on this first dramatic production to be offered to the present enlarged student body were released by the Director, Mr. Andrew H. Erskine.

Concentrated rehearsals which commenced last week are now in full swing and will continue until opening night. Behind the scenes a nucleus stage crew under the leadership of James Reppert, Secretary-treasurer of the Mask and Dagger, has begun construction of the set for the play.

Students will be admitted to the play upon presentation of their student activity card which includes an entitlement to Mask and Dagger productions.

Equal Representation???

During the time I was employed by my Uncle Samuel I developed a nasty habit of moaning about shafty deals. Although I no longer G.I. my cigarette butts, go into hiding when work is mentioned, or ask for three day passes to visit my sick grandmother, nevertheless I still continue to moan when dinged by destiny.

If I thought for a minute that I were the only one dissatisfied with Article IV of the Student Government Constitution, limiting Student Council membership to Juniors, I would simply say, "God sure loved the Freshmen and Sophomores since he made so many more of them than Juniors and Seniors." But I have worn out six perfectly good ears listening to others express similar views.

In Pre-War Muhlenberg I can see why Student Council was limited to Juniors and Seniors; if it hadn't, some milk-shaker fresh out of high school probably would have fostered a Student Council drive to have Tallman's converted into a Milk-bar or something equally as stupid; but now Muhlenberg's underclass consists of men who know the score.

Everything at Muhlenberg has changed: the strict division between Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior no longer exists except in matriculation books. Freshmen regulations are a thing of the past—try to make a Freshman sing the Alma Mater at Seventh and Hamilton.

All colleges have become liberalized; entrance requirements have been manipulated to admit more men; degree requirements have been altered to let more out; and tuitions have been jacked up to meet changing conditions. In all three of these Muhlenberg has gone along, but even before the war many colleges had given their underclass representation and the majority of the others came across during and after the war; why should Muhlenberg hold out here?

There is an off-asked question about the campus, namely: "Why don't more men attend Student Body meetings?" The answer may be simple: With the majority of students underclass men and the Council all upper classmen possibly a feeling of not being represented has arisen. Change this and if Student Body meeting attendances still do not increase, then it will be self-evident that no one is interested in student affairs—which I don't believe.

Oh, yes, the situation can be changed. Open your 'M' Books to page 56 and read Article XII entitled Amendments. THEN DO SOMETHING.

OUT OF THE MORGUE

Every one has heard the expression, "When I was a boy things were really tough" or "What are you complaining about son, I had to walk ten miles to school every day." The usual response to these parental recollections was usually a whispered, "Oh yeah" or "Prove it".

The latter question is exactly what the WEEKLY has in mind. After many months of tireless research, leafing through books, straining eyes and drinking black coffee, a persistent staff succeeded in uncovering a few beer bottle caps, two Indian arrow heads and a deed to the 8th St. Bridge. However, their search was not entirely in vain. Diligence does not go unrewarded and such was the case of our heroic crew. Dr. Levering Tyson and Dr. James Swain, perceiving the plight of these men, immediately dug into the archives of our alma mater. The result was the priceless document which we are reprinting below in an abridged form.

Read it, enjoy it, and draw your own conclusions as to the validity of the opening statements.

Regulations

of MUHLENBERG COLLEGE

Adopted by the Board of Trustees 1891

3. No student shall be admitted into the Institution who does not bear a good moral character, and if he comes from another Institution he must present a certificate of honorable dismissal and good standing.

Editor's Note: The above regulation is a prerequisite for college students today. However, if analyzed, it provides a wide leeway for those who desire to enter a school of higher learning. As Dr. Stine says, "Although the line is thin, there is quite a difference between MORALS and conventions. For example, running around in the nude is NOT IMMORAL, just unconventional."

As for the latter statement concerning "a certificate of honorable dismissal", it appears that anyone wearing ye old "ruptured duck" is eligible for this school.

4. No student shall be considered a full member of the Institution until he shall have been matriculated. At his matriculation he shall write his own name, his father's or guardian's name, and his post office address in a book kept for this purpose, and shall subscribe the following promise: "I sincerely promise to obey all the Laws and Regulations of Muhlenberg College, to give entire and cheerful obedience to all its officers, and to conduct myself as it behooves a Christian gentleman."

Editor's Note: It is quite obvious by this regulation that the prospective "stude" must be able to write his own name. X's are strictly forbidden with the exception of a few American aborigines who were given special consideration by the board. A few notables were Chief Liver Lip (Sue), Chief Running Nose (Seminaries) and Chief Mike Rogers (Miami Indians).

6. No student shall leave Allentown without the permission of the President. Whenever the President or any other officer of the College visits a student's room the door shall be promptly opened at the call of the officer.

Editor's Note: The above reg. isn't as bad as it looks. There is really no need to leave Allentown. Everything you could possibly desire is right here, and I mean everything!

8. Hazing in every form is absolutely forbidden. Every student shall abstain, at all times, from all unnecessary noise in every part of the College edifice and its vicinity, and shall not have or use firearms or gun-powder in the College precincts, or carry any weapon about his person. The use of intoxicating drinks, gambling, and all profane or indecent language are strictly forbidden.

Editor's Note: It was the very paragraph you have just read that kept Jessie James out of Muhlenberg. The old renegade couldn't bear to be parted from his six shooters.

11. No literary or other society shall exist in the College except by permission of the Faculty, and their approval of its Constitution. All secret inter-collegiate fraternities are disapproved by the authorities.

Editor's Note: The authority of the above regulation was never tested until 1892 when a small group of far-sighted students attempted to organize a literary organization entitled, "Patrons of the Police Gazette".

12. No public exercises, courses of lectures, entertainments, Class Day proceedings, and the like, shall be originated or undertaken by the student unless previously submitted to the Faculty and sanctioned and supervised by it. All the productions intended to be delivered in public on Class Day must first be submitted in writing for examination to the President and Secretary of the Faculty and the President of the Board of Trustees.

Editor's Note: According to this one, students were confined to their rooms for calisthenics.

13. Any member of a class who shall deliver any other speech than the one handed in to and approved by the Faculty, or one into which objectionable matter is subsequently introduced, shall thereby render himself subject to discipline, and if he be a member of the graduating class he shall be refused graduation.

Editor's Note: This law was disbanded when a particular student took it too literally and presented a proposition to a young lady to the faculty for approval.

16. All students who do not reach an average grade of 75 shall not be permitted to continue with their classes. Freshman who fail to make the average (75) in Greek, Latin, and Mathematics shall not be promoted. In making the average, unexcused absences enter into the divisor, and thus lower the grade of the students.

Editor's Note: This regulation almost proved disastrous to the school. The student body was literally wiped out within a year. One sole survivor weathered the storm thus saving the school from total disbandment. We shall always be grateful to that gallant French immigrant, M. Nez de Brun.

18. Nothing relating to party politics shall be introduced into the public exercises of the Institution.

Editor's Note: Thus the ravages of Nazism and Communism were completely and forever thwarted in their attempts to indoctrinate the innocent and susceptible students of Muhlenberg.

MULE KICKS

Dear Editor,

The first thing I did upon returning to the Muhlenberg campus this fall was to run to the spot where Rusty's coop, the home of our old mascot, used to stand, and call, "Rusty---Rusty---Here Rusty-Rusty-Rusty," but the only thing that came to my summoning was a chipmunk and two squirrels.

Please, dear Editor, tell me what has happened to the best friend of every man at Muhlenberg, and who the culprit was that sold him down the river. And please, Editor, give my questions a quick answer, for my health has been falling off rapidly ever since the initial shock of Rusty's absence hit me.

... The Awful Truth ...

By Mike Rogers

Wotta day, and wotta time . . . that Albright outfit tried but that was all. More orchids to the high flying "Mules". This next one up seems to be the BEEG one on the schedule, and we know the gang will give the Bisons a real go for their dough . . .

After the game the ole' town was really on the jump. Seems like everyone in A'town has gotten the "bug" . . . The old Circlon saloon was really jumpin and the rest of those classy spots were on the go . . . Eddie Donovan and that pretty Nancy were much in the crowd's eye, and so was Smitty (heh, heh) . . . Jim Kessik and Ray Eskels are quite the team on the classy renditions . . . Doran had a busy afternoon on the scoreboard, "Attaboy Jim, you keep putting those numbers up and then stand right in front like you did last Saturday . . ."

We needn't go into details here about the "All Veteran's Day Parade coming up on the 15th of this month which is next Tuesday. Your reporter has been honored greatly by being asked to act as Unit Commander for the best outfit in the entire show, "THE MUHLENBERG UNIT". This is quite a thing for an old broken down Bosn's Mate and don't think I'm not plenty pleased. Now here is the inside story, the band will be out, the crowds will be out, and I have assurance that all the faculty and staff that can make it will be out. WON'T YOU COME OUT???

This will take a few minutes of your time, we'll have a lotta fun, everyone marching together, (seamen duces with the "buzz boys" and "J.G.'s") . . . Your rank or rate won't mean a thing and after the job is over, I have reliable info that the city is really going all out to provide a whale of a time for all the guys who make the hike. So whatta ya say, EAST HALL ON TUESDAY THE 15TH AT 1330 . . . is it a deal???

Best lookin' guy on the campus is far and away Ed Sikorski, who is 'Berg's latest and undoubtedly outstanding contestant for the Galloping Ghost monicker . . . Did you note the femme that attended the "J.V." game with Bob Bosch? Methinks the gal came to see Dave Tyson and Bosch was making like a John Alden. You had four quarters to work Robert, how was it???

This reporter would like to make some kind of a splash regarding the bulletin board "sitcheeshun": Pretty bad we think, and we do hope some one will take the initiative and get it squared away. How about having a special board for things like lost and found and Bursar's notices? Then the main board would be more readable. How about it someone???

Steve Sivcho had a "leettle" gathering for the boys on the squad after the Albright fracas. Wonder that they didn't wake the new addition talking over the afternoon's affairs . . . We noted quite a few fraus at the game Saturday and among them were some we haven't met as yet but they sure looked 4.0. Or haven't you seen Mrs. Vern Miller, Mrs. Bobby Mirth, Mrs. Morris Quint and the others???

Mr. John Wagner, (and I thank you for the plug) is really making with the plans for homecoming which is the week-end of the 26th when F. and M. rolls into our lair. You ought to be making plans to be on hand and meet some of the oldsters and also to take part in whatever John dreams up for the festivities . . .

Len Riccio and Miss Lena Bell have reserved the Chapel for June 8th and I don't think they're gonna have a picnic there, could it be that Ric has finally got Lena "right where she wants him"???

That's it for now, keep pluggin' for those Mules when they tangle with Bucknell in a few days and we'll see you at the Swarthmore game on the following Saturday.

SUBTLE HINT DEPT. Dance is on for the 19th and Mask and Dagger is swingin' into some serious rehearsals . . .

Alumni Memo

By John Wagner, Alumni Secretary

Next Tuesday, October 15th, the City of Allentown and Lehigh County are celebrating a "Welcome Home" for the veterans of World War II. They have invited the veterans of Muhlenberg to parade in a gigantic veterans parade on Tuesday afternoon. The group will form a unit and will follow the Muhlenberg band and color guard. Classes will be suspended for the afternoon.

I hope that EVERY veteran will take part in this celebration. While the wearing of the uniform is urged, it is not mandatory and everyone should make a real effort to participate in this community venture. As a member of the Muhlenberg community, YOUR part is to aid your fellow men in showing the city that we are willing to cooperate in civic affairs. As an individual, there will be fun and entertainment for you, as there are numerous parties planned after the parade. An afternoon can be spared from your studies for this demonstration of civic pride. The exercise will do you good, Mike Rogers needs a strong representation, so let's get into this thing ONE HUNDRED PERCENT.

See you next Tuesday afternoon.

ACCENT
ON...

by Herb Needleman

It's a real treat to these myopic eyes of ours to see a team run so well out of the single-wing formation. After watching every ball club from the McClellan Alley Wildcats to the West Point avalanche using their particular version of George Halas' brain child, the T formation, it's like a bottle of good cold brew after ten or twenty ice cream sodas to see the Mules move.

Soon after Clark Shaughnessy introduced the T with the man in motion into college ranks at Stanford, it swept the country almost as fast as the Big Apple. Monday morning quarterbacks, climbing on the bandwagon, let everyone know that the single wing was definitely old hat, and relegated it to the era of spats, knickers, and Hoover buttons.

The T was here to stay. Frank Leahy adapted it to his own needs for the Irish; Red Blaik added some more filigree; and practically every coach in the country caught hold of the recipe. Customers paying hard cash for the right to watch good old Helwit U. rub States' noses into the turf, poured into the stadium only to see eleven stalwarts serving T in the best English fashion to eleven other examples of American manhood.

Still there were some strongholds of the rock 'em and sock 'em type of football. But when George Munger, of the cloistered, ultra-conservative halls of Penn, announced that the Quakers would admit the T into their offense, the old guard threw up their hands in resignation. Gone were the days when one tackle would say to the other, "You hit him high, and I'll hit him low, and I'll smash his schnozzle before you." Deception was the key word of the day, and the lowly single-wing just didn't have it.

In running over Lafayette and Albright in the past two weeks, Ben Schwartzwalder's Muhlenberg team has contradicted this, showing more deception than Gipsy Rose Lee ever did. With the fullback and tail back spinning on almost every play, the Major and his boys have developed a multitude of plays that keep the defense wondering whether they are playing football or watching a souped up version of the three shell and pea game. The team mixes straight power with plenty of reverses, optional pass plays, laterals and other "Nothing up my sleeve" stuff.

The unbalanced line coupled with the single-wing makes for double teaming and surer blocking. This is the big disadvantage of the T. The balanced line means that many of the key blocks must be made by one man. We believe it was U.C.L.A. that first overcame this by setting the right halfback on the wing and using an unbalanced line, dubbing the system the "Q-T". It was this formation that "Doggie" Julian used here at 'Berg with moderate success two years ago. Last year Lou Little was the chief exponent of this hybrid brand of football. We saw his Columbia Lions drive Penn nuts until the Penn line went to work with all the finesse and gentleness

AGGRESSIVE BOOTERS
OUTPOINT ENGINEERS

Last Saturday the Muhlenberg booters opened their 1946 season at Bethlehem with a decisive 6 to 3 win over Lehigh. Trailing by two goals at the end of the first half, the Mules came back strong in the third quarter, scoring three goals in rapid succession to take the lead and hold it for the rest of the game.

The 'Berg offensive was especially powerful, carrying the ball time and again down the field. Outstanding in the forward line were "Reds" Hughes and Alex Danyluk. Hughes was tied with Mellott of Lehigh for high scoring honors, each scoring two goals.

Bearing the brunt of the Lehigh attack, 'Berg's halfbacks Charlie Campbell, center, Hank Moyer, captain and left, and Frank Gutshall, right, all turned in creditable performances. Backing up superbly were the two fullbacks Ira Coplin and Carl Herzog, who virtually bottled the Lehigh offensive in the second half.

The line-up for the game was:

Muhlenberg	Lehigh
G. Feist	Seigle
L.B. Herzog	Baslo
R.B. Coplin	Ingram
L.H. Moyer, capt.	Russel
C.H. Campbell	De Grouchy
R.H. Gutshall	Hazlehurst, capt.
O.L. Mazzacca	Kverty
I.L. Danyluk	Ely
C.F. Hughes	Mellott
I.R. Amelio	Dunigan
O.R. Roberts	Molnar

Substitutions — Lesko, Delp, Fisher, Albert, Phillips, Robinson, Everson.

Goals were scored by the following players: Hughes, M, 2; Mellott, L, 2; Danyluk, M, 1; Amelio, M, 1; Roberts, M, 1; Ely, L, 1; Ingram, L, for M, 1.

by Charles Morgan

The Muhlenberg Mules, with two wins under their belt, should really be primed for this game with Bucknell at Lewistown. Bucknell with two losses, both to top notch teams, will be aiming for their first win. However the Mules will have just too much power for the Bisons. 'Berg by at least two TD's.

Army will travel to Michigan to face their first real test. The Cadets will have to play heads-up ball and especially the Army subs, who were mighty weak against Cornell Saturday. Doc Blanchard should be back in the lineup for this game and he will be a big help. I like the Cadets.

Franklin and Marshall, who play the Homecoming game here October 26, was bolstered by the return of several letter men during the past week. F. and M. will have too much for Swarthmore.

Navy and Duke should give the fans many thrills in their game at Baltimore. Neither eleven is outstanding but I think the Midshipmen have too much for the Blue Devils.

Penn will roll over Dartmouth and will probably score at will. Penn by five TD's. Other games in the East; Cornell over Colgate. Columbia, impressive in their win over Navy, has too much power for Yale. Princeton over Harvard.

The mid-west will see Minnesota thrown against Northwestern. These two traditional rivals will really be primed for this game, but I like the Golden Gophers.

Carl Reimer, hard-hitting guard, will lead the injury-ridden Mules against Bucknell Saturday.

Injuries Make Victory Costly

Albright's Lions went back to Reading last Saturday a gloomy and sadly trounced team after Ben Schwartzwalder's Cardinal and Gray eleven exploded furiously in a brilliant display of offensive power to open their home season with a victory over the Reading team, 39-0.

The Mules caught fire and stayed hot through the first half. Bill Bell, stellar Mule tailback, broke through left tackle from the four yard line when the game was only minutes old to culminate a 'Berg drive which started on the 50, Crider, Keefe, Sikorski, and Bell alternating in carrying the ball. Bell also figured in the second score when he flipped a short pass to Bibighaus, who bulled his way over from the three. Crider, Mackin, and Sikorski also scored in addition to Bell and Bibighaus.

One of the most thrilling plays of the game was made by Harry Mackin, sub tailback, when he cut through right tackle, side-stepped two would-be tacklers, reversed his field, and outran the Albright secondary for forty-five yards and the score. Quint failed to convert, and his average stood at three for six for the game.

The Mules ground out 17 first downs to Albright's three, and rolled up 568 yards as compared to the Lion's 53. At no time during the ball game was Albright able to penetrate deeper than the Muhlenberg twenty-five.

All was not roses for Muhlenberg, however. Jack Crider, sparkling passer and scat-back from Canton, Ohio, was injured in the third period. Crider, whose 39 yard runback of an Albright punt set up Berg's second touchdown, broke three ribs and may be out for at least two games. Diz Dean also suffered a bruised hip early in the game. The services of these men will be sorely missed when they meet Bucknell at Lewisburg Saturday.

LEHIGH JAYVEES
BOW TO BERG

Ernie Fellow's Little Mules opened their three game season Friday at the Muhlenberg gridiron by galloping over the Lehigh Engineers, 19-13.

The game looked more like a juggling act for the first two periods, with each team taking turns at fumbling the ball away. The Mules had trouble getting started, but clicked in the second period to score. Receiving the ball on a fumble, 'Berg marched to the 50. From there a pass, Capriotti to Stoll was good for the touchdown. The try for the extra point was wide.

For the rest of the half both teams handled the ball as if it was a cake of soap and the playing field was a bathtub, with the result that there was no score and 'Berg went to the locker room with a 6-0 advantage.

"Scotty" Renwick must have gotten busy with the resin bag during the intermission, for the Mules drove right down into Lehigh territory and were knocking on the door. Marks plunged for the score to put Muhlenberg ahead 13-0. Another long drive early in the final period netted another touchdown as Stoll went over the double stripe. Skorino converted.

The Engineers found the aerial route more effective and scored on a pass by Carmondy to Kress.

Another series of passes and Lehigh threatened again. Baker found a hole and scored; Kress converted; and it looked like Lehigh might pull the game out, but 'Berg held an the final gun found them ahead 19-13.

Notre Dame has too much for Purdue. The Irish are really going to be tough this year. Ohio State over Wisconsin and Illinois over Indiana.

In the South, Texas looks like a real team for the Rose Bowl. Texas, sparked by Bobby Layne will romp over Oklahoma.

Georgia and Charley Trippi will display too much power for Kentucky. Georgia Tech over Mississippi and Arkansas to top Baylor.

Oklahoma A. and M. humiliated by their defeat at the hands of Texas last week, will take it out on S.M.U. Bob Fenimore will have a field day along with the other Aggie backs.

Important; Dean's Notice

Dean Mercer asks that students whenever possible get excuses from him in advance when they plan on cutting any class.

His asks further that the following paragraph from Chapel Regulations be impressed on all students:

"Students are required to sign an attendance slip which is to be returned personally to a Chapel monitor at the close of each service. Chapel monitors have been instructed not to hand an attendance slip to any student after the congregation has risen for the first hymn. In case more than one slip is handed in by any student, none of the slips will be credited for attendance. All slips must be dated and signed legibly with full name."

Pigskin Pep Rally

A Pep Rally for the Muhlenberg-Swarthmore game will be held Thursday night, October 17th, probably, on the football field. All students are urged to attend the rally and to help encourage the team on the eve of its crucial contest with Swarthmore.

The rally will feature a short talk by Coach Schwartzholder and his associates, who will introduce the members of Muhlenberg's victorious team. Registrar "Haps" Benfer will also give a short pep talk. The band will render a few selections after which the cheerleaders will lead the student body in a few of the school cheers.

Hucksters ???

Bill Glase, the Business Manager, and his staff of Hucksters have been hard at work scaring up advertisements for the Weekly, and you may have noticed that the paper is beginning to look like a business directory. But more ads will be needed in the near future when the Weekly expands in size, and any fellows who have business contacts of any sort from whom advertisements might be had are requested to see Bill Glase or any member of the Weekly staff. Fathers, uncles, family friends are likely prospects, whether they be brewers, bookies, or bakers.

Music Room Is Now Open

The Carnegie Music Room, on the third floor of the library, room number 38, which opened Monday, September 30, will soon draw many music lovers to its portals to hear the 1000-record set of symphonies, martial airs, lullabies, and sonatas, presented to Muhlenberg College by the Carnegie Institute in 1938.

Due to conflicting hours, there had been a temporary delay in opening the doors to those who are musically thirsty to drink in the refreshing strains of the finest of the world's music. As Dr. Marks puts it, "Looking at the collection from the literary angle, there are no dime novels in it."

The Music Room will be open during the following hours: Monday—2:30-6:00, 7:00-9:30; Tuesday—10:00-2:30, 1:30-6:00, 7:00-9:30; Wednesday—2:30-6:00, 7:00-9:30; Thursday—10:00-2:30, 1:30-6:00, 7:00-9:30; Friday—3:30-6:00.

date for all-state team, he is that good. Mair, who hails from Allentown, is their pass receiver and has had a great deal of football experience. He plays right end.

While Bucknell has hardly been touched by injuries and will be able to start their first team intact, Muhlenberg has practically been mauled by its first two opponents, Lafayette and Albright. Barker, the best blocking back is out for the season and so few blocking backs are available the Coach Schwartzwalder has decided to convert first string tackle, Big Mike Bogdziewicz to blocking back. Crider who played so well against Albright has at least three and possibly five fractured ribs and no one knows when he will be ready. Bell, who usually does the passing, was also hurt and may not be available for the whole game Saturday.

Coach Schwartzwalder plans to scrimmage the varsity against the junior varsity and have the jayvees use Bucknell's T-formation so that the boys will not be completely unfamiliar with it.

The game should be a good one and 'Berg will have to exhibit better blocking and play more alert football than last week to possibly pull this one out.

Closed Stacks Explained By Librarian

Mr. John Davidson, college Librarian, this week enumerated the many reasons why the library stacks were closed in July, 1945, and indicated that it would be the best interests of all if they remained closed while the college enrollment remains at its present large number.

The stacks were first opened in 1938, according to Mr. Davidson, and remained so for seven years, and were finally closed for three reasons: (1) The theft of large number of books; (2) the mutilation of others; and (3) the large scale misplacing of books in the stacks.

In the last biennial inventory taken in 1945, between 200 and 250 books were found to be stolen. Allowing two dollars for each book, this set the college back about 400 or 500 dollars. But of equal importance was the fact that most of the books taken were vitally needed for faculty assignments. During the war reprints were all but non-existent, and there was a shortage of old books.

Commenting upon the mutilation of books in the stacks, Mr. Davidson pointed out that pages and pictures were cut from many of them, particularly art books. And those books that were misplaced in the stacks were as good as missing until the next two-year inventory was taken. Not only were some of them put back in the wrong places, but a few cagey students, with books overdue and therefore unable to withdraw others from the library, would drop books they had been reading down behind the stacks where they would be undisturbed until a later time.

A number of remedies were considered, such as sealing up the windows in the stacks, through which most of the books were stolen. This would be only a partial measure, however, and highly impractical. Checkers might have been stationed outside the stacks to see to it that no unauthorized books were carried off, but the library staff was small, and it would have been impossible to devote so much of its time to checking the students who were browsing.

Stage Crew Needed For College Play

Stage hands for the Mask and Dagger's fall production, Dover Road, are urgently needed. Anyone interested in working on the sets for this play is asked to report to James Reppert, stage manager for the production, on Saturday, October 19, at 9:30 a.m. in the Science Auditorium. Because of the home football game this week, there will be no work done on Saturday afternoon.

The Mask and Dagger has also completed the casting of the major roles for Dover Road. Harold Helfrich will be seen as Latimer, Bob Bosch as Nicholas, Louis Rossi as Leonard, Gerald Rogers as Dominic, Mrs. Eunice Feight as Eustacia, Anne Kreitz as Anne. Mr. Erskine of the English department is directing the production, Bob Oswald is producing, James Reppert is the stage manager, John Rogers the business manager, and John Walters the property supervisor.

Bridge Tourney For Colleges Sponsored

A nation-wide intercollege contract bridge contest for a national championship cup will be held in 1947, it was announced this week by Foster M. Coffin, director of Willard Straight Hall, Cornell University, and chairman of the Intercollege Bridge Tournament Committee, a group which prior to the war and in 1946 sponsored undergraduate bridge tournaments limited to colleges in the Eastern states.

The 1947 event will be a duplicate tournament for undergraduate pairs, with the title of National Intercollege Champions going to the winning team. Preliminary rounds will be conducted by mail. Sixteen teams representing every section of the country will be selected through the mail competition for face-to-face finals in Chicago on April 18 and 19.

The Intercollege Bridge Tournament Committee, which supports the event so that there is no cost to the competing colleges or the players, is a group of alumni interested in developing bridge as an intercollegiate sport in which men and women compete on an equal basis. Vice-chairman of the 1947 committee is Nelson B. Jones, director of Faunce House, Brown University, and Louis D. Day, Jr., director of Houston Hall at the University of Pennsylvania, is treasurer. Earlier tournaments run by the Committee have been endorsed by the Association of Student Unions.

Official approval by the authorities in each participating college is required before the Committee accepts entries.

The 1946 event, limited to colleges in the North Eastern area but with Kansas State as a specially invited guest, was won by Cornell in a field of 42 competitors. The visitors from Kansas, representing the college which won the mail event in 1942, finished second. Bryn Mawr finished highest among the women's colleges in the finals. Two coeducational colleges, the University of Delaware and Colby College, were represented by pairs of women. Other previous winners were

Marx Brothers Featured In Next 'Berg Showing

Gratified by the enthusiastic response to the showing of the German film M, Professor Rickey announces the presentation of the picture Duck Soup, starring the Marx Brothers, and a documentary film about the Mississippi called The River on Friday, November 1, at 8 p.m., on the third floor of the library.

This will be the second in a series of films which will be shown by the Art Department. The picture Duck Soup will hardly be remembered even by some of the venerable freshmen now on the campus, which is in accordance with Professor Rickey's purpose in showing these films. The programs are intended to be neither strictly for the sake of entertainment, nor are they to be construed as a part of the Art Department's educational program as such. Professor Rickey's aim is to give the students of Muhlenberg an opportunity to see films which they could not otherwise see in the commercial cinema houses. The programs promise to be of especial

Phi Alpha Theta Opens New Season

The Kappa chapter of Phi Alpha Theta held its initial meeting of this term on Thursday evening, September 10, in Dr. Swain's office. At this meeting plans were made for the forthcoming year.

President Philip I. Mitterling was delegated to attend a regional conference of the national fraternity held at Gettysburg College, October 11 and 12.

Plans were made to send members to the Foreign Policy meetings which will be held in Philadelphia on Saturdays throughout the winter. Tentative plans were made for several trips as well as diversified speaking programs.

It was announced that new brothers will be initiated on the fourteenth of November. Those men who feel they can meet the qualifications for membership, which are twelve semester hours of History beyond their freshman work and an average grade of B+ in History plus a grade of C+ in the rest of their courses will please sign the notice posted on the bulletin board.

Reumann Heads Deutscher Verein

The first fall meeting of "Der Deutscher Verein" was held Monday evening at the home of Dr. Reichard.

The meeting commenced with the informal singing of songs, and then continued with discussions of future plans for the organization.

Due to the large enrollment in the German classes at the college, it is expected that many men will be invited to join this club. With the increase in membership of the club, a suitable meeting place must be secured. During the war years with a small membership, homes of members were used.

This club is composed of all those men who after their first year of German have obtained superior grades. The meetings are held bi-monthly and are conducted in German. Officers for the coming semester are: John Reumann, President; James Reppert, Vice-President; Donald Miller, Secretary; and Dr. Reichard, Treasurer.

Undefeated Mules Face Swarthmore At Home Saturday Afternoon

The thrice victorious Muhlenberg football team will try to make it four straight as they play host to Swarthmore tomorrow on the 'Berg Field. Swarthmore presents a much improved club compared to the team that lost to Wesleyan two weeks ago, 26-0, as shown by their upset of F. and M., 7-6 last Saturday. The Garnets have been pointing towards this game since last summer when Lew Everson, head coach and ex-Penn star, told "Bud" Barker that he expected to pull this game out. Everson coached the Atlantic City Naval

Cedar Crest To Sponsor Religious Emphasis Week

Muhlenberg students and faculty members have been extended a special invitation to participate in any or all of the activities of the Religious Emphasis Week which will be conducted on the campus of Cedar Crest College, beginning next Sunday.

Programs have been posted on the bulletin boards. Note especially the following evening events:

Vesper service, Sunday, 6:30, Dr. Robert Calhoun of Yale Divinity School; Forum, Monday, 7:00, "Rediscovering Our Fundamental Faiths", Dr. Calhoun; Wednesday 7:00, "Making these faiths our own", Dr. Frank Wilson of Lincoln University; Thursday 7:00 "Putting these faiths into action", Mrs. Charles C. Rockel.

Religious Emphasis Week is sponsored by the Cedar Crest Young Women's Christian Association.

MCA Will Join In Intercollegiate Conferences

Plans for participation in two intercollegiate conferences of the Student Christian Movement were discussed at the meeting of the Muhlenberg Christian Association held Wednesday evening.

One is the Area Conference, to include Muhlenberg, Cedar Crest, Moravian, Lafayette, Franklin and Marshall, Lebanon Valley, and Kutztown and East Stroudsburg State Teachers Colleges, which will be held at Cedar Crest College on November 1, 2, and 3. Outstanding leaders will be present to address the delegates and lead them in discussion of program resources and technique of leadership in Student Christian groups.

The second is the National Assembly of the National Intercollegiate Christian Council, to be held at the University of Illinois over the Christmas holidays. Two students and one faculty member will represent Muhlenberg. Further details of both these conferences will follow in next Thursday's WEEKLY, which will report also the results of the election of new officers for the M.C.A.

Thanks Vets

Note to the Editor:—Will you please include in your columns the college's thanks to the veterans of the STUDENT BODY for the excellent turnout in the community WELCOME HOME parade in Allentown on October 15. The unit that paraded made an excellent impression, and the whole community is talking about it favorably. We are all very grateful.

Swarthmore is using the same system this year, and with the return of twenty lettermen is looking forward to giving the high-riding Mules a slight push off the undefeated throne.

Elect Shemella Band President

In spite of foreboding weather signs last Saturday morning, the band, traveling in private cars, made the trip to Bucknell. During the first half of the game, the forty-odd musicians played in a drizzling rain, and had planned to drill on the field at half-time. Unfortunately, however, the storm gained in fury and the instruments had to be placed under cover. Nevertheless, we are sure the boys on the team appreciated the presence of the music-makers.

In compliance with requests, the band led our veterans in the gala parade Tuesday afternoon.

Also on the agenda for the week is the pep-rally on Thursday evening and the football game with Swarthmore on Saturday.

We are all indebted to Tony Jagnesak, the director, for the fine work he has done in reorganizing the band.

Last week the following officers were elected by the organization: Marty Shemella, president; Lou Fluck, vice-president; Bob Haag, secretary; and Ed Goretzka, treasurer. Openings are still to be found in the band, and anyone interested is invited to attend rehearsals.

EDITORIAL

It's Up To You

The purpose of the Muhlenberg WEEKLY is not only to take a lead in the molding of student opinion, but also to act as an outlet for student opinion. But the effectiveness of the WEEKLY can go no farther than the mere presentation of ideas. This paper has no administrative authority whatsoever, and it is up to you, the student, to get words into action, through your student council. Get to know your student council members: Harold Helfrich, Carl Reimer, Jack Reumann, Philip Mitterling, Ernest Hawk, John Myers, Bob Rankin, Sam Krouse, and Bob Kishbaugh.

Lights, Please

With the immense outlay of funds for beautification of the campus and for the alteration of the college offices, we feel some consideration should be given to the lighting situation in some of the classrooms on the campus, particularly on the third floor of the Administration Building. The amount of light for reading, or the lack of it, in some of these class rooms is atrocious. This fact has been mentioned in the editorial columns of the WEEKLY in past years, but to date nothing has been done about it, while fluorescent lighting has been installed in the offices downstairs. Unless a student manages to get a seat near a window, a difficult accomplishment in these crowded times, he is apt to go blind before the semester is a month gone.

"Smoking Lamp Lit"

Another sad state of affairs is the cigarette butt situation. By the end of the school day, crumpled Luckies and Camels are piled high in front of the Chapel, Ad Building, and Library. The entrance to any one of these buildings looks like a barroom floor on Saturday night. We think the best answer to the problem would be butt boxes, a feature of many Navy bases and Army camps all over the country. They are easy to make, being nothing more than shallow open boxes, filled with sand. Although they themselves might not add to the beauty of the campus, placing them at appropriate places around the campus might get rid of the far more unsightly smoked-out weeds.

FOOTBALL TICKETS

STUDENT ADMISSIONS

Students will be admitted to the SWARTHMORE Football Game by showing their STUDENT ACTIVITY CARD. This card must have the photo of the owner and any card not having photo attached will be denied admission to the game.

BE SURE TO GET YOUR CARD THIS WEEK

A student accompanied by girl friend or wife will pay $1.20 to the Ticket Seller at the Student Gate.

DO NOT BUY GENERAL ADMISSION TICKETS FOR USE AT THE STUDENT GATE

A student taking persons other than girl friend or wife can purchase Reserved Seat Tickets at the Athletic Office up to 11:00 A.M. Saturday and upon presentation of Activity Card receive a Reserved Seat Ticket for payment of tax only.

OBITER DICTA

With an unprecedented number of fellows on the athletic field every afternoon, a look back into the dim origins of Football and Soccer brings to light some interesting bits of lore. The two games are closely related, stemming from a common ancestor. Soccer has changed little through the years in comparison with American Football which is still in a state of evolution.

You would have to turn back almost to prehistoric times to discover the first occasion when two teams lined themselves against each other and tried to push a ball across a goal by one means or another. The Greeks had a word for it: harpaston. And the Romans, along with much else of Hellenic culture, stole football from the Greeks, calling it harpastum. Even the islanders in the South Seas and the Eskimos up north at one time played a crude form of the sport. And during the Middle Ages the Italians played it under the name of calcio. But the real home of today's game is the British Isles.

An English writer of 1175 described the assembling of the lads of London, "their parents and the rich and wealthy, in the fields of the suburbs after dinner, to enjoy the famous game of football." All that was needed were the hawks selling their "souvenir programs" to bring the scene up to date.

Football was a bloody sport in those days and it became increasingly popular with the stout-hearted and iron-stomached Britons in the ensuing centuries. This popularity was in spite of the frequent prohibitions of the game by the kings of realm. Henry VI, for instance, proclaimed that "na man shall play at the fut ball." Town continued to challenge town, and parish challenge parish, however. Such games not only found as many as a hundred men on a side at times, but were usually played over a vast area, as if Muhlenberg were to field its whole student body in a soccer game against Lehigh which would be played over hill and dale between here and Bethlehem.

During this same period the game was played by small groups of men with certain crude but orderly rules, and the game continued to flourish, with frequent allusions being made to it in literature from Chaucer to Shakespeare. By 1800 football had developed into a number of characteristic games played at Eton, Harrow, Rugby, and the other English public schools. All of these games prohibited carrying the ball.

Late one afternoon in November, 1823, on Old Bigside, the football field at Rugby, two teams were battling to break a tie before the tower clock could strike five, at which time the game was to end. The story has it that a certain William Webb Ellis caught a punt on his goal line at the first strike of five, and, to the stupefaction of those about him, ran the length of the field with the ball and crossed his opponents' goal line before that last stroke sounded, thus winning the game for his team.

This feat raised a terrific furor, as one can imagine, and it was here that Football and Soccer as we know them parted company. That some of Ellis' friends liked the idea of lugging the ball down the field rather than booting it is borne out by the future development of the carrying game as distinguished from the kicking game. It is further attested to by a plaque which was erected on the Rugby campus: "This stone commemorates the exploit of William Webb Ellis who with a fine disregard for the rules of football as played in his time first took the ball in his arms and ran with it thus originating the distinctive feature of the Rugby game."

To the Editor of The Weekly:

I would like to take this opportunity to announce the return to active duty of the Pennsylvania Iota Chapter of Sigma Phi Epsilon. Inactivated since the beginning of the war, Sig Ep will make a concerted effort towards establishing itself on the campus and becoming an asset to the Muhlenberg 'Community'. The chapter is starting out with five actives, and one pledge. The five actives are Bill Evans, Paul Evans, Bill Hrisko, Dick Nufrio and Rolf Dinse. Pledge is Frank Denise.

We have a very active Alumni Association which is helping us to get re-established. Lambda Chi Alpha has most graciously offered us their house for a rush smoker on the 25th of October. If there are any fellows on the campus who are Sig Eps, or were pledged to Sig Ep, either here or at other schools, please get in touch with any of the above mentioned. Formal induction of officers will take place on October 14, at the home of Denton Kriebel, president of the Sig Ep Alumni Association.

POETRY CONTEST

A National Amateur Poetry Contest, with over $1,250 in cash prizes is being sponsored by Sammy Kaye, orchestra leader. The first prize will be $500; second prize $200; third prize $100. There will also be twenty prizes of $25 each.

The contest starts October 1st and will close February 27, 1947, a date selected because it is the anniversary of the birth of one of America's greatest poets, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The winning poems will be read by Sammy Kaye on his "Sunday Serenade" program, which is heard over the coast to coast network of ABC every Sunday, at 1:30 p.m. E.S.T., and will be published in the 1947 edition of the "Sunday Serenade Book of Poetry". The first prize poem will appear in Pageant Magazine.

The judges will be Kate Smith, one of the country's foremost women of today; Ted Malone, outstanding collector of American Poetry and featured on the Westinghouse Program; and Vernon Pope, Editor of Pageant Magazine.

In announcing the contest, Sammy Kaye stated:

"Writing poetry is one of the fine arts and should be encouraged as much as possible. We are particularly interested in receiving entries from college and high school students, as some of the finest poetry emanates from those sources. We are hoping that this contest will uncover poets who will thus be inspired to continue writing and achieve fame in this field."

The WEEKLY has received an entry blank for the contest. Anyone interested please contact the WEEKLY office. Should we need more blanks, the office of the WEEKLY will gladly acquire some more applications.

... The Awful Truth ...

By Mike Rogers

This week the great BEEG bunch of orchids to all those guys who showed a lotta spirit and turned out for the parade on this past Tuesday. The whole thing looked 4.0 from where we were and many, many thanks to you that made the grade...

SCREAM OF THE WEEK DEPT. Gordon Daggy employed at the local hotel in the capacity of plumber, or at least he was toting a bag of tools around the past week-end. Hey, Gordo, are you fixing or fooling?? Bill Glase is carrying a photo of a mighty pretty lass in the wallet. We hear that she's the school teacher out Quakertown way and Bill is being tutored...

Jim Kessock passed the word on to us recently about a terrific "Muhlenberg Fight Song" which was written for the school some years ago by Fred Waring and Company of radio fame. From what Jim was able to give us in the way of a vocal rendition sounded mighty good. Your reporter can't figure out why a song like that has gone to waste all these years. We haven't heard the thing once except from the amiable "Sandy" Kessock, and that was under duress, or haven't you heard the noise in the Circlon lately? Seriously tho, how about someone in the band or maybe even the Student Council checking the matter? Would be mighty nice to break loose with something like that on Homecoming! (Are you listening Mr. Wagner??). Subtle Hint department says to check with Dr. Marks or persons connected with our Music Library atop the Library Building...

Special Note to John Fitzgerald and Frau; Sorry we slighted you, our humble apologies, we love you like always... Note aside to flicker fans who go for the chillers, the Colonial has as it's feature a little spine scraper called "The Stranger", better check that one... We'd like to mention in passing that before opening of the football home season a couple of Saturdays ago, Mose Quint, backfield ace for 'Berg went out and got himself hitched up. Must have been the right idea for he did some great work against Albright and is the regular booter of extra points. Lotsa luck to you and the new Mrs. Mose...

We're thumpin' the bandwagon for a great bunch of guys from school here and that's the band. Little practice, lotsa ability and plenty of spirit took that gang all the way to Bucknell and they deserve the credit of all of us. Keep it up boys... Inside info tells us that the movies being shown here on campus by Mr. Rickey and his department are well worth taking in, the cost is nix, and the pictures shown are really O.K....

It's been called to our attention that Wally Worth has received quite an honor of late. Seems that on Saturday, October 5th, Wally was elected State Finance Officer of the AMVETS. The election took place at Lancaster and gives him the jurisdiction over approximately 60,000 men. After 5 years in Uncle Sambo's Army, Wally has become just about the youngest fella to hold a spot like that. Nice goin', keed and lotsa luck... We hate to make the statement and we don't want to hurt anyone's feelings, but we really do think the faculty of the college dropped the ball on the "Welcome Parade". Out of some 35 plus Vets among the faculty, only seven or eight were able to be on hand; hummmmm we're sorta disappointed...

Our many thanks to the members of the faculty who turned out for the Veteran's Day parade last Tuesday. A swell gesture on your part. As for you other guys of the student body who were with us, I repeat my last transmission. Thanx...

The dance coming up on this Saturday should be swell affair. Good chance to meet the ole' gang and let the Ole' Lady out for some fresh air. Wrap up the Frau, bring your activities card and we'll see you at the Armory Saturday night...

Alumni
Memo

By John Wagner, Alumni Secretary

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

Muhlenberg has played sixty-two different colleges and schools in football during the past 43 years.

Muhlenberg has had fifteen football coaches since 1905.

Muhlenberg has won 167, tied 24 and lost 191 games in football in forty-three years.

Last Saturday's victory over Bucknell was the first in thirty years, the last time we beat the Bisons was in 1916 when the score was 17-0

Muhlenberg has played Army, Temple, Yale, Princeton, Fordham, Penn State, Villanova, N.Y.U., C.C.N.Y., and many others.

Muhlenberg has played Lehigh 33 games, F. and M. 31, Ursinus 28, Lafayette 27, Lebanon Valley 25 and Albright 22 since 1900.

Muhlenberg first played Moravian in 1900.

The greatest number of points scored by the Mules against an opponent was in 1916 when we defeated Bloomsburg State Teachers College 85-0.

The greatest number of points scored against us was in 1922 when Lafayette defeated the Mules 62-0.

ACCENT
ON...

by Herb Needleman

Well, them bee-yootiful Mules did it again, and the Major can put away his bawlin' bucket for a few days anyhow. The club looked good in knocking over Bucknell, and seem to be getting better as they go. Somebody ought to tell them that it ain't fair to play ruff with the team in the black and white striped shirts, after all, they're outnumbered twenty-two to three and all they've got are three whistles.

'Berg pulled a couple of sweet plays against the Bisons in which everybody handled the ball but the Dean of Frosh.

Easy Money

Everybody's doing it — picking the football games, we mean. Fellahs walking to and from classes on the campus can be seen pouring over slips of paper that are not the advance dope on the chem quiz, nor a letter from the chick at home, but this week's cheat sheet. Football pools are as indicative of the autumn season as falling leaves, and just about as common. Like Kilroy, Wilkie buttons and ex-New-Dealers, they're everywhere. Systems on picking the ball games range from the scientific to the supernatural, but we've got one that can't miss. So stick with us, gang, and you'll get round shoulders from carrying bags of dough down to the bank. No calculus, physics, or astronomy needed; Simply write down all your bets Saturday morning, and check with the Sunday papers to see how much dough you saved by not making them. Just goes to show you what a college education can do.

Signs of the Times

Temple fans chartering a plane out to Pittsburgh to see the Owls and Pitt bash heads in a scoreless tie... Georgetown giving winded ball players a snort of oxygen during time outs... Iowa State gridders dieting on horse meat...

Business Before Pleasure

Morry Quint 'Berg place kicker was among the missing at the Bucknell game. Little matter of a honeymoon. Here's our best wishes for good weather and plenty of perfect seasons.

A Mule of a Different Color

Michigan threw a scare into Army last week before dropping their 20-13 verdict to the Kaydets. We're going to stick our necks out and predict that Army will come upon the short end of two scores before the lid is put back on this season—Notre Dame and Penn; oh yeah—watch Columbia.

Word to the Wise

The 'Berg team snuck out of town to make the trip to Bucknell last week like they were the members of a burleycue show leaving Boston. How 'bout a send off next time, Student Council?

Reader's (?) Column

Buckets of "much-obliged" for the comments; let's hear more.

The Physical Education Department has asked the WEEKLY to publish the following announcement:

All students who are not attending their Physical Education classes as scheduled are being marked absent.

MULES TRAMPLE BUCKNELL IN MUD, 6-0

PARDON MY BACK . . .

George Bibighaus, high-scoring End and Captain-elect for the Swarthmore game, displays a lack of manners in scoring against Lafayette.

Hopin'
& Dopin'

by John Fitzgerald

As the pigskin season rolls into its fourth week of activity it has become apparent that the 1944 and 1945 records have left very little impression on 1946 foes.

Upsets have been the rule rather than the exception, with mighty Army even having its share of anxious moments.

The nation's big game of the week will pit the undefeated Muhlenberg Mule against Swarthmore College. Fearing an upset but hoping for the best, this column selects the "Mules" as a 26-0 victor.

Two of our future opponents, Delaware and Gettysburg have a get together Saturday that should provide our scouts with much valuable info. Both are big and powerful, but the nod goes to Delaware, who incidentally will be chalking up number twenty-five in a row on the credit side of the books.

Pennsylvania, with the easiest schedule of any big time gridiron power in the nation, will murder Virginia.

Other games in the area will find Rutgers over Princeton, Temple over West Virginia, Army over Columbia, and Penn State over Michigan State.

The Big Nine provides many a pitfall for the pickers, but advance word from "The Greatest" indicates Michigan over Northwestern, Purdue over Ohio State, Illinois over Wisconsin, and Indiana over Iowa.

Texas vs. Arkansas presents a real opportunity for the number one upset of the week. Bobby Layne, nervous about a draft board greeting, should be able to carry the Lone Star boys through to a two TD victory.

Big Turnout
By Grapplers

Thirty-one candidates for the varsity wrestling team reported to coach Ben Schwartzwalder, on Monday. Of these, eight men have had previous collegiate experience. Eight other, would-be, grapplers have had high school, prep schol, or service experience and should prove a decided asset to the squad.

Jerry Braverman, co-captain of the 1945-46 Muhlenberg team, and Herbert Gernert, Lawrence Delp, Otis Summerville, Fred Johnson, and Ted Getz, all members of this same team, are back and ready to go. Herbert Wessman, a heavy-weight, had varsity experience here at Muhlenberg before he entered the service and now has returned to take up where he left off. Cornell University has sent C. Q. Steinback to 'Berg. Steinback, a native of Bethlehem, is an 145 pounder.

With this group of eight college-experienced wrestlers as a nucleus with which to work, Coach Schwartzwalder experts to build a wrestling squad capable of upholding the fine records of the past. The eight men boasting high-school or Prep-school experience are Louis Ziegler, Edgar Dougherty, Roy Taylor, Don Reynolds, Michael Finelli, Sam Friedman, Charles Moyer, and William Moser. Coach Schwartzwalder, busy now with his great football team, will not be able to personally take charge of the wrestling practices until sometime later in November. At that time, "Foxy" will put away his cleated shoes and, together with several men of the football team, turn his attention to wrestling.

Last season, Muhlenberg, competing in a semi-informal schedule, failed to reach the winner's column in six tries. However, the team, entirely green, faced stand-outs Lehigh, Swarthmore, Princeton, Philadelphia Naval Hospital, Annapolis, and West Point. This season will see the matmen squaring off against such strong opponents as Lehigh, Swarthmore, Lafayette, Navy, and other schools in

TOUGH BLUE HENS

Fresh from a decisive victory in their first outing, Muhlenberg's Jayvee's will again be the underdog against a University of Delaware team which boasts two victories so far this season.

Delaware, which beat National Farm School last week 36-12, will run most of their plays from a double wing formation which their varsity found so effective in running up a total of twenty-three consecutive victories. Most of the members of Delaware's J. V. are being primed for varsity berths for next season. They boast a line averaging 190 and a shifty and powerful backfield averaging 160.

Coach Fellows' boys will sorely miss the services of their best back Latzko who suffered a broken collar bone in the first game of the season. The starting line up will probably have Robertson, MacLoughlin, Shrinko, Fellows, Swift, Loue and Kirk in the line and Cappriotti, Stoll, Mark and Avis or Carazo as backs. The squad will use the same offensive formation as the varsity and hope to give the more highly rated Delawarians a stiff battle.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," the United Artists Technicolor screen version of George Bernard Shaw's celebrated drama of the same name, has proved to be one of the costliest picture productions in all cinema history, more than $5,200,000 having been expended by the time it was completed.

This film spectacle has opened at the Boyd Theatre and is of interest to all college students, especially those making studies of the turbulent times of the Roman conqueror, and his life.

Following quite an accurate path along the historical lines, "Caesar and Cleopatra" is also highlighted by the lavish scenery and costly costumes. The motion picture has been highly recommended to all college students, and the WEEKLY is taking this opportunity to pass the recommendation on to the student body.

Library Stacks

The one big argument in favor of open stacks, says Mr. Davidson, is the actual contact with books that fellows can have. "Is it feasible?" was the big question. Bucknell was one of the colleges with open stacks, and according to Mr. Davidson they felt that the expense and inconvenience was justified. Few others believed so, however. Lehigh, Lafayette both have had closed stacks. So it was decided that the stacks at Muhlenberg would be closed for an indefinite period, as an experiment. This was on July 1, 1945, and they have remained closed since.

The inconvenience to the student in not being able to browse through the stacks is not so great as has been indicated in the past. Under the present arrangement a student can better have something found for him that he can find it for himself. Miss Funk has been appointed Reference Librarian whose sole job is to help students find needed material. For instance, a reader wishing some material on Robert Frost or his poetry in browsing through the stacks would very likely find a block of Frost books grouped under number 811.5. The average reader would not know that there might be some Frost under another number, but the information is available in the card catalog, or if not there, from Miss Funk.

'Berg Booters Lose To Tigers

After winning their opening game from Lehigh University in the Engineers backyard, a fighting 'Berg soccer team went down to defeat, Wednesday a week ago, at the hands of Princeton by the shutout score of 2-0.

The game was played on the home field before approximately 150 student spectators. Although the weather was not ideal, it did not seem to hamper the playing ability of either team.

Muhlenberg held the offensive most of the first period, with the Jersey boys coming to life as the quarter ended. Princeton scored quickly as the second period opened, the tally being made by Rogers. They continued to dominate the play until the closing minutes of the game. The Tigers made their second score midway in the third period, with Pierce getting credit for the goal. 'Berg came charging back in the last period; and as in the opening quarter muffed several fine scoring opportunities.

Hughes, Campbell and Gutshall sparked the Mules, and on numerous occasions gave the Tigers heart failure.

The next game should be an easier touch for the home team.

Swarthmore Game

Although virtually hamstrung with injuries, 'Berg looked better beating Bucknell last week than the 6-0 score would indicate. The Mule line, sparked by Averno Sbordone, and Sweatlock, held the Bisons to a net gain of 14 yards from scrimmage, and zero first downs. The Mules will concentrate this week on improving their blocking and in pass defense. Crider who played very little against Bucknell will be available for much more service Saturday. Mackin who was promoted to a starting berth last week and who turned in some fine open field running will probably start again in the backfield.

Swarthmore will have twelve lettermen from last year's squad and eight men who played on teams during the war years 1941-1945. Some of the players back from those years are Millard Beatty 1942 varsity center. Henry Gorjanc, a lineman from Cleveland, and Pete Hollway, a back from Pittsburgh.

The new men who have looked good in the first two games are Dick de Charms, a 190 pound, six-foot three, pass catching end, Gordon Mochel, a plunging full-back and Ray Posel, a back from Central High School in Philadelphia. They have a fine passer in Bill Black and he usually throws to Denton his left end. They also have a great quick kicker in Dick Esrey, and use his talent as their best offensive weapon.

George Bibighaus, a standout on the defense, and who is tied with Crider for scoring honors, got the nod as this week's game captain.

er sparked particularly. Mike Bogdziewicz playing at the blocking back slot for the first time this season, fitted into the backfield like a seventy-five dollar suit.

The 'Berg team showed plenty of hustle and fight, as shown by the blocking out of the field judge on an end run. It looked like the squad really got orders to block someone on that play, and they did.

Co-Editors of the Weekly

MIKE ROGERS

JACK REUMANN

Announce Weekly Staff; Bigger Paper Planned

Co-editors, Jack Reumann and Mike Rogers have announced the editorial and business staffs for the WEEKLY during the coming scholastic year.

Taking the position of Managing Editor is Dave Tyson, supported by the following men on the editorial staff: Bob Bosch, City Editor; Herb Needleman, Sports Editor; Gordon Daggy, Feature Editor.

Elected to the position of Business Manager is Bill Glase, who at this time has as his associate Bob Fratscher, handling the job of Circulation Manager.

There are many openings on the staff, as the complete list of writers and advertising men is not as yet completed. Within the next two weeks a completion of the staff will take place and all members will be notified of their permanent positions.

Included among plans for the paper itself are those already underway for enlargement. These plans are awaiting completion in the near future depending upon the availability of newspaper stock.

The Weekly is anxious to have helpful suggestions and constructive criticism from the student body and faculty. The press box in the Administration building is open to all written suggestions.

Dean's Notice

Dean of Students, Mr. Perry F. Kendig, has requested that all extra-curricular activities on the Muhlenberg campus, turn in to him a list of their respective officers. This should be done as soon as possible and most likely by the president of each organization or some corresponding officer.

The Dean has also asked that it be announced that he will be in his office in West Hall until such time as the new offices in the Administration Building are completed.

Pretheologs Organized At First Meeting

The John A. W. Haas Pre-theological Club opened its '46-'47 scholastic year with the reading of I Timothy, 4th Chapter, that passage of the scriptures that tells of the duties of a minister.

After a brief "get acquainted" session and a short address by Dr. John W. Doberstein, election of officers was held. Voted into office were: Raymond May, president; Ralph Bagger, vice president; Malcolm Rau, secretary, and Theodore Getz, treasurer. They will hold these offices until the next election in June '47. In accordance with the constitution seniors have been elected to office in past years. However, because of the absence of any seniors it was suggested by Dr. Doberstein that this rule be waived for this election.

Dr. Edward T. Horn, of the department of religion, introduced Dr. Charles W. Hepner, the speaker of the evening. Dr. Hepner, who taught in Japan for thirty years, until his return to the United States in the Fall of 1942, presented to the group a most inspiring talk on the challenge to the ministerial student in the present Atomic Age.

The meeting, which was attended by 45 students and 5 faculty members, received the benediction from Dr. Doberstein. It was agreed that the next meeting would be held on November 4th. All pre-theological students, regardless of sect are cordially invited to attend and become a member of the club.

Band Plans Features For Homecoming Game

The Muhlenberg Band is making extensive plans for the Homecoming game between 'Berg and Franklin and Marshall. Anthony Jagnese promises an exceptional performance on Saturday and although refusing to state anything definite he said that the band will be on hand with some outstanding marching and playing.

On Friday evening, October 25, the band will lead the "Pajama Parade" into Allentown. This annual parade of all freshmen, anxiously awaited by all Muhlenberg men, will commence from the East Hall at 7:30 p.m.

The main attraction of the band last week was Mary Jane Blair, a drum majorette from Stroudsburg, a sister of one of the band members, who caused much favorable comment. The band's display on Saturday was also commented on.

FROSH-SENIOR EXAMS

Dr. Carl Boyer has asked the WEEKLY to publicize the fact that on next Wednesday, Oct. 30th, at 2:30 p.m. a series of tests are to be given in the Science Auditorium. These tests are mandatory for all men who expect to graduate this coming February or June 1947. Also any men on the Muhlenberg Campus for the first time this semester, who missed the tests during Freshman Week, are to be present.

M'Berg To Dedicate F & M Game, Weekend To Alumni Homecoming

Saturday will be Muhlenberg's first Homecoming Day since the end of the war. "We want to save the fireworks for the big Victory Reunion next Spring," says John Wagner, alumni secretary, but with the help of various student organizations, he has managed to map out a fairly ambitious program for the returning old grads and veterans.

Next Reserve Officer Confab At Bethlehem

The next monthly meeting of the Reserve Officers Association will be held in the University Room of the Hotel Bethlehem on Monday, October 28th, at 8 P.M.

Major Shirley A. Koplin, Commanding Officer, 442nd AAF Base Unit, Olmstead Field, Middletown, Pa., will represent the Commanding General 11th Air Force and will present plans for flying and other training of Air Reserve Officers.

An invitation has been extended to all Reserve Officers regardless of whether they belong to the Association or not. Preceding the meeting there will be an informal dinner to allow everyone a chance to get acquainted. The dinner will start at 6 P.M. and be of individual nature with all men paying their own checks.

Dr. Carl Boyer of Muhlenberg will be in attendance at the meeting commencing at 8 P.M. and has offered transportation to four men desiring to attend. For further information, contact Dr. Boyer.

The activities will center around the Franklin and Marshall football game on Saturday afternoon. Four big signs with a conspicuous Welcome Home lettered across them are to be erected, one at the Main Gate to Muhlenberg Field, one at the South gate, one in the North stands, and one above the press box. The three fraternities are planning to display similar signs in front of their houses. And the Cardinal Key Society, Muhlenberg's official welcoming committee under Bob McDonough, has printed Welcome Home cards which will be distributed to all alumni.

Alumni on the campus in the morning will have a chance to see the Muhlenberg Cross-country team run in a triangular meet against Lehigh and Franklin and Marshall, starting at 11:00 o'clock. The Soccer team takes on Haverford in the afternoon at 2:30 on West Hall field, at the same time the football team is engaging Franklin and Marshall.

Between the halves of the football game, the Muhlenberg band is planning to form a large F. and M. in front of the visitors' stands, and then march across the field, forming the numeral 2067, the number of Muhlenberg men in the armed forces during the war.

Also during the half-time interval, a public address system will carry two speeches by Mr. Walter L. Reisner, president of the Alumni Association, and by Dr. Levering Tyson, in which they will officially welcome all the alumni back to the campus, particularly those returning from service.

The fraternities have planned a number of parties after the football game and also for Saturday night.

Choir In Debut Sunday Night

Beginning an extensive series of engagements for this season, the Chapel Choir will participate in a joint Reformation service at Allentown High School on Sunday night, October 27. Representatives of about 40 local churches will take part.

Since the committee in charge of the service decided to use Dr. Harold K. Marks' arrangement of "Praise to the Lord", they requested that the Muhlenberg Chapel Choir sing the male chorus of this composition. Dr. Marks is rehearsing the choir in this number and expects them to make a good showing. Additional gowns have been ordered, and they are expected to be here in time for the service Sunday night.

The students of Muhlenberg College are cordially invited to attend this service. Those who come will find an active organization that does credit to our college.

Franklin and Marshall Foe At Home This Saturday

Hoping to continue on their path toward an unbeaten season, Muhlenberg's hard fighting eleven will face Franklin and Marshall this Saturday on 'Berg field. The Diplomats from F. and M. have improved considerably and are a much better ball club now than when they lost to Swarthmore in their first game of the season 7-6. Last week they rolled up eight touchdowns over a weak C.C.N.Y. team and displayed a well balanced attack throughout. Their starting backfield possesses three good runners, each of whom can also pass better than average. They are Sweeney, Karl and Monoco.

Sweeney, in the C.C.N.Y. game, passed to Karl for a touchdown, ran 23 yards for another touchdown and set up a third with a 22 yard run to the one yard line. Karl, who usually played safety, did a fine job of returning punts and is a good broken field runner. Monoco, their fullback, passed for a touchdown and set up a couple more with his smashes through the line.

Besides these men which fit in very nicely with the single and double wing formation used by F. & M. they have a couple of scat backs which add deception to their attack. The Diplomats employ a great many double and triple reverses and these scat-backs, Tress and Manuel, give these plays the necessary speed. In the C.C.N.Y. game both of these men scored on 35 yard runs from deep triple reverses.

Franklin and Marshall's forward wall is as 'Berg's, averaging 185. They charge fast and hard and both in the Swarthmore and C.C.N.Y. game they blocked many kicks. In the C.C.N.Y. game, Tickner, their right guard and Gebemstedt, their left tackle blocked two punts. Perhaps the only fault that one could find with this line is that so far their downfield blocking hasn't been too good. They open up holes, but that is all. The strongest part of their line is their right side with Tickner at right guard, Quinlin at right tackle and Wertz at right end.

Muhlenberg, whose team keeps on improving in every game, expects to have an easy time of it Saturday. No one was hurt last week and the team is plagued mainly by the common cold, but expects to be at its best physical condition for this game. The blocking of the team as a unit has improved considerably as can be noted by the average gain of 6.7 yards on running plays. F. & M. should have a tough time stopping such boys as Sikorski, who averaged 17.4 yards against Swarthmore, Bell, Dean, and Crider. Also Bell will probably do quite a lot of passing as F. & M. appears

'Berg Tradition Revived Tomorrow

In conjunction with the gala HOMECOMING celebration planned for this coming week-end, a gigantic parade and pep rally has been scheduled for Friday night, October 25th.

Under the supervision of the Muhlenberg Student Council the festivities mark the return to the campus of an old and honored tradition. For many years in the past the annual "Pajama Parade", which was made up of Freshmen, was an outstanding event of the scholastic year. Curtailed during the war, the parade will move again this year with all the members of the student body taking part in the affair.

This scheduled activity is the first serious attempt of the student body to regain some of the lost aspect of college life. It has been expressed by many men on the campus that this is the stimulus needed to get the school on the road to former days of intense rivalry and college atmosphere. The parade and pep rally, followed by the football game and various activities on Saturday, well may be the turning point in a serious problem which has faced this campus for a number of years now. That problem of lack of a true college spirit CAN and MUST BE licked. Only with the cooperation and help of every member of the student body can this be accomplished.

Traditionally the parade is one of 'Berg's most colorful events and was held every year before either the Gettysburg or F. and M. game. This is in the nature of an appeal and a plain statement of fact. I firmly believe that should this affair be a huge success, and should we be successful in getting five or six hundred men out to parade, the college itself and every man in it will be benefited by the upsurge of spirit, and also the city of Allentown itself will sit up and take notice that there is another school other than the local high school in the community.

This year with the Student Council doing the sponsoring, John E. T. Rogers has been chosen to head the Parade and Pep Rally in the right direction. From his position as Parade Director and Chairman, Mr. Rogers has announced the following details: The parade will start from East Hall Quadrangle at 7:30 Friday evening. Included in the ranks will be the Muhlenberg Band, the coaching staff, "Haps" Benfer, and members of the football team. This entourage plus about six hundred students will make quite an impressive sight as it swings down Hamilton Street to the Monument at Seventh and Hamilton Streets, where the rally will be held.

The plans call for as many students to carry lighted torches as possible and also as many to be present in pajamas as possible. Featured at the rally will be songs, cheers, and a few short speeches.

GUESTS INVITED

Rogers has announced that this year it is requested that all men wishing to bring dates to the parade and rally do so. The young ladies will be included in the parade.

Members of the parade not wearing pajamas are asked to wear "M" sweaters if they are available, and regardless of costume, to be present.

And so that is the story of the biggest event of its kind to hit 'Berg in many years. The willful co-operation of every student is urgently needed. Let us all lend a hand, take a few minutes to promote some REAL school spirit, and make this Parade and Rally the old time rip-roaring affair that it should be.

CARS NEEDED

A call for 10 cars has been issued to take part in the parade, and those able to assist should contact John Rogers at '8382.

ALL IN THE GAME

by Larry Tully

One might think that the first time a prehistoric man decided to render a swift kick to a stooping neighbor a minor war resulted, but I know otherwise. A truer deduction would be that the pleasure derived there from, on the part of the kicker, appealed to man's sporting, sense and soon a community game of "you kick me then I kick you" became the past time of the ancients. This however, caused too many of the Villager's meals to be eaten in a standing position, so a substitute for the object of man's desire to kick had to be found.

In the ensuing quest many a yelping dog could be seen high tailing it away from the little orbit of dwellings, accompanied by the sounds of whatever cursing man knew in those days as he also tried out boulders, tree stumps, cactus bushes and what not. The immediate answer to the problem wasn't found that easily, so after a while some gave up the idea in disgust while others went back to kicking their neighbors as soon as their feet healed.

It was the latter group, who, after several migrations and several centuries had been taken care of, finally found a presentable substitute in the form of a rolling head, which had recently been removed from its body some where near Denmark. The response of the world in accepting the idea of a head being standard equipment for all kicking games was immediate. In fact, so great was the appeal that one wasn't surprised to see his mother coming down the road with someone's head bouncing along merrily in front of her, or his grandmother making a Yo-Yo out of one that wasn't quite suited for the ball field.

It is quite easy for one to grasp how the head finally gave way to the ball, so we will now go into the origin of the first team, with typical Muhlenberg accuracy. In order to illustrate our goal more picturesquely, we shall pick a character, purely from random, and call him, "Haps Wentfor." Well, "Haps", in the role he is to play, was rather a dim witted lad who didn't have much talent on the ball field, but because of his big mouth, often stood on the side lines and cheered for his friends as they kicked someone's head around. Unfortunately for "Haps", one day a bruiser's kick sent the head straight to him, while in the midst of shouting orders to his buddies and he caught it squarely in the teeth, where it lodged. The players immediately jumped on "Haps" with attempts to kick the ball loose, and were doing a fine job on his features when his friends interfered by giving him what is now known as interference. This enabled Haps to get up and run home, thus scoring the first touchdown in history and giving man the idea of helping each other on the ball field, thereby giving us our first team.

After teams were organized, the history of both football and soccer becomes easier to trace. The Romans and the Greeks played a cross between the two games with the uniform being brass knuckles and spiked helmets. The later date British played a game called Rugby, (no relation to the popular parlor version), the Irish entirely forgot about kicking the ball and just used it as a pretense for going on the field and clubbing each other with their shillies. The Indians did the same and called their game Lacrosse, but the French, not being quite as rugged as the rest, made their alterations which gave birth to the game of marbles.

The fact that both football and soccer are still being played today shows that man hasn't changed in his desire to let go with a good swift boot now and then. If we are to follow the Christian Ideals and "Do unto others as they would do unto you", all I can say is watch out, neighbor, watch out.

MULE KICKS

Dear Editor,

I've used the ole Army system, I done went and told the Chaplain my troubles. Then I spoke to big hearted Haps Benfer about it and he permitted me to cry on his shoulder for five minutes. My Profs tell me I should best be getting on the ball with my work. I'm willing . . . but every time I rope and hogtie my roommate so he'll be quiet, and settle down to do some serious study in my room my desk lamp goes out. I'll admit it's one of these new fangled fluorescent gadgets but it works fine until about 7:00 p.m., when many other West Hall residents get the idea a little light on the subject would be a good idea. The power has been souped up but still it's the same sad tale every night. I don't know of any electrical gadgets that could cause such a disturbance cepin' a vibrator some bald student might be using for hair restoration . . . Ah shucks, Editor I don't know from nothin' . . . who can find the short circuit somewheres or sumpin' . . . or where do I get a seeing-eye dog.

GOING BLIND

'Berg Is Host To Boy Scouts

The college was host last Saturday to the Boy Scouts of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, who made a pilgrimage to the statue of General John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg on that day.

The scouts were greeted by President Tyson, after which they heard an address, General Muhlenberg, by Dr. Brown, head of the English Department. They then visited the chapel, where Chaplain Doberstein explained some of the historic figures on the windows to them.

After their lunch in the commons, the scouts were taken for a tour of the college by the members of the Cardinal Key Society. The tour ended with the scouts moving onto the Athletic Field to see the Muhlenberg-Swarthmore game.

Rusty Retreats; Local Squirrels Have Field Day

The last member of Squirrel Chasers, Inc. has been transferred to a new territory. Mr. Rusty Dusty Gismo, formerly of the Muhlenberg territory, has been promoted to the Kerns Dam territory (Slatington District). His promotion includes ham and eggs for breakfast, a warm room for sleeping, plus a river and a mill race for swimming. This has been published for two reasons; first, to fairly warn the squirrels of the Kerns Dam territory of a new agent and secondly, to thoroughly assure Rusty's friends, in this territory, that he is being better fed and better housed in his new position. A short trip out Route 309, a left turn at Siegersville plus another half mile and lousy healthy barks will be your greeting.

By Mike Rogers

Well the first dance of the season has come and gone. Much comment has also gone by the boards about the affair. Firstly, we must give credit to the Council and also to the committee who gave time and effort to the dance. Personally we think that the affair would have been better held at the old standby, Dorney Park. Realizing that it's tough to get that spot, the price may be a wee bit out of line and also transportation difficulties, we still think that a poll of student reaction will make the future dances move out to Castle Garden. At any rate the turnout was good and the crowd was pleased by everything except the condition of the floor and no checking facilities. I'm sure that if all hands get with the Council and lend a few helpful suggestions to the members, the boys will get right on the ball and make the matter right . . .

Agents from the library tell us the John Keefe and his intended are regular customers. We can't figure out how all the studying gets done and also how can Beers keep his mind on his work??? Did you note big "Jeem" Doran at the dance without a gal, without a tie, without, well just without . . . Welcome mat out at this spot to Mrs. Diz Dean on leave from "Mommy Duties" to see that "Daddy" is making out alright. Orchids to Diz, by the way for a whale of a game on Saturday. I think just about everyone around here is waiting for the Diz to shake loose and run a million yards one of these fine Saturday afternoons. Meantime you go right on taking two and three guys with you when you toss a block buddy, it really looks good and makes nice holes . . .

Notables making with the feet at the Armory included Bob Clauser and Miss Fanny Billera, the Jack Criders, and the Bill Barkers . . . Among those who departed early were Johnny Sweatlock and Frau, oh no they were feeling O.K. and having a good time, but that little guy at home had to be fed, and around that house, brother he's the boss . . . Saw Steve Sivcho and Mrs. at the game, their future touchdown star was at home with a rattle too . . .

Did you note Matty Maradeo at the dance with a verreeeee pretty red head?? They sure gave the ole hardwood a good work out. I got tired watching them, can it be that I'm old??? Don't answer that . . . We got the dope on Dick McGee and his bed partner, a very friendly cat that got in to the dorms by mistake(????). Seems that Dick doesn't mind sharing his sack with the feline friend but there's a wee matter of housebreaking that someone neglected to take care of. Yep that's McGee sleeping in the quadrangle . . . Eddie Donovan and Nancy back for a return engagement this weekend, what's the scoop Ed, is it the real thing, or does she just like football, huh???? On board for the Swarthmore fracas was Jim Devlin who Captained the '44 'Berg eleven and was with the Marines here at school . . .

SCREAM OF THE WEEK: One Glen Musselman who commutes every day from Kutztown to 'Berg and back lost his car a few days ago. Seems that Glen in his haste to park, one night neglected to secure old Nellie properly and the darn thing slipped away very quietly into a corn field nearby. Well some guys use gas and others let their lizzies out into the corn field to fill themselves up . . .

We'll be looking for you about 7:30 p.m. at East Hall for the big parade. This is ONE affair that no one can afford to miss and we must all back, 100%.

The big bunch of "posies" this week to Lou "Ears" Wence for his quasimodo work on ringing the victory bell after the Swarthmore game.

Alumni Memo

By John Wagner, Alumni Secretary

This Saturday we will have our first Homecoming Game since the war. Many alumni will return to the campus to see the game and witness the many changes which have taken place during the past four years. They will find many things which are different, and, for the most part, changes for the better. They will see the game, and the performance which our team will give that day, will make them swell with pride. The band will play, perform some drills during the half time period, and from past records, that too, will be satisfactory. However, one thing bothers me, and the alumni may notice it very much if it is not improved. That is the CHEERING OF THE STUDENT BODY.

Organized cheering is part of every college football game. Some schools go in for very elaborate card tricks, hat waving, and other displays. Others concentrate on good, solid, concerted cheering. That is what I would like to see the Muhlenberg student body do, and in a big way. You have a team that you can really shout about. You have student cheer leaders who will lead you. The cheers are printed in the M book. Frankly, you have not a real excuse for anything but the best kind of cheering and that is what I should like to hear on Saturday afternoon. It can be done—it WILL be done with YOUR help.

ACCENT
ON...
SPORTS

by Herb Needleman

A look at the statistics elsewhere on the page are enough to make even the most rabid pessimist start strewing roses and singing Hallelujahs all over the place.

The contrast between this year's ball team with the hastily slapped together aggregations of the 1944, '45 seasons is as strong as that between Jane Russel and your reporter's blind date of last week. Yeah, we've got a ball club this year, and it's a great feeling to be able to mention it to some of the town's people without being deluged with horse laughs. Too long have 'Berg teams played weak sister to Allentown High. Just last year the Muhlenberg squad performed before an average crowd of 200 students, three stray dogs, and 37 kids who jumped the fence, while the A.H.S. stadium was stuffed to bursting every Friday night. A stranger walking into the 'Berg field while a game was going on last year would think that 22 guys were on a geology field trip for all the noise that was not being made.

Plenty of thanks go to the whole team for waking the natives up to the fact that the space between 23rd and 27th on Chew Streets is more than a dog and squirrel haven.

Plenty of speculation has been going on as to the purpose of the work being done behind the Science Building. No, it's not a burial plot for our opponents, but a badly needed athletic field. The plans are for the erection of volleyball and basketball courts to accommodate the bloated Phys. Ed. classes.

Those elongated guys that can be seen on the track every afternoon are this year's basketball players, shaping up for the court campaign, which promises to be a honey. On paper, the 'Berg team looks like a smooth club, with plenty of depth, but our opponents will not be easy. We note that Temple is working out under Josh Cody, and they've also got a few boys who know that the object of the game is to drop the ball into the hoop.

This week was a bad one for the experts, who are now walking around in dark glasses mumbling "Better I should sell brushes than pick football games."

A bit of enlightenment—Those four fellows with the megaphones that jump around and yell like crazy are not Phys. Ed. majors doing calisthenics, but cheerleaders.

GARNET SMASHED, 52-13

SIKORSKI, BELL
AND CO. RUN WILD

As rough and tumble a herd of Muhlenberg Mules as ever thundered out of the Administration Building on Saturday afternoon swept past the boys of Garnet from Swarthmore to run up a fearless, fancy score of 52-13, for the largest 'Berg total in two and one-fifth decades.

No less than twenty-eight Mules contributed to the victory. Handsome Ed Sikorski ran over three six pointers and Jack Crider picked up two. Schreiber, Bibighaus, and Roveda also hit pay dirt. It was good to see Bill Barker back in uniform, even without shoulder pads, kicking the first extra point of the game. Morris Quint picked up three points via the placekick route in his usual reliable fashion.

Hard luck or just plain old fate, managed to keep Diz Dean out of the scoring column again. His lean frame was all over the place throwing blocks, kicking, returning punts and in a general sort of a way he was a mighty big cog in the wheel of victory.

Bibighaus continued to look every bit as good as Terry Moore and Enos Slaughter as he gathered in some mighty hard to handle passes. Old Sol managed to beat Vern Miller out of couple catches, but maybe we can set game time down to four o'clock next time so the sun will have a chance to sneak over the horizon before Bell starts flipping them.

Swarthmore seemed to have found a weak spot in our pass defense and managed to come in with two TD's. The Mules were not to be denied and roared back to show a four to one touchdown advantage.

Bench Splinters

The game wasn't the only good part of the day. Jim Doran let the crowd see the scoreboard two or three times. . . . A near capacity crowd turned out, people from as far away as Concord, New Hampshire being there—such people, eh Marshall. A catastrophe nearly occurred when a certain basketball player from Kentucky couldn't find the South Stand. He claims the sun sets in the East where he comes from. After the game everybody had a good husky meal of shirred plover eggs, Johnson grass, and brala suet and went stompin' at the Armory. . . . All sisters and brothers who could claim allegiance to the Cardinal and Gray. . . . being a tough day, wasn't it men—but wasn't it a lulu?

DELAWARE WHIPS
LITTLE MULES, 19-0

The Jayvee's lost a hard fought encounter to a strong, aggressive Delaware team, last Friday afternoon. The possibility of victory for the home team prevailed until late in the fourth period, when Delaware scored two rapid fire touchdowns, the final score being 19-0.

The Bluehens, running from the double wing, consistently gained ground over the center of a game but light 'Berg line. Delaware's first score came in the second period on an aerial play. 'Berg threatened several times in the first half, and on the last of these thrusts passed the ten yard line, only to have the clock run out.

The second half was played on almost even terms, until the closing minutes when a blocked punt paved the way for a second Delaware score. Their last touchdown was registered just seconds before the final whistle. One of the few thrills provided for the partisan spectators came in the fourth period, when 'Berg struck paydirt with a long precision aerial, only to have the play nullified due to an offside penalty.

A wet turf greatly impeded the offensive power of both teams. The Mules, in particular, suffered from the rain soaked field, as time and again their fleet footed backs bogged down, just as a notable gain seemed inevitable.

The home team missed the services of two of their finest players. Latzko, the most promising back on the squad, was unable to play due to an injury sustained in the first game of the season. MacLaughlin, hard hitting guard, was recently injured in scrimmage with the varsity, and was sidelined for the game.

Cappriotti and Stoll were standouts for the 'Berg backfield. Cappriotti ran the team throughout most of the game, while Stoll played good defensive ball and nearly broke away for a score on a long passing play in the second half. Swift, all-state guard from New Jersey, played fine ball for the forward wall.

The Jayvees will next face a strong Gettysburg eleven, the 8th of November, on the home field.

FIGURES DON'T LIE

by Charles Morgan

The records of the first four football games show why the Mules are undefeated and why they may continue that way. Power has been the deciding factor in the first four games.

The ground powerhouse has been led by Ed Sikorski, Emmaus High School star. Ed has plunged and battered his way to a net gain of 428 yards from scrimmage in his first four games. The 61 times Ed lugged the ball he has only lost a total of nine yards. This shows that once he gets possession of the ball and starts in the direction of the goal line he is hard to stop.

But a team is not all backfield as those boys up in the forward wall have really done a bang up job. This can easily be shown when you see that the opposition has only gained a total of 299 yards from scrimmage. They also have opened up nice holes and contributed some pretty down field blocking for the ball carriers.

The 'Berg passing game has done all right, thus far, having completed 35 out of 65 passes for a gain of 639 yards; while the team also has possession of the ball the majority of the time. They have amassed a total of 58 first downs to the opponents' 15.

Complete statistics of the first three games follow:

	Mules	Opponents

HOPIN' & DOPIN'

by John H. Fitzgerald

Professional pickers, take my advice and don't read this column any more. The roof really fell in—seven right, three wrong, and two ties last week. That's tough on the old average as well as the pocketbook. This is a new week, however, and the good, straight dope is forthcoming.

Our golden boys continued to roll along against Swarthmore so we're stringing along with them against Franklin and Marshall. This week the score to be 33-0.

Two of our victims, Bucknell and Lafayette meet Saturday and it looks like a four TD victory for the Bisons. Delaware meets Drexel and on the strength of their twenty-five game winning streak the nod goes to Delaware by two TD's. Elsewhere in the East, Columbia to shade Dartmouth, Cornell over Princeton, Army over Duke, Harvard over Holy Cross, Pennsylvania to murder Navy, Penn State to ease past Colgate, and Swarthmore to hand Ursinus loss number four.

The Big Nine, (did you ever see so many 14-14 ties in any one conference?), shouldn't present too many tough ones. Ohio State, at home in Columbus, should handle Minnesota with ease, Michigan will find the range against Illinois, and in the non-conference games Indiana will get back in the winning groove against Nebraska, and Purdue should have too much on the ball for Wes Fesler's Pittsburgh boys. A relaxed Notre Dame will give Iowa its annual trouncing.

In the Southwest it looks like Alabama over Kentucky, Texas A. and M. over Baylor, and Oklahoma A. and M. over Texas Christian.

There's the sweet eighteen this week, retire to the conference room and deliberate. Get the real dope on the games in your local Sunday morning paper.

Berg Beats Hopkins; Lose To Teachers

The Muhlenberg soccer squad traveled to East Stroudsburg for some extra-curricular activity last Thursday, but the Teachers turned the affair into an academic lesson on how to win a soccer game. The Stroudsburg team instructed the Mules the hard way, to the tune of 4-1.

Stroudsburg scored first on a penalty kick, and repeated on a close play to lead as the half ended, 2-0. The teachers pushed two more scores across in the third period, and it looked like the Mules would be shut out until Rudy Amelia booted a long one in for 'Berg's lone score.

Other Bergmen who stood out both offensively and defensively were Hertzog, Cambell, and Gutshall.

The Mule booters came through to down Johns Hopkins by a 4 to 2 score last Saturday. The J. H. boys gave the Cardinal and Gray a scare when they scored two fast goals, one being on the first play of the game. The second period brought a score for the Mules netted by Campbell on a penalty kick. The half ended 2-1 for the Baltimore outfit.

The third period was scoreless, and the final brought a spurt of three goals ending the game, 4-2 for the Mules.

LEHIGH FOE SATURDAY AWAY

Gridiron Hop Scheduled For November 16th At Armory; Ken Keeley Orchestra Plays

The Gridiron Hop, second student body dance of the semester will feature Ken Keeley and his Orchestra at the Armory on Saturday evening, November 16, the Student Council announced this week.

The dance will last from nine till twelve and will take place the same week-end as the Moravian football game, Muhlenberg's last home encounter. In announcing details for the event the Council revealed that steps have been taken to correct the checking bottleneck of the last dance.

Chaperones for the affair will be head football coach Floyd Schwartzwalder and his wife and line coach Frank Lough and his wife. Faculty and administration personnel will be invited guests, and students are to be admitted by their activities cards. The price to alumni and visitors will be announced later.

Ken Keeley, the evening's maestro, fronts a smooth band that has long been popular in the East. The Reading band has played at most popular dancing places in this area and has been featured at numerous colleges.

One of the few places large enough for the college family, the Armory presents a spot readily accessible to all, and the Council dance committee, consisting of Phil Mitterling, Bob Kishbaugh and John Myers, has made arrangements for complete checking facilities. Measures have also been taken to make sure that the floor is in top-notch condition. Refreshments will be on sale.

With such plans and with the student body's support, the Council feels the dance will be a great success.

Pre-Meds Hear Dr. Appleton

After more than two years of forced inactivity due to war-time conditions, the Pre-Medical Club of Muhlenberg College was revitalized last evening at a meeting held in the West Hall Auditorium. An exceptionally large group of pre-medical, pre-dental and pre-veterinary students were present to hear the principal speaker, Dr. J. L. T. Appleton, Dean of the School of Dentistry, University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Appleton directed his talk principally to the pre-dental men, but the pre-professional context of his talk reached the entire audience.

Dr. John V. Shankweiler, head of the Department of Biology and Pre-Medical Adviser, has resumed his job as faculty sponsor of the club. He has announced that the actual organization of the club will be postponed for a few meetings in order that the prospective members be given the opportunity

Plans For Improved Campus Lighting

President Tyson in a memo to the Weekly last week stated that the Administration has been formulating plans for the improvement of the campus lighting system. The statement was in answer to the editorial appearing in last week's issue about the lighting situation.

A complete lighting survey is planned, Dr. Tyson said, and as soon as materials are available, the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company will handle the changes. Not only are new interior fixtures to be installed, but the college has under consideration a plan for the lighting of the entire campus. The Women's Auxiliary has indicated that it is willing to put up flood lights at strategic points to enhance the beauty of the campus at night. The South side of the Chapel, for instance, may be illuminated for the benefit of those passing the campus on Chew Street after dark.

Unbeaten Mules Seek Sixth Win At Bethlehem

Lehigh Valley's greatest rivals renew festivities this Saturday afternoon at Bethlehem, where an undefeated, untied Muhlenberg steamroller will oppose a band of strong stubborn Engineers.

Naval Reserve Opens In City

The first man to be enlisted at the Naval Reserve Mobile Recruiting Unit which moved into Allentown on Tuesday, October 29th was Donald Reynolds, a Muhlenberg Freshman who is enrolled under the GI Bill as a physical education major. Reynolds is a veteran of three and a half years of Naval Service and saw overseas duty during the past war. The Inactive Naval Reserve offers all former service veterans a chance to hold their highest rating, accrue longevity, and aid their country by being in a stand-by status, ready to man the ships of the reserve fleet should ever the need arise, in a future national emergency.

An enlistment in the Inactive Reserve also carries with it the privilege of joining the Organized Naval Reserve, which is represented in the Allentown area by the Third Battalion. This class of the Reserve not only offers you the chance to get expert training, but also means from 180 dollars per year for a seaman or fireman second to 335 dollars per year for a chief petty officer, in return for attendance at one instruction period per week. Both the Inactive and the Organized Reserve enlistments carry the privilege of resigning at any time at your own request.

Naval Reserve enlistments and activities are carried on by the Naval Reserve Administrative office, at the Post Office Building in Allentown. This office is open daily, Monday through Friday and Tuesday evenings until 9:00 p.m. Veterans must bring the original of the honorable discharge with them when they come in to enlist.

Previous contests have always been bitter battles, where past performances and prophet's predictions seldom betrayed the ultimate outcome.

Lehigh has been victor in two of her three contests this season, opening with a close decision over King's Point Merchant Marine Academy, and dropping her second game to Gettysburg. As recent as last Saturday a greatly strengthened Lehigh team defeated a favored Connecticut eleven. The reshaping of the Engineer squad was made possible by the return of 21 men to the varsity roster with the turn of the semester.

The Engineers employ a "Faurot T" style attack developed by Don Faurot of Missouri. This offense features a split line with the quarter back used as a frequent runner, as well as passer. The Lehigh offense has been void of "Flanker" plays in all previous games.

Johnson, captain and right end of the Lehigh team is the finest ball player on the squad, his defensive play being of no less value than his ability on the offense. Tomasic, the quarterback, is light, but extremely fast and well qualified to run his team from the "T" formation, due to his dexterity in ball handling.

The Mules enter the conflict with a badly battered backfield. Bogdziewicz, burley blocking back and Irving Dean, punting, passing star, were both injured in last Saturday's game with Franklin and Marshall. The possibility of either seeing action in this week's encounter is very remote, although Dean may see limited service. Quint, who starred in previous games as a conversion specialist, will replace Bogdziewicz.

If history repeats itself, the clash of arms this Saturday afternoon at Bethlehem, will resound throughout the valley, and when the smoke of battle has cleared, victor and vanquished alike will agree that they faced a worthy opponent.

Medical Attention

Dr. Thomas H. Weaver, Jr., College Physician, has asked that the following announcement be made: All students should call at the infirmary in East Hall for medical attention between the hours of 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m., when possible. This will alleviate crowded conditions during the day and give the doctor a chance to see each patient personally.

Accordance with these regulations will make for a smoother functioning infirmary.

Movies Friday; Double Showing

In order to accommodate the large crowds expected because of the Lehigh game week-end, "Duck Soup" and "The River", college movie presentations for November, will be shown twice tomorrow evening.

The two motion pictures, considered milestones in movie history and selected by a student poll, are to be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Science Auditorium.

"Duck Soup", the first of the two features, is a comedy featuring the hilarious Marx Brothers, long-time, popular providers of cinema entertainment.

The other picture, "The River," is a documentary film. Its story and method of presentation are among the most unusual ever to reach the screen.

This November program is the second in a series of monthly presentations of famous old movies sponsored by the college's Art Department. Professor Rickey, who is responsible for the initiation of the idea on the campus, is at

Choir Begins Year At Allentown High

Last Sunday night, the Chapel Choir began its busy season with a noteworthy performance at the joint Reformation Service held in Allentown High School. The Choir's rendition of Dr. Harold K. Marks' "Praise to the Lord" received numerous fine compliments from those who heard it.

Many people expressed regret that 'Berg's choristers sang but one piece. However, with several engagements already planned for December, and others pending, the Choir is working against time to build up its repertoire. To facilitate preparation for this season's tasks, they have increased their rehearsals to three hours weekly. This additional rehearsal met with the almost unanimous approval of the members in spite of the sacrifice of time on their part.

The general attitude in the Choir is that of revived spirit and greater interest in its activities. This new enthusiasm will show up in a commendable record for this season.

'Crest, 'Berg MCA Host To Student Christian Movement

"Christian Leaders in a World Movement" will be the theme of a conference of Area Two of the Middle Atlantic region of the American Student Christian Movement to be held at Cedar Crest and Muhlenberg on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, November 1, 2, and 3.

The conference will begin on Friday night at 7 p.m., in the recreation room of Crest Hall of Cedar Crest. The main feature of Friday night's program is a panel discussion entitled "Where Next, Christian Student?"

For luncheon on Saturday, the conference will move to the First Presbyterian Church at 5th and Linden Streets. The topic at the luncheon will be "Student Needs Around the World," and the speaker, Paul Moritz, Secretary of the Student YMCA in China.

The conference moves back to Cedar Crest on Saturday evening for a discussion on Christian Students as World Citizens, led by Mr. Jack Kerridge, assistant director of the International House in Philadelphia.

Dr. Stine of Muhlenberg will lead in Bible study on Saturday and Sunday morning. Services in the Muhlenberg Chapel, conducted by Chaplain Doberstein, will end the conference on Sunday morning.

This conference will be the first of its kind to be attended by a Muhlenberg Christian Association, such organizations on the campus having heretofore been detached units operating by themselves. The MCA has also announced that it will play the $75 registration fee for any Muhlenberg student who wishes to attend the conference.

Colleges besides Muhlenberg and Cedar Crest that will be represented at the conference are: Albright, East Stroudsburg, Kutztown, Lafayette, Lebanon Valley, Moravian, and Franklin and Marshall.

C'mon MUHLENBERG SMEAR 'EM

Time Was

There was a time in the annals of Muhlenberg tradition when frosh, green as the grass and instilled with a do-or-die beaverish attitude, ran like scared gazelles across the campus to West Hall because of a sudden realization of a forgotten dink—oh, unpardonable sin. Yes, time was when sophs treated frosh to a shoe scramble at the Homecoming Day game, and the yearlings spent the better part of the second half looking for their shoes on the field between plays. Time was when a frosh sported a commodore-seat horsecollar around the campus for a week, thankful that the lord high Frosh Tribunal hadn't decreed his hair cut instead. Time was when a hoarse squeak after the Saturday's game was the only remnant of a once vibrant voice. Time was—and though we shouldn't live exclusively in the past it does us good to recall it now and then.

Spirit

School spirit, like the weather, is something everyone is inclined to talk about and nobody do anything about. Muhlenberg had a school spirit once that, like the cheers which greeted the mighty Casey as he stepped up to the plate, "rattled on the hilltop, resounded in the dell, rumbled on the mountainside, and rebounded on the flat." And I don't for a minute think that spirit is dead. Spirit does not die, but it can lie dormant.

I am one of the few left now at 'Berg who thru a combination of circumstances was a student here as a civilian before the war, as a member of the unit during some of the war, and now as a veteran. In that time I have watched a college leave normal peacetime pursuits, go to war, only to return faced with what we call "readjustment". 'Berg not only survived the war years which were to many colleges lean years, but she distinguished herself by faithful service to the Navy. Much of what I thought of as the real Muhlenberg suffered in those days, was distorted and eclipsed by platoons and companies, musters and reports, bugles and 6 a.m. reveilles. The reconversion to peace was no less harsh to the old Muhlenberg. Now, somewhere among these 1208 students (Haps' latest nose count) the dormant spirit of 'Berg still snoozes waiting for a sharp goad to awaken it.

Off To a Good Start

Spirits of the true spirit appeared at the recent Welcome Home Parade, and the Pajama Parade. I knew spirit was not dead last Friday night when a dozen P-J clad men injected a pleasant interlude to the feature at the Earle by mounting the stage before the screen and giving forth with a "Yea Muhlenberg—Smear 'em". But spirits of a minority group are not enough. True, some have caught the spirit. Too many have not.

Most of us are veterans and as such are influenced by a natural but misdirected impulse. We are prone to regard ourselves as veterans first and citizens second. This has a tendency to slow us down, make us apathetic with a "the world owes us" attitude. At college we can easily slip into this same rut, and instead of "putting in" we wait for some mythical handout.

I look for a greater Muhlenberg than ever. Certainly the potentialities are at hand. I, with Haps (remember at the square?), look for a new revived spirit, remembering that spirit is not thrust upon us; it works its way out of us. And it explodes first in those of us who see ourselves not in terms of what we were, or plan to be, but what we are now—Muhlenberg men.

EAST MEETS "WEST"

By Wally Stephany

"An interview," the book said, "demands much preparation." Know all the facts and highlights about your interviewee before you approach him. Use tact. Do not press a point which may be distasteful to him. Very important: note his mannerisms and habits of dress."

Fortified with this information I went boldly to the Lyric theater last Wednesday night where Mae West, displaying her usual sultry, salivant charms, starred in her latest vehicle, "Come On Up".

As the last of the record crowd was leaving the theater, I spied a gentleman whose cigar and white boutonniere set him apart from the rest, and inquired if it was possible to have a few minutes with Miss West for an interview. Together, we walked backstage where a frantic stage crew was dismantling the scenery.

"What paper are ya from?" he asked, ducking a passing door. "Muhlenberg Weekly? Oh." A section of wall passed between us. "What's ya job? Just a reporter? Oh. Lissen, take my advice, Tell 'er yer the editor or ya won't even get to see 'er." A studio couch and two trunks went by. "There she is now. Go over an' see 'er before she leaves."

My confidence went A.W.O.L. as I walked over to where la West stood.

"Hello," she said in a mellow voice and took the souvenir program out of my hands to autograph it. She was much more pleasing than my boutonniere friend had intimated.

Remembering what the book said, I cleared my throat and began confidently. "Er uh, Miss West—I uh—I'm from the uh—" Her smile faded.

"What are you staring at?" she demanded. "Haven't you ever seen a black dress before?"

I knew I must try a different tack so I restored my eyes to their sockets and said I had enjoyed her performance immensely.

"Oh thank you," she brightened, flashing her beautiful teeth. "I think the house was quite full, nevertheless I was a little disappointed. We weren't given an advance write-up so it wasn't as full as we expected. We usually have to turn them away you know."

I didn't know but said, "I can imagine so." Then, with much of my ease restored by her pleasant manner, I tried my hand at some very select, high humor. "How do you like Allentown as a (w)hole? Heh, heh."

"Why I think it's a beautiful town. And it was a wonderful audience to play to," she answered ungrammatically. In view of her other talents however, if Mae West wants to end a sentence with a preposition, who am I to correct her?

"Where do you go from here?" I asked.

"We leave for New Haven tomorrow and travel by car all the way."

The stage was almost bare now, and a little fellow in a big hat who looked like he might be something or somebody's manager, came over with Mae's luggage. I tried to think of what else the book had said but couldn't. The silence grew louder.

Finally I said, "You must be very tired and with a long trip ahead of you you'll want some rest."

"Thank you, that's so true," she replied.

"Thank you very much for your time, Mae. Goodnight."

"That's quite all right, you're welcome. Goodnight."

Joyful with my good fortune I tucked the program under my arm, turned, and walked toward the exit. Nervous? Of course not. I always walk into the stage door after I've had an interview.

MULE KICKS

To the Editor of the Weekly,

Since I have returned to the Muhlenberg campus there has been a movement to revive the "good old traditions" of Muhlenberg College. On numerous occasions members of the faculty and staff have made direct appeals to the student body, in Chapel, on the bulletin board, and in the Weekly, to help revive these traditions. The students have been cooperating with the faculty in most of these requests. For example, look at the fine turnout for the pajama parade.

I would like to point out one tradition that hasn't been revived, as yet. That is the tradition of having no school on the Monday following a football victory over one of our traditional rivals. We realize we can't have off for every victory, but we should for our traditional rivals, at least (Lafayette, Lehigh, F. & M., and Gettysburg).

I think the student body has gone MORE than half way in helping to revive our "good old traditions", now let's have the faculty and staff get on the band-wagon. This reviving of traditions isn't just a one-way affair, so let's all help, both students and FACULTY.

A Loyal Muhlenberg Student.

OBITER DICTA

The recent American Legion convention in San Francisco brought to light one ugly side of our present-day way of thinking. General Omar Bradley, Veterans' Administrator, as honest and unbiased a public servant as can be found in Washington today, in a courageous speech before the entire convention spoke out in his own defense against attacks on him by John Stelle, retiring national commander. Bradley said in effect that the veteran should not put his own interests before those of the nation: "The American veteran is first a citizen of these United States. He is, thereafter, a veteran."

When John Stelle spoke later, he brought forth thundering applause by saying, "The main difference between General Bradley and myself, apparently, is that the General thinks that the citizen should be considered first and then the veteran."

This was a neat bit of dialectic juggling. Only those who wish to believe so can accuse General Bradley of not having the welfare of the veteran at heart. He believes, like any thinking person today, that the interests of the veteran are served best, not with handouts and special favors, but with measures which will benefit the citizenry as a whole. He sincerely believes that the citizen comes first, not in the sense that the veteran should be trodden under foot and forgotten, but in the sense that the veterans should not be made a special group, exercising pressure and receiving favors at the nation's expense.

General Bradley's strongest support has come from another veterans' organization, the American (Continued on Page Four)

... The Awful Truth ...

By Mike Rogers

Following is a letter received by the WEEKLY a few days ago. As one of the editors of the paper, I am publishing this letter in my column and making a rather public answer. The letter reads thus:

Dear Sirs: I think that you would be wise to concentrate on improving the style, rather than the size of the Muhlenberg WEEKLY. I was a member of the staff in '42 and '43 and most assuredly would volunteer my help now if I could possibly find the time. I know none of the present WEEKLY staff so there is no malice intended in this letter. It is merely an attempt at honest criticism so that we may have a better school paper. The criterion of my criticisms will be the "WEEKLYs" of the good old days and I think that you would do well to read them and attempt to copy the style, as its rating among collegiate papers then was very high. You should have a higher standard for the staff and not accept anyone without writing ability. You should be far more strict about articles, their style, grammar, etc., before publishing time. By-lines should be given very infrequently, as an accolade, and not passed out promiscuously. I have just finished reading the issue of Oct. 24, and find three major faults: (1) The articles are dull and lifeless. (2) The story entitled "Band Plans Features for Homecoming Game", particularly the last paragraph, contains the worst grammar and choice of words that I have ever seen. (3) The feature story "All in the Game" is disgusting. It is not even an attempt at good satire. For a fairly decent average of good satire, I refer you to the Orange Hallowe'en issue of 1942. (signed) DISGUSTED...

And now for a short reply... Dear Disgusted, we of the staff have time and again solicited criticism and we are appreciative of your interest. There is only one thing that has me puzzled and that is your statement about the lack of time. My friend, if we of the staff took that same approach there wouldn't be a WEEKLY at all. And also my friend, if you desire to compare schedules, and extra class activities, come around and see us, anytime. I can well imagine that you are quite busy, but no busier than any man who gives much of his time to the paper, and gets almost nothing more than self satisfaction for his work. To a degree what you say about the weaknesses in the WEEKLY is true, but it is only thru experimentation and giving the new men a chance can we find who our better reporters and writers are. In conclusion we beg your kind indulgence for all failings of this paper and also make this statement, Mr. Disgusted, perhaps, you are the man we are seeking to help us make a better paper, oh but then I have forgotten, you can't possibly find the time, can you???

Didya see that gal with Jim Doran, ya did, huh, well, wipe the drool off'n your chin... That telephone room looks like a USO center at times with all the guys hangin' around. But fellers take it from the ole' man, her heart still flutters for that Merchant Marine swabby and there was much ado when the recent strike was settled and he took to the sea again. ... Who was that pretty librarian and hubby Circlon-ing last Saturday eve???

Are you boosting those Mules? Well brother, you'd better, and be sure to make that trek to Lehigh, that will be worth seeing, and for sure the guys will be worth rooting for, win, lose, or draw...

Rumors are flying, and word has reached us that Ed Schwob, star baseballer and basketballer is thataway about a sweet one answering to the handle of "Honey-suckle." Watchit Ed, those books just can't be neglected, and as a veery good friend of yours would say, "Smarten up"... We have been notified that a new "Bowl Game" is in the process of being set up. And who do you think is one of the teams being considered to oppose the home team which will be Toledo University of Toledo, Ohio?? Nope it isn't our high flyin' Mules, it's the Delaware team that our boys tangle with come November 23. Now we don't want to say anything right here, and no predictions from this spot, but, weeeell, let's see what happens on November 23 and then mayhaps we will let loose with a bit of a grumble "iffen the Mules don't get the rated recognition..."

Alumni
Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

Alumni Homecoming has come and gone. I want to take this opportunity to thank the student body for their part in making it a day to be remembered in Muhlenberg history. The Pajama Parade on Friday night was a revival of the old time spirit which always characterized our college. The cheering at the game on Saturday was improved, but there is plenty of room for more and louder cheering. The Cardinal Key Society did a good job in handing out the cards to visiting alumni. My thanks to Bob McDonough and his crew of faithfuls. The fraternities cooperated nicely in placing their signs outside their houses and the parties arranged were enjoyed immensely. Of course, the team did its usual grand job—our congratulations to them and the coaching staff.

ACCENT
ON...

by Herb Needleman

We were standing among a crowd of students watching the Major put the club through a light dummy drill the other day. They were running off a few of the more spectacular plays, and drawing plenty of comments as to the quality of the ball handling and speed of the backs. The session was climaxed with a double-reverse, pass play, and after it had been run through once or twice, a kid of no more than twelve years announced to nobody in particular, "He must have a helluva good line to pull that fancy stuff." It struck us how right the kid was, and how few the fans are that realize it. Everybody likes to give the guys up front a little credit, but up in the stands, when a tricky play goes for long yardage, very few bother to think that but for the line holding every member of the defense out, the long gain might just as well have been a costly loss. While the backs are playing "Hide the Football" for five or more seconds, the line is throwing all they have at the defense in an effort to keep them from messing up that pretty paper play.

If the backs and ends are the power plant of pass offense and defense, then the center of the line is the chasis. Try making the best aerial attack go when the passer doesn't have time to get set, or his receivers to get downfield. Or try stopping any fair passing offense when the passer has time to find his receivers, wet his fingers, and pretty himself up for the news pictures.

GLOBE TROTTERS

We just got a look at the players roster of the Valparaiso basketball squad, who will stop at Rockne Hall in February to take on the Mules on the Eastern leg of their tour of the hemisphere. Those ball players must get their lectures via short wave, for all the time they spend on the campus during the season, or maybe they're majoring in North and Central American geography. Rumor has it that the registration desk up at Valpo is about six feet off the floor, and if an applicant can't sign his name without standing on a chair, he just doesn't get in. Another addition to the red hot court schedule is the University of Hawaii, but don't expect a team of grass skirted hula-dancers; they know a little about the game also.

PROSPECTIVE STARS DEPT.

Right here we'd like to offer our best to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bell, who are the week-old parents of an All-American, vintage 1966.

NOTE TO NEW YORK SCRIBES

Last week the Sunday News carried the headline "Violets Defeat Mules, 12-7". Evidently the writers up that way don't know the difference between Gettysburg and Muhlenberg. On November ninth, the Mules will try to show them.

CREPE HANGING

Don't overlook that Delaware team while conjuring up visions of a perfect season. The Hens have only had 12 points scored against them, and are pointing for us, but then again—so was Lafayette, Albright, Bucknell, etc—...

Muhlenberg's undefeated football eleven invades Lehigh Saturday and should come up with their sixth straight victory by at least three touchdowns. Lehigh has improved since the season started and should give 'BERG some trouble at the start. However, the Mules have too much all around strength and depth for Lehigh. Bucknell which finally has started clicking should prove too much for Gettysburg.

In the big games of the day in the East, Army should have an easy time of it against West Virginia, while Notre Dame should beat a constantly improving Navy team. Navy doesn't seem to have too much this year while Notre Dame has a big, powerful line and the good right arm of quarterback Lujack. Penn should trounce Princeton while Temple should upset Syracuse.

Down South, the most important game will feature unbeaten, Rose Bowl bound Georgia against once-beaten Alabama. Georgia has Trippi while Alabama has Gilmore and I look for Georgia to win. Tennessee meets North Carolina and Carl Snavelly would certainly like to knock Tennessee out of any Rose Bowl hopes. However, Tennessee's line is too big and should stop any of Snavelly's fleet-footed backs. This looks like Tennessee by two touchdowns.

Down in the Southwest, Texas will bounce back from its defeat last week by Rice to beat Southern Methodist, Texas A. & M. will have to stop Smackover Scott of Arkansas to win. We like Arkansas. Rice is just beginning to feel their oats, and should take Texas Tech.

In the mid-west, Indiana will beat Pitt, Iowa after being slaughtered by Notre Dame will lose to Illinois. In the big game out here, Northwestern which is leading the Big Nine should defeat its nearest competitor for top honors, Ohio State.

So, fellows, there are my choices for this week and remember, if they are right all that happens is that my average is boosted, while if your choices are correct, most likely your bank account is increased.

Booters Lose
To Temple, 5-0

The Mule Soccermen dropped their third game on Wednesday at Philadelphia, this time to the boys from Temple by a score of 5 to 0. It was Temple's opening game and the team they fielded is reported to be the best in the history of the school.

The first half was scoreless with the Owls pressing all the time. A fast offensive in the third period netted the Owls two goals and final quarter saw them kick through three more.

Campbell, Gutshall, and Hertzog were the main cogs in the Mule defense, which made a creditable showing, but went down under the greater experience of the Temple team.

Saturday morning on a mushy field the Muhlenberg Cross Country team competed against teams from Lehigh and F. & M. Cross country running was something new for the 'Berg men but they weren't outclassed a bit. F. & M. with veteran runners placed first with 22 points. Muhlenberg collected 38 and Lehigh 60. Summers of Muhlenberg came in only a few feet behind Boardman of F. & M. for second place. Summerville and Schaeffer of 'Berg came in 5th and 7th respectively in the meet. The cross country team consists of Summers, Summerville, Schaeffer, Albert, Bradley, Albright, Weddes, Growich, Trupe, and Dennis. The time for 3 1/2 miles of rugged running was 22 min., 39 sec. Watch these men in future meets; there's some good talent here.

Sparked by brand new "pappy man" Bill Bell, the mighty Mules continued their winning ways in downing a stubborn band of Diplomats from Franklin and Marshall last Saturday to the rhythmic tune of 40-7.

Bell was responsible for two touchdowns directly, and his pitching arm accounted for two others. Jack Crider picked up two TD's to put him into a tie for fourth place with Ed Sikorski, who scored one, for the Eastern scoring leadership. Harry Mackin, in some of the fanciest running of the day, picked up the final six points in two plays that totaled sixty-four yards.

Muhlenberg dominated play the entire game and it was only in the last two minutes that F and M approached pay dirt. Their lone tally came as a result of a 'Berg fumble and a fifteen yard penalty.

A painful blow was struck to the Muhlenberg cause when Diz Dean was injured in the first period. His blocking had set the stage for long Muhlenberg gains up to this time, and his departure from the contest at such an early stage kept the Mules total down.

Veterans Committee, or AVC, which is composed of World War II vets. Their motto, like Bradley's, is Citizens First. They have distinguished themselves from the older veterans organizations by taking a definite stand on all the vital issues of the day and by opposing unnecessary pork-barrel legislation. They are against a bonus, for instance. They are in favor of the unification of the armed services. They have supported Wilson Wyatt's Emergency Housing Plan, and have gone to him with concrete suggestions on housing. They have testified before Congressional committee on veterans' housing, again coming up with concrete suggestions, not as a pressure group, but as a cross-section of the country.

The AVC was founded in 1943 by a small group of fellows still in service who believed that little was being done to see that the war when it was over would win for us a lasting and prosperous peace. They could not picture themselves having to fight the war over again in a number of years, and they decided to do something about it. The American Veterans Committee has resulted, with an ever-growing number of members.

The AVC is a democratic organization. Each little chapter has its say in determining national policy. Its complexion is liberal, and though Communists have gravitated towards it, as towards all liberal organizations of this kind, the Communists are not in control. The question was settled at the national convention in Des Moines last July when after a stiff behind-the-scenes struggle, the officers elected to national posts were representatives of the moderate wing.

Its members hope that the AVC will become a potent political force in the future. The policy now is for it to remain non-partisan and support no specific candidates. However, comparisons have been made between the AVC and Tammany Hall, the Democratic machine in New York City, which originally was The Order of

Reserve Officers Meet Monday

On Monday, November 4th, at 7:30 p.m., a meeting of the Officer's Reserve Corps will take place in the West Hall Auditorium at Muhlenberg College.

The meeting will have a two-fold purpose and as stated by Dr. Carl Boyer they are: (1) To receive information concerning status of Reserve Training programs. (2) To explore advisability of establishing a campus chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association, (ROA).

The President and other officers of the Lehigh Valley Chapter of the ROA will be present, along with a representative of the Naval Reserve.

All qualified members of Muhlenberg College students, staff and faculty are urged to attend. Efforts are also under way for the establishment of a similar service for members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps, (ERC).

Of course some things could have been improved. Our P. A. system chose a most inopportune time to quit flat. We had planned speeches by President Tyson and Mr. Walter L. Reisner, president of the General Alumni Association. Many people did not know just what the formation "2076" which the band formed, meant. Those of you who read the WEEKLY knew that it honored the men from Muhlenberg who had served in World War II. All in all, it was a good party, in spite of the difficulties encountered.

Thanks Fellows!

John Rogers, chairman of the Pep Committee, thanks those fellows who fell in behind the band last Friday night in the PeeJay Parade and let Allentown know that Muhlenberg has a ball club this season. The ice is broken now, and more activities of the same sort will be forthcoming.

Plans Completed For Student Council "Gridiron Hop" Nov. 16

Final arrangements have been completed by the Student Council to make the Gridiron Hop one of the top social events of the semester.

The sport dance will be held Saturday evening, November 16, nine till twelve at the Armory with Ken Keeley and his Orchestra.

Climaxing the Moravian game week-end, last home encounter of the season for the Mules, the dance will be chaperoned by coaches Floyd B. Schwartzwalder and Frank Lough and their wives.

The Council has announced that checking facilities will be available and that the floor will be in excellent shape. Decorations are planned. Refreshments will be on sale. Admission is by activities card.

The featured band for the evening is that of Ken Keeley, well-known Reading maestro.

Keeley and his orchestra form one of the elite fraternity of dance band leaders emanating from the coal regions of upstate Pennsylvania. No one has attempted to explain this musical phenomenon, but from this region came such musicians as Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey, Frankie Carle, Fred Waring, Russ Morgan and others to make their fame in the orchestra world.

It has been some years since Ken started his first band in high school. It was a five piece affair with Ken as the 'triple threat', namely, vocalist, drummer and leader of the band. In those days jobs were few and rehearsals plentiful. However, the band's stature grew with leaps and bounds. Less than two years after finishing school, Ken Keeley's orchestra had grown to its present size and Ken was forced to vacate the drummer's chair to lead an orchestra of such size. The styled arrangements of the orchestra have been predicated on Ken's firm belief that an audience consists of many varied tastes and moods. An evening with Ken and his orchestra offers both swing and sweet for 'Berg students.

Pre-Medical Club Will Meet Nov. 13

Striking its name most emphatically from the ledger of campus activities listed as war-time casualties, the reactivated Pre-Medical Club, in its initial meeting of the term held October 30th in the West Hall auditorium, indicated a preparation to resume its former role as one of Muhlenberg's most leading and productive organizations. Dr. John V. Shankweiler, presiding over the meeting, announced that the second meeting of the year is called for next Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the West Hall auditorium, at which time Dr. William Kennedy, Assistant to the Dean of the Medical

G.I. Contest Offers Cash

A new magazine Salute, which is edited and produced by the former editors of Yank and Stars and Stripes, is sponsoring a contest for all veterans attending school or college under the educational provisions of the G.I. Bill of Rights.

The contest is a "letter contest", on the subject: Problems of the College Veteran. Cash prizes are being offered to the writers of the ten most outstanding letters. First prize is $250, second prize is $100, and eight additional prizes of $50 each.

This contest is intended to afford veterans attending college under the G.I. Bill an opportunity to "sound off" on the current educational set up. From these letters may evolve some good ideas or solutions to the many problems facing the veteran in college today.

Length of the letter should not exceed 250 words, and entries must be post marked not later than mid-night, January 10, 1947. All letters are to be mailed to the Contest Editor, Salute, 19 Park Place, New York, 7, New York.

'South America' Is Pre-Theo Topic

Dr. William G. Arbaugh, head of the Latin American Department of the United Lutheran Church in America, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the John A. W. Haas Pre-theological club to be conducted in the Haas Room on November 11, at 7:30 p.m.

The speaker has been very active in the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico of the West Indies. He is extending a challenge to theological students to enter upon this work as their chosen field of service. Club officials ask that all Pre-theological students avail themselves whole-hearted of the opportunity to hear this speaker.

In addition to the speaker, there will be an important business meeting. Such matters as the appointing of standing committees and the planning of future programs will be discussed.

'Berg Holidays Reviewed By Dr. Tyson

Editor's Note: The following is a letter received by the editors of the WEEKLY from the President of the College, Dr. Levering Tyson. It is of interest and importance to every Muhlenberg student. Therefore, we are reprinting the letter in its entirety . . .

November 4, 1946

Muhlenberg College
Allentown, Pennsylvania
Office of the President
Memorandum to: The Editors of the Muhlenberg Weekly

Perhaps the letter in your excellent issue of Thursday, October thirty-first, signed by "A Loyal Muhlenberg Student", was designed to have the College declare itself as to policy on granting holidays for athletic victories. I am perfectly willing to climb out on the limb in regard to this question, but in doing so feel that students should understand the College's position, if I am competent to interpret it.

The writer of the letter referred to cites rather glibly the "tradition" of granting holidays after athletic victories.

It must be perfectly obvious that the president of any college can not and should not declare holidays promiscuously for any reason. Certainly, in the face of conditions under which colleges are now operating, the interruption of academic programs, except for very necessary reasons, is not defensible and if any college made a practice of granting holidays after athletic victories the entire academic program would be disrupted, resulting in valid criticism of the institution from a great many sources.

Let me confess two things: first of all, I hope there is no one more genuinely interested than I am in the proper conduct of an intercollegiate athletic program. For that reason, no matter what might be the result of the remaining games still to be played on this year's schedule, the record of this year's football team, up to this point, is a distinct credit to this College. For that reason alone, I am disposed to grant every reasonable privilege to the members of the team and to the student body

Treasury Men List Souvenirs

At the request of the United States Treasury Department, Dean Perry F. Kendig has announced that there will be representatives of that Federal agency on the Muhlenberg campus for the purpose of registering souvenir firearms, on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 12th and 13th.

The Dean has asked that it be made clear to all, that the bringing of firearms is not compulsory, however; possession of certain types of firearms without registration is a serious offense, and to guard against infringements of the law, it would be a wise move for all those having these objects in their hands to comply with this request.

Registration on the above basis is a standard procedure and is taking place throughout the nation. The Treasury men will be in the Science Hall auditorium on both Tuesday and Wednesday, and it is suggested that all men with unregistered souvenirs, call at the designated place to save themselves both trouble and embarrassment.

Curtain Time Set For 8:30 p.m. In The College Little Theatre

Senior Class Elections Today

Election of officers for the Senior Class is being conducted today in the Administration building. Casting of ballots, which has been in progress since 9 a.m., will officially close this afternoon at 4 p.m.

The reorganization of the class of '47 was instigated by the Student Council on October 31, when the seniors assembled to nominate their candidates. Eligible nominees to an office must have attained a "C" average in previous academic work and must have completed at least 90 credit hours, that figure, a reduction of 10 credit hours in the previous stipulation for consideration as a senior.

Those men whose name appears on the ballot for election to an office of one semester duration are as follows: President, John E. T. Rogers, Carl Reimer, James Hemstreet, Marshall Rogers, and Herbert Abel; Vice President, Robert Hale, John Myers, Robert Ranken, Glenn Reichley, Jack Wessling, and James Wilder; Secretary, Maurice Horn, Walter Menzel, Phil Mitterling, and Robert Oswald; Treasurer, George Bibighaus, Dick Holben, Walter Menzel, Jack Reumann, and Dave Tyson.

which has won much acclaim from theater going audiences in the past. Presentation of an activity card will allow admission to students and a date, and for other than students the admission is sixty cents.

Prominent in the cast are many previous stars of Mask and Dagger productions along with new talent discovered on the campus by director Andrew H. Erskine. Included in the cast are Harold Helfrich, Eunice Feight, Lou Rossi, Marcia Gallos, Bob Bosch, Gerald Rogers, Ernie Wallender, and Bob Hale.

The story deals with an eloping couple who become enmeshed with a supposed "good samaritan" who endeavors to show the eloping parties what their intended choices are really like without the aid of camouflage, and in a true and unbiased light. This leads to much complication and the following scenes are received with hilarity from the audiences which have seen the play before.

Mr. Erskine has been producing and directing plays on the campus here for the past five years and has yet to fail to bring a worthwhile, enjoyable performance to the stage. A good play, with able directing and staging, and a capable cast should make for a most enjoyable evening.

Muhlenberg Students And Their Wives Frolic At Gala College Commons Party

Shown above are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Vetter, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Gallos as they joined the throng of married students at the commons.

Offering their husbands a welcomed escape from nightly academic chores, wives of Muhlenberg students treated the "bosses" of their respective families to a good-ole "shindig" held on Wednesday evening, October 30th in the college commons. More than fifty married couples attended the first of several social affairs being planned for the coming months.

The commons, vibrating in sympathy with the authentic barn dance music of Wetzel's orchestra, displayed its versatility in accommodating the hundred or more foot stomping merrymakers. Paul Wieand, one of the area's outstanding exponents of "Pennsyl-phonisch deutsch" folklore, taught the couples a variety of old time but still popular dances, including the Virginia Reel, Walk to Jerusalem, and Duck for the Oyster, Reach for the Clam. Happily exhausted, the couples finished up the evening's entertainment with a series of parlor games aimed, as was the rest of the program, at getting the participants acquainted.

The party, featuring the informal dress of blue jeans and hubby's discarded (?) shirt, was originated and planned by Mrs. Marjorie Vetter, secretary to Dean Sherwood Mercer, and Mrs. Marcia

HOLD YOUR BREATH

UNDEFEATED SEASON?

Tension is running high. People are asking, can we do it? Can we go through the season undefeated? It would be the first time in the history of the school. Fingers are crossed. It's a dangerous way of thinking. The season is not yet over, and we're just as liable to be knocked off by an underdog Gettysburg or Moravian as we are by Delaware. Big teams usually fall in an upset. Look at Penn last Saturday.

HOW ABOUT DELAWARE?

The University of Delaware claims to have run up a winning streak of 27 games since 1940. The records show them with a wartime team last season which tied one and lost one, but apparently that does not count. Muhlenberg had a wartime team last season, too, whose record was even less enviable. But that's OK; we don't mind. We hope Delaware wins every game on their schedule until the afternoon of November 23rd. You know the old saying about The Bigger They Come, The Harder They Fall . . . That goes for football records as well.

LEHIGH WEEKEND?

What Attorney Snyder told the Senior Class last Thursday night, proved to be the truth on Saturday afternoon, that a Muhlenberg team has to be twice as good as Lehigh to beat them. The team did it, and did it decisively. And our student body during the entire week did nothing for which Muhlenberg should feel ashamed.

CAMPUS JOURNALISTS?

The WEEKLY is planning on enlarging its size to six columns within the next two weeks. There will be a few staff positions open to reporters and advertising legmen. Any fellows interested who have the ability and interest should contact one of the editors. The staff is small at present, and there is a good chance for advancement for fellows who are going to be at Muhlenberg for coming semesters.

... The Awful Truth ...

By Mike Rogers

Whew, wotta relief, all the Gendarmes are gone from the premises, all the golf clubs, baseball bats and fire hoses are back in the moth balls and Haps and his band of Defenders are getting the regular amount of "Shut-eye" now. Lehigh lost a football game last Saturday but they kept us awake thinking about the pre-game ceremonies . . . Speaking of ceremonies, the Pep rally held at school here prior to the Lehigh game was a rather sorry affair. It's too bad that more of you BIG TIME OPERATORS, can't spare ten or fifteen minutes to make with the good wishes for the football team. I'm sure there are plenty of legitimate excuses for many of the 'Bergmen, but there are a lot of you who just can't miss those Allentown Hi jokes they put on Friday nights, and can't tear yourselves away from the radio or movies. For all of you guys, I have an early Christmas present; a double sized placard to wear, and it shows a great BEEG "HEEL" rampant on a field of sour grapes . . .

We have the inside dope that the Gridiron Hop, on tap for the 16th will be a much better affair than the last dance held at the Armory. The Council will undoubtedly be on the ball and make right the few matters that were not so hot last time . . . "Dover Road" opens tomorrow and should be a real good show. Mr. Erskine and crew have put some fine jobs before the 'Berg play goes recently, and this should be one of the best . . . Good play, swell cast and ought to make for a nice evening . . .

What's this we hear about Miss Barbara Schantz??? Someone said that the young lady, now working in the book store, isn't happy with her new surroundings. Gee that's a shame, of course we try to please all the people all of the time, and it's quite a task. But there really isn't a lot to rave about around here anyway, Barbara; just a lot of guys making with the pencils and books, and so we do hope that the lady will bear with us, maybe something to go into ecstasies over will turn up soon . . .

Big "Jarge" Bibighaus is supposedly on the nuptial bandwagon, (that means getting married, George), and we hear that Reimer is worried sick about having to make with the wedding gift. Try and stall him off, Carl, at least until after Christmas and then give him something you get from Santa which is of little value. Sure it's a dirty trick, but look at the dough some people save . . .

That "peachy" hayride that took place last Saturday evening found brother Paul Markavage with a very "swell" date. I know where you got her Pablo, and methinks it would be a good idea to put her back; for keeps . . . The Baldwin "fambly" was aboard the hayburner special also, and the music of Kentucky was much in evidence; no one knows why those horses ran away, "Tex", maybe they were scared of something, huh????

Gettysburg is just a few miles the other side of Harrisburg, whatcha say we take a drive down there Saturday and see the Mules in action??? Give yourselves a break and we'll see you there.

A Word to the Wise Dept. . . . That Mask and Dagger opus tonite and tomorrow is free to all students PLUS a date. So grab the frau, bring the little woman, and let her also enjoy it as the cast makes with the dramatics . . .

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

At various times the Placement Office, which is operated in conjunction with the Alumni Office, receives calls from householders in Allentown and vicinity for boys to do part time work. These jobs usually consist of mowing grass, moving porch furniture, taking off screens, washing cars, and other household chores. The calls are often for Friday afternoons or Saturday mornings, although some persons are willing to have the work done during the free time of the boy. Rates vary, and usually the terms are reached between the worker and his employer, but often, an ambitious chap can pick up some do-re-mi during his spare hours.

This past week I had two calls for that kind of work. I posted two notices on the bulletin board, but had no takers. The one job was for this past weekend, the other is still open. I know that there will be other calls, not only this fall, but during the winter and especially, the spring months. If I had a list of boys who were willing to do this kind of work, and the hours when they would be available, I could bring together you who want some work and the people who want work done. I would suggest that, if you are interested in picking up some extra money, you stop in the office, leave your name, and the time you would be available during the entire week. Then, if a call comes, I'll post a notice for you on the bulletin board, and you can come in, get the details, and decide if you want the job. How about it?

OBITER DICTA

While trying to revive Muhlenberg's pre-war traditions, we should not overlook the annual Freshmen - Sophomore football game, one of the most ancient traditions on the campus.

The history of football does not go back so far at Muhlenberg as it does on the campus of some of Muhlenberg's close rivals, like Lehigh and Lafayette, who claim to maintain the oldest uninterrupted rivalry in the nation. Interest in the game grew slowly here, and it was not until 1890 that an effort was made to organize some sort of a team. In the fall of that year the hat was passed among the students to collect money for football equipment. A number of intramural games may have been played that season, but there is no known record of them.

A big blow was struck not long afterwards by the Board of Trustees of the college, which prohibited Muhlenberg from competing in intercollegiate football. Thus Muhlenberg's football was all but nipped in the bud. An enthusiastic student body kept it alive, however. Intramural football increased in popularity, and since there was an intense rivalry between classes in those days, particularly between the Freshmen and Sophomores, it was only natural that the Freshmen should challenge the second-year men.

The first game between the two classes is recorded in the November, 1896, issue of The Muhlenberg, the WEEKLY's venerated predecessor:

"An interesting little game of football took place on the college campus some time ago between the Sophomores and the Freshmen scrub. The Freshmen put up a pretty stiff game, however resulting 10 to 0 in favor of the Sophomores."

The game was played the next year, with the Sophs winning again, 14 to 10. And every year since then, even after the Board of Trustees had lifted the ban on intercollegiate ball, the Frosh and Sophs battled it out on the gridiron. The game aroused more interest and received more publicity for many years than the games the Varsity played on the intercollegiate level.

In recent times the Soph-Frosh game under the direction of Bill Ritter has been the highlight of a well-organized intramural sports season, of which the Soph-Frosh tug-of-war over Cedar Creek and the Pre-Medical, Pre-Theological football game have been a part. The fall of 1943 found the Navy on the campus, however, with all class distinctions erased. There were only about 150 civilians enrolled in college, most of whom were Freshmen.

But they put together a ball team nevertheless, and challenged, not only the Sophomores, but all the upperclassmen. The contest was dubbed The Pansy Bowl Game and took place on Muhlenberg field on a chilly November afternoon under so-called "Touch" rules. It was probably the roughest game of Touch ever played on the campus.

The Frosh, sparked by Dick Callahan, Henry Schmidt, and Al Berger, managed to hold the more experienced Upperclassmen to one touchdown. Referee Bill Ritter's final whistle found the Upperclassmen on top, 6 to 0.

The Pansy Bowl Game was revived again in 1944 and 1945, but thus far this year there has been no effort to organize any sort of a class team. This is the 50th anniversary of that first Freshman-Sophomore game in 1896, an appropriate time for staging the contest once again.

The Freshmen rarely win the Pansy Bowl Game, and it is doubtful if they could throw together an aggregation with enough speed and ability this year to beat a team of upperclassmen, this in spite of the immense size of the Freshmen class.

MULE KICKS

Sirs,

Joy is unbounded on the third floor of B Hall! It is almost time for the weekly cleaning of our washroom. The nauseous coating of soap, toothpaste, shaving cream and other inscrutable unctions will be scrubbed away, and the porcelain sinks will be white again.

The janitor is so busy that he can only clean each washroom once each week. Does it not seem strange to the editors of the WEEKLY that the College has so many men to beautify the campus, but so few to clean the Dorms.

If this condition can be brought to the attention of the proper authorities, a better balance between beauty and cleanliness might be effected. Your help will be appreciated.

Sincerely,

ROBERT P. WELLS

While the Weekly rejoices with the long-suffering gentlemen of third floor, B Hall, we also agree that the matter is indeed strange. If this appeal fails to attract the attention of the proper authorities, East Hall students should ask their council representatives to press the matter.—Editor.

Editor:

After the seats were removed from the lobby in the Administration Building, and placed in the ladies lounge, there remains no decent place for the boys who live in town to sit. There are a few alternatives: (1) To walk around until next class (sometimes 2 hours); (2) To sit on the grass and get dirty; (3) Or to stay in the canteen until you are pushed out by the ones who want to eat. As a remedy, why couldn't the school put up benches around the campus? This would not only aid day-students, but would add to the beauty of the now very bare-looking campus.

Soccer Team Drops Lafayette 6-2, As Fists Fly Frequently In Easton

Muhlenberg's league leading soccer team once more defeated a league opponent, when they took the measure of the Lafayette squad in Easton last Saturday by the score of 6 to 2.

Sparked by the offensive and defensive play of Feist, Hertzog, Roberts, Campbell, and Captain Gutshall, the Mules had to match not only soccer talents with the Leopards, but also keep equal in the "rough-house" department.

Several times during the game, fists began to fly and fights had to be broken up. Surprisingly, no members of either team were ejected from the game.

Should the soccer team hurdle their next two opponents, they will clinch the league championship. The next game pits the pupils of Coach "Chili" Altemose against the booters from Rutgers on the home field in what promises to be a fast moving game.

TALE OF TWO CITIES

O.K., fellahs, you can put away the paint brushes, bricks, shillalahs, and howitzers, the armistice was signed Saturday. It's time to reconvert back to the books again. We hope this treaty with the Bethlehem mob sticks, or next year might see radar-directed missiles flying over the campus—you can't trust those engineers.

Penn suffered a two-fold setback last week, dropping their first ball game of the season to a fighting Princeton team, and losing not one, but both sets of goal posts to the Tiger rooters. Some civic minded character rang in the police when the fracas for the lumber started, and two hundred bobbies, mounted and on foot, arrived on the scene too late to prevent the tearing down of the posts, but in time to incite a small war. Around the corner a multitude of holdups and murders might have been going on, but the blue coats were putting up a heroic stand to defend Franklin Field from the onslaught of the Princetonians.

The Penn campus also felt the presence of the Tigers, but left it to the female of the species to retaliate. After the statue of Ben Franklin was showered with orange paint, five amazons from the U. of P. took it upon themselves to avenge this smear on their escutcheon, but were foiled. It's a sad day in Filly when Penn has to resort to using women to fight their battles.

RECAPITULATION

Lehigh put the scare of God into the 'Berg rooters when they took Muhlenberg's kick, reversed the field and tied up the score. That was about as pretty and painful a play to watch as we've seen all season; every Lehigh man blocked on that play, and four were left to take care of Bell, the safety.

Muhlenberg stock took a sharp drop when Sisto Averno was carried off the field late in the game, but it's not as bad as it looked. Sisto wrenched his knee, and hopes to be in shape for G'Burg. He, Johnny Sweatlock, and Carm Sbordone were the workhorses of the line, and Sweatlock gets our vote for the smartest defensive game of the year.

AT ROCKNE HALL

Bud Barker took twenty men down to Rockne Hall Monday to begin workouts for the approaching cage season. The squad looks like one of the best ever to show here in Allentown, and that's saying plenty. On hand from last year will be the two Donovans, Eddie and Harry, and Red Baldwin.

DEPT. OF BETTER ADJECTIVES

This week the applause goes to Chili Altemose and his soccermen. In his first year 'Berg's soccer coach, Chili has turned out a team that doesn't have to take a back seat to any.

LEHIGH SNOWED
40-7 FOR No. SIX

The fancy stepping, high flying, thundering herd of Muhlenberg Mules kept their victory skin intact at Taylor Stadium last Saturday by soundly trouncing Lehigh University by the cataclysmic score of 40-7.

'Berg got away to a fast 7-0 lead by virtue of a pass interception by Kenny Moyer and some hard running by Jack Crider and Ed Sikorski. Sikorski carried across and Barker kicked the extra point. The margin lasted about thirty seconds as Lehigh tied things up on an eighty-five yard runback of the kickoff and an extra point. 'Berg picked up six points late in the quarter, on Crider's TD to break the deadlock. As the first half ended Muhlenberg looked strong but handkerchiefs carelessly dropped on the turf were interpreted as fifteen yard penalties on Muhlenberg, hence the small half-time margin.

At the outset of the second half the Mules' power became evident despite several more penalties. Bibighaus took a Bell pass in the end zone to make the score 19-7. In the fourth stanza Muhlenberg added three more TD's and three extra points by Barker to sew up the game, despite the continued efforts of the officials. Bell's pass to Roveda, Crider's pass to Mackin, a run by Mackin accounted for the tallies. Mackin's second touchdown came after the clock had run out, but the play was allowed due to a penalty.

Mules Seek To Add G'Burg
To String On Saturday Away

Muhlenberg's unbeaten gridiron gentlemen travel to Gettysburg this week where they will meet a stubborn but green Bullet football team. Gettysburg has won two of its games this season having beaten Lehigh 19-14 and Lafayette 27-14.

They also have lost to Delaware 27-6, Bucknell 19-0 and Western Maryland 18-6. However, it would not be right to think too lightly of Gettysburg especially in this season of football upsets. Remember what happened to Penn.

The Bullets use a single-wing formation with a man in motion to either side. They concentrate both on passing and power running plays. Cervino, their fullback is their best offensive threat. Kreider passes and he usually throws them to his left end Cauffman. When Kreider isn't in there, Constable does the passing.

Krupa, their right end is a standout on defense. He crashes hard, rushes passers and is a good blocker. Another good backup is their left halfback, Constable. He comes up cautiously from his defensive position and is a hard man to get in back of on passes.

The Mules were banged up quite a bit in the Lehigh game. Averno has knee injury and may not be able to play until the Delaware game. Bogdziewicz has improved a little but still is a doubtful starter. Bell also was hurt quite a bit and may be sidelined. The only cheerful note as far as injuries are concerned is that Dean may be available for service. Hayden has a bad ankle but will play. Right now Coach Schwartzwalder must see to it that the team has no mental let-down for this game. Gettysburg has a hard charging team with good reserves. No team, not even Delaware has been able to rout them. Certainly, Gettysburg would like to beat Muhlenberg and knock us from the unbeaten ranks and they will be mentally

This looks like a bad week for anybody who tries to pick the "winnah," but just as sure as Pennsylvania lost her goal posts, and the Engineers kept their's, here is the final results of Saturday's football games on Thursday afternoon.

Overshadowing lesser games throughout the nation will be the twenty-seventh meeting of mighty Muhlenberg College and Gettysburg. Tain't easy—but Muhlenberg 27-13.

This one is easy, Notre Dame 21, Army 19. Fate is going to cheat Muhlenberg out of a chance to meet an undefeated Delaware, because Bucknell looks like Delaware's master by at least two TD's. In other games throughout the east—F. and M. over Albright, Yale over Brown, Colgate over Holy Cross, Pennsylvania over Columbia, Cornell over Syracuse, Lehigh over N.Y.U., Penn State over Temple, Rutgers over Lafayette, and, check this one, Virginia over Princeton.

In the Big Ten, Indiana over Northwestern, Wisconsin over Iowa, Purdue over Minnesota, and Ohio State over Pittsburgh.

In the South, Rice over Arkansas, Texas over Baylor, Tulane over Clemson, Duke over Wake Forest, and Georgia over Florida.

Friday afternoon will find Muhlenberg's Jay-vee Football team playing its last game against Gettysburg at Muhlenberg. So far this season the team has beaten Lehigh and lost to Delaware.

Gettysburg runs from the single wing and for a Jayvee team has a good, tricky offense. Coach Ernie Fellows hopes to have his team at full strength for this game. Ken Fellows, center, who was hurt at the beginning of the season will probably play. Cappriotti will again be the main offensive threat, and will be helped a great deal by Stoll who is a much improved ball player.

Dr. Tyson Reviews Holidays

which has supported it so genuinely.

In the second place, I am afraid that the so-called "tradition" is not a tradition at all. It may be based erroneously on a temporary weakness on my part which I hope was excusable. The year I came to Muhlenberg, inauguration ceremonies were held on a Saturday and the football team defeated St. Lawrence College that afternoon. It seemed to me entirely fitting that after that victory I ought to declare a holiday on the succeeding Monday. There was no criticism of this action, and I never regretted doing it. But since this was the first football victory in my administration, it seems that succeeding student bodies have the erroneous idea that a tradition was established by that action! The impression was strengthened perhaps in the same season, after a totally unexpected victory over Gettysburg College, a second holiday was granted. I have never been able to recover from the comments of that action!

Circumstances sometimes warrant the granting of privileges to the student body. I assure you I shall be most happy to do anything within my power to recognize student achievement of any sort in a fitting way. I think this student body and those which will succeed it can not and must not fail to realize that the College's academic program, particularly in the next few years, is a rather important affair. Muhlenberg College is not a high school or a preparatory school in which the degree of importance of academic affairs never quite equals the seriousness with which it is regarded in an institution of higher learning. A heavy majority of members of our student body will appreciate why, much as the Faculty and Staff would also like holidays for achievement of one sort or another, it is not possible to grant them. I believe the same thing holds for the student's schedule.

If, therefore, we revive the good old tradition of common sense in our post-war campus life, organizing for ourselves at the same time as much fun as we can within reason, I do not believe we will have any room for criticism of the traditional past, or of the involved, but very satisfactory, present.

Sincerely yours,

Committee Plans Bridge Tourney

The Student Council has named Sam Krouse the chairman of a three-man committee to organize a campus bridge tournament, the winners of which will represent Muhlenberg in the National Inter-college Bridge Tournament this winter. Gordon Daggy and Dave Tyson fill the other two positions on the committee.

Playoffs in the national tournament will be conducted by mail, and sixteen teams will be chosen representing colleges in every section of the country. They will meet face-to-face in Chicago on April 18 and 19 for the finals. A championship cup is awarded to the winning team.

All men interested in competing for the Muhlenberg team should watch the bulletin board and the WEEKLY for further plans or contact members of the committee for further information.

Moravian Game, Dance Highlight Weekend

In the offing is another weekend of fun and frolic for all Muhlenberg men, their wives and dates. The final home game of the year for Schwartzwalder and Company on Saturday afternoon will highlight the festivities, and will find Muhlenberg meeting Moravian in the seventh revival of a football rivalry which dates back to 1900. Saturday evening the post-game crowd will once again be dancing in the Armory at the Gridiron Hop to the music of Ken Keeley and his orchestra.

Larry Rosati, the Moravian coach, is a familiar figure to those who have followed Muhlenberg football for the past ten years. It was he who, as the Moravian quarterback, threw the touchdown pass that beat Muhlenberg, 9 to 6, back in 1939.

Last season Larry took on the job of coaching the Muhlenberg team of civilians and V-5 Trainees, who were eager to play football, in spite of the fact that the Athletic Committee was willing to cancel the entire schedule. The team won nary a game of the five it played, but it bridged the gap over the wartime football low until Floyd Schwartzwalder could take over the throttle of the Muhlenberg gridiron machine.

Rosati went back to Moravian this season and put together a Greyhound team which got off to a slow start but has lately been steamrolling along, winning its last four games.

The Greyhounds close their season against the Mules, and they will be out for blood. To those who think the game will be a pushover for the highly favored Muhlenberg team, a word of caution is in order. Upsets generally come from just such underdog teams as Moravian, and it would be in keeping with the best of football traditions if they should tumble the Mules from the unbeaten ranks.

It should be remembered also that Muhlenberg was sure to win that 1939 Moravian game, and when Rosati made the sportswriters and experts eat their words, the overjoyed Moravian students, rewarded with No School Monday, began a wild snake dance on Muhlenberg Field and finished off the afternoon by tearing down the goal posts. The spectacle may be repeated this year unless the team anticipates a tough ball game.

Coaches Schwartzwalder and Lough and their wives will be on deck Saturday night after the game to chaperone the Gridiron Hop. The dance, according to statements from the Student Council, will be an improvement over the last affair at the Armory. Checking and seating facilities are getting special attention. Decorations are being handled by the council, and refreshments will be made available during the course of the evening.

Ken Keeley, a native Pennsylvanian, offers a wide arrangement of both swing and sweet. He has, in short, a very danceable orchestra.

The fun begins at 9 o'clock and runs on until midnight. There's no extra admission charge for students and their dates who can flash an activities card at the door.

Dean Sherwood Mercer announces that Thanksgiving vacation will commence for all Muhlenberg students after their last class on Wednesday, November 27, and will end at 8:00 a.m. Monday, December 2.

The last meal served in the Commons will be supper the night of November 27, and the first meal after the Thanksgiving recess will be breakfast on the morning of December 2.

All students are reminded of a Faculty ruling which states that all cuts taken the day before and the day after any vacation count double.

Vetters "Loot" Radio Program

Bob and Marjorie Vetter always seem to be crashing the headlines. If they aren't running a Halloween party for the married students, they're hitting the jack-pot on some New York radio quiz show.

Last Saturday morning it was Give and Take, aired over CBS coast-to-coast, and what Bob and Marjorie did not bring home after the broadcast just ain't in the Sears and Roeback catalog.

Prizes included a vacuum cleaner, an electric oven, a $250 diamond ring, gardenias, sun glasses, shoes, a wrist watch, an electric tool kit, a bowling ball and bag, 2 living room chairs, a year's subscription to Coronet, and 25 silver dollars. The "take" came out to an estimated $700 worth, not a bad day's work.

Bob Vetter has been grinding away at a pre-Dental course since last July, and Marjorie, his wife, is secretary to Dean Mercer.

Junior Class To Meet, Elect Officers, Editors

The Student Council has announced that Wednesday, November 20th, at 4:30 p.m. in the Science Hall auditorium, the Junior Class will meet to nominate candidates for class officers. At the same meeting applicants for the positions of Editor-in-Chief, and Business Manager of the 1947 Clarla, Muhlenberg College year book, will be introduced to the class.

Following the lead of the Senior Class which has met and elected its officers for the remainder of this semester, the Juniors, or class of 1948 will begin their program of activities for this school year.

Applications of those Juniors who would like to try for the job of Clarla editor, must be in to the Student Council on or before 7 p.m., Monday, November 18th. Applications of those men seeking the position of Business Manager of the Muhlenberg yearbook must also be in to the Council at that time.

Since its inception in 1893, the Clarla has been one of the outstanding features of the school year, and the two elected positions are of great esteem. The class of 1947 has reactivated the Clarla,

Reporter Speaker At Next Assembly On Wednesday

The second assembly program of the year, set for November 20 at 8:30 p.m. in the science auditorium will feature Kurt Singer, a former European newspaperman. He will speak on the "Spies and Traitors of World War II".

For many years Mr. Singer was closely associated with the various underground movements that existed in the European nations. Taking his listeners from Honolulu to Berlin, from Spitzbergen to Madison Avenue, from Delhi, to Scapa Flow, Mr. Singer will tell of the amazing spy web that encircled the world. His talk reveals the story of Admiral Walter Wilhelm Canaris, the head of the Nazi spy system, who was almost unknown to the German people yet who had more power than did Goebbels.

Mr. Singer is well qualified to speak on the espionage systems that have been in play. He was born in Vienna and educated at the University of Zurich. He has lived in eight different countries. As the publisher of one of the earliest underground newspapers in Germany the Nazis were eager to capture him and convict him of high treason. He managed to get to Sweden and for a short time he was held by the Swedish authorities when Goering demanded that Singer's biography of the Luftwaffe chief be confiscated.

He founded the Ossietzky Committee which fought for and secured the release of Ossietzky from a concentration camp. He also wrote the biography of Mr.

Joe Podany Calls "M" Club Meeting

President Joe Podany of the Muhlenberg Varsity "M" Club has called a meeting of all members for tomorrow at 11 A.M. in the Auditorium of the Science Building.

This meeting will be to discuss the business of the "M" Club show which was held last summer and make tentative plans for the new show. Also on the agenda will be the election of officers for the coming school year.

Any man winning his Varsity "M" for athletic competition is automatically a member of the club and all members are urged to attend. The meeting will be short and of extreme importance.

after its war time suspension. The retiring staff is headed by Jack Reumann, Editor-in-Chief, and James Gross, Business Manager.

Organization of the various classes on the campus has been delayed considerably due to the existing status of many men which prohibited their placement into one of the groups. However, the Student Council has endeavored to reactivate these organizations and will move to set up the Sophomore and Freshman classes at an early date.

The nominations for President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the class of 1948 will be opened at the initial meeting, and the elections will take place, probably on the following Monday, November 25th. At that time, the class will also vote for the heads of the staff of the Clarla.

English Dept. Revives 'Arcade'

The Arcade, Muhlenberg's long-defunct literary magazine, is to be revived sometime this winter, it was announced this week. Mr. Everitt of the English department and Mr. Rickey of the Art department are the faculty advisers, of the semi-annual publication. Arthur Damask, James Reppert, John Gaskill, and Lewis Hawk have been named to the editorial board.

The faculty advisers and the editors are soliciting a wide range of contributions from the student body. These include short stories, drama, anecdotes, essays, poetry, drawings, cartoons, and photographs. Practically anything of artistic or literary value and originality will be acceptable.

The Arcade was founded in 1940 and was boosted as something new and different on the Muhlenberg campus. In spite of its big send-off, The Arcade expired after only two issues, due to the lack of interest among the student body.

More Exams For Seniors

All Muhlenberg men finishing their college work in January will be required to take the Graduate Record Examination, Dean Sherwood Mercer announces. The exam, a must for most candidates for graduate schools in the country, will take two days to complete, and will be given at Muhlenberg on December 10th and 11th. It will be under the direction of Dr. Carl Boyer.

Those taking the first test in December are to attend a meeting on December 4th at 4:00 p.m. in Room 110, Administration Building. Students taking the test on December 10th and 11th, will be excused from all morning classes on those days. The test will last from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. both days.

Those who expect to complete their work in June 1947 have the option of taking the exam in December or in April.

The examination does nothing more than determine a score which measures a student's standing with respect to his knowledge of the subjects tested. These subjects include Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Social Studies, Literature, Fine Arts, and Verbal Factor. It must be emphasized, however, that cramming for the exam is a waste of time.

Class Of 1947 Ballots For Carl Reimer

Carl Reimer will head the Senior Class for this semester. Results of the class election, held last Thursday, were announced that evening. Other officers are Bob Hale, vice-president; Maurice Horn, secretary; and Walter Menzel, treasurer.

Reimer is vice-president of the Student Council and is a football star, playing guard on the current Mule aggregation. He hails from Northampton, Pa.

The vice-president, Bob Hale, is a native of Lansdowne and like Reimer is a war veteran. Hale is a West Hall proctor and is active on the WEEKLY staff.

Maurice Horn, the class treasurer, resides in Pen Argyl. He is secretary of the Muhlenberg chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary history fraternity. The fourth officer, who will also serve until February, is Walter Menzel, the treasurer. He comes from Livingston, N. J., and is treasurer of the local chapter of A.T.O.

Other classes will be organized as soon as possible under the direction of the Student Council. Before this can take place the administration must complete its class break-down. This, it was revealed to a WEEKLY reporter, will be completed in a few weeks.

New Rotation Schedule Set Up For Assemblies

Muhlenberg's assembly programs will be divided into two series this year, a Red Series and a Green Series. This is being done in order to accommodate the large student body, and their many friends who may wish to attend these programs.

All students whose activity cards are numbered from 1 through 600 are entitled to attend the Red Series, while students whose cards are numbered from 601 upwards are entitled to admittance to the Green Series. Admittance to these programs may be obtained by merely presenting a card of the proper series at the door of the auditorium.

Dean of Students Perry F. Kendig announced this week that activity cards may be loaned to other students or to friends who may wish to attend a particular assembly program. Thus, any student,

Circulation Reaches 1500

On the road back to a full scale, regular sized issue of the Muhlenberg Weekly, the present staff and editors have taken the initial step with the enlargement noted herein.

Since its curtailment during the war, the Weekly has been operating on a more or less temporary basis and with a reduced page size. The current and subsequent issues of the paper will consist of six columns rather than five and will have approximately fifty percent more copy.

Many changes are under advisement now and will be instituted at the proper time and with respect for present conditions which make the availability of paper a difficult matter.

A complete staff has been chosen and is now functioning. There are several openings on the Weekly staff and calls have been issued for men interested to contact the editors. The editorial staff is composed of the following men: Jack Reumann, Mike Rogers, Dave Tyson, Herb Needleman, Gordon Daggy, Bob Bosch, John Fitzgerald, Bob Hale, Frank Lambert, Ted Getz, Charley Krauss, Hank Rossner, Charley Morgan and Bob Hoyer.

Assisting Bill Glase in his duties as Business Manager of the Weekly are, Bob Fratscher, Allen Kostenbader, and George Moore.

Faculty advisers for the paper are Dr. Anthony S. Corbiere and Mr. Andrew H. Erskine. A new "post-war" constitution for the student publication is being drawn up and when ready will be submitted to the advisers and Student Council for approval.

Organizations To Register

Dean of Students Perry F. Kendig is again requesting all fraternities, campus organizations, and honorary societies to provide him with the names of their officers. Dean Kendig stated this week that he is most grateful to those fraternities and organizations which have already contacted him, but that he would like to hear from those clubs and societies who have yet to turn in the names of their officers. Dean Kendig is particularly interested in assisting many of Muhlenberg's organizations to recommence their activities previously interrupted by the war.

wife or friend may be admitted if he or she presents a card of the proper series, even though it may belong to another student.

All programs will be held in the evening at 8:30 P. M. in the Science Auditorium.

The programs scheduled for the Red Series (activity cards numbered 1-600 are:

Tuesday, November 19, 1946—Dr. Polgar.

Thursday, December 5, 1946—Student Play.

Thursday, January 9, 1947—"School for Opera".

Presentations included in the Green Series (activity cards numbered from 601 up) are:

Wednesday, November 20, 1946—Kurt Singer.

Friday, December 6, 1946—Student Play.

Thursday, January 16, 1947—Fritz Krueger.

Considering Nuremberg

by Russell Everett

Under the present stress and emotion of the world affairs, the cursory appraisal of the Nuremberg trials has prevented the penetration of the true scope of this procedure; however, the culmination of the inquiry on October 16, 1946, brought forth numerous vituperative and caustic comments which, to no small degree, astounded a majority of people and caused them to wonder just what the true purpose of the trial was and what its effects would be in the future.

In reference to these comments, the statement made by Senator Taft in which he termed the proceedings as, "An act of vengeance and one of the greatest mass lynchings of our time," proved to be one of the most perverse and vitriolic accusations; but it seemed to reflect the attitude of some people not only in this country but also abroad. Other statements were made that the adjudication of the Military Tribunal gave the right of the victors to convict and punish the vanquished no matter for what reason the aggressive act was committed.

Justice Jackson says:

Upon analysis of these remarks, one can readily see that the thinking on this matter has been cluttered up with a periphery of pre-conceived ideas and notions, none of which seem applicable to a lucid interpretation of the motives and reasons behind this trial. It seems that the almost ten months' duration caused many to fall into a rather apathetic and lethargic state of mind; Justice Jackson's statement that the charter signed in London by four powers and adhered to by 19 nations constituted the foundation and definition for international law seemed to be completely obliterated.

After World War I, some attempt was made by the German government to try German officers along with those soldiers implicated in the violation of the code of war; however, all resulted in a mere farce. Failing to achieve any results as far as thwarting Germany again from attempting to wage war, several pacts and covenants such as the Geneva Protocol, the Draft Treaty for Mutual Assistance and the like, were drawn up; but all failed to give a true definition of an act of aggression. In 1928, the famous Kellogg-Briand Pact was concluded, in which war was abrogated and outlawed and to which Germany was a signatory. This, nevertheless, (despite its prestige) proved to be a worthless piece of paper, for it never stated that the initiation of a war was a criminal act.

In spite of the failure of these pacts to achieve their purpose, the War Crimes Trial based its authority and legality upon them. It was for this reason that a dispute was raised whether they (the four powers) could actually use these documents as a manifestation of the "precedent," the latter also the cause of great discussion and consideration.

Guilt Established

One cannot deny the fact that the twenty-one convicted and sentenced were not guilty in some part of these three undisputable counts: (1) the willful violation of the codes of war; (2) the violation of peace treaties and efforts to repudiate peace; and (3) crimes against humanity. However, the aggressive warfare aroused considerable controversy among students of international law and, in no small measure, was proved responsible for the rather promiscuous statements mentioned at the beginning of this article.

Justification

For many years, men have been endeavoring to find some solution to the question of outlawing war. In the 16th century, a scholar and philosopher by the name of Hugo Grotius, attempted to find a solution to this problem by stating that states like men are bound by certain natural rights and this balance or bond of natural rights should be respected. He contended that treaties likewise should be respected to the utmost, to counterbalance this theory, the ideas and concepts of the Italian, Machiavelli, permeated the states at the time just as they do now. It was this political theorist who stated that the nation is supreme and any acts committed for its gain or protection were merely a means to an end, with a legitimate justification for the means to the end. If we allow this kind of thinking to prevail, certainly there will never be any progress made along the road to an accepted principal of international law.

In considering the relation of this motive to the Nuremberg Trials, the proof is overwhelming that this was an endeavor by man to manifest the cumulative force incurred by the weight of the precept of international law, so long subordinated by the Machiavellian theory and many others like it, as to almost nullify its effect completely. For this reason, I believe that rather than the trial being "a precedent of profound significance," as Walter Lippman termed it, the whole procedure was an inevitable climax and one which could not possibly have been avoided.

Theories Involved

Besides this point, I think that there is one more significant fact to take into consideration. While trial itself centered around twenty-one dependents and the volumes of irrefutable proof verifying their association or direct connection with the atrocities and barbarous acts enumerated; nevertheless, both the defense and the evidence indicate the consequences of the theory expressed by Salvador de Madriaga in his book, Theory and Practice in International Relations, that "when nations have a strong vitality, certain gifted individuals within them, who act as the instruments whereby this national tendency is manifested, carry physically or mentally or financially, or economically outside the frontiers of the nation the power, the personality, and the character of the nation in question".

In conclusion it may be stated that while these trials may have been characterized in such bold terms as "lynchings", "blood purges", and the like, there is one undeniable deduction, and that is that man has realized that a beginning must be made, and that although not an accepted custom; yet the custom as stated before is one of inevitability.

OBITER Dicta

by Dave Tyson

The few pictures handed down to us of Muhlenberg's football teams of the 1890's, characterized by turtle-neck sweaters, stocking caps, and mustaches, are not accompanied by the records of these early teams. Gray-haired alumni who remember those good old days say that ringers were picked up in town and sent out to represent Muhlenberg in games played in the neighborhood.

The earliest known record of a game played against an outside team appears in The Muhlenberg of October 31, 1891. 14th and Hamilton Streets was the scene of the game against "Allentown", apparently a team representing the city. The write-up says the age and maturity of the Allentown team was the reason for their beating the young Mules by a score of 16 to 0.

The Board of Trustees ban on off-campus football was lifted in 1900, and that season saw Muhlenberg launched into the swim of intercollegiate athletics. It is interesting to note that one of the earliest games of honest-to-John legal intercollegiate ball was played against Moravian here in Allentown, and ended in a 0-0 tie. Later on that fall the Mules went over to Bethlehem to close the season against Moravian, and that game was written up on November 12, 1900, by a reporter for the Allentown Chronicle and News as follows:

Muhlenberg played the return game with the Moravians on Lehigh Field, South Bethlehem, on Saturday and was defeated by a score of 30 to 0. The first game was played in this city and neither side scored so that a close game was expected and practice was accordingly. But Muhlenberg has had exceptionally hard luck in their first year in intercollegiate athletics. The team has been unfortunate in losing half its best players and they entered Saturday's game with an entire new back field and the line considerably shaken up. This accounted somewhat for the defeat. Besides the absence of coach Schmidt, who is at present injured, has been keenly felt. In addition to all this the team suffered severely on Saturday when Ink, the left guard, had his collarbone broken in the early part of the game. Specht, the right half-back, was also dazed for more than an hour and could not be used. These misfortunes easily explained the defeat.

This game closed Muhlenberg's first season, with the exception of the Sophomore - Freshman game next Wednesday. Notwithstanding her great misfortune, she has done good work. Out of five-games played she lost three. An endeavor will be made to organize a strong team next year and a new captain will be elected shortly.

The Moravians made all their gains on Saturday by their terrific line plunging and the twisting manoeuvres of Grobo were the features of the game.

MULE KICKS

Co-Editors of the Weekly
 Muhlenberg College
 Allentown, Penna.

Gentlemen:

With all the improvements now being effected here on the campus, I think it would be an excellent idea to have the WEEKLY Office remodeled.

When I enjoyed the position of Editor, which you now jointly share, one of my main concerns was to beautify the WEEKLY Office. At that time, however, because of shortage of materials and the like, little if any improvement could be considered. But now with things easing up, I should think that work might get under way.

Last semester I talked with the President about this matter, and he assured me it had his solid support. Might I suggest, therefore, that you give the Student Council the word, and get some funds allocated your way.

Sincerely,

JOHN E. T. ROGERS

Dear "Mule Kicks",

My problem is identical to that of every student in the country only more so on this campus.

Briefly, why not have the various heads of departments schedule with the proper authorities a list of quizzes, tests, and examinations so the students can be informed weeks ahead and commence the necessary preparation?

The English Dept. in its outline of studies has posted their exams. I know that toward the end of November we're to receive another organic exam. But will my other professors schedule exams on that same day, or the day before, or the day after, thus making the student burn the midnight oil and go into his exams without the necessary physical preparation?

Other colleges publish this information after they receive it from the heads of departments. Why can't we at "Berg" be correctly informed with a list that isn't crowded into one week but rather a major exam arranged so it doesn't conflict with studying for another equally as important.

Respectfully submitted to the proper authorities,
 G.I.M Trying

SAME OLD STORY

They will do it every time, these Americans. They consistently deny themselves of their biggest and most important inheritance, the privilege of voting. Months preceding elections, the drugstore politicians will argue pro and con against certain legislation or against certain men in office, their gripes and their proposed reforms are many. What happens on election day? We find the boys still in the drugstore, only now, in lieu of political discussion, we find them making bets on the outcome of the election.

'Tis a fortunate thing for us that the above cited situation does not hold true for us all. Obviously someone is voting, but this is supposed to be a government of all of the people, not just a few.

I have referred to voting as a privilege, that is a misstatement; voting is a "duty", a duty to yourself as well as to others.

Many Americans are erroneously convinced that as long as they vote once every four years for our chief executive that they have done their "duty". The senators, representatives, mayors, aldermen and district attorneys belong to an army of forgotten people. And yet human lives are affected more directly by these people than any other. The streets you drive on, the water you drink, and in one well known city the subway system, are all just a small part of local control and legislation.

The attitude most prevalent is; "What can my one vote do?" In many cases, one vote has determined the result of the election, "One vote" multiplied by 65 million produces far reaching affects. The "one vote" attitude is a weak excuse for the lack of interest in government and country.

Cast a vote no matter how insignificant the election may seem. If you are not familiar with the candidates involved, make it a point to find out.

Remember Bilbo!

The Awful Truth

By Mike Rogers

We can't go any further without presenting the orchids this session to Messrs Jack Crider and John Sweatlock for that bang-up ball game at Gettysburg on Saturday last . . .

You no doubt have noted the enlarged issue of the WEEKLY, despite the protests of our friend who signed himself "Disgusted", a few weeks ago. We do hope that we will be able to make the paper better with every issue. This will be much easier if you men at 'Berg will bear a hand and come through with any news items you have and especially the dope about your particular organization or club. It's news for us and publicity for you, let's make a deal . . .

We spotted Ray Eskels at the ole' Circlon saloon with a buddy of his we'd better leave out of it; but at any rate, both the casanovas were making like Romeo with a very pretty, very nice, and rather "young" lady. You guys better watch it, those "young" gals have to be home early . . . BEEG man about the town is one Mr. Paul Karobainick. A highly esteemed guest at any social function, Mr. Karobainick had this to say when interviewed, "They gotsa lotsa coffee in Brazil . . ."

We checked "The Dover Road" and from here on in, Mr. Erskine and his Mask and Daggers should have no trouble packing the Little Theatre, about 90 miles off Times Square. The show was, well, one word covers it, GOOD . . .

Special note to all "M" Club members, try and make the meeting announced in the Weekly and on the bulletin boards. Of importance and interest to all, will be the business discussed . . .

Special note to insurance minded 'Bergmen with a plug for our pal and alumnus, Steve Sivcho. Just returned from a hot insurance course in Hartford and rarin' to go, Steve will be happy to lend a hand to any of the crew wanting the low-down on the insurance game.

'Nother call for guys interested in doing some work for the Weekly. We can use some good hands who are able to give a little time and effort. Stop up to the Weekly office, second floor of the Ad Building and let's have a pow-wow . . . No doubt you know that the paper is brought around to the various mail boxes and dorms on campus. The pile in front of the Weekly office is for those students who live off campus and don't get the paper delivered. We're getting a short count from the student body who are taking too many copies of the ole gazette. Give us a break boys and take just one and wait to get yours at your room if you live on campus; THANKS . . .

We dropped the ball a couple of weeks ago when our buddy Dave Tyson was entertaining the fairer sex, (and I do mean fairer) at a football game. Yep, it was the same lass who came to check the J.V. game a few more weeks ago, hmmm! Miss Lyon, do you like our climate or is it the wonderful football team that brings you to Allentown, hmmm????

No issue of the Weekly on 28 November cause that's Turkey Day and no one can read on that day anyway. We'll be back at full tilt right after the holiday . . . It's nearing time for the big Christmas Ball which usually takes place just before the Xmas vacation if I'm not mistaken. Here's one guy who would like to see a swell affair with a real campaign to crown one of the lovely ladies Miss Muhlenberg for 1947. She will have to go some to cop the crown from last year's Miss M'Berg who was the lovely Miss Ruth Hildman and future Mrs. Jim Doran. Now there is a lovely, lovely, aw cut it out will ya, we know what you mean. Anyway I'd like to drop the bug into the Council's ear for a real contest this year with maybe a fine selection board picked and photographs sent in or something like that to give the contest the right build up, whatcha say, how about some letters to the editor of the Weekly, giving us your ideas on the set-up and what should be done . . .

Look Mr. Jim Kessock, you can come around and visit us any time you want, but don't forget to bring a friend for your ole' pal once in a while. Very tiresome getting those papers and going home all the time, hear hear . . .

Last home game of the season for the Mules so let's make like we are in back of the boys and really turn out en masse, (that means everybody, I think), and give the gang a real boost . . .

What's the scoop on Phil Mitterling having a double at the Legion Home? Is that straight stuff Phil, or have our ears led us astray? ? ? Can't figure out why Ken Conrad, Keeper of the Klassy Kollege Kommissary, is totin' a "nose bag" around these days. Must be that he has become a member of the "horsey set"—er sompin . . .

Alumni
 Memo

John H. Wagner, Alumni Secretary

Forty-six years ago, the first year when any reliable records of Muhlenberg football teams can be found, the Mules of Muhlenberg met the Greyhounds of Moravian. That year two games were played, resulting in a scoreless tie and a 30-0 victory for the Bethlehem aggregation. The next year, 1901, found the teams again battling to a scoreless tie. Thirty-seven years later, in 1938, Muhlenberg was victorious by a score of 8-0. In 1939 the Greyhounds took the Mules over 9-6, while in 1942, the Mules evened the score 6-0. Thus looking at the six games over the period of years, we find two wins, two losses and two ties.

Dave Tyson dug up for me, the lineup of the team that lost 30-0 in 1900. I was interested in just what happened to the men, and did a little research. Four of them are dead, six are living, and four have dropped from sight. The left end, Howard Shimer, manufacturer, left guard, Lewis Ink, substitute left guard, Rev. Alvin E. Youse, and the quarterback, Irving Shalter, former headmaster of the Allentown Preparatory School, have passed on. The Rev. Charles Trexler, who has recently been separated from the Army as a Chaplain after nearly six years of service in World War II, played center. Right guard was Ira Walborn, now in the insurance business in Orwigsburg. Right Tackle, Clarence Bickle is the assistant comptroller of Customs in Philadelphia. Rev. George Rubrecht, who played the entire game at left half, is preaching in North Platte, Nebraska. Fred Reagle, full-back, recently retired as superintendent of schools in New Jersey. Warren Geiger, retired, from Norristown, went into the game as a substitute right halfback. (Incidentally, the record shows that only THREE subs were used during the game—tough babies, those boys.) Whereabouts unknown are left tackle Telford, right end Beck, right half Specht, and substitute left guard Neubert.

ACCENT
ON...

by Herb Needleman

If you're one of the 129,920,000 people who couldn't see putting their future in hock for the right to see the Army-Notre Dame feud, consider yourself lucky. There's something disappointing about two teams being hopped up for six weeks to the point of hysteria, and then trotting out on the field only to push the ball up and down the field without ever crossing the double stripe. It's like a kid's sinking his last two bits on a six-inch cannon cracker, lighting it, running like the whole school board was after him, and then turning around to see the thing fizzle out. Even Bill Stern, who is notorious for his ability to make a play-by-play broadcast of the Wednesday Afternoon Bridge Club semi-finals sound like a Marine landing on Iwo, had to turn the mike over to the Army and Irish bands so often that we thought we were listening to a John Philip Sousa Memorial program.

Plenty of people are arguing that the game was a masterpiece of defensive play. Agreed, but the big attraction of football lies not in hard tackling and defensive line shifts, but in slick working plays and clicking pass combinations. From this viewpoint the game was a dud.

A lot of credit must be given to Frank Leahy and his staff of scouts and coaches. Leahy worked out the most effective defense to stop Blanchard and Davis since the time the two started their business of Homicide Inc. His looping of the three backers up into the five man line to make it an eight bottled up Davis's end runs and Blanchard's line bucks, and it was left to Tucker to reel off the big yardage. We think that George Munger may pull the same stunt this weekend and redeem himself in no small way.

The pass defenses of both teams were a thing of beauty. It was as hard for Tucker or Lujack to connect as it was for a Lehigh man to walk on and off the campus two weeks ago without leaving his scalp behind.

An interesting item at the Penn-Columbia game was the ban of portable radios in the stadium. The athletic office at Baker Field must think that football fans are becoming spendthrifts to pay hard cash to get inside a stadium and listen to another ball game. There are people like that, though. Take a look at the back row of any movie house some evening, and see all the guys that are missing the main feature—or are they?

This Moravian game is going to be no taffy-pull. Larry Rosati has got himself a sweet club over there, and he'd like nothing better than to give us our lumps. The Greyhounds run from a shrewd double-wing, that features plenty of long passing and end sweeps. Let this Doherty boy get loose and you might as well try stopping a P-80 with a butterfly net.

Oh, that Gettysburg police force—Who was the cop that tried to jump Jack Crider after the game just because he pulled it out with an 83 yard run? What do they feed the gendarmes down there?

Both 'Berg and Delaware almost had their weekends spoiled for them this Saturday. It seems that those underdogs like to upset the natural order of things and cost decent fellows like us money. Damn inconsiderate of them, we think.

We have just learned that the A.P. has been looking Crider, Bibighaus, and Sikorski over for all-something consideration. That's another voice in the Muhlenberg roar for football recognition.

MULES FACE MORAVIAN; DOWN G'BURG FOR SEVENTH

Impressive Greyhounds Armed With Heavy Line And Fast Backs

Saturday afternoon local fans will get their last opportunity to see Muhlenberg's great gridiron machine in action, on the home field, when they tangle with the steadily improving Greyhounds of Moravian.

The Greyhounds have captured four contests this year; winning from Ursinus, Albright, Ithaca, and only last Friday, under the lights of their home field, they subued a surprisingly strong band of cadets from the Pennsylvania Military College. This is the same Moravian team that lost its opening game to Lebanon Valley, 26-6.

Moravian fields as rugged a forward wall as any the locals have faced. Their starting line averages 203 pounds, and ample replacements are available if needed. Moravian's backfield lives up to the name "Greyhound", for both first stringers and substitutes are light and exceeding fast. Neff, first string fullback, is a particularly fine player.

The Greyhounds use the "T" formation with a "man in motion" on better than fifty per cent of their plays. DeAngelis excels at the quarterback position. His ball handling is deceptive, and he is a fine runner, as well as an adequate passer. In all victories Moravian has found end runs particularly effective. Her halfbacks capitalizing on speed.

The team has shown its greatest improvement on defense. Their pass defense was unexcelled in the past several games, reaching a peak last week again P.M.C., when interceptions constantly pulled their grey-clad warriors out of danger. Their greatest defensive weakness has been noted at the ends where the opposition has constantly maneuvered them out of position for long sweeping gains.

'Berg, on the other hand, has one of her greatest gridiron elevens, and remains one of the few undefeated, untied teams in the nation. It would be a great upset if an underdog Greyhound could dethrone the mighty Mules, particularly in view of the coming classic clash with Delaware's undefeated Blue Hens. Stretch your memory for a moment and you will recall, shudderingly, what happened to Penn's dauntless Quakers. Last Saturday a rejuvenated Penn team crushed the Columbia Lions. Also last week, at Gettysburg, the Mules staged a sixty-minute encounter with the burley Bullets, victory coming only after the greatest scare of the campaign, and an 84 yard pay dirt dash by smiling Jack Crider.

This writer views the coming encounter with optimism, for we feel that a revamped 'Berg team will, like the Quakers, drive back to a crushing triumph over the gentlemen across the river.

The slightly lighter but charging experienced 'Berg line should have little trouble stopping the Greyhounds' "T" offensive, just as two weeks ago, they humiliated a heavier Engineer eleven. 'Berg's

Soccermen Tied In Tough Battle With Rutgers Saturday

The Mules and Rutgers soccer teams battled for a total of 118 minutes last Saturday on the West Hall field to a 1-1 tie.

Amelio scored the goal for the "Chili" Altomose coached squad in the fourth period. This goal knotted the score and the game was extended into two ten minute overtime periods. These two extra periods proved to be no breaking point in the contest. The two coaches then decided to play two five minute periods and neither team was able to score in this time so they decided to call it quits.

The weather hampered the boys all during the game as a strong wind swept the field all afternoon. When the boys were nearing the end of the game the cold got the best of them and shivering was noticeable.

Hank Moyer played a great game for the 'Berg squad at left half, and Feist made many great blocks at the goal. In the first overtime period Feist made a great save as he deflected the ball out of the goal with his fingertips.

This was the Mules' last appearance on the home field. This Saturday they journey to Hoboken, New Jersey, to meet Stevens Institute. A victory over Stevens, in all probability, will mean first place in the North Atlantic Intercollegiate Soccer League.

Berg Boosted By New York Paper

The New York Herald-Tribune last Friday finally accorded the Muhlenberg football machine some long overdue recognition. In an article planted right in the midst of the pre-writes of the Army-Notre Dame clash, an impressive accolade was paid Major Schwartzwalder.

The article appeared under the by-line of Bob Cooke, who it develops is an old Army chum of Bud Barker, the two having flown from the same field together in Italy.

"A year ago Muhlenberg devoted its autumn to informal football," Cooke said. "The team didn't win a game. This season the squad went formal with the arrival of Schwartzwalder. To date, no one has been able to soil its top hat, white tie and tails."

RESERVE OFFICER'S MEETING CALLED

Due to the school holiday declared a week ago last Monday the planned meeting of the Reserve Officers was cancelled.

Dr. Carl W. Boyer in an effort to get the officers on the campus organized, has called another meeting for all reserve officers, Army, Navy, Marine, Coast Guard—in the West Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on next Monday, November 18th.

Representatives of Reserve Officer Groups will be on hand to discuss training plans and a large turnout is urged by Dr. Boyer.

Jayvees Close With 13-6 Loss To G'burg

Ernie Fellows, J-V Football and Cross Country Coach.

Ernie Fellows' Little Mules were spilled for their second setback of the campaign Friday afternoon on the home field by a fast Gettysburg team.

Muhlenberg left the field at half time with a six point lead, only to have the Bullets rally in the final periods, and walk off with a 13-6 triumph.

The 'Berg line was strengthened by the return of charging John MacLaughlin, who battled gamely the entire contest. Swift, named Captain for the game, played the other guard position and shone brilliantly until a leg injury caused his retirement in the second half. Once again Stoll and Capriotti bore the brunt of the 'Berg offensive, Stoll scoring the lone tally in the first half.

The contest was staged under an overcast sky, with a light but penetrating wind prevailing.

The game with the Bullets brought to a close the 1946 season. In two previous contests, both of which were staged on the home field, 'Berg found victory only against Lehigh, losing their second contest to a deceptive Delaware team.

Excuses for the defeats sustained should not be offered, but in the light of costly injuries and infrequent scrimmages, the boys did a commendable job. The return of Ernie Fellows to the Muhlenberg campus is a welcome sight. He is well-liked by members of the squad and has demonstrated his ability to develop unseasoned ball players.

The Varsity has begun contact work again this week, and twenty-two members of the Jayvee squad have been called out to practice with the Varsity until the end of the season.

Mules Lack Punch In Sliding Past Aggressive Bullet Outfit, 13-17

It was Jack Crider all the way as Muhlenberg took the measure of Gettysburg's hard fighting team at Gettysburg, last Saturday. The 'Berg squad was in bad shape physically before the game started. Mike Bogdziewicz and Sisto Averno, the starting tackles were unable to bolster the line much at all, Averno not even dressing for the game and Bogdziewicz not being able to play more than a few minutes.

In the opening minutes it looked like another romp for the Allentown team, as Bill Bell whipped one to Crider in the end zone for a marker. Roaring right back, the Bullets punched one over and the half ended with the score 7-7.

A determined Mule squad tried all the tricks of the trade in the second half, but to no avail. It looked like a lost cause until Jack Crider took the 'skin and stumbled, leaped and fought his way for an 83-yard touchdown run. It was undoubtedly one of the best runs seen around these parts and it was only overshadowed by the defensive play of Crider.

Also worth noting was the defensive play of John Sweatlock. Playing 60 minutes of bruising football with injured knees at the outset, John did a fine job and rates commendation. The rest of the 'Berg team seemed to be stalled, plays were not clicking and the defense was ragged. After the first five minutes of play, when the first Mule score was made, it looked like an altogether different team which has ridden roughshod over most of its opponents.

It wouldn't be fair to detract from the Gettysburg team by making alibis for the showing of Muhlenberg. They were a heavy, well balanced team and they fought all the way.

As it was after the Lehigh game, the 'Berg team is not in good shape physically now. Mirth, Sweatlock, Moyer, Bogdziewicz, Averno, Sikorski, and others are not in top shape and will have to come around considerably if the high flying Mules are to be in form for the Moravian and Delaware games.

Courtmen Drill At Rockne Hall

As the basketball squad, under the mentorship of Bud Barker, rounds into its third week of practice, their prospects for a successful season look promising. Up to now the team has been hampered for lack of a permanent practice floor. They have been working out at the Allentown High Palestra, the Jewish Community Center, and will move to Rockne Hall tonight.

No definite decisions have been made as to a first string lineup, as Barker has been shifting the ball players around in an effort to find a clicking combination.

Hopin' & Dopin'

by John H. Fitzgerald

More of the nation's undefeated and untied team fell by the wayside last Saturday, and by the time next Sunday's papers roll off the press, several more are sure to join them.

Our own Cardinal and Grey almost got stung, but managed to keep their victory skein intact. It should be a bit easier with Moravian—maybe 20-7.

For the big upset of the year, look for Pennsylvania to take Army about 14-7. Other games in the East should find Harvard over Brown, Temple over Bucknell, Syracuse over Colgate, Columbia over Lafayette, Cornell over Dartmouth, Delaware (ugh!) over Washington, Gettysburg over Albright, Yale over Princeton, and Rutgers over Lehigh. Navy is due to win someday and Penn State looks like their victim.

In the South and Southwest it looks like Vanderbilt to upset Alabama, Tennessee to top Boston College, Arkansas to trip Southern Methodist, Tulane to trounce Georgia Tech, and Duke to win over South Carolina.

In the Big Nine, Ohio State should handle Illinois, and Iowa shouldn't have too much trouble with Minnesota. Michigan has found the range and will knock off Wisconsin.

After settling for a scoreless tie with Army, Notre Dame looks good to break out in a touchdown rash to swamp Northwestern.

Critics Hail "Dover Road"

The old bromide of the shortest review in the world (the play opened at 8:30 sharp and closed at 11, dull) might have been applied to the Mask and Dagger's production of A. A. Milne's The Dover Road last Thursday evening except for two good reasons: the play did not begin at 8:30—not until 8:48 in fact—and did not end dull, at least to the extent that the campus thespians could do something about it.

The Road makes few pretensions about leading straight into the land of make believe, for the story—which deals with the doings of a British, rich man's, self-made Mr. Anthony—lacks any semblance of probability. But in a way this shortcoming only served to offset its occasional fine flights of realism, epitomized by the line "life is too short for us to be gentlemen all the time."

The cast was well chosen, to a man. Harold Helfrich as Latimer was so completely at home on the stage that he seemed to convey to the audience the impression that he was having a better time of the evening than they were. His were most of the best lines, and he knew it, making use of them, and an amazingly Gilder-sleevean laugh, to the best possible effect. Gerald Rogers, too, played the role of the taciturn, ubiquitous Crichton, Domonic, to the hilt. Lewis Rossi huffed, puffed, and damned his way through all three acts with obvious relish, Eunice Feight was admirable as the vocal clinging vine, Eustasia, and Bob Bosch extracted manfully all the humor that was contained in the thankless role of Nicholas. Marcia Gallas, who played Anne, deserves special commendation for the good performance she turned in at one week's notice.

Plan Pep Rally For Del. Game

Notice is forthcoming that prior to the team's leaving for the tussle with Delaware, a giant Pep Rally is to be held on Friday, November 22, 1946.

Remembering the poor showing that students made at the last rally, John E. T. Rogers, who is in charge of the affair expressed the hope that every member of the student body be present a week from Friday.

Final arrangements are now being completed to make this, the last pep rally of the current football season, a really impressive event.

Rogers asks everyone to watch both the bulletin board and the WEEKLY for further details.

Assembly Show Cast Sought

Try-outs were held last night for two one-act plays which are to be presented as part of the third student assembly program on Thursday and Friday evenings, December 6 and 7.

According to Producer-Director John E. T. Rogers, the names of those chosen for parts will be forthcoming in the next issue of the WEEKLY. In the meantime Rogers revealed that one of the plays is farce, while the other is a psychological drama.

First on the program will be the drama entitled "Sybarites". Written by T. H. Mooney, the play portrays a man who is driven insane after murdering his wife. Fast moving and packed with plenty of action, the play should provide the audience with plenty of entertainment.

Following next will be a farce entitled "Wives Should Sleep At Home", by James Lewis. Herein is the story of a young married couple, who through a little misunderstanding are ready to call it quits. In the end, however, all works out well, but not until the audience has enjoyed many laughs. Incidentally both plays are to have their premier performance, each having just been written by two friends of the Directors.

Aside from the two one-actors, the program will also include a half hour of jive and jazz which should prove appealing to all.

"LUTHER" TOPIC AT AKA MEETING

The regular, bi-monthly meeting of Alpha Kappa Alpha was held last Thursday evening at the home of Dr. Stine. Dr. Stine introduced the speaker for the evening; Prof. Renninger. Prof. Renninger is one of the new members of our German Department. He spoke on "The Influence of Martin Luther and Luther's Philosophy". After the talk the members joined in a discussion of the subject.

Dr. Stine announced that he had been successful in obtaining Rev. Francis F. Renoll to speak at the next meeting. President Reimer announced that plans are being formed for a joint meeting with the Cedar Crest chapter, and that the next meeting will be Thursday November 21 at 8:15 and urged all members to be present.

Mighty Mules Roll Along

The statistics of the first seven games show why the Mules are really a top-notch team. Even with the squad hampered by injuries they managed to eke out a close game from a stubborn Gettysburg team.

The Mule backs were held to a 183 yards gain from scrimmage, the lowest total of the year. However, Crider managed to get loose on an 84-yard dash, which was his 11th TD of the current campaign.

In Sympathy

Sincerest sympathy is extended to Mr. Gurney Afflerbach and his family on their recent bereavement. Mr. Tilghman Moyer who recently passed away at the Sacred Heart Hospital was well known and had many friends here on the Muhlenberg Campus, and was the son-in-law of Mr. Afflerbach.

The lecture at the Muhlenberg College Science Building Auditorium will be based upon the same subject as this book.

Heavy Schedule Increases Choir Rehearsals

With three engagements already planned for December, the Chapel Choir has but a few remaining rehearsals before going to Northampton, December 8, for its first out-of-town program.

The other scheduled appearances are at Pottstown, December 15, and the traditional Christmas Carol Service with Cedar Crest, on December 19 in the Muhlenberg Chapel.

Dr. Harold K. Marks is rehearsing the choir three times a week now in order to prepare for the heavy load of performances anticipated after the holiday season. As soon as the choir gets on the road, it expects to be rushed to include all programs requested of it.

Members are reminded that the next few rehearsals are very important. Dr. Marks has asked that all members be present for them.

ART SHOW

Beginning Monday, November 11, the Art Studio on the third floor of the library has featured an exhibit of textile designs created by the well-known designer, Paul Witter. The display consists of both bright and colorful designs printed on silk and the original patterns portrayed on ordinary paintings.

The Art Department confidently expects that many of the students will be interested in viewing these brilliant and intriguing designs. Prof. George Rickey stated this week that he is anxious to show these designs to the student body in order to demonstrate that people will wear designs on their clothes which they ordinarily wouldn't consider good art when seen on oil paintings. This fact will be quite evident to those students who visit the exhibit next week. The designs plainly show that many paintings which are unattractive to the eye when on canvas are very intriguing when printed on silk.

Paul Witter's designs have appeared in the pages of both Vogue and Life. Born and educated in Vienna, Witter has risen to a place of great prominence among American designers.

More 'ARCADE'

The idea of reviving The Arcade has been talked up from time to time ever since by those who believe that Muhlenberg needs some sort of a public outlet for its more creative students. The opportunity has now come for all artists, writers, and photographers to have their work published, and only with their cooperation can The Arcade be successful. With more than 1200 men on campus, the editors feel the magazine will be a distinct success. Announcement will be made in the near future concerning details for the initial issue.

Castle Garden To Have Senior Ball Dec. 13th; Randy Brooks Plays

The Orchestras of Randy Brooks and Walt Simpson will present a five hour "Battle of Music" at the Senior Ball, December 13, at Castle Garden, the Student Council revealed this week.

The Council and the Senior Class, who are jointly sponsoring the dance, seek to present something new to the student body with the Battle of Music. Simpson's Orchestra will play for the first hour. The two bands will then alternate for half-hour periods, and Brooks will be featured for the final sixty minutes.

The Ball will last from nine till two, and will take place in the popular ball-room at Dorney Park. It will be semi-formal, and admission will be by activity card.

Randy Brooks

Music maker for Senior Ball at Dorney Park on December 13th.

Elaborate plans are under way for decorations and entertainment. The student Senior Committee includes Phil Mitterling, Bob Hale, Jack Reumann, Mike Rogers, and Gordon Daggy.

Feature band of the evening will be that of the Young Man with the Golden Trumpet, Randy Brooks. Brooks fronts one of the most rapidly rising and exciting of the name bands. Recent polls in both "Downbeat" and "Metronome" have ranked Brooks high among modern trumpet stars. His orchestra is famous for its smooth arrangements and distinctive stylings.

Touch Football In "Pansy Bowl"

The Soph-Frosh "two hand touch" Football game, one of the traditional contests held at Muhlenberg College, has been scheduled for three o'clock this afternoon. Having had only two days of practice, both teams should be equally prepared for the tussle.

The Freshmen, co-captained by "Ken" Fetter and "Rob" May, are expected to put up a battle when they meet the Sophomores on the gridiron. According to previous customs, tackling will not be permitted and no one will wear padding. Aside from these two exceptions, the game will be played according to intercollegiate rules.

"Bill" Ritter, who is in charge of intramural sports, will act as referee for this exhibition. He has stated that the school is trying to promote intramural athletics. Teams can be made up of student groups, classes, clubs, etc. Leagues can be made up and trophies will be awarded to the winners.

Navy Is Seeking Men For Its Active Reserve

The United States Navy is calling for all young men now on inactive duty in the Naval Reserve to volunteer for part-time active service in the Air Service of the Active Reserve. The Navy Department is anxious to obtain former enlisted men who have experience as Aviation Machinist Mates, Radiomen, Radarmen, and other men who have performed communications work in the Naval Service. These men will be able to engage in a few hours of activity with the Naval Air Service every week at Willow Grove Naval Air Station.

A delegation from the Navy Department revealed to Dean of Students Perry F. Kendig this week that all men signing up for part-time active duty in the Naval Air Reserve will be given transportation to Willow Grove Naval Air Station every Sunday. There, on each Sunday, they will train with the regular naval establishment, in various skills connected with the Air Service. They will be paid amply for this time. Transportation will be furnished them to Willow Grove, either by air, train, or bus. Dean Kendig emphasized the fact that this will be an excellent opportunity for men interested in aviation to keep in touch with the latest developments in this field and to enjoy themselves for a few hours each week in various forms of aeronautical activities.

Commander John Miller, USNR, will be on the campus Friday, the 22nd, to discuss the Organized Reserves with anyone in the Northwest corner room of the basement of the library from 12 to 4.

Further details on this organization and its opportunities for veterans will be announced in the Weekly as soon as received.

Three MCA Delegates Will Attend National SCA Assembly In December

The Muhlenberg Christian Association announced this week the selection of three delegates to attend the National Assembly of the Student Christian Association Movement from December 28 to January 3 at the University of Illinois. The delegates are Franklin Sherman, Richard Bieber, and Walter Doberstein.

Since the first few meetings at the beginning of the semester, the Christian Association has developed from a loosely knit group of undergraduates held together by an interest in the problems and work of Christian students into a well organized, closely-integrated unit.

The Association is now divided into three groups—a prayer group, a discussion group, and a social action group. The prayer group meets every Tuesday evening in room 209, West Hall, at 7 o'clock, under the direction of Roy Fries, to pray individually and collectively. This group also tries to demonstrate to its members the efficiency of prayer.

Ten Initiated To Phi Alpha Theta

Last Thursday evening, November 14, at 8:00 p.m., Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary history fraternity, met in Dr. Swain's office to initiate ten new members.

The initiates in the faculty are Dr. Lloyd Eshleman, Dr. Clayton Wotring, Mr. Helmut Goltz, and Mr. Charles Hollister. The students who were initiated are John E. T. Rogers, Fred Brause, Martin Shuman, Donald Kaag, Robert Bosch, and Adolph Wegener.

High on the list of this year's activities is the plan to attend the district meetings of the Foreign Policy Association each month. This organization serves as a vent for opinions concerning our foreign policy, and publishes booklets on this subject monthly.

The meeting concluded with refreshments served in the College Store. President Philip I. Mitterling announced that the next meeting will be held on Thursday, December 12.

In making his report on a recent regional convention of Phi Alpha Theta, held at Gettysburg College, Mitterling emphasized that the fraternity is one of three national groups on the campus which have been recognized by a national association of college deans.

Cash Prizes In Essay Contest

The Tamiment Social and Economic Institute announces an annual essay Contest, awarding $3,000 in cash prizes to the five undergraduate college students submitting the best essays on the theme—"Roads to Industrial Peace". There will be a first prize of $1,500; a second prize of $750; and three third prizes of $250 each.

In announcing the contest, Louis Waldman, chairman of the essay committee, said, "The purpose of this award is to stimulate college students to constructive thought on matters of social and economic importance. Our colleges, especially at this time when so many of their students are veterans, are no longer cloistered institutions, semi-detached from reality. College students, like the bulk of our population, need to be awakened to the implications of current trends and events. They realize the necessity of having a point of view, and of making that point of view a vital force, as alert members of the public."

"The Institute is convinced that in the colleges of the United States there are hundreds of students who will not only wish to contribute their ideas in a contest of this kind, but who have the resourcefulness, the originality and the knowledge to render their contributions valuable."

The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. All undergraduate college students are eligible. A contestant may submit but one essay.
2. The length of the essay should be between 5,000 - 8,000 words.
3. No manuscript will be accepted unless typed, double-spaced, on one side of the sheet.
4. The contest closes April 25th, 1947.
5. Send manuscript immediately upon completion to Tamiment Institute Contest, 7 East 15th Street, New York, 3, N. Y. In submitting manuscript, the author should type full name, college and home addresses, telephone number and name of college on a separate sheet of paper clipped to essay. The manuscript will be coded by the Institute to insure anonymity. Manuscripts must be original, unpublished works.
6. Prize winning essays will be announced and the prizes

Lt. Wescoe Will Address Pre-Med Club

A substantial majority of Muhlenberg's one hundred fifty pre-medical and pre-dental students attended the Pre-Medical Club's second meeting of the semester held on November 13 in the West Hall auditorium. Dr. William Kennedy, assistant to the Dean at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, frankly forewarned the men who are aiming for acceptance to medical or dental school that they could expect mounting competition among an ever increasing number of applicants.

Dr. Kennedy asserted that even prior to the war, medical schools were equipped to handle only 6,000 of the 10,000 to 12,000 applicants. Now, with hospital facilities at medical schools remaining essentially the same, but applications already fifty percent above the pre-war high the prospect looms as even more highly competitive.

Temple Debaters' First Opponent

At a meeting of the Muhlenberg Forensic Council last Monday afternoon, the members and Mr. Phillip Bollier, the coach, decided to accept the invitation of Temple University for an interscholastic debate after the Christmas vacation.

Also agreed upon by the members at the meeting was the plan to prepare for a debating tour to western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and perhaps as far as Chicago. In past years Muhlenberg debate teams have been most successful and have ventured as far as Florida to garner new laurels.

In order that the debate talent in the school will come to light, plans are underway to hold an intramural debate between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Men wishing to try for the varsity team should take part in this tournament. Notice will be posted regarding the details.

Paul Gesregan, President of the Lehigh Valley Intercollegiate Debate Association is planning to call an organizational meeting of that group in the near future. Schools included in the Association are: Lafayette, Lehigh, Cedar Crest, Moravian for Women, Moravian for Men and Muhlenberg.

Blue Hens Rate Over 'Berg Men

Saturday is D-day for the undefeated Muhlenberg football team, and as they say in the B-pictures, "This is it." On Saturday two undefeated, untied, and still victory hungry elevens will meet with a crash that will send its reverberations up and down the Lehigh Valley for years to come, as the Mules move down to Wilmington to try to put an end to the Delaware winning streak.

The Schwartzwalder - coached Mules, impressive with a string of eight straight victories to their credit, will rate as slight underdogs to the touted Blue Hens, on the basis of comparative scores, weight, and experience. About fourteen lettermen bolster the Delaware team, which has rubbed their opponents faces in the turf with a consistency that borders on the monotonous. Up to now, the Hens have a record that boasts of 29 games without a loss, and have had only 26 points scored on them the entire season.

Big Pep Rally Friday...

Muhlenberg students will assemble for a spectacular pep rally before the Delaware game, this coming Friday, November 22nd. This rally, staged by the Student Council to demonstrate Muhlenberg's support of its fine team, will be held behind the Administration Building at 11:00 a.m., Friday morning. No chapel services will be held on this day, so that the entire student body may be present for this colorful demonstration.

Chairman John E. T. Rogers announced that Attorney John S. Snyder and District Attorney Theodore R. Gardner, prominent alumni, will speak at the rally. Other alumni will also be present to cheer on Muhlenberg's undefeated gridiron heroes. The band will be present to provide music for the occasion. This rally is expected to be the largest and most exciting rally ever held in the college's history, preceding, as it does, the much-publicized clash between the two undefeated rivals, Muhlenberg and Delaware.

Observers of the 'Berg-Delaware Jayvee game noted the slick working double-winged system the Hens ran from. Bill Murray, head coach, who has a history of 26 wins against 3 defeats in his stay at Delaware, has developed an attack that features plenty of passing, single and double reverses, and straight power.

A back named "Doc" Doherty fills one wingback slot, and despite the fact that he stands only 5'7" and weighs only 153, he fills it to the brim. Doherty runs like the original Gazelle boy in the clear, and threads his way through a broken field like a farm boy running through a cow pasture. Doherty is matched by Fred Sposato at the other wing. Paul Hart, a hard hitting fullback, has been ham-strung with injuries for the greater part of the season, but is expected to be in shape Saturday.

The line is big, fast, and veteran. Tony Stalloni captains the Hens from his tackle post. Stalloni weighs in at 225, and that's all bone and gristle.

Inter-Class Rivalry

If a notice went up on the bulletin board tomorrow morning that there was to be a Sophomore-Freshman Tug-of-War over Cedar Creek at 4:00 in the afternoon, the chances are that several hundred eager Freshmen and Sophs would show up with no further urging.

A few fellows with a little spirit and drive managed to get together Freshman and Sophomore football teams. A Tug-of-War takes even less preparation. All we need is somebody to start the idea snowballing.

But time is running out. Winter will be on us before many weeks have passed, and Cedar Creek is liable to freeze over.

Text Books

The present day student is caught with his pants down by the shortage of text books, and certain members of the faculty are not handling the situation as well as they might. When there are only three or four members of a class possessing books, the instructors often make a reading assignment and tell the class to borrow the text from those few who have them. This is a most unsatisfactory arrangement.

A better way to assign work would be for the instructors to outline topics and tell the class to look up the information on its own initiative in the books that are on reserve in the library. There are always a number of these available, and putting them to use inconveniences no one.

Graduate Tests

There have been a few complaints about this Graduate Test which is coming up for the seniors. "Why," some fellows ask, "should we miss two days of classes to take a test whose only purpose is to establish the standing of the college?"

The fact is that the college wants to find out just what a degree means in this day and age, not only with the idea in mind of reestablishing its own standing academically, but also with the idea of better counseling each individual student as to the type of work for which he is best fitted in college and when he graduates. The results will be made known to each student personally.

Back in the old days, all those who had a college degree under their belts were pretty much of the same caliber. But the war changed all that, and today colleges and graduate schools are falling back on this Graduate Test to gauge just how much a college graduate knows.

Smoking Regs.

The Faculty has always been liberal about smoking in the buildings. We notice that signs have gone up in the Science Building forbidding students to smoke in the classrooms. This is a direct result of carelessness on the part of Muhlenberg's nicotine addicts.

The solution to the problem is simple: drop the weeds in the sand cans in the corridor, not on the classroom floor, and thereby be sure that this regulation will not be extended to other buildings.

Need Some Money?

What a question, who doesn't, and believe it or not, its very easy to get. Rockefeller and John L. Lewis don't have it all, there is still some in circulation and it is the latter in which we are interested.

There are two ways of obtaining such money. You can either work for it or have it work for you. Many industrious students have managed to obtain part-time jobs and thus supplement their incomes. Of course, these jobs are rather difficult to find and when you do find one, the hours are usually long, the work hard and the pay short. Anyone interested? I didn't think so; consequently we shall concentrate on the second way to make money, namely, have it work for you. For the how's and why's of doing this we simply open a book (any book) and turn to the chapter entitled, "G.I. Ingenuity" or "How to Roll Five Sevens In A Row." Under the sub title, "The Shady Dollar" we find several examples of Joe College enterprising. In one small eastern college in Allentown, some resourceful students are pocketing many a well earned dollar by soliciting football pools. Of course this is only a seasonal proposition and must be discontinued about mid-year. Some have attempted baby sitting, but became quite discouraged after several misinterpretations of the word, "baby". Professional theme writing is quite profitable but is fast becoming an over crowded field. The Readers Digest and other periodicals present stiff competition to the theme writers. One exceptional GI is instituting a small haberdashery in the above mentioned college. He handles a complete line of neckties, socks and peanuts and is doing quite a profitable business. The Great Allentown Fair presents numerous opportunities for slick finger artists and "now you see it, now you don't" men. The suckers came in for miles around and all they are interested in is spending money.

Take your pick, fellows, or maybe you can think of something better. As a word of caution however, don't become too money mad. One ex-student wasn't satisfied with pin money so he played for bigger stakes, now he is pounding those same stakes with a twenty-pound sledge hammer in the state pen. G.D.

Ye Awful Truth

By Mike Rogers

Hardest working man around these parts is Bill Bell. Not only school and football, but extra duty on the laundry detail at 0800. Looks like Bill is all in favor of putting faucets on those kids. We saw the Bell heir and he's really some guy, probably be ready for next year's squad . . . Noted the Capeharts, Millers, and Jim Russick on the loose. Tell Audrey we said hello Jim, and inquire about a friend . . .

SCREAM OF THE WEEK: Lights giving out in East Hall was the signal for Ray Eskels to make like Robin Hood with the fuses. Not only that, but the operation he performed on the water pipe with his head was a beaut. Bent the pipe double and didn't dent the head at all, plenty tough these Swedes . . .

We sincerely hope that the following criticism will be accepted in the proper light and by the right people. The dance on Saturday from all reports and from what we noted at the Armory was NOT a good dance. The music, facilities, refreshments and other items were not up to par. Where the fault lies we cannot say because we don't know who was responsible. A dance honoring the football team should have had some kind of program to make the fact known and to introduce the fellas that have been doing so much for the school and getting so little in the way of support, (yep we are aware that many 'Bergmen watched the farce at the high school rather than the Mules).

But the dance wasn't right; now with the big affair of the year on tap what's going to be done, will it work out the same way, with improper arrangements, and a comparatively unknown band, or will the Council get on the ball, break loose with a couple dollars for decorations, etc., that will make for the best affair as well, as get the school some good publicity, and make this dance a success??? We don't know, but we have our hopes.

You men know who the council members are, the best method in getting action is to put the pressure on these fellas and lend cooperation to make the affair O.K. . . .

Bob Donovan and "Ski" were much in evidence over the past week-end . . . "Shorty" Lybrand took the count on Saturday last when some gal took away his specs and had the little one in her power; wotta way to die huh Bill??? Met a very nice lady recently and we'll toss her a posie right now, Mrs. Ken Fellows . . . Don't look now, but it appears as tho the Clauser-Fannie Billera merger shouldn't be too far away, good deal on both sides . . .

'Nother gathering of the clan of "M" Club members tonight following the Law and Citizen class. All members are requested to be on hand. Here's a tip, the bankroll of the club is in pretty good shape and so you'd better be around . . . Our pal, Johnnie Rogers, certainly was playing the role of diplomat Saturday night passed. Time came to leave and John just quietly said good night and more quietly stole away, to the never, never land . . .

"Goober" Umlauf takes time off the insurance business to boost the Mules 100%. As an alumnus he certainly is a staunch follower of the teams, too bad there aren't more like him in the student body . . . Still lotsa screaming about the lighting situation in many of the classrooms. We gave our opinion on the subject and also a reply from the President of the college. Looks like any further action will have to come from the students themselves in letters to the editor and maybe a word dropped in the ear of faculty members wouldn't hurt either . . .

What's the scoop on Pat Carazo and the Bible class? Rumor hath it that our buddy got a big fat "B" in Bible 2 and then this term he isn't making the grade very well in another Bible course that appears to be Bible 2; now where do we go from here Pat, that couldn't be the same course, could it????

Funniest thing around the jernt right now is the story that emanated from Lew Wence at a church nearby on last Sunday. Lew and his pal, "Daddy" Wright were coming out of the church when the local Minister greeted Wence and then turning to Wright asked, "This your boy sir?" . . .

Wilmington here we come, again I repeat, win, lose, or draw, we have a great football team with great guys doing the work. The very best of luck and regardless of the outcome, a great season from great guys . . .

Hottest combo at the recent dance was the Gilbert-Sbordone affair. Matchmaker Benfer made the contact, and then Carm and Jean did the rest . . . John Meyers and Mrs. taking the fast ones slowly . . . Some wise guy hollered to Bill Hepburn on Saturday, "Which one is the Mule?" Well Bill, which one was??? No water on campus last Sunday saw the strangest sights. Dr. Tyson toted buckets from his garage, Haps ran a hose from 26th St., Jack Reumann and Bob Hale took their toothbrushes to church, and Karobienick, Kessock, Eskels, and Doran washed their teeth with VAT 69 . . .

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner, Alumni Secretary

As one of the New York sportswriters put it, two of the Eastern small college powerhouses will collide next Saturday when Muhlenberg meets Delaware. Just for the record, here are a few facts about previous games with our opponents.

The Mules have met the Delaware teams on six previous occasions. The first game was played in 1910 when Muhlenberg won 11-0. Games in 1911 and 1912 saw Muhlenberg again on the winning side of the ledger by scores of 15-0 and 21-0. Then followed a lapse of eight years until 1921 when the Allentown aggregation again whitewashed the opposition 21-0. History repeated itself in 1922 when Muhlenberg came out on the long end of a 12-0 game. The only defeat ever handed the Mules by Delaware was in 1923 when we lost 6-0. Thus, looking at the six games played, we find Muhlenberg on top in five contests, with a total score of 80 points to Delaware's 6.

The records for this season are impressive. Both teams have met eight opponents. Delaware has scored 317 points as against 26 points scored by their opponents, for an average 35.2 points per game. Muhlenberg has scored 269 points so far this season to their opponents 54, or an average of 33.5 points per game. Each team has played three opponents with the following results.

Delaware 27	Gettysburg 6	Muhlenberg 13	Gettysburg 7
Delaware 28	F. and M. 0	Muhlenberg 40	F. and M. 7
Delaware 27	Bucknell 14	Muhlenberg 6	Bucknell 0

Saturday will be the test. Friday morning will be the pep rally. YOU should be there. The alumni everywhere are in back of the team. Good luck, Major, to you and your boys.

OBITER DICTA . . .

Weekly Staff Dissected

by Dave Tyson

The WEEKLY has always been a rather unique campus activity. It is restricted to no one group; it has strings leading out into every corner of the campus; it tries awfully hard to set down the news, gossip, and opinions of Muhlenberg; and it reaches every member of the Muhlenberg family . . . at least, we of the staff hope it does.

Jack Reumann and Mike Rogers, the co-Editors, cut their teeth on the WEEKLY during the lean war years, when at times the small staff was all set to sell pencils in Center Square to finance just one more issue. The masthead in those days was padded with an imposing conglomeration of titles and names: Religion Editor, Roving Reporter, Transportation Chairwoman, and even the elusive Bennet I. Fisher had his name down in the Feature Staff in black and white.

Mike Rogers brought to the WEEKLY some newspaper experience and flavor which he had gained on a Miami tabloid. He instituted his column, Ye Awful Truth, as the V-12 Bluejackets' answer to the Marines' Bellhops' Below, which had had a monopoly on gossip up to that time. After holding down various associate editor jobs for a spell, he was finally voted into the big position of Editor-in-Chief.

Whether the Navy got wind of possible subversive activities, spearheaded by the Rogers' WEEKLY, is a moot question. At any rate, after he had put together only one issue, the Navy stepped in and said "You had best go elsewhere", so Mike packed his seabag and shipped out with a draft of V-12ers going to Villanova.

Jack Reumann meanwhile, through steady effort and quiet application, was working his way up through the City Staff, punching typewriters, reading proof, composing heads, and running copy down to the printers. At the WEEKLY elections last spring, he and a recently discharged Mike Rogers were elected co-Editors. Since then he has been doing a bang-up job . . . punching typewriters, reading proof, composing heads, and running copy down to the printers.

Bob Bosch is a former Editor-in-Chief of the WEEKLY. The woods are full of them. There must be a dozen walking about the campus. When he's not making love to Eunice Feight under the auspices of Mask and Dagger and the watchful eyes of Earl Feight, he's acting in the capacity of City Editor. He gained the nickname of Bob "Blow-it-up" during his V-12 days. No matter how polished or lengthy an article was when handed in to him, his remark would always be, "That's good, great work! Blow it up!"

Pages 2 and 3 of the WEEKLY are put together by Gordon Daggy and Herb Needleman respectively. They are fast becoming neurotic cases. Tuesday night finds them busy at the printers with the paste pot, scissors, and blue pencils, setting up dummy copies of their pages. Along toward the end of the evening, when they're both ready for sack, the call "Hold everything", comes to the back office from Reumann and Rogers out front. Gordon and Herb must rip out features and sports articles to make room for some front page turnover. So it's back to the paste pot, scissors, and blue pencils until the rosy-fingered dawn comes creeping through the windows and the birds begin to send their songs into the chill morning air.

Little is heard from the Business Staff of the WEEKLY for the simple reason that Messrs. Glase and Fratscher make the least noise. That's always a good sign. Bill Glase, Business Manager, is the fellow who very quietly promotes the WEEKLY's advertising, keeps the books, and donates his car for errands of all sorts. Bob Fratscher, Circulation Manager, in like manner every Thursday sees that the WEEKLY is sent out all over the campus and to the subscribers off the campus.

A notorious member of the Features Staff is one Larry Tully, another product of the wartime WEEKLY. Tool Tully got his start during Bosch's reign, and has never missed a night at the printer's since. He too picked up his nickname while in the V-12 unit. Sergeant Luke of the Marines, also an Irishman, would wander through the corridors of West Hall during inspection asking, "Where's Tooly?"

Features are the Tool's forte. His profuse effort, save on a few red-letter occasions in the past, produced feature page copy of a degree of wit that would put Fred Allen to shame.

Big John Fitzgerald, (as you might guess, another V-12er), holds down a big position on the Sports Staff. Big, that is. When not preoccupied with a heavy schedule and a home life, John manages to play at that popular fall game of picking the Saturday winners for the benefit of the campus tin-horns. John says if we stick with him, we'll all be wearing diamonds.

That Tuesday night clam-bake down at H. Ray Haas Printers has come to be more of a social gathering than a work session. It is then that every phase of college life is torn apart and talked over, the good with the bad.

Of course it is the policy of the WEEKLY, as with any conscientious journal, to publish only those items which discretion permits. It's a tough policy to stick to at times, particularly on Tuesday nights when some member of the staff is suddenly stricken with that dread journalistic disease, known to the trade as "Editorialitis". One will suddenly see an otherwise quiet hack writer leap to his feet. His eyes begin to flash, his mouth to foam, he rushes to the nearest typewriter, and would feverishly bat out a scalding diatribe against the Administration, the Faculty, the Student Body, or all three, were it not for Mike "Muscles" Rogers, who steps in at this point, pins his arm behind his back, and hustles him off screaming.

This performance is liable to scare the scivies off the novice writers who are standing around, learning how the WEEKLY goes to press. But to the bleary-eyed and sometimes gray-haired old hands on the WEEKLY, who have lived through worse times, the outburst has become routine. They go on munching their pretzels, lifting their quarts of beer, and staring off into space, waiting for an inspiration.

About this time of the year, every man, woman and, child who knows the difference between a pair of shoulder pads and those uplifting things that a female wears, turns his or her thoughts to the mythical All-American football team. Ever since Walter Camp, deciding that ball players deserved more than aching backbones and used up meal tickets at the end of the season, picked his All-American team, the idea has spread like the hives. Around the last week of the season, sports-writers and laymen alike begin to check the records to see which eleven men have left the imprint of their cleats on the greater number of their opponents faces to win recognition. Teams are picked from every angle and perspective, and everyone believes that their choice (what else) is the only accurate one.

This year the Coaches' Association announced that they would pick the team to end all teams, and the fan would have to abide by their decisions and stop yapping about the guy from his home town who won the game single handed from Pulse Normal. We remember the coaches conclaves that used to decide who made the All-Metro High School Team in our home town; there was more lobbying and log-rolling there than you'd find at any congressional session. Conditions degenerated to a point where the site of the meeting had to be kept from the public to avoid the pressure of well meaning local fans. Imagine a throng of high school kids carrying banners reading, "KNABOFSKI FOR LEFT TACKLE", or "WE WANT GULINO—HE SAVED US FROM DEFEAT".

The picking of All-American teams accomplishes nothing but the fostering of arguments about the relative merits of the experts' choices. Their only purpose is to carry the sport's pages through the lull between football and basketball season, and an excuse to rehash the season's events.

Ed. note—The next issue of the WEEKLY will carry an All-American team picked by the WEEKLY staff. (We're short of copy too)

Another big topic that breaks into the sports pages when the undefeated list has shrunk to a few hardy clubs, is "Who is going to play who in which bowl?" This bowl fever has spread until every town that has a stadium, an industry, fruit, or flower that needs plugging, turns up with a post-season game on New Year's Day. Nowadays there isn't a place in the country where a gent can recuperate from a Bacchanalian welcoming of the New Year without hearing the roar of sixty or seventy thousand fans egging on the team of their choice.

Word has it that the Mules have been considered for three bowl games, the Tobacco at Lexington, the Glass at Toledo, and the 'Gator at Jacksonville. The Athletic office is saying nothing until after the Delaware game, so let's wait before we buy those train tickets to Florida.

We checked down to Rockne Hall to watch the basketball team go through their paces last week, and they looked good, plenty good. The club is big, fast and smart. They've got the one thing this year that 'Berg teams have lacked in the past—depth, and in this era of firehouse basketball, capable reserves are essential to a winning team. The Mules will open against Moravian at home on Dec. 4, and will move down to Convention Hall, on the 7th to meet Temple in one of their sternest tests of the season.

BOOTERS TAKE LEAGUE TITLE

Crider Scores Three Markers As Mules Beat Greyhounds; First In Eastern Scoring Race

Completing an eight game tune-up for the final game of the season with Delaware, our driving herd of Muhlenberg Mules soundly trounced the Moravian Greyhounds by the score of 47-0 last Saturday on the local gridiron.

Mules Charge Moravian Passer

Prent Beers (30), George Bibighaus (11) and other Mules rush Moravian passer as 'Berg took the Greyhounds 47 to 0.

The Greyhounds, "up" for the fray, played a spirited, rough brand of ball that resulted in an exciting game.

The game started rather slowly as far as the 'Berg offensive was concerned, but after a 0-0 first quarter, the Mule power and finesse asserted itself.

The second period had barely gotten under way when a Bell to Crider pass made the score 6-0. Bill Barker kicked the extra point. A few minutes later Ed Sikorski blocked a Moravian punt and Milt Dietz scooped up the ball and raced for the second tally. A pass for the extra point, Crider to Sikorski, fooled a loaded Moravian line charging in to block the try from placement, made it 14-0. After an exchange of punts the entire 'Berg forward wall broke through to block another Greyhound punt and Jim Schell took it on the fly and carried it to pay dirt. Barker converted making the score 21-0 as the half ended.

Moravian received the kickoff at the start of the second half and on the first play attempted a wide pass that Diz Dean intercepted and ran twenty yards to score. Midway in the third period another Bell to Crider pass resulted in TD number five. Barker split the uprights for the extra point, making the scoreboard read 34-0. Before the quarter ended, a pass from Bell to Quint put the pigskin on the one-yard line, from where Crider added his third marker of the day. The period ended with the score 40-0. In the last stanza with Bell pitching to Bibighaus

Baldwin Steers '46-'47 Cagers

"Tex" Baldwin was elected captain of the Muhlenberg varsity basketball team at a recent practice session. "Red" has been the sparkplug of the Mule cage men since his arrival here with the V-12 unit in 1944. He led the team in scoring that year with 342 points, and was named on the All-State team.

Barker plans to use a modified fast break, and this system always places a demand on the ball players stamina, but here Bud is more fortunate in having a wealth of reliable reserves.

"TEX" BALDWIN

Captain-elect for the 1946-47 basketball season, has been consistent star for two seasons.

The squad has a bumper crop of pivot men this year and the 'Berg attack will feature them, with both corner men moving into the bucket slot and feeding the cutting guards. Pivot men include Baldwin, Dick Magee, who moves around the court like he built it (which he didn't) or like he was raised on it (which he was). Eddie Donovan also plays the swivel, along with Jake Bornheimer and Jim Russick.

There is no dearth of fast moving, sure shooting ball movers on the team this year either. Harry Donovan is back, along with Jim Capeheart, and Dick Miller, from the 1943-'44 campaign, Eddie Schwob, a standout in the high caliber North Jersey league, Chuck Theisen, a sure floor man from the '45 season, Al Saemmer, Marv Jaffe, New York scholastic flash, and Red Graner, star of the State Championship Allentown high team.

'Bergmen Close Season With 2-0 Win Over Stevens Tech

Hughes Scores In First And Third Periods As Team Plays Best Game Of Season

Muhlenberg's lost battalion, the soccer team, finally made the sports writers sit up and take notice last Saturday when they downed an experienced Stevens Tech team, 2 to 0, at Hoboken, New Jersey, and returned to the Muhlenberg campus with the championship of the North Atlantic Intercollegiate Soccer League.

Hopin' & Dopin'

by Bob Hoyer

The most unpredictable gridiron season of the decade is rapidly approaching a conclusion, with only fifteen collegiate teams enjoying undefeated, untied records.

Next Saturday at the Wilmington ball park, one of these streaks will be shattered, when the undefeated Mules, pride of the Lehigh Valley, tangle with Bill Murray's Blue Hens, current possessors of the nation's longest winning streak. 'Berg has pointed to this contest all season and should dethrone the Delaware team, only after a furious afternoon of football, by the tune of 27-21.

The list provides easier picking this week with Rutgers over Bucknell, Yale over Harvard, Syracuse over Columbia, Georgetown over N.Y.U., Michigan State over Maryland, West Virginia over Virginia, Lehigh over Lafayette, Princeton over Dartmouth, and Holy Cross over Temple. Alabama should shade Boston College, while Penn State will edge Pittsburgh.

The Big Nine will prove most discouraging to the gamblers. Illinois will capture the Big Nine title by defeating Northwestern, Purdue should give Indiana little trouble, Ohio State will stop Michigan, and an improved Minnesota squad will down Wisconsin.

The south features North Carolina State over Florida, Tennessee over Kentucky, Georgia over Chattanooga, and Georgia Tech. over Furman. For the slaughter of the day, we take L.S.U. over Fordham, and in a traditional battle, Duke will shade North Carolina.

In the Southwest it will be Rice over T.C.U. and Southern Methodist will conquer Baylor.

Turning to the West Coast for the game of the week, watch this—Southern California will upset mighty U.C.L.A.

Practicing every afternoon all Fall on West Hall Field, Coach "Chili" Altemose never had enough men on hand to stage a scrimmage. Add to that the inexperience of the team members, most of whom had never played soccer before in their life, and you come up with the makings of a highly unsuccessful season. But the booters were just as determined as they were inexperienced, and came back from a few disheartening setbacks to win two league games and tie one at the end of the season.

Coach Altemose finishing his first season as the soccer mentor, was highly elated over the showing the team had made when a WEEKLY reporter called him on Saturday night. "Stevens wanted to get rough a couple of times during the game," he said, "but the boys knew the game was in the bag and played conservative ball. They all deserve a lot of praise."

Keeping the ball in Stevens territory most of the afternoon, the Mules set up one goal for Ross Hughes in the first period and another in the third to account for the score. Charlie Feist, the goalie, made three flying leaps at almost certain Stevens' goals to deflect them out of the cage, thus keeping Muhlenberg on top.

"Chili" Altemose had a few words of commendation for the two seniors on the squad: Johnny Lesko, who had been a sub all season, but took over the first string Left Half position on Saturday; and Homer Robertson, who also played his last game for Muhlenberg.

Charlie Campbell, who has played consistently steady ball all season, will be recommended for all-American at the coming coaches meeting, said Altemose.

The Hoboken engineering school boasts no football team, so soccer is their main sport.

Small Crowd Sees Opening Assembly Show

Fabulously billed as "inimitable—uncanny—thought provoking", Dr. Franz J. Polgar appeared before a small student body assembly last Tuesday evening in the Science auditorium and justified beyond a doubt the adjectives employed in his propagandic build-up. Only the small attendance dampened the program, which for its type of entertainment was the finest to come to the campus in recent years.

Effective immediately, students and their friends, regardless of activity card number, will be admitted to ALL assembly programs. This announcement by Dean Kendig nullifies the previously Red-Green Serles system.

Dr. Polgar devoted the first part of his program to a memory feat which demonstrated his unusual ability for mental retention. Affirming his belief in mental telepathy, he went on to astound the audience by locating an envelope hidden during his absence from the room. He attributed the success of this venture solely to telepathic transmissions between himself and a student who knew the hiding place.

An amazing display of hypnosis lasting for nearly an hour was his best performance of the evening. Dr. Polgar, who has hypnotized as many as 390 people at one time, found at least ten Muhlenberg students willing and able subjects. A few preliminary words, the usual wave of the hand and a sharp snap of the fingers sent his subjects off into deep hypnotic slumber.

The power of suggestion and a glass of plain water projected four of the student subjects into a comical state of intoxication from which they later recovered on the same glass of water, this time suggested as a sobering drink. Post hypnotic suggestions proved 90% effective, an extemporaneous speech on behalf of the American Red Cross drive being among the most eloquent suggestions carried to completion after the subject awoke.

Chest X-Rays Dec. 4-5

On December 4th and 5th, the Lehigh County Tuberculosis Association will come to Muhlenberg College for the purpose of taking chest X-rays of all the student body, faculty, and administrative staff.

Portable units will be set up in West Hall and a schedule for the time to have the X-rays taken will be posted on the bulletin boards for each student. This service has been the one of the outstanding works of the association, and is of tremendous value to all concerned.

Dean Kennedy stated that the attitude and initiative of veterans now engaged in medical school studies was commendable. To the men here at Muhlenberg he recommended applied study in the liberal arts as a general background for future medical studies.

Dr. John V. Shankweiler, faculty adviser of the club, has announced the next meeting for Wednesday evening, December 11, at 7:30 in the West Hall auditorium. First Lieut. W. Clarke Wescoe, now stationed with the Medical Division, Pharmacology Section of the Edgewood Arsenal will be the guest speaker. Wescoe, a 'Berg graduate of the class of '41, and of Cornell Medical School, '44, in a first hand talk which is of vital interest to both pre-medical and pre-dental, has chosen as his topic "The Relation of Basic Sciences to Medical Studies." A well chosen and pertinent topic, it should make more comprehensible the nature and emphasis of pre-medical and pre-dental studies here at Muhlenberg.

Language Society Returns To Pre-War Activities

The Muhlenberg chapter of Phi Sigma Iota, national Romance Language fraternity, held its first meeting of the year last night at 7:30 p.m., in the recreation room in West Hall. Nine new members were initiated into the chapter—six from the student body and three from the faculty. Henry Rosner, president of the chapter, delivered a paper on "The Young Playwrights of France Today."

New members initiated included Mr. Kenneth Webb, Mr. Westbrook Barrett, and Mr. Raymond Waller, all of the Department of Romance Languages; and Walter E. Menzel, Richard C. Harrier, Willard H. Fluck, Louis E. Rossi, John T. Rogers, and David O. Tyson of the student body.

The local chapter is one of 37 located on campuses all over the nation. Students who show proficiency and an interest in the Romance Languages are invited to join.

During the war a skeleton membership kept Phi Sigma Iota alive. Now back to its pre-war size, the chapter officers expect a year of increased activity.

Other than President Rosner, the officers include Mr. Charles H. Pershing, vice-president; Russell F. B. Everett, secretary; and Mr. Anthony Corbiere, corresponding secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Corbiere will be at Syracuse University tomorrow evening when a new chapter is instituted on that campus.

More Senior Ball

reached a new high when that crew was selected for the New York Daily News Harvest Moon Ball in New York City's Madison Square Garden in September, 1945. Before 20,000 music and dance fans the Brooks Orchestra raised its popularity to new and previously unheard of heights for a young band. The selection came as no surprise to those in the business, as all who have heard him have marveled at the versatility and beauty of the band's arrangements. Previously, the Harvest Moon Ball was a great stepping stone in the careers of Cab Calloway, Charlie Spivak, and Jerry Wald.

Walt Simpson, whose band will also play that evening, is less well-known than Brooks but presents one of the best bands in Philadelphia. Before the war Simpson was a well-known arranger and might have continued in this field, had it not been for his Coast Guard service. During the war he organized his own band of fellow trainees and proved so popular that Simpson carried this new job over into civilian life.

the Lehigh game, will have to show immense improvement if it hopes to withstand the onslaught of the Delaware brood. The return of Averno, Bogdziewicz, and Mirth to the tackles may well be the deciding factor of the outcome of the game, for it is at the tackles that the line has been weakest. If Kenny Moyer is able to re-enter the lineup at end, Schwartzwalder will be able to shift Diz Dean back into the backfield, thus giving himself a reliable man to spell Bill Bell. Dean's shoulder is coming around after being again injured against Moravian. Johnny Sweatlock, whose defensive play has been a thing of wonder all season, is crippled up with knee injuries, and his backing up will be sorely missed if he can't play.

If the Gettysburg game has shown us anything, it is the need for a better pass defense. The Mules will definitely have to revise their defense to meet the double-winged attack, because the double wing puts four receivers on the hook for the passer to hit. If the line can rush the passer, the aerial threat of the Hens may be rendered as impotent as a Dime Store water pistol.

SENIOR BALL

DECEMBER 13th

CASTLE GARDEN

MULES IN TOBACCO BOWL DEC. 14th

Next Assembly Has Movies, Band, Play

"Wives Should Sleep At Home" is the enticing title to a one-act domestic comedy which is to be presented to the student body on Monday and Tuesday, December 16 and 17 as the third in a series of assemblies being planned through the efforts of Dean Kendrick. Also listed on the evening's entertainment is music by the "Four Mule Kicks" and movies of the Muhlenberg-Delaware game.

The comedy, written by a friend of Director John E. T. Rogers, is the story of a quarrel between George Curly and his wife Liela. Mrs. Curly demands, against the protests of her husband, that certain articles of furniture be taken away by the moving men. Tucker, a well meaning neighborly chap from next door, brings about a peaceable settlement through arbitration. A modern comedy, this should be enjoyed by all.

The cast includes Robert Kantra as George Curly, Alice Adams as Milly, his wife's sister, Gloria Marks as Liela, his wife, James Bensinger as Tucker, the neighborly sort, and two movers, to be selected from brawny volunteers. Both Miss Marks and Miss Adams appear through the courtesy of the Cedar Crest dramatic society.

The "Four Mule Kicks", a combination of trumpet, electric guitar, piano, and bass fiddle will make their debut on the Muhlenberg stage and will present a half hour of musical interlude. The members of the organization are Thomas Evans on the trumpet, Hugo Yanelli strumming the guitar, James Gross on the ivories, and Nathan Smith on the big fiddle.

The triple feature program will then conclude with the first general showing of the Muhlenberg-Delaware football clash in Wilmington, taken by and presented through the cooperation of Dr. John V. Shankweiler, head of the Biology department.

'The Forgotten Village' Film Tomorrow Night

The Art Department's extensive program for the campus and the community of Allentown will feature this week-end another in the monthly series of movie presentations, a gallery talk, and a new exhibition of art panels and drawings.

Tomorrow evening, Friday, December sixth, the Department's motion picture series on famous films will continue with the showing of John Steinbeck's "The Forgotten Village." Two shorts complete the evening's program. As before, there will be two showings of the program, at seven and at nine o'clock, in the Science Auditorium.

"The Forgotten Village," feature of the evening, is a Mexican film and was directed by John Steinbeck, author of "The Grapes of Wrath," and other best sellers. At its initial presentation five years ago, the picture created much controversy because of its frank treatment of peasant life and was banned in many places.

Completing the program will be two shorts, one showing the Fifteenth Century Altarpiece, the Adoration of the Lamb, which is found in Ghent, and the other concerning paintings by Memling in Burges.

Senior Ball Set For Next Friday

With the biggest social event of the semester only eight days away, final plans have been mapped out by the Senior Class officers and the Student Council for the Senior Ball next Friday night, December 13.

The site for the semi-formal dance will be the popular ballroom at Castle Garden, Dorney Park. Two orchestras will play for dancing from nine till two o'clock. Walt Simpson from Philadelphia will play for the first hour and will then alternate with the band of Randy Brooks for half hour periods. The Brooks' aggregation, famous from coast-to-coast for smooth dance music, will play the last hour of the dance.

Students and their dates will be admitted via their activities card. Invited guests will include the Faculty and Administration of the College. Alumni and guests will also be admitted by purchasing a ticket at the door.

This year's Ball will be the first since the war, following closely on the heels of the reorganization of the Senior Class several weeks ago. The presence of Randy Brooks and his Orchestra is in line with the traditional policy of procuring a big-name artist for such dances.

Most of the actual work in arranging the dance has been done by a committee consisting of Seniors. Phil Mitterling, chairman of the Council Social Committee, Carl Reimer, Senior Class prexy, Mike Rogers, and Gordon Daggy took care of general arrangements, while decorations are being planned by Bob Hale, vice-president of the class, Jack Reumann, and Ernest Hawk. Members of the Cardinal Key Society will also aid in decorating.

From all reports Muhlenberg students can look forward to the top dance of the term, as two good bands have been secured, Castle Garden overcomes the disadvantages of the site of previous dances this semester, and other details point to an evening's fun.

Bibighaus Is M Club Head

At its first official meeting of the season, before the recent holidays, the Varsity "M" Club of Muhlenberg College elected new officers and proceeded with the business at hand.

Taking over the position of President is George Bibighaus, Junior from Lehigh and pre-war athletic star at 'Berg. He succeeded Joe Podany who graduated from school.

John Growitch and Mike Rogers assumed the jobs of Treasurer and Secretary respectively.

Important business at hand is the annual "M" Club show which is being planned at this time. Particulars will be released soon and casting will follow shortly. Plans call for the show to be presented much earlier than last year's production which took place the first week in June.

All men winning a letter for athletics at Muhlenberg are automatically members by new regulations. This has been effected so that many men who won their letter but have not received it due to inability of local sources of supply to furnish them, will be allowed to take part in the club's activities.

German Club Inducts Men

Twelve new members were initiated into Der Deutscher Verein at a meeting of the club Monday evening at the home of Dr. Harry H. Reichard, professor emeritus of German.

The initiation ceremony was conducted by Dr. Wood, of the German department, and Donald T. Miller. Initiates included Donald M. Biehn, Wilmer Sanders, Ralph Bagger, Richard Rau, William Hirsko, Earl Feight, Louis Rossi, Arthur Borger, George Rizos, Donald Peters, Edward Goretzka, and Lloyd Esslinger.

Ralph Bagger described an Armistice celebration which he witnessed in France in 1944, and Wilmer Sanders gave an historical sketch of Christmas in France and Austria to complete the program. Preparations were made for the annual Weihnachtsfest to be held at Dr. Barba's home in Emmaus on December 16.

Drive Will Aid Foreign Universities

Franklin Sherman has been named director of the forthcoming drive on the Muhlenberg campus for contributions to the World Student Service Fund, a nationwide campaign to aid students in the wartorn nations of Europe and Asia. A large committee is being organized to carry the local drive into every dorm and fraternity house on the campus, and to contact all students living in town.

The national organization behind the campaign is headed by Dr. George N. Shuster, president of Hunter college in New York. He is being assisted by a staff of nationally-known educators, such as Dr. Herbert Davis, president of Smith College, and Dr. Charles Seymour, president of Yale university.

The World Student Service Fund, founded after World War I, is aiming at a goal of $2,000,000 in this year's drive. The money will bring relief in the way of new text books, food, and school buildings to an estimated 400,000 students all over the world.

Muhlenberg's drive, one of many on campuses from coast to coast, will get underway early in January. Further details will be announced in future issues of the WEEKLY and on the college bulletin boards.

Haring, Junior Prexy; Feight To Edit Ciarla

Howard Haring was elected president of the Junior Class and Earl Feight Editor-in-Chief of the CIARLA for the class of 1947. Election to these two important roles of campus leadership came as a result of the Student Council sponsored elections held on November 25.

Other men chosen to aid in the leadership of the class were Ray Nies, vice-president; Edward Goretzka, Secretary; and Paul Markavage, Treasurer. John Phillips will act as Business Manager of the CIARLA.

Haring, a member of Lambda Chi Alpha, was an outstanding member of last year's tennis team and is also active in the Chapel Choir. During Army Service in the European Theater he received the Purple Heart award. He now resides in Boyertown.

From Pottstown, Pa., Feight has resumed studies at Muhlenberg after considerable service with the Army. A member of the local chapter of Phi Kappa Tau, he includes among his extra-curricular activities membership in Eta Sigma Phi, the Pre-theo Club and the Choir. Phillips, the other half of the team that is responsible for next year's CIARLA, hails from Manasquan, N. J., served as an ETM 3c in the Navy, and now holds membership in the local Alpha Tau Omega chapter.

Ray Nies, class vice-president and another brother of the Alpha Tau Omega, has served both as football and basketball manager. An ex-marine, Nies plays baseball and totes the bass drum for the Band. Goretzka, secretary elect, has returned to 'Berg after being a member of the V-12 unit here, from which he moved on to his commission in the Navy. He is active in the Band. Markavage, from Pittston, Pa., is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He is a Navy veteran and formerly was on the WEEKLY staff.

St. Bonaventure Foe For Kentucky Clash

On Saturday, December 14, two "Damykankee" football teams will meet deep in the heart of the South, Lexington, Ky., in the first annual Tobacco Bowl. The Muhlenberg Mules, proud bearers of an 8-1-0 record will bump up against a strong St. Bonaventure team,

Drama Club Will Initiate

At a meeting held prior to the Thanksgiving recess the Mask and Dagger Club declared sixteen men eligible for membership into the dramatic group. In offering these men bids to join the club the Mask and Dagger is recognizing their contribution to the organization during the previous year. The traditional initiation, activated for the first time since the war, will be conducted on the stage of the Science Auditorium this Friday evening at 7:30.

Faithful and consistent service in one of the several fields of thespian activity—acting, stage management, prompting, property management, publicity—has earned for the following men a bid for membership: George Bannon, John Walters, Ernest Wallender, Donald Fink, Howard Harris, Dick Gallos, Paul Raebuck, John More, Mike Rogers, Louis Rossi, Wallace Stephanie, Earl Feight, Lawrence Tully, Edward Pickard, James Gross, Robert Kantra.

who dropped their opener to Youngstown, and has been undefeated since. Hugh Devore steers the Bonnies after turning in a creditable record as Frank Leahy's stand-in at Notre Dame last year. He'll use the Irish brand of T-Mayhem, featuring, Phil Colella in the running back slot, and a host of Allentown High boys in the right side of the line.

Coach Schwartzwalder will field a team that will be at a peak for the first time since the Lehigh game. This three week layoff will give the team as a unit a chance to ease up, and Averno, Bogdziewicz, Dean, Moyer, and Bell an opportunity to get back into shape.

The football team has been working out in the Armory during the cold spell, and the practices have been featuring a defensive directed to stop the fast striking Bonaventure T.

Schwartzwalder's backfield will remain intact with Prent Beers, whose sharp blocking has made many a play go, at quarterback; high scoring Jack Crider on the wing; Ed Sikorski at fullback; and reliable Bill Bell in the tailback slot. The line, after playing what was perhaps its best game at Wilmington, will be strengthened by the return of Ken Moyer at the left end.

If the transportation situation permits the Bonnies will have a turnout of 2000 fans traveling to Lexington by special train to see the game.

Formation of a swimming team at the Allentown YMCA is now underway with Mr. Dennis McGinley in charge. This team will be sponsored by the local "Y", and a call has been issued for all Muhlenberg men interested to contact Mr. McGinley.

A definite schedule has not as yet been formulated. However, a tentative schedule has been arranged with eight or ten meets planned both in and out of town. Local meets will take place at the YMCA at Seventh and Hamilton Streets.

Any men interested are to contact Mr. McGinley at the YMCA from 9:00 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. Monday thru Saturday.

Formation Of Campus ROA

Initial steps toward the organization of a campus chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association were taken on Tuesday evening, November 18 at a meeting in the West Hall auditorium. The ROA, created shortly after World War I, is an association of officers banded together for the purpose of supporting and assisting in the development of a military policy which shall best provide for adequate national defense. Chapters are currently being established on all college campuses wherever possible.

Colonel Clifford H. Bortz, secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Department ROA, urged the organization of a chapter at Muhlenberg as a contribution of added strength to the national organization and as evidence of continued interest in the vital problems of national defense facing the country. He explained that in order to create a chapter on this campus at least ten signatures must accompany a petition for charter to the national office in Washington, D. C.

ROA membership is open to any person holding a reserve commission in any of the armed services of the United States. Dr. Carl Boyer will be faculty sponsor of the organization on this campus, and all men interested are asked to contact him for further information.

Council Sets Election Dates

The reorganization of Muhlenberg's classes will be completed next week when the Sophomores and Freshmen meet to nominate and elect officers. Sophomore nominations will be made at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, December 10, in the Science Auditorium, and the Freshmen will put up a slate at the same time, same place on Thursday, December 12.

Soph elections will then be held all day Tuesday, December 17, and the Frosh elections Thursday, December 19.

On Wednesday, December 18, in the midst of all the balloting, the Sophs will make a determined effort to avenge their 27-12 Pansy Bowl defeat at the hands of the Frosh when the two classes meet in their annual tug-of-war over Cedar Creek. Carl Reimer, Bob Kishbaugh, and Bob Ranken form the Student Council committee planning the battle.

Muhlenberg Weekly

Editorial . . .

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF DEFEAT

The shouting and the tumult has died down since the Delaware game, and it seems almost useless to remark on the superb record the team made this season, or the fine showing it made at Wilmington, or the unusual success the new coaching staff has had this year when ordinarily it takes several seasons to mold a winning team. All that goes without saying.

A defeat like the one Muhlenberg suffered at Wilmington never did any team harm. It's something almost unknown at the University of Delaware. The Blue Hens are reported to have turned down a bid to the Sugar Bowl and accepted one to the Cigar Bowl for the sole purpose of continuing their long winning streak and setting a national record. We wish them the best of luck until that fateful day next fall when they come to Allentown. Then, we trust, they too shall taste the bitterness of defeat.

TOBACCO BOWL

Chambers of Commerce all over the country have taken to this idea of a Bowl Game as a means of promoting their own community. The Tobacco Bowl will certainly draw a large following of both the Muhlenberg and St. Bonaventure teams down to Lexington, Kentucky.

We feel that Muhlenberg could not have done wrong in turning down the bid to take part in this commercial venture. But on the other hand, there is no escaping the fact that it is an honor for the coaches, for the team, and for the college to play in a bowl game. And, needless to say, we all hope the team can climax Muhlenberg's best season with a resounding victory.

COAL STRIKE

We would all do well to consider just what the far-reaching effects of the present coal strike are going to be, not so much to us personally, but to the nation at large. It's already being brought home to us. Maybe you have noticed the overcoats being worn in class as winter sets in.

We can all live through any hardships occasioned by a general industrial shutdown, but the effects of open defiance of the government of the United States will be harder to live down. After all, we're here at college for the purpose, among others, of becoming better citizens of the United States, and problems just such as this are going to be handed to us in the very near future. We ought to begin thinking about them now.

OBITER DICTA . . .

Hollywood Goldmine

by Dave Tyson

When you try and find a seat in a movie on Saturday night, you become aware of the tremendous size the motion picture industry has reached in this country. Motion picture production is a major industry, like auto making or coal mining. Profit is the prime motive behind all the products Hollywood turns out. A new angle is discovered which brings John Q. Public's hard-earned cash through the box office window faster than before, and Hollywood plays up that angle until John Q. Public has been glutted with it.

Take the Wild West, for instance. Hollywood cut its teeth on cowboys and Indians, and since the days of the silents there are few phases of the West that have been left untouched.

Then there's the field of psychiatry. Schizophrenia was unknown in Hollywood several years ago. Today some producers believe no picture is complete without some sort of human abnormality.

But Hollywood has long realized that its biggest gold mine was right in its own back yard. Show business, the field of entertainment itself, has been glorified to such an extent by Hollywood that no normal American youngster reaches maturity without going through a stage of wanting to make love before the Technicolor camera or write hits in Tin Pan Alley.

Who is this guy Ziegfeld? Who in this generation would ever have heard of him had it not been for Hollywood? Or Oscar Hammerstein and George M. Cohan? These men are treated with the greatest of reverence on the screen.

Having exhausted the past masters in the business, Hollywood is now turning to the deification of those still very much alive and kicking, like Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, and Al Jolson.

Whoever the characters, the story is always the same: A young man gets the urge to go into the biz. He knows he has talent. He starts working his way up, either writing two-bit songs or hoofing it on the Keith circuit. He gets knocked about, stepped on, ignored.

Finally an Oscar Hammerstein, who just happened to be passing by and thought he'd drop in, sees the kid's act and goes nuts over it. Why, this kid's got talent. He's terrific. The kid is made. He's famous. Overnight his name goes up in lights all over the nation.

The next scene invariably pictures him in a palatial dressing room, the Big Star, with everybody who is anybody knocking on his dressing room door. If the Big Star happens to be a girl, that dressing room is filled with flowers and calling cards from Hammerstein, and Ziegfeld, and Cohan.

Right here, love enters the picture. The Big Star falls in love. Sometimes it's the home town sweetheart; usually it's somebody else in show business. There's a whirlwind courtship, a hurried wedding in between rehearsals, and before the wedding bells have stopped ringing, the trouble begins. The little wife (or husband) can't compete with the Big Star's career. It's show business or me, honey, take your pick. And before the Big Star can take time off from rehearsals to think it over, the little wife (or husband) has packed a bag and is off on the next plane.

Sometimes it's years before the big reunion takes place. Meanwhile the Big Star goes to pot. If he's a song writer, he gets no inspirations. If he's a dancer, he trips over his own feet. As a theatrical producer, he turns out flop after flop. If the Big Star is an actress, she forgets her cues.

Finally the departed mate, realizing at long last who is the cause of all the uproar in the world of show business and realizing that the old love still burns hotly, returns to the arms of the Big Star, who puts on the best performance yet. The End.

The story is sprinkled throughout with standard Hollywood color: the old gaffer with a pipe and a beat-up hat who sits by the stage door reading a paper; the copies of Variety that tell of the rise of the Big Star; those dressing room flowers; those after-the-show parties, with everybody clapping the dog-tired star on the back.

We know the story by heart, Mr. Goldwyn. What say you look into some of the other phases of American life which are just as exciting as the world of entertainment?

MULE KICKS

Dear "Mule Kicks",

In regard to the letter published by your column sent in by G. I. 'm Trying—

Doesn't he realize that the schedules of all the old college men now pursuing their studies for a degree are strictly SNFU? Can he expect the professors to postpone his exams so he may study for others?

His main point, however, concerning an assignment schedule including quizzes, tests, and examinations does deserve attention. Can and will the college officials plan such a schedule whereby exams for straight B.S. straight A.B., and Pre-med, Pre-theo, Pre-Law student be arranged to some degree of fairness to the student?

TARFU is present on the campus now with individual schedules, lack of books, and new professors. But when this situation clears up, will the examination be divided equally?

Try "boning" for three exams in one week unless you're a "brain"—we have them on the campus, too—you won't do as well as you could if given the proper preparation.

What's up, Mike? Anything going to be done about this? I'll be at the "lakes" as a "seaman-duece" if something doesn't happen.

ABE GOTTS

"Mule Kicks"!

Read the "M" Book and find out that our Christmas vacation starts Saturday, December 21st and expires Thursday January 2.

This means missing all the gaiety of New Year's nite and curtailing one's usual excessiveness New Year's eve.

I spent last New Year on the bleak and barren Pacific and want to enjoy the gala festivals of this coming season.

So how about it, officers of 'Berg? We had one day off during the football season with the victories we had. Can't you spare a few more? Look at the vacation period other colleges in this community are preparing to enjoy.

BENNY FISCHER, II

The Student Council and President of the Senior Class wish to make it plain to all concerned, that the Senior Ball will be held on Friday night, December 13, from 9 to 2 o'clock, as scheduled, regardless of other campus groups which have chosen the same date for their activities ignoring the previously advertised dance date.

Such situations are unfortunate as they affect the entire student body of 1200 men, and the Student Council requests that they be notified in the future before definite arrangements are made for other activities on dates which are already set aside for student affairs.

He Awful Truth

By Mike Rogers

Resting up from that Turkey Tussle we reflect that much has gone on in the past few days since we saw you all . . . Ray Eskels and that nice Ruth, were about the spots . . . Did you check the fur skimmer on "Slobbovia" Mueller, looks like he's right out of the funny papers . . . The winter garb on some of the crew around here is really a riot. If the services ever run short all they have to do is make a slight foray around these parts. Everything from foul weather mittens to a fur lined "you know what" is available . . .

Our notes from the Delaware game include the most surprised guy in all of Wilmington as "Diz" Dean who looked up from breakfast and saw his Mrs. standing there. Totally unexpected she made an all night trip just to be there; brother, that's love!!! Also must have been love on the part of Bill Hepburn to drag that Mule all the way from Allentown to Wilmington to see the game, what has that Mule got Willy???? Eddie Sikorski had a most complete trip when he knew that they were expecting him at the Wilmington Ball park, had everything all set and even his name over one of the lockers, yep I saw it with my own eyes, the sign said "PRETTYMAN" . . .

Bill Burr, a V-12 student here and basketball, now making on the court for Waynesburg and doing right well from reports . . . Carm Sbordone will most likely be looking for a room soon, we hear that Mike Bogdziewicz has sooooo much company that Carm can hardly get in. What have you got that gets 'em Mike, or isn't this the place to ask that one????

Notably missing from the Alumni Office is Mrs. Kitty Hill. She has gone to be with hubby Art in the BEEG city of New York while he attends Columbia there . . . Most relieved guy around these parts is Coach Ernie Fellows. Took about five months but he finally found a place to live and the Mrs. and company will be on the way up soon . . .

Vern Miller's frau headed for home recently for a visit and so he and Jim Schell took out after the deer. I think that is the way you spell it, who knows, might have been dear . . . Have you seen Brother Keefe make with the imitations lately? NO, well you better get right on the ball, the boy is really sharp, especially when he does some of the better known people on the campus . . .

Tough luck for Al Saemmer when that car he was riding in, did a slow roll. Al is pretty badly smacked up and all hands aboard the campus wish him a very speedy recovery. It's also a sock in the teeth to Coach Barker and his court squad who were counting heavily on Al . . . Our gratitude this week to "Diz" Dean for his expert aid with the inside dope on the outside world . . .

The team is going to Lexington for the bowl game via the air; now who said that "Scotty" Renwick is gonna parachute to the field 'cause he doesn't like landing so slowly? . . . Carm Sbordone says he's gonna check the engines himself, not that he doesn't trust anyone, but, well that Army training sorta makes one independent . . .

Hoss Lough has been doing a little scouting for the next year's edition of the 'Berg Gridiron squad. Came back with some swell outlooks; after looking at those monsters, Hoss will probably suggest we build cages to house the guys when not playing . . .

We certainly dropped the ball a couple weeks ago; our humble apologies and also our belated very best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Andy Erskine and that brand new son of theirs. There's one guy that I bet will pass his spelling test the first time; he better or the old man will make him unburned, and in the right place I betcha . . .

Not long to Lexington, let's let the boys know we're with 'em and even if we can't make the trip boost the team here at school so they'll go down there with some backing anyway . . .

With the new setup announced for the basketball game and Senior Ball both on December 13th, we're keeping our fingers crossed and hoping that a great crowd will make it to the dance right after the ball game. And lotsa GOOD LUCK to Bud Barker and his hoopsters for a terrific season with lotsa markers in the win column.

Debate Trials Monday Night

Debate tryouts for students who are not members of the Forensic Council will be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday evening, December 9, in the West Hall auditorium.

It is the plan of E. Philip Bollier, debate coach, to choose from the group possible varsity candidates.

Those interested should come prepared to debate extemporaneously, pro or con, on the topic,

Resolved: That Labor Should Have a Direct Share in the Management of Industry.

A survey of the question, is available in the Library. Mimeographed copies have been placed on the reserve shelf and may be used by anyone interested. These booklets contain the principle arguments for and against both sides and supporting evidences for both.

Alumni
Memo

John H. Wagner, Alumni Secretary

Everywhere I go these days, I hear nothing but praise from the alumni for the wonderful showing that the Mules made in their game with Delaware. The number of alumni who traveled to Wilmington to see the team in action was probably the largest group ever to attend a game away from home. They were unanimous in saying that the spirit and fight that the 1946 eleven displayed on that occasion will long be remembered; that, even in defeat, the team had done a grand job and had nothing to be ashamed of; and that the breaks were what decided the ball game. The week of the game my phone rang constantly with calls from New Jersey, New York, and all parts of Pennsylvania inquiring about tickets, and, had the game been played in Shibe Park, the number in attendance would have been twice as great. To the members of the team, may I say, on behalf of the alumni, "well done" and more power to you in your game on the "blue grass field" in Kentucky.

Muhlenberg has met St. Bonaventure once before on the gridiron, for in 1926 the Mules defeated the Brown Indians 9-7. Our genial "Haps" was the coach that year and we won 7 out of 10 games. The football greats of the time, Nick Borrell and Eddie Dickert were sidelined with injuries and the Mules had their hands full with the up state New Yorkers. However, Greenburg broke out into the open with a 65 yard run and Dick Robinson kicked a 30 yard field goal in the closing minutes of the ball game to put the Cardinal and Gray on top.

Now, twenty years later, the Cardinal and Gray will be on top again after the game on the 15th. How about it, team?

ACCENT ON... SPORTS

by Herb Needleman

Football got an unexpected reprieve in this vicinity when the athletic office announced that 'Berg would meet St. Bonaventure a week from Saturday. This is a break for us diehards who look toward the end of the season as the condemned man looks toward the sunrise. New Year's Day means more than just a bulging head and a list of resolutions to us; it's the day that we bury the records and ticket stubs for another year.

Luckily for the sports fan, the basketball season has been moved ahead until it overlaps the grid campaign, and this helps to soften the shock.

This St. Bonaventure team has played some good ball this season, and they're coached by one of the best in the racket. Hugh Devore turned out a surprisingly strong team at Notre Dame last year, and his record this year at Bonaventure cannot be taken lightly. He's got quite a few Allentown boys up there, and when he moved from South Bend, Phil Colella followed him like a hound dog after a butcher. Colella will be remembered as the protagonist in the Notre Dame-Navy fracas; it was he who put on the outraged innocent act for the cameras when he was knocked out of bounds by Minisi on the goal line—that scene with him on his knees before the ref almost won him the Academy Award for the best single performance of the year.

Clair Bee should win some sort of decoration for gallantry beyond the call of duty. We don't think his contract with the pundits of L. I. U. calls for him to put his neck out and list the fifteen top basketball teams of the country before they've set foot on a court. Bee has Illinois first, and Temple up high in the running, but no mention of Muhlenberg.

We were one of the privileged who saw the Army-Navy games by television last week, and it was quite a buzz. It was a real heart-breaker for the middies to drop the game after showing all the guts and fight in the second half. That Baysinger boy, who was a third string back for the greater part of the season, throws the hardest and truest pass we've seen all year. His choice of plays was as shrewd as that of a master chess player. Tucker gambled once by trying Blanchard through the line on last down, and the dice came up snake-eyes; the Navy line rose up like a tidal wave to swamp Doc. After that Blaik pulled Tucker every time there was a last down choice.

Certain high schools seem to turn out ball players with a rhythmic consistency every year. The Naval Academy for one is being fed through a straw by Bullis Prep of Washington, D. C. Commander Bullis has sent Clyde Scott, Myron Gerber, Billy Earl, and Bill Abromitis in the past two seasons.

Another school of that ilk is Southern High of Philly. Southern had a big share in the defeat of 'Berg last year, through the efforts of one of their stellar alumni, Marty Zipple. Zipple is back at Lafayette again this year with another South Philly graduate, Aaron Tanitsky, former Penn and Valley Forge Hospital star.

From the looks of things, Bill Anderson may have one of the powerhouses of the nation in his second year of college coaching.

Note: Rumors to the effect that the broadcaster of Ye Tobacco Bowl shindig will be Lexington's first citizen, F. E. Boone, have no factual basis. We know definitely that it's L. A. "Speed" Riggs.

'BERG CAGERS TAKE OPENER

Second Half Rush Nets Win By 67-47 Edge

Lifting the lid on the 1946-47 basketball season the nationally famous Muhlenberg Mules outclassed the Greyhounds from Moravian at Rockne Hall last night by the overwhelming score of 67-47.

Starting slowly, the Mules displayed the most ragged form of any 'Berg team in the last three years, trailing at the end of the first quarter 8-13. The entrance in the early part of the second period of Eddie Donovan served as the much needed tonic and after tying the game midway in the quarter, alert Eddie Schwab sent the Mules ahead with a long field goal. The half ended with the Mules ahead 23-17.

Gaining momentum with each second of play the margin was widened to 45-24 as the third period ended.

With a liberal sprinkling of substitutions in the fourth quarter the Mules continued to maintain their superiority and the game ended 67-47.

GRAPPLING SQUAD BOLSTERED BY RETURN OF EIGHT VETERANS

Eight college-experienced men and more than a score other wrestlers reported on Monday to Coach Carl Frankett for the first practice session of the 1946-47 season in preparation for the ten-meet schedule they will face. The start of practice has been delayed for several weeks because of the continued action on the gridiron. Since Muhlenberg is sending its football team to a post-season game for the first time in the history of the school, and since Coach Schwartzwalder will be occupying himself with football until then, the services of Mr. Franket as wrestling coach have been secured for this season.

Coach Frankett has been Muhlenberg's wrestling coach, for several years. In 1943 he was the mentor of the team that won seven and lost one. This team won the Middle Atlantic States Conference championship. Last season, Frankett coached a completely green squad through a season disastrous as far as the scores were concerned. However, his labor was not in vain. Several of the men he coached last season and helped to build into good wrestlers are back this season and form a nucleus around which the coach will build this year's squad.

Among the returning members of last year's squad are: Jerry Braverman, co-captain of the 1945-46 team, Herbert Gernert, Lawrence Delp, Otis Summerville, Fred Johnson, and Ted Getz. Herbert Wessman, a standout performer of several years ago, is also back and expected to create no little bit of competition in the 175-pound class.

The grapplers open against the always-powerful Engineers of Lehigh University on January 8 as a preliminary to the Muhlenberg-Lehigh basketball game. Lehigh, a perennial winner of the Eastern Intercollegiate crown, again boasts a strong, experienced team. Coach Frankett and his charges have their work cut out for them.

Temple Stern Test For Mules At Convention Hall Saturday

Resuming a long student rivalry at Convention Hall, Philadelphia next Saturday night the injury-riddled Mules will face Temple University.

Several returning veterans bolster the Temple squad. Among the more experienced are Eddie Lerner, Dave Fox, Billy Nelson, and Nelson Bobb. These men are expected to make the Temple fans and Coach Josh Cody forget the loss of two outstanding players, Jack Hewson and Jerry Rullo, who were ruled ineligible.

Led by the Kentucky Komet, "Tex" Baldwin the Mules are in hopes of avenging last season's fourteen point defeat early in the campaign.

In the 1943 campaign the Temple Squad was rated near the top in the nation, and was knocked off by the Mules. Temple, feeling they really suffered from an off-night, asked for a rematch and the Mules obliged by trouncing them once again. For the past two years Temple has maintained the edge over Muhlenberg but sweet revenge is promised in the forthcoming meeting.

In the other half of the twin bill St. Joseph's of Philadelphia will meet the University of Idaho.

AL SAEMMER HURT, OUT FOR SEASON

Muhlenberg's basketball stock went into a bad slump last week with the receipt of the news that Al Saemmer would be lost for the season.

Saemmer, a former Liberty High School star, was injured badly in an automobile accident over the Thanksgiving holiday, and his absence will create a big gap in Bud Barker's lineup. One of the fastest men on the squad, Al was showing up well enough in practice to be slated for a first string berth against the Greyhounds of Moravian last night.

The accident occurred while Saemmer was driving home with some friends Saturday night. He was taken to Sacred Heart hospital, and treated for cuts around the face necessitating many stitches.

The loss of Saemmer is no small blow to the team's chances, with Red Graner out with a sprained ankle, and Tex Baldwin suffering with an infection that may prevent his playing for a week or more.

Pre-Meds Treat Pre-Theos, 12-0 In Annual "Sin" Bowl Classic

Rearing its head into semipermanent prominence amidst a current deluge of Bowl classics, the annual "Sin Bowl" fracas was played off on the Muhlenberg field on the Monday preceding the Thanksgiving holidays. The "Sin Bowl", a perennial battle between the Pre-Medics and the Pre-Theos, pitted a fighting sawbone eleven against a spirited Theolog club, and although the theos never once lost the faith and hope which characterizes them, they were forced to admit defeat by a 12-0 margin.

The rumor that the "pill pushers" animated their attack by individual shots of adrenalin after each quarter has been proved erroneous, and credit must go to quarterback Lakin who tossed his "pill" twice into the hands of waiting receivers — once in the first period to Robinson who scattered 15 yards down the south sideline to score and again in the final quarter to Kituskie playing sleeper on the side stripe. Conversions were not in order for the pre-Meds, failing twice, and so two TD's spelled triumph on the field that afternoon and commendation in the Zoology lab the next day.

Only once did the Theos hint at reformation and that was near the final whistle when Hoh intercepted the ball and raced 65 yards before two big hands sent him sailing out-of-hands. Garber captured the pre-Meds while Getz shepherded the Theo club.

Bill Ritter, head of the physical education department and one highly touted as mediator in local "bowl" contests, was the referee. Familiar ribald taunts were directed toward the referee from the sidelines during the course of the game, but victor and vanquished alike agree that the job performed by Mr. Ritter was able and just.

Sweatlock Wins Q-Back Award

Johnny Sweatlock, whose defensive play at backing up the line has been consistently great all season, was awarded the most valuable Player's Award at the last meeting of the Downtown Quarterbacks club.

Sweatlock starred for two years before the war, and since his return, has displayed a matchless brand of football savvy that has stopped opposing teams' scoring threats repeatedly.

Coach Schwartzwalder presented the award to Sweatlock, after addressing the meeting. The principal speaker of the evening was Bill Duncan, special reporter to the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Are College Men Babies ???

"Liberal education means more than the temporary acquisition of nuggets of knowledge . . . it's not what you know that counts; it's who you are, how you act, how you live that matters. We have taught the shooting of arrows without talking about targets. Our task is to define ends for which a student lives

"Colleges are too preoccupied with superficial symbols of activity and achievement . . . College does not lead to the development of better and happier persons. Instead it covers the incoming freshman with four years' incrustation of intellectual and social snobbery.

Most students have forgotten as high as 75% of the factual material they knew when they finished their courses. What should a student expect to gain from college that he could not get from trying various jobs, meeting new people, facing decisions, and testing various solutions to the problems that confront him? Just what is the meaning and aim of a college education?"—John L. Wallen

"American students, constitute unreal human islands of pleasure and phantasy in a world of agony, confusion, despair, change and revolution. They are ignorant, confused, insecure, childish immature. They are the undeserving, spoiled darlings of our day, living upon an unearned social increment. Generally speaking, they are blase and sophisticated, without the experience and maturity essential to carry sophistication. Generally speaking, their collective life is pagan and their long-range motives are materialistic."—Humphrey Dupre.

It is believed that there are students on Muhlenberg's campus who are deeply disturbed by such comments on American student life and thoughts as those printed above. Moreover, it is believed that many of these students are ready and eager to sit down to a sane discussion which will clarify the basic purpose of our being at Muhlenberg.

Therefore, this brief announcement: Next Monday evening at 7:30 p.m., a group of students will meet informally with several faculty members in the reception room of West Hall to discuss: "Students—faculty—colleges: What's right and what's wrong with them?" Although discussion is expected to be lively, the meeting will be terminated no later than 9:00 p.m.! Interested students of whatever faith will be welcomed.

Theological Club
Holds Forum

"What qualities do you consider to be most essential in a minister's wife?" was the topic for discussion at the meeting of the John A. W. Haas Pre-theological Club in the Haas Room on November 25 at 7:30 p.m.

This topic was introduced by a forum of four students. They presented their views upon such aspects as the educational requirements of a minister's wife. The place of the minister's wife in the home, congregation and community was also discussed by members of the panel. After the opinions of the panel members have been expressed, the discussion was opened to the group.

All of the pre-theological students are urged by club officials to attend these meetings. However, the discussion isn't limited to pre-theological students. All interested persons of the faculty and student body are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

DECEMBER 13th
CASTLE GARDEN

Senior Ball Tomorrow; Brooks, Simpson Play

In harmony with the heightening crest of the Christmastide wave, the Class of 1947 will flood the college community with the appropriate seasonal atmosphere as it presents for the pleasure of the student body the traditional Senior Ball tomorrow night at Castle Gardens, dancing from 9 to 2. The weekend commences with the meeting of Muhlenberg and Princeton in a basketball tilt at Rockne Hall, continues immediately after the game with the dance at Castle Gardens, and on through Saturday when the local chapters of Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Kappa Tau hold Christmas house parties at their respective homes.

Two orchestras have been contracted for the Ball. Walt Simpson from Philadelphia will play for the first hour and will alternate then with Randy Brooks for half hour periods until 1 a.m. The last hour of dancing continues with Brooks' aggregation, famous from coast to coast for smooth dance music. Simpson, noted for his abilities as an arranger, has prepared an orchestration of the Fred Waring Song, "The Kick of the Muhlenberg Mules" and will treat the crowd with a presentation of it sometime during the dance. Brooks, feature band of the evening, offers a group of musicians rising rapidly to the top of the heap of name bands.

Phil Mitterling, as chairman of the Student Council Social Functions Committee, heads the senior committee for the dance. Aiding him are Mike Rogers, and Gordon Daggy, in charge of general arrangements and Jack Reuman, Bob Hale and Ernest Hawk, supervising decorations.

The choice of the attractive ballroom at Castle Gardens, Dorney Park and the selection of two fine bands point to a successful social event. The appearance of formal attire at the basketball game in anticipation of a rush out to the dance immediately following is expected. Admittance will be via the student activity card.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Pledges of Lambda Chi Alpha are busy men these days. In addition to their other duties, they are preparing the fraternity house's chimney to receive a very welcome guest—none other than old St. Nick, who will make his appearance at the annual Christmas houseparty this weekend.

In addition to Santa's visit, the event will include an abundance of entertainment for brothers, pledges, and their dates. Friday

Choir Opens Concert Series In Northampton

The Muhlenberg Chapel Choir began a series of concerts last Sunday evening, December 8th, at St. Paul's Reformed Church in Northampton.

The choir, directed by Dr. Harold K. Marks, sang twelve anthems and chorals before an audience of several hundred people from congregations in the community. At the close of the service the choir was served with sandwiches and coffee by the senior choir at St. Paul's.

The next engagement will be on Sunday evening, December 15 when the choir will go to Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Pottsville.

The Choir will also sing at the annual service with Cedar Crest next week.

AKA Will Offer Bids January 9th

A review of H. N. Wieman's book, "The Source of Human Good", was presented by Professor Burkhardt, professor of philosophy at Cedar Crest College, at a combined meeting of the chapters of Alpha Kappa Alpha, honorary philosophy fraternity, of Cedar Crest and Muhlenberg held Thursday, December 5, at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house.

Plans for distributing bids to prospective new members were made, the initiation date being set at January 9. A discussion and social hour followed Professor Burkhardt's talk.

The next meeting of the fraternity will take place December 19, and will feature a panel discussion on a topic not yet announced.

Cast Ready For Dec. 16-17 Assembly Show

A three-in-one feature will be presented to the student body Monday and Tuesday evenings, December 16 and 17 in the Science auditorium as the third assembly program of the current semester. A one-act play combining the talents of the Mask and Dagger Club and the Cedar Crest Chimes Club, a novel student musical interlude, and movies of the Mule-Blue Hen battle will comprise the evening's entertainment.

The question—should wives sleep at home?—will be answered adequately in the John E. T. Rogers directed one-act play entitled, "Wives Should Sleep at Home". The comedy, written by a friend of Rogers, revolves about a quarrel between George Curly and his wife Liela. One thing leads to another and that eventually leads the entrance of the moving men who have come to remove the household articles at the request of Mrs. Curly. The ensuing battle comes finally to an amicable finale, and we are left only with self evident truth that woman's mind is a changeable thing. Mask and Dagger participants include Robert Kantra, James Bensinger, and two moving men, not as yet selected. Alice Adams and Gloria Marks are presented by the Chimes Club.

The "Four Mule Kicks", making their first appearance on the stage, will include in their repertoire: "Exactly Like You", "Rose Room", "Mess in F", "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town", and a medley made up of "Can't Get Started With You", "Ghost of a Chance", and "Embraceable You". The Kicks, a piano, trumpet, guitar and bass fiddle, are in that order James Gross, Thomas Evans, Hugo Yanneli, and Nathan Smith.

Play by play movies of that titanic fight at Wilmington between the Mules and Hens will be shown by Dr. John V. Shankweiler.

Next Week Ushers In Yuletide Season

If Old Man Weather in the next few days finally decides to usher in the winter, next week should see the Christmas spirit abroad on the campus. The Benfers' annual party for the West Hall Freshmen comes on Tuesday night, in the midst of cramming for those last minute pre-Holiday tests. And then Thursday afternoon, (by which time half the student body will probably have packed a bag ready to shove off), the annual Cedar Crest-Muhlenberg Christmas program will be held in the Chapel at 4 p.m.

College Names H. MacGregor New Treasurer

Dr. Tyson announced at the end of a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees on Monday night that Howard M. MacGregor had been named to the post of Treasurer of Muhlenberg College.

Mr. MacGregor on January 1 will relieve Ned Keiter of his duties as acting Treasurer, which post he has held since the death of Dr. Oscar Bernheim last February.

A married man and the father of three children of 10, 7, and 3 years, Mr. MacGregor brings his family to Allentown from Decatur, Georgia, where he has been assistant Business Manager and assistant Treasurer at Agnes Scott College since 1939. He also served as Treasurer and Bursar of Queens College in Charlotte, North Carolina, and taught advanced accounting and commercial law there from 1939 to 1943.

He was born in Frederick, Maryland, and graduated from Johns Hopkins in 1934. Before going to Agnes Scott, he gained some experience in the field of banking and accounting.

"Christians and Politics" MCA Topic On Wednesday

Mr. James C. Lanshe, prominent Allentown lawyer and County Assistant District Attorney, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Muhlenberg Christian Association on December 18 in the Chapel Lounge at 7:30 p.m. A 'Berg graduate in the Class of 1930, Mr. Lanshe has chosen as his topic, "Christian Attitudes and Responsibilities Towards Economic and Government Affairs". His topic, which should command the attention of all Christians, will be followed by an open discussion. The meeting will also include a brief business session.

The devotional group, a part of the Christian Association, will meet in the Chapel Lounge, Wednesday, December 19 at 7:30 p.m. The program entitled, "Peace and the Prince of Peace" is open to all students and faculty members.

After Christmas a group is to be formed under the guidance of Dr. Victor Johnson, and will have as its aim a more intensive research and investigation into the problems under the general topic of "Christian Responsibility Towards World Government".

Frosh Meet Sophs In Tug-of-War

Next Wednesday, December 18, the Sophs will be out to even the score with the quantitatively impressive Frosh Class, when, remembering the 27-12 defeat at the hands of the freshmen, they enter into the annual Tug-of-War down at Cedar Creek. Barring weather conditions which make the struggle altogether impossible the two classes will meet in the traditional contest to determine who will dunk whom in the creek which separates the two colleges.

Carl Reimer, Robert Kishbaugh, and Robert Rankin comprise the committee planning the battle.

The annual Cedar Crest-Muhlenberg Christmas Program will be held on Thursday, December 19 at 4 p.m. in the Muhlenberg chapel.

The program will include the singing of familiar Christmas carols, and the Cedar Crest choir, under the direction of Mr. Wilbur Hollman, and the Muhlenberg choir under the direction of Dr. H. K. Marks will each render two numbers. Dr. Marks and Mrs. Wilbur Hollman will be the organizers for the program.

It is customary for the president of the two colleges to alternate each year in giving the Christmas address. This year, Dr. Dale Moore, President of Cedar Crest, will give the address. The prayer will be given by Dr. Tyson and the invocation and Benediction by chaplain Doberstein. The scripture will be read by Dr. Burkhardt, chaplain of Cedar Crest.

The program will be broadcast over station WSN and arrangements have been made for an hour broadcast beginning at four o'clock.

Every effort will be made to accommodate everyone possible who wishes to attend the program. The program will be attended by the faculties and student bodies of both Cedar Crest and Muhlenberg.

Immediately following the Chapel service Thursday, another unique Muhlenberg Christmas tradition, the annual tree-lighting ceremony, will take place. The tall Colorado Blue Spruce, which stands on the front of the campus between the Chapel and the President's Home, for a number of years has been strung with blue lights and lit at an impressive little ceremony just before the students go home for Christmas. Usually some dignitary is called upon to climax the program by throwing the switch which lights the tree.

Sunday afternoon, after the student body has left the campus, the faculty will continue the Christmas festivities when Chaplain Doberstein holds a brief Chapel service for the children of the faculty at 4:15 p.m. The service every year has been followed by a children's party given by Mrs. Tyson. This year no less than 56 faculty kids will be feted in the President's Home, and Santa Claus (who speaks Pennsylvania Dutch and bears a striking resemblance to a Muhlenberg professor of German) will make his appearance.

DEAN'S NOTICE

Dean Sherwood W. Mercer announced this week that the Christmas vacation will begin on December 21st at 12:30 p.m. This means that students may leave the campus for the holiday recess immediately after they have attended their last class on Saturday, December 21st. The last meal to be served in the College Commons will be lunch on that Saturday noon. The college will resume its classes on Thursday, January 2nd, at 8:00 a.m. The first meal to be served in the Commons after the vacation with breakfast on January 2nd.

Dean Mercer expressed a wish that all the students would have a most enjoyable holiday. Dean Mercer also wishes to remind the students that all cuts taken on the days immediately preceding and following the vacation count as double cuts.

As Thousands Starve . . .

American Students Plan Aid

As a nation of Americans sat down to tables groaning under the ponderous weight of traditional Thanksgiving dinners complete with all the trimmings, few people probably gave much thought to the paltry meals that emaciated men, women and children were eating that same day in the war-ravaged countries of the world.

As the average American student goes through his week of college classes, embellished with basketball games, dances, and movies, it is likewise improbable that he gives much thought to just how his fellow students are living at the Sorbonne, some wrecked college buildings in the Philippine Islands or a university at Chungking.

Yet surely it is of vital concern to every American student exactly how his fellow students, spread over the face of the earth, are existing. And some of these conditions which college men in Europe or Asia are conquering make any local housing problem or shortage of spoons in the Commons look like sheer Paradise.

POLISH HARDSHIPS

For example, in Poland the young men of that nation, after enduring six years of war and all the Hell their Nazi conquerors could devise for them, returned to find instead of some place in which they could continue their education merely burned out shells of buildings. In place of treasured libraries were only scenes of destruction and sacking. Competent faculty members had been enslaved, destroyed, or imprisoned, sometimes just because of whom their ancestors had been.

Yet today these same Polish youths are going to class in makeshift class-rooms, sharing what few text-books are left, and living on a starvation diet.

In France conditions have become so bad that students are actually too weak to attend lectures. Weakened by the rigors of war, the bodies of these college students fall easy prey to diseases.

In war-time China the record of colleges and universities is nothing short of heroic. Whole colleges—faculty, books, and students—were transported inland to escape the Jap invader. Transplanted in the soil of western China these make-shift schools flourished, so that throughout the world the vital process of education has persevered in spite of all conceivable handicaps.

AMERICAN'S ATTITUDE

The typical college student in the United States, viewing these facts, undoubtedly agrees that the need is urgent and the demands pressing. He may recall how in war he and the youth of other lands stood shoulder-to-shoulder; he may realize that cooperation and understanding among the students of today is one of the surest guarantees of peace tomorrow of One World.

But he may also ask, "How am I, one individual, able to do anything in the face of so great a need? Or how is it physically possible to aid?"

American students, however, have already seen the task and with characteristic vigor have tackled the job. With the cooperation of the YMCA, Catholic student organizations and the Hillel movement, the Jewish group, the World Student Service Fund has been set up to undertake the work.

The organization, directed by some of America's leading educators and humanitarians, has offices in Geneva, Switzerland, and Shanghai, China. Through these offices contributions are put to work immediately where they do the most good, helping foreign students and teachers financially, supplying books, clothing, food, and equipment.

The World Student Service Fund met a similar emergency after the first World War. Following the Japanese invasion of China the group was reorganized in 1937. Since then it has spread its work annually until the present, all-embracing program was reached.

While American students are not alone in this undertaking since groups in England, France, Argentina, Australia, New Zealand, and even China are cooperating, it is on their shoulders that the major burden of the fund-raising drive must fall. The American goal is two million dollars to aid 400,000 students in Europe and Asia.

MUHLENBERG AIDS WSSF

Drives have been conducted on neighboring campuses during the past year. Representatives of the most important organizations on the Muhlenberg campus have been meeting to map out Muhlenberg's part in the job. Men from the Student Council, Interfraternity Council, and the MCA head the work. Details are to be announced in next week's WEEKLY.

The need is gigantic. The opportunity is unprecedented.

WAY BACK WHEN . . .

by Larry Tully

Ten years from now I'll be bouncing young Ethelridge on my knee and trying to do the same thing that all generations of fathers try to do some time or another—namely, impress the young chip off the old block with the hardships the old pater had to endure when he was a boy. No longer will the sissy stories of fighting off Indians or walking through ten miles of blizzard bring that look of awe and respect into the kid's eyes, for the modern offsprings are getting harder and harder to impress. Instead I intend to get my kid running to meet me with pipe and slippers in his hand by telling him a story that will be one of the epics of impressionism, or, in other words, the tale of the post war life at Muhlenberg College. It will go something like this:

"Son", I'll say, "put yourself in my shoes when I was a boy. They got big holes in them, haven't they. Here, try another pair, you'll get a worthwhile fit yet. Oh yeah, what I'm trying to say is this, son. I've kept it a secret all these years, but I was one of the fortunate ones who survived the Muhlenberg hardships directly after the end of the Second World War."

That will be my punch line, and while he's sitting there dazed with worship and reverence, I'll continue with, "You really don't mind wearing Daddy's old shoes, do you?" That will be a big point, for at the rate I'm going, I don't see how I'll ever be able to buy even sandals for my kids.

Then I'll start telling him about the life I'm now leading, and the indelible scars it has left on me. (I don't think that I'll ever be able to wash off that green paint which seeped through my clothes while I slept two nights on a park bench before I could get a room near the college.) When I get to the part where I took out a $5,000 insurance policy on my landlady and then pushed her in front of the milk train to keep alive until my V.A. checks started to arrive, he'll surely break out in tears.

The stories of how I lost two ribs in Kenny's when the guy standing behind me got disgusted with the two hour wait and decided he wouldn't go out hungry after all, and the scares I used to get when I walked into the pitch black classrooms during my morning schedule will surely have his hair standing on end. I'll then clinch the deal with an account of the public's reaction to my attempts at writing for the Muhlenberg WEEKLY, such as the job I had getting rid of the tar and feathers after I wrote a feature article on how football originated, how I was trapped and almost burned at the stake in the Rose Gardens after I wrote about a blind date I had with one of the Cedar Crest student body, and why I never let Sammy the tailor fix my clothes after I gave him a little free publicity.

By this time I'll not only have the kid wearing my old shoes but he'll also be sporting the pants with the seat torn out in honor of his old man's being thrown out of the Lyric the time the bouncer forgot to let go.

OBITER DICTA . . .

Bucknell Furor

by Dave Tyson

The Bucknell student body has been up in arms lately over the poor showing the Bisons gridders made this season. Brunt of their attacks has been Coach Al Humphreys, who finished his first post-war season with 3 victories and 6 defeats. It is reported that 1500 names were signed under a student body petition calling for the ouster of Humphreys on the grounds that he had the football material but produced no results.

A look at the record is enough to convince you that the teams it played were better than Bucknell. The Bisons have nothing to be ashamed of. Their team made a good showing against all its opponents. Take their game with us, for instance. They gave Muhlenberg one of the toughest battles in its campaign, finally lost by a single touchdown.

Later when Bucknell met Delaware, they had everybody on both the Delaware and Muhlenberg campuses holding their breath for fear the Bisons would mar the Blue Hens perfect record before the Mules could get a crack at it. Not until late in the game was Delaware able to turn on the power to break the tie and win, 27-14. Other Bucknell losses were conceded to Cornell, Penn State, Temple, and Rutgers, all of them top Eastern teams, who just happened to field teams this year more powerful than Bucknell.

Muhlenberg has been down before, but never out. This season's victory over Bucknell, for instance, was the first in 30 years. Somebody always has to lose. In the past it was Muhlenberg. And with other seasons coming along, it is not unlikely that Muhlenberg will again lose football games, some of them probably to Bucknell. The old saying, trite as it is, that every dog has his day, applies here.

When a college becomes overambitious athletically, as Bucknell seems to have done, the whole spirit of the game is lost in the clamor for victory among the student body, alumni, and followers, who feel that to lose is a disgrace. What a far cry that kind of high-pressure football is from the informal game originally played by untrained rough-and-tumble undergrads.

EAST HALL STUDENTS

The Awful Truth

By Mike Rogers

Sounds like "Eddie Donovan" night at Rockne Hall when the gals start to swoon. Some of the fair ones have dubbed him ADORABLE, and the gang is now calling him "Addie". . . WEEKLY is on the trail of reviving the Radio Program 'Berg used to put on the air in past years with Dr. Carl Boyer as the bossman . . . Spotted Dick Holben and Mrs. in Hess Bros. Dick had that worried look about him, did she smack the ole' pocketbook, Dick???

Rog Volpe and the very nice Floss are taking up where they left off before Rog sailed away for Uncle Sambo. Floss is a dance instructor at A. Murrys and the two are all the time practicing . . . Note that Don Miller has resigned from school. Now he's racking up the sales for Witwer-Jones . . . Card from Hy and Doris Gere to the effect that the population of Harrisburg has increased by one with the entrance of their daughter Susan Hazel. Hy was a member of the Navy crew here after his hitch in the SOPAC . . .

OPEN LETTER TO THE STUDENT BODY:—There has been much comment on the changing of the basketball game to conflict with the Senior Ball tomorrow night. Regardless of our personal feelings on the matter, it's done and that's that. The big thing now is to get all you guys and your fraus to hit Rockne Hall for the game and then quick like a bunch of rabbits, head for the dance. The brawl will last until 2 a.m. and that is time enough to wear out the little woman's feet. The committee would like as many to wear formal as possible, but the dress is optional, with strict formal or semi-formal attire the dress of the night. That semi-formal stands for the gals in the finery, and the fellas in the old burlap jobs.

All hands regret the incident and we have assurance that in the future there will be more consideration given to Student Activities when situations like that occur . . .

The posies this week go to Bibighaus, Crider, Bell, Dean, and Sikorski for being named to All-State team. We'd like to toss in the names of John Sweatlock and Carm Sbordone for some posies also . . . The many kicks about the seating at Rockne Hall have brought some results . . . We checked the "Four Mule Kicks" recently and they are really hot. Needing a vocalist at this point, the outfit is rounding into shape nicely . . . What's the scoop on Miss Barbara Schantz and the Senior Ball, who is the lucky guy and what's the dope on a last minute change? . . . Jack Gaskill is making hurried trips from home in Jersey to Emmaus, now who can that be and how can she be so efficient in Haps' office every day with dates at night???

Big John Fitzgerald journeyed home to Indianapolis to visit a very ill grandmother this past week-end. Coach Bud Barker is heading for home after the Newark game to be with Barker who is also ailing. Good wishes to all the sick list and speedy recoveries to the parties involved.

Earl Repp at the Moravian Game sans the Mrs. Whatsmatta pal, no more buddy-buddy with the lady??? Coal strike over has loused up many plans to spend the looong winter evenings snuggled up with the leading lady. Now you have to hope for the furnace to go out fellas . . .

Jim Schell untied the engagement knot over the Turkey Day vacation back in the home town of Alaquipa, maybe that's the reason Jim has been feeling soooo GAY of late . . . Also on the nuptial docket is the rumor that Prent Beers will take that long walk about February with Haps Benfer tying the knot, please confirm Mr. Beers . . .

Methinks that "Jarge" Bibighaus will announce that he and the gal friend will take up each other's options shortly before Xmas . . . Janoshok was very much in evidence with a very nice young lady from over the hospital way by the name of Jessie. They must be old pals because they couldn't have gotten that friendly in such a short time . . . Cy Davis hi-tailing it for Harrisburg almost every week-end; that must be quite the deal, Cy, or is it just to see the folks? . . .

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO SAMMY?

[UNCLE, THAT IS]

by Esalg

Has anyone here seen a VA check, and if they have who do they know in Washington and why don't I? . . . I once had a check from VA, you know they are those green card-board things drawn against the US Treasury's account with the Federal Reserve Banks; but that was a long time ago . . . Now I am trying to make a loan to pay Household Finance from whom I floated a loan to pay Personal Finance who loaned me two bucks to get my Economics Book out of hock to study for a test last week . . . In case anyone wonders what takes Herb Musselman so long to type those tracers, it's because he has a German typewriter and has to translate into German before he can find the right keys to punch . . . The fellow who passed out in the, "if you don't get in fifteen days see me again" line was a Veteran of the Spanish American War, not World War II. His dying words were, "I don't believe there is a VA office in Upper Darby." . . . John Kerin tried to end it all but nobody had the price of a bullet . . . I got it from a fellow who works for a living who heard a guy tell a fellow that a friend of his was riding the "Flying Coffin" when he heard someone say that a friend of his has a pal who dates a girl who goes to night school with a VA agent who claims that a new form is in the making to supercede all other forms so that by 1952 all checks will be caught up . . . The other day I was shocked to see a student clad in olive-drab picking a cigarette-butt out of the butt-can in front of the WEEKLY Office; shocked because I thought I was the only one snipping from that can, we now have an agreement—he gets the butts on Tuesdays and Thursdays, I get them on Mondays and Wednesdays; Fridays are free-lance days. Please, fellows, keep out of that can excepting Fridays, it's a closed corporation . . . Oh, yes, if you see a fellow collecting the unused or slightly used crackers in the Book Shop, he isn't reselling them as K. Conrad thought—he is feeding the checkless-Vets in West Hall . . . On the newest VA forms a question will be asked, "when did you eat last?" . . . Y. Chomicki claims he has become so decrepate that his family refuses to recognize him, I think that is blaming too much on VA . . . Ex-Air Force W. Glase tried to go over Musselman's head by filing a pay voucher with VA, but it was revoked when he claimed flying pay for time spent on the third floor waiting to see Mussey . . . E. Wallander believes that the whole thing is a conspiracy to increase Army enlistments—when you're hungry you'll do almost anything . . . I hear even Kilroy hasn't had a check for three months, no wonder he hasn't been around lately . . . If C. Quinn soon doesn't get a check he won't be able to play those Juke Box recordings of the "Missouri Waltz" and cry in his beer . . . The records are being transferred to Upper Darby—another batch of Carrier-Pigeons left the Customs House for there Friday afternoon . . . M. Fidorac threatens to write to Brother J. Stalin unless he gets a check . . . K. Conrad is applying for a coffee concession in the Ciarla Office for Tuesdays and Thursdays . . . In New York it's meet you under the clock at the Astor; at Muhlenberg it's meet you in the VA Line.

WHO IS FISCHER?

by Bob Hale

Last week a letter was published in the WEEKLY agitating for an extension of the Christmas recess period. The signer of that letter was one BENNET I. FISCHER, a name which probably escaped the attention of many of you. But to some of us still haunting this campus the name of Fischer—Benny Fischer—is worthy of particular note, for it is no ordinary name nor is its possessor an ordinary individual. I set the WEEKLY aside, breathed a sigh of satisfaction and reassurance. I knew at last the name of Fischer was not dead. In truth, Benny was still with us—a name as steeped in tradition as it is magnified by more than a decade of legendry, per se, patient reader, a name to remember.

Who is Fischer? What is Fischer? Even, why is Fischer? All this will become clear to you, I hope, as I unravel this story. In this case I feel it is more than a mere duty I have to sustain and propagate a legend or tradition: It is even a sacred responsibility. The long line of 'Berg men who would never let the Fischer legend die is an impressive one. Not the least prolific among these was a lad named Dennis Webster, who, in a series of articles appearing in the WEEKLY in January 1943, undertook the periodic revival of the Fischer legend in all its preposterous glory. The result was truly a masterpiece of revival. Denny, definitely a wheel about the campus, was my roommate in those days, and I, in my sophomore solicitude, was appropriately typed to digest in full the legend. "Roomie" passed the baton to me, and for what it's worth I'm passing it onto you—don't drop it. Denny won't mind a bit of plagiarism as I, for posterities sake, renew the facetious facts of the Fischer fiasco.

My story begins in 1936, the start of the Fall term. Two men came to Muhlenberg from relative obscurity to make a mark for themselves—the one, Ernest Flothmeier, unquestionably a character (and who isn't?), the other, his friend, Benny Fischer. So far everything seems in order and perfectly harmless and would have been had Benny ever existed; for, you see, Fischer was the brainchild of a dangerously inventive and uncommonly original mind. Created artistically by Flothmeier, Bennet (some legend prefers Benjamin) was destined to be eternally incorporate, a pure figment of a fertile imagination.

Flothmeier induced the professors to sign up his friend Fischer in the various courses without having him actually appear, this little man who wasn't there. Fischer was thus enrolled at 'Berg in the very same courses as his progenitor, and like Mary's lamb "everywhere that Ernie went Benny was sure to go". At first, when the roles were called both Ernie and Benny would answer, but as time passed Ernie became negligent and allowed Benny to overcut alarmingly. The faculty needless to say became perplexed at the strange and excessive absences of this singular student. The confounded state into which his prank had thrust his professors illustrated the uncanny success of his venture. In the meantime, Flothmeier reaped the harvest of the forethought which placed Fischer's name next to his alphabetically, since in most of his classes he was conveniently supplied with an empty chair beside him where he could deposit alternately or simultaneously his books and feet.

The greatest triumph of the dual personality set-up came, however, with Ernie's or should I say Benny's, clashes with the Freshmen Tribunal. Consistent with his pretense of the double existence, he possessed two identification buttons, one with his own and one with Benny's name inscribed thereon. As Benny, he ran the gamut of all the possible infractions of frosh regulations. As Benny, he could violate flagrantly the most sacred of traditions. Of course Benny was caught consistently and with monotonous regularity. His name was turned into the high court, and he was summoned to appear. He just never showed up. When, as it frequently happened, Ernie was stopped on the campus by a suspicious upper-classman and accused of resembling the wayward Fischer he was quick to produce his Flothmeier button and the naive, conforming attitude of a timorous frosh. Without conjecture we can see the enormous possibilities of the weapon which Ernie had at his disposal, and he was using it for all it was worth.

Here was a man who, although he could not be in two places at once, could perform the feat of being in the same place at once twice. Confusing, isn't it? But so was Ernie for that matter. More was to spring from this unique mind in the four years to come, for as he grew academically so also did he wax as a practical joker. This leads to another column which, being properly inspired, I shall endeavor to write at a later date.

MULE KICKS

Certain Muhlenberg College students should be thoroughly ashamed of themselves for the unsportsmanlike spectacles they made of themselves in the opening basketball game against Moravian.

The team was having a tough time getting started and good cheering was the perfect medicine. We were trailing by a few points at the end of the first quarter, so instead of few thunderous cheers to raise their spirit, the HIGH SCHOOL HARRYS hushed everyone up and the cheerleaders finished the cheer without any response. They quit immediately after that—no one blames them a bit.

I think that if those FEW CHILDREN responsible would apologize to our cheerleaders—who work—"for-free"—we might have them back for the next game.

Memo

John H. Wagner, Alumni Secretary

Page 13 of the 1946-47 edition of the M book contains a little paragraph entitled, "The Offer of the College" which I think is so important to student light today that I should like to reproduce it.

"To be at home in all lands and ages: to count nature a familiar acquaintance, and art an intimate friend: to gain a standard for the appreciation of other men's work, and the criticism of your own: to carry the keys of the world's library in your pocket, and to feel its resources behind you in whatever task you undertake: to make hosts of friends among the men of your own age who are to be leaders in all walks of life: to lose yourself in generous enthusiasms and cooperate with others for common ends: to learn manners from students who are gentlemen and to form character under professors who are Christians—this is the offer of the College for the four best years of your life."

Remember the cheer leaders at the Moravian game last week?

MULES READY FOR BOWL GAME SAT.

Cagers Maul Newark, 86-34 As Donovan Runs Wild

The wheels down at Rockne Hall could have conserved their coal supply in the event of another strike last night, and left the heating of the barn to Harry Donovan. Harry was the big gun in 'Berg's rout of the Newark club, which wasn't in the game after five minutes of play.

The Mules looked better against the unorganized Jersey boys, but still showed room for improvement. Their backboard play against a team, that they dwarfed ridiculously, was disappointing at times.

'Berg led in the first quarter 27-12, on dead shooting from the floor by McGee, Bornheimer and H. Donovan, and buckled down after playing somewhat ragged ball to lead 49-20 at the half. By this time Harry Donovan had put on a bewildering display of set shots to break the Mule record of 27 points set by himself and "Red" Baldwin. The kid couldn't miss.

The fans were crying for Harry and the team to run the score up, and they were obliged in fitting style. Bornheimer showed a lot of poise and savvy in sinking some sweet stabs and follow ups. Barker again substituted freely in an effort to find the combination with the scoring punch, and was not let down, with practically every man getting his share of the glory.

Looking particularly good last night were Dick McGee, who played a clever backboard game, Ed Schwob, and Chuck Theisen.

Jayvees Make It Two

Led by the sharp shooting and floor work of Jensen and Arrison, the Little Mules led the way for their bigger counter-parts by knocking off the Newark Jayvees, 46-25.

Ritter Starts Intramurals

The plans for the long awaited intramural basketball program are nearing realization, the only obstacle being the need for a substitute barracks for the frosh who call the gym their home. According to Bill Ritter, the program will get under way as soon as the dorms near East Hall are completed.

All clubs, fraternities, and halls who desire to enter the league or leagues which will be formed are asked to pick a manager or representative to represent their team and get in contact with Bill Ritter in the West Hall Athletic office.

The only rule is that no student may represent more than one team in the league. The games will be played on the gym floor and will be officiated by students, who are interested in becoming members of the National Board of Officials. All games will be supervised by Bill Ritter who will have the final say on all rules or disputes which may arise.

The games will be played between 4:30 p.m. and study hour each evening, except when varsity athletic contests are being held.

The number of games played will depend upon the number of teams which will enter competition, each team will play the other one or probably two times.

BIB, CRIDER LAUDED

George Bibighaus and Jack Crider show top flight form which rated them berths on mythical "dream" elevens.

The A. P. sports scribes heaped a few more bouquets of posies on the Muhlenberg football team with the naming of George Bibighaus to the first string Little All-American and All-State teams, and Jack Crider as first string All-State halfback.

Bibighaus was acclaimed as an outstanding defensive end and pass receiver, catching seven touchdown passes for 42 points during the past season. Jack Crider won national recognition for himself and the Mules by marking 90 points to lead the east in scoring.

Also receiving mention on the All-State eleven were Ed Sikorski, Bill Bell, and Irv Dean.

MULES RATED BY OPPONENTS

In response to a letter sent to the coaches of the Muhlenberg football opponents, requesting the coaches to name the outstanding lineman and back of the Muhlenberg team, the WEEKLY has received the following response:

Coach "Hooks" Mylin, Lafayette—Linemen, Bibighaus, Reimer; Backs, Bell, Crider, Sikorski.

Coach Bill Murray, Delaware—Linemen, Dean; Back, Bell.

Coach Bill Leckonbey, Lehigh—Linemen, Bibighaus; Back, Crider.

Coach Larry Rosati, Moravian—Linemen, Bibighaus; Back, Bell.

Coach Charley Soleau, F. and M.—Linemen, Averno; Back, Bell.

Temple Edges Berg, 34-33

A defense-conscious Temple team opened their season in fitting style by edging out Muhlenberg, 34-33, at Convention Hall Saturday. Temple took every break they had, and utilized them to full advantage to lead the Mules in a four-year series by the count of four games to two.

ROCKNE HALL

The Athletic Department has announced that the seating arrangement for the basketball games will be as follows:—Students will occupy sections "E and F", rows 7 thru 20; section "G", rows 16 thru 20. All rows must be occupied by 25 students. This is the same number of seats sold to season ticket holders for each row and must be followed by the students for allowance of all to have seats. All these seats are on the main floor and no student seats are on the balcony. Ushers will be on hand to direct seating and to facilitate the handling of large crowds it is asked that students please cooperate. Those students desiring another ticket for a date will purchase same at the box office for each game.

The Muhlenberg attack looked immensely improved after the generally poor showing against Moravian, and will be tough to beat in any league.

Temple led by the amazingly low score of 17-16 at the half, by holding the Mules to only six goals from the field.

McGee scored on a sweet hook shot in the second half to put 'Berg ahead, and from then on it was anybody's ball game, with the lead changing hands more often than a lead nickel.

With three minutes to play the Templars led 34-29, when two quick buckets by McGee, one on a follow up and the other a long hook, brought the Mules within one point of a tie. Temple began to freeze the ball, giving up four fouls in order to keep possession. Eddie Schwob was charged, but failed to convert, and Jake Bornheimer missed a tough one under the basket as the game ended.

Sweatlock Named Captain; Beers Placed On Injured List

Once defeated Muhlenberg College versus once beaten St. Bonaventure College in the first annual Tobacco bowl Game at Lexington, Kentucky on December 14th. That's the official word on ticker tapes throughout the nation as the 1946 football season comes to its end.

Sincerest sympathy is extended to John Sweatlock by the entire Muhlenberg College, on the recent passing of his mother. John has been at his home in Hazleton for the past few days. He will leave for Lexington, Kentucky today, by train, and join his teammates there, where he will captain the Mules in the Tobacco Bowl game.

Administration, faculty, and students join in with their expressions of sympathy and gratitude to John for his great display of spirit in an hour of bereavement.

Both teams received considerable note when members of the two teams were chosen on the Little All-American team for this season. Phil Colella, star back for the Bonnies, and the Mules' stellar end, George Bibighaus were placed on the first team of the select outstanding smaller colleges in the nation.

The game, a charity affair, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Lexington, is expected to draw in the vicinity of 20,000 spectators. Both squads are near top physical shape and have been hard at work with pre game drills paying particular attention to defensive tactics.

John Sweatlock, Senior from Hazleton, has been chosen Captain for the game and will lead the Mules in their first venture into post season competition. Sweatlock, a center, has been outstanding for his defensive play and calling of defensive signals throughout the season.

The Cardinal and Gray stock took a slump when it was disclosed that Prent Beers, blocking back will not be available for the game on account of injuries. Beers played defensive tackle and was a stalwart. Quint and Keefe are the replacements who will fill the vacant spot.

Putting the damper to 'Berg hopes, somewhat, is the recurrence of injuries to Sisto Averno standout tackle and a strong point in the 'Berg line. Hal Roveda and Harry Mackin have also been bothered with aches and bruises but it is hoped that by game time, all will be ready for action. The passing will be handled by Bill Bell and the kicking chores will again fall to Diz Dean. Both Bell and Dean have received considerable favorable comment for their work in their respective duties this season.

Quite a large crowd of Allentownians is expected to make the trip to Lexington to spur the Mules on. The team has plans to leave by air for the game on Thursday the 12th.

Handicappers are quoting the teams as just about even with a slight edge to St. Bonaventure, with all things being equal and on a dry field.

SIDE COURT STABS...

by Herb Needleman

The fog crept into Convention Hall on little canvas shoes last Saturday. Maybe that was the reason the shots were rimming the basket and dropping—out.

After five minutes of play the refs—they were those two actors with whistles—should have called time to measure the diameter of the hoop.

The powers that be should do something about the smoke in that arena. Half of the people didn't know that the final score was anything else but Tickets 3.25—Visibility 0.

We still don't know what happened after Temple started to play "monkey in the middle" with the ball in the last two minutes of play. The fan next to us lit another rope and sent up an odorous cloud of smoke that kept us in the dark until the final foghorn.

A loss at the beginning of the season can be pretty disheartening, but the team certainly looked first rate, even in defeat. Dick McGee and Ed Donovan missed some tear-jerkers from the pivot that would have been the margin.

The need for better back-board play was clearly shown, as Temple took the ball off of both boards without too much argument.

Temple won, and in beating a good team, they established themselves as a power in the East. We don't like to sound bitter, but they did not look like a top flight club Saturday. Defensively they were great, and the low score is not as indicative of a mediocre offense as of close guarding. Dave Fox followed Harry Donovan around as if Harry had the answers to an exam. Something was lacking in the Temple offense, though, and that lack could be spelled Rullo or Hewson. Ball movers like Jerry Rullo and pivot men of Hewson's stripe come along about as frequently as taxis outside of Convention Hall, and if you didn't have a car Saturday, you know what we mean.

Jocko Collins acted as if he'd tired of this officiating racket, and was looking for something new. Maybe someone told him there was a Hollywood talent scout in the hall.

The refs must have become unionized, or read a book about professional dignity. Their calling of four technicals in one game was something of a record.

That's more than a fan will see the entire season.

The ads in the papers that announced that a double header was being played were guilty of stretching the truth somewhat. That first game bore a striking resemblance to a track meet—at times it became pathetic. The entire St. Joe attack is to run their opponents off their feet.

We're putting out a call for a couple of guys who like and know sports, and would want to do some work for us. If interested, please contact us in the WEEKLY office.

Mules Have Two Little All-Americans

Tony Stalloni, who played a ferocious tackle game against the Mules at Delaware, was named to the Little All-American right tackle slot, and Phil Colella, former Notre Dame halfback, now at St. Bonaventure, was far and away the outstanding back.

Pete Gorgone, former star tailback, now with the New York Giants, is the only other Mule ball player to receive such an honor besides George Bibighaus, chosen to this year's mythical team.

Alpha Tau Omega Initiates Nine Men

Nine men were initiated into the Muhlenberg Chapter of Alpha Tau Omega on last Friday night and Saturday afternoon.

Initiated on Friday night were: James Leavitt, Lloyd Esslinger, Claude Laudenslager, Leon Loch, John Lush, and Anthony Mazzacca.

John McGrath, William Myers, and John Quinn were initiated on Saturday afternoon.

Senior Ball

(Continued from Page One) evening offers a choice between the Muhlenberg-Princeton basketball game and the Senior Ball, to be followed by an informal dance at the fraternity house. There will be a buffet supper and Christmas party Saturday night, with the plump gentleman in the red suit doing his duty beneath the Christmas tree. Another house dance will follow the party and conclude the festivities.

Chaperones for the affair will be Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Crandall. Bob Oswald, Paul Gesregan and Jim Wilder form the committee in charge of arrangements.

PHI KAPPA TAU

The Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, in the spirit of the approaching season, announces a gala week-end beginning tomorrow night with the Princeton - Muhlenberg cage clash followed by the Annual Senior Ball at Castle Gardens. A Christmas party with all the red and green trimmings will be the Saturday evening attraction at the house when gal and guy dance to recorded music.

The co-chairman of the committee for the Saturday evening affair are Frank DePierro and George Baker.

Plans are now being completed for a party to be given to the underprivileged children of Allentown sometime before the Christmas vacation.

Library Adds Historic Items

Recently, the Library received a gift of original Muhlenberg family material, the gift of Mrs. George Kemp Engelhart of Catasauqua. There are about fifteen items written by or signed by John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg, Gotthilf Henry Ernst Muhlenberg, and Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg, the three sons of Henry Melchior Muhlenberg.

These reveal: John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg as Collector of the Port of Philadelphia, President of the Vine Company, agent for the Marine Hospital in Philadelphia, and Vice-President of the Supreme Executive Council of Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg as first Speaker of the House of Representatives and Pastor of Christ Church in New York City; Gotthilf Henry Ernst Muhlenberg as Pastor of the German Trinity Lutheran Church of Lancaster and President of Franklin College now Franklin and Marshall.

One of the most personal and interesting items is a letter from Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg to his sister Mrs. Christopher Schulze at Tulpehocken.

The Library already had a number of original documents and other material associated with the Muhlenberg family, and is anxious to add to this as much as possible.

Here and There On The Campus

Pre-Theos

The John A. W. Haas Pre-theological Club met in the Library on December 9th at 7:30 p.m. There were eleven members present.

During their by-monthly business meeting the Pre-theos planned for the organization of a basketball team to compete with other groups when intramural sports begin in the new year. A motion to begin Sunday evening services in the chapel, with Cedar Crest, was voted down. Insufficient attendance in the past was cited as a reason for refusal.

Dr. Edward T. Horn, noted for his missionary work among the Japanese, spoke to the club about his experiences. Dr. Horn stated that we are, at present, in the Golden Age of missionary work in the Far East. He further said that in this age, when the peoples of the Orient and India trust and look up to America it is a mistake on the part of all, not to consider the missionary field an integral part of the church and make the most of all opportunities to plant the church in foreign lands.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, January 13th, 1947. At this time the speaker will be Rev. Charles A. Harris.

Students' Wives

The "better halves" of many Muhlenberg students discussed the various problems of being "text-book widows" as the wives of Muhlenberg students met for an informal get-together Tuesday evening. The purpose of this meeting was to show the wives the facilities which the college has provided in West Hall for their use.

The reception room on the main floor and the recreation room and kitchen in the basement have been allotted to the wives for their convenience. These rooms will provide a place for the wives and their studious husbands to spend their spare time during the day. The wives will be able to bring their own lunches and cook for their husbands in the modernly equipped kitchen. Many other facilities have also been provided to make these rooms a social center for Muhlenberg's married couples.

Debating

Nine prospective members for the varsity debating team met on Monday evening, December 9, in the West Hall auditorium and were auditioned by the coach, E. Philip Bollier. Roy Fries, Herbert Garber, Theodore Haas, David Hoh, Charles Kessler, Robert Neeb, Robert Smith, Nevin Snyder, and Alton Wedde comprised the group that debated, extemporaneously, on the topic, Resolved: That Labor Should Have a Direct Share in the Management of Industry.

An important meeting, to be held on Monday evening, January 6, 1947, in the West Hall auditorium, was announced. It will be imperative that all members intending to participate in the activities of the Forensic Council be present at this meeting. Muhlenberg's line of argument, to be used against Temple University, will be set up.

A trip west, to be taken in early spring, has been planned by the Forensic Council. This excursion will highlight the Council's activities for the year.

The Christmas Story

Editor's note: For many years in the past it has been one of the many traditions at Muhlenberg to present the age-old, ever new Christmas story in the issue before the twenty-fifth of December. The WEEKLY this year prints the Story of the Nativity as found in St. Luke's Gospel from the American Standard Revised Version, a new translation that appeared only this year. The account is found in the first twenty verses of the second chapter of St. Luke.

In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled. This was the first enrollment, when Quirinius was governor of Syria. And all went forth to be enrolled, each to his own city. And Joseph also, went up from Galilee, from the city of Nazareth, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be enrolled with Mary, his betrothed, who was with child. And while they were there, the time came for her to be delivered. And she gave birth to her first born son, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And in that region there were shepherds out in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And an angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were filled with fear. And the angel said to them, "Be not afraid; for behold I bring you good news of great joy which shall come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign for you: you will find the babe wrapped in swaddling cloths and lying in a manger." And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly hosts praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is pleased!"

When the angels went away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, "Let us go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened, which the Lord has made known to us." And they went with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they saw it, they made known the saying which had been told them concerning this child, and all who heard it wondered at what the shepherds told them. But Mary kept all these things, pondering them in her heart. And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had seen and heard as it had been told them.

"And They Were Filled With Fear"

The Muhlenberg WEEKLY, in anticipation and commemoration of the Christmas season, reprints on this page the account of the events surrounding the birth of Our Lord as translated into English from the Greek in the Revised Standard Version of the New Testament. The Christmas Story has weathered over nineteen centuries of storm, a storm which has exposed its bold truth to the lashing winds of skepticism, the undercurrents of attack, and the breezes of indifference. Only folly would attribute its survival to mere accident, miracle or chance. Rather it has survived because men can not escape the simple beauty of that first Christmas day, cannot deny the universal truths of its consequence. Without the Christmas Story and its message the season of celebration which we are about to enter would be as empty as a kettle drum, its beat as woefully hollow.

The revelation of Christ's birth was delivered first to the shepherds in the fields. No one knows why these shepherds should be singled out as the first to learn of the great news. Certainly tending sheep was no exalted position which placed the shepherd upon a pedestal, nor did this business more than any other attract men of exceptional character and reputation. Shepherds were day and night laborers. They were rugged men of strong endurance, accustomed to hard work. Some were hired hands; some owned flocks of their own; others were simply following in the footsteps of their fathers. We are sometimes prone to evaluate these shepherds "abiding in the fields" as intensely religious men. A more accurate assumption would be to consider them as a representative cross-section of an agrarian people, law abiding, God-fearing Hebrews, subject to the mores of the era in which they lived.

To these ordinary men involved in a very tedious and unimaginative task there came an angel bearing the message of Christmas. The Bible says "the glory of the Lord shone round about them". The manner in which this glory manifested itself is unknown, but whatever the circumstances these shepherds experienced an almost brutal initial shock. The Revised Version says, "And they were filled with fear". In modern parlance they were paralyzed with fright, if you will, scared to death. Being human, they had lost their wits and had lapsed into a state of great confusion and foundering. The angel then said, "BE NOT AFRAID, for I bring you good news . . . for unto you is born this day . . . a saviour who is Christ the Lord".

With these words of reassurance, "BE NOT AFRAID", they were shaken back to their senses. Logical order replaced the irrational chaos of the troubled minds. Filled with joy and worship at the promise of a new King they said one to another, "Let us go and see this thing that has happened".

Most recently man has reached a new pinnacle of scientific perfection. After centuries of dogged research he has led himself, ironically enough, up a blind alley of progress. He has split the atom and with it the world of thought. It is not comforting to realize that civilization has finally devised a most ingenious means to commit suicide—effectively in the blinding flash of the atom bomb, perhaps even more effectively now by biological methods of extermination. We look at the work of our hands. Have we put a match to the fuse of self destruction? Everywhere we are confronted with the problem—what next? And the answer—Either One World or No World. Which shall it be?

Man, like the shepherd, blinded with fear, gropes to find escape from that which he invented. He is suspicious of his neighbor, wary, nervous, perplexed, anxious—but most of all he is afraid.

Fortunately the Christmas message is not limited chronologically. It applies today, yesterday and tomorrow. Our hope for the future, as we spin helplessly in the whirlpool of fear, still resides in the words delivered to the shepherds on the slopes of Jerusalem's countryside. "FEAR NOT, for unto us is born this day a Saviour which is Christ the Lord" Our fear is allayed thru Christ. In Him the world is more secure. With the shepherds, rejoicing, "Let us go and see this thing which has come to pass".

Student Aid Drive Starts In January

Dr. Dale Moore Speaker At Annual Crest-'Berg Service

A large group of students, faculty, and administrative staff members from Cedar Crest and Muhlenberg this afternoon packed the Gideon F. Egner Memorial Chapel for the annual Christmas Carol service. The principle speaker for the program was Dr. Dale Moore, president of Cedar Crest College. The service was broadcast over WSN.

"Christmas and Spiritual Insight" was the topic of Dr. Moore's address. He stressed the values of real spiritual insight and true religion, compared with mere empty forms and shallow ceremonies, which are shadows of the genuine Christmas spirit. "All too frequently we fail to realize that Christmas is more than candle lighting and tree trimming. There must be a real spirit of Christmas."

Dr. Moore continued by stressing that this real spirit must be applied with insight to the problems of the world today and that honest spiritual insight is the answer to many of these problems.

The Service, which began at four o'clock, featured numbers by the choirs of both colleges. The Muhlenberg Chapel Choir, directed by Dr. Harold K. Marks, presented "An Old French Christmas Carol" and "A Song of Peace." As an organ solo Dr. Marks played a theme and variations on a Fourteenth Century German Carol.

Group singing by the combined student bodies was another important part of the program.

TREE LIGHTING

Another Christmas tradition at Muhlenberg is the lighting of the giant spruce tree on the lawn adjoining Dr. Tyson's home. For many years it was the custom to gather here briefly for a few carols and then to illumine the strings of lights on the tree. Although this was impossible during the war because of restrictions on outdoor lighting, each year the students did gather at the spot and the custom never lapsed. This year the tradition was scheduled to continue immediately after the Chapel Service.

More Assemblies Are Scheduled

Several musical recitals and an address by a distinguished educator are among the events planned for the college's assembly programs during this winter and the following spring. The college is presenting the best talent available for these programs in an effort to provide the students with entertainment of higher quality, Dean of Students Perry F. Kendig announced this week.

The first program for the new semester on February 13, 1947, will feature Thomas Scott, a widely known ballad singer. A few weeks later, the student body and their guests will hear a discussion of the Palestine situation by Professor J. B. Shalloo of the University of Pennsylvania. Professor Shalloo is being presented by the Jewish Chatauqua, an organization which provides many excellent speakers for colleges and universities.

In the spring, the assembly programs will include two unusual musical treats to be presented in the Chapel. E. Power Biggs, world-famous organist and accompanist for the Bethlehem Bach Choir, will give an organ interpretation of immortal musical works. The renowned Bennington String Quartet, one of the country's outstanding string ensembles, will also visit the campus to provide fine musical entertainment for the student body.

Students, I-F Councils, MCA Map Plans For Big Campaign

$2000 is the goal set by Muhlenberg's World Student Service Fund Committee in its drive beginning on January 8 for the war-stricken students of the world. Franklin Sherman, chairman of the committee, has chosen a large team of students and faculty members to carry the drive into every dorm and fraternity house on the campus.

Admission Board For Students Set-up As Trustees Meet

Dean Sherwood Mercer presented to the Board of Trustees in their annual meeting on Tuesday recommendations from the faculty committee on admissions that would revamp the entire admissions procedure of Muhlenberg in anticipation of irregular student personnel problems in the next decade. These included recommendations on the size of the student body, and for the establishment of a program of tests, by which an exact profile of every student could be drawn. Such a profile would be used in counseling the student, not only in regard to his admission to college, but in regard to the type of work he should do while in college and after graduation.

The Board of Trustees approved the recommendations and announced a new Committee on Admissions including Dean Sherwood Mercer, chairman, Dr. Ira Zartman, Prof. George Rickey, Dr. Victor Johnson, and Prof. Floyd Schwartzwalder. President Levering Tyson, Dean of Freshmen Harry Benfer, and Dean Perry F. Kendig were named members ex-officio.

It was announced that admissions next September will be limited to between 155 and 200 freshmen, and each candidate for admission will be required to take the "College Boards", the scholastic aptitude tests of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Dr. John Trainer was advanced to the grade of assistant professor of biology in further action by the Board of Trustees.

President Levering Tyson, in his report to the Board, cited the outstanding work of Muhlenberg's veteran students. "The GI," he said, "has surprised all of us with his general good sense and adaptability." Dean Sherwood Mercer substantiated this statement in his report.

VACATION NOTICE

Classes will commence after the Christmas vacation at 8:00 a.m., Friday, January 3rd, rather than on Thursday, January 2nd, as previously announced.

Phi Eps Resume Activities At Social

In keeping with campus tradition, Phi Epsilon held an informal party Saturday, December 14th at the Jewish Community Center. Mr. George Feldman, executive director, and Muhlenberg alumnus acted as chaperone. Dean Perry Kendig and party attended. The committee in charge of preparation was headed by Bud Dollinger.

The regular meeting will be held this Tuesday night where plans for Phi Epsilon's "Darling" dance will be discussed.

Four ATO Men Sweep Soph Elections

Light balloting in Tuesday's Sophomore Class elections resulted in victory for a quartet of Alpha Tau Omega men. Edward Sullivan and Jack Gilbert, oddly enough reminiscent of a one time effective combine in the musical world, were swept into the leading slots as president and vice-president of the Class of '49 respectively.

Sullivan, a Plainsfield, New Jersey lad, was easy victor in the race for the presidency, but Gilbert, one of Allentown's sons, only nosed out John Mazzacca by a single vote.

Donald Biehn from Philadelphia moves into the secretary's job while William Messler, another man from New Jersey's Plainfield will assume the duties of treasurer. The latter, in another close decision was put into office on a margin of only two votes, winning out over John Walters by that count.

With the organization of the class complete, further activity will now fall on the shoulders of this A.T.O. foursome.

The Freshmen class is completing their elections today, but results are not yet available on this balloting. With the completion of their election all the classes will have been organized.

Bridge Tournament Set; Entries End Saturday

Entries for the first Intercollege Bridge Tournament to be held on a nation-wide scale are flowing in from all parts of the country, it was announced this week by Foster M. Coffin, director of Willard Straight Hall, Cornell University, and chairman of the Intercollege Bridge Tournament Committee.

Muhlenberg College is one of the institutions that already has accepted the invitation to compete in the 1947 National. Invitations were mailed two weeks ago to more than 300 colleges accredited by the Association of American Universities. The Tournament Committee is a group of alumni interested in developing bridge as an intercollegiate sport in which men and women compete on an equal basis.

Twenty-nine states and 49 colleges are represented in the list of entries received to date. The 1947 event will be a duplicate tournament for pairs of undergraduates. Each college will select a "varsity" team of eight—four pairs—by any method it chooses. Two pairs will play a round by mail on the campus on February 12, 13 or 14. The results of this mail play will be scored, and the two highest pairs from each of the eight zones into which the United States has been divided will be invited to Chicago for face-to-face finals in April 18 and 19. The expenses of bringing the finalists to and from Chicago, and during their stay there, are borne by the Intercollege Bridge Tournament Committee. The tournament is open to undergraduates only, and any one college may send only one team to the finals in Chicago. (Continued on Page Four)

Muhlenberg's contribution of $2000 will be part of a nationwide fund of $2,000,000 being raised on campuses from coast to coast.

The drive will be opened on the morning of Wednesday, January 8, with a talk from a speaker from the WSSF national office in New York, and will last for one week, until January 15. A drive for clothing for foreign students, under the direction of Georg Eichorn assisted by Frank Wright, will be run simultaneously.

Dean Kendig will give a brief talk in Chapel on January 9 and a member of the student body on January 10. The drive will concentrate on the faculty and fraternities in the first few days, and will contact the dormitory and town students on January 13, 14, and 15.

Officers of the committee are Franklin Sherman, chairman; Jim Hemstreet, vice - chairman in charge of solicitations; Walter Doberstein, Secretary; Dr. Morris Greth, treasurer. The rest of the committee positions are filled by Jack Reumann, Bob Hale, Dave Tyson, Bob Kishbaugh, Bob Albright, Stan Yarus, Jim Wilder, Dr. John Doberstein, and Dean Perry Kendig.

Teams of solicitors have been picked to campaign in East Hall, West Hall, all the fraternity houses, and among the students living in town. Pledge cards will be distributed in Chapel for students and faculty to fill out. These will be returned as receipts when the contributions are collected.

All students are urged to aid the drive to their utmost, and boost the school's contribution.

ATO House Party This Week-end

Preparations for the first post-war Christmas house party have been completed at the Alpha Tau Omega house. The party, which will be held on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, the 20th, 21st and 22nd of December, will be the most elaborate one held at the ATO house in many years, and is expected to be attended by more men than have any similar occasions in the past.

The entire lower floor of the house has been decorated with red and green, in the traditional yuletide fashion, and no less than seven full-size Christmas trees have been provided.

For the inaugural event of the party, the formal dance on Friday night, the ATO's have secured the services of Claude Lamarr and his orchestra.

On Saturday, from 1:30 until 7:00 p.m., there will be a picnic social following which, from nine until twelve in the evening, there will be an informal record dance.

Sunday will be used for an informal card-game gathering at the house.

Chaperones for the formal dance on Friday are Wilbur Hemstreet, brother of James Hemstreet, president of ATO at Muhlenberg, and Arthur McTige (both of whom are alumni of this chapter of ATO as well as of Muhlenberg) and their wives.

Arrangements for the house party were made under the supervision of a social committee headed by Anthony Marino, and decorations were done by a committee under Charles Mosser.

TIME OUT!...

The staff of the MUHLENBERG WEEKLY takes this opportunity to extend season's greetings to all those of the "Muhlenberg Family."

Along with this goes our sincere wish to serve you, and to present a student publication worthy of the proud title, WEEKLY.

This is the final issue of this year, 1946. On the resuming of school, after the holidays, we will once again try to publish a school paper, by, for, and about the school.

For your kind indulgence and aid, the staff says, "Thanks".

Muhlenberg Men Active In Local AVC Organization

Members of the alumni, faculty, and student body of Muhlenberg have been active in the organization of an Allentown chapter of the American Veterans Committee, Inc. At a recent meeting of the group, George Frounfelker of the Class of 1941, who holds a position with the Allentown branch of the Veterans' Administration, was elected temporary chairman until the chapter is granted a charter by the AVC sometime this winter.

Dick Gottlieb, also of the Class of 1941, was elected temporary vice-chairman at the same meeting; Dave Tyson, Class of '47, was elected temporary secretary; and Catherine Mohr, library assistant, was elected temporary treasurer.

Other members from Muhlenberg include Prof. George Rickey of the Art Department, Mr. Edmund Keiter, Business Manager of the college, Mr. William Wilbur of the History Department, Paul E. Morentz '43, Mike Rogers '47, Dick Harrier '47, Orlando Miller '47, Jim Leiby '49, Dale Johnson '49, Bill Shedlock '50, and Fred Moser '50.

Not to be confused with the Amvets, the AVC is a national organization of World War II veterans, headed by Charles Bolte, national chairman. The Allentown chapter will be one of some 800 from coast to coast and overseas.

The AVC is a democratic organization open to all veterans honorably discharged from the armed services of the United States and its Allies and from the Merchant Marine. Its active interest and participation in national and international affairs has attracted veterans from every walk of life and of every political belief. These include Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Harold Stassen, Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Will Rogers, Jr., Oren Root, Jr., William Batt, Jr., Leverett Saltonstall, Jr., Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug, and Colonel Carlson of the Marines.

Like most organizations or individuals who try and take an active part in present-day affairs, the AVC has been getting some hard knocks. It has been damned by many from Westbrook Pegler to the Daily Worker, but in spite of the smears, the AVC can show some worthwhile results. Most active in local communities, the AVC has fought tooth and nail for adequate housing for veterans, and this fight has been carried into Congressional committee meetings.

Terminal Leave pay for enlisted men, fair distribution of surplus property among veterans, increased subsistence payments to veterans attending school under the GI bill, and more liberal allowances to veterans on farms have been a few of the other issues for which AVC has gone to bat.

Those interested in joining the Allentown chapter are asked to contact Miss Catherine Mohr in the Library or Dave Tyson. The next meeting for members will be on January 6.

The Awful Truth

By John Fitzgerald

Your regular columnist, "Miami Mike" Rogers, not feeling up to par since Tropical Park opened, asked for a little relief from writing this column, so while he's getting a retread on his wits, please bear up with yours truly.

All in all it was a gay weekend. The football team managed to outlast the Bonnies, but the word is that the Major knew what he was talking about when he said, "We'll be lucky if we give them a decent game." It was just a case of being outmanned and outfought by Princeton on Friday night. Congrats to Ernie Fellows and Tex Baldwin however, for their work with a "cold" ball club. With Villanova and Pennsylvania on tap this week it seems quite possible for the Mule stock to hit a three year low. The addition of several footballers should help considerably. It might be a good idea while the team is taking on this new talent to invite a couple of already proven basketballers out for practice...

Tons of roses and praise to the Student Council for the fine Senior Ball Friday night. A great deal of the credit for its success goes to Phil Mitterling and his committee.

Nomination for the sharpest couple at the dance goes to Bennet I. Fischer and Miss Lodestone LaToole, who journeyed all the way from Outer Haunch, Saskatchewan for the event. Look out Bennet, she's got that "woosch" look in her eyes.

Pre-dance party at the 329 Club, chapter house of the Rho Dami Rho, was so successful that none of them got to the dance... Some guys are so horrible they can't find a date in a big city.

Look for one of the big features of this year's M-Club show to be a take off on the faculty by "Brother" John Keefe. There is a lot of humor around the campus if you just look for it.

Former V-12er, Bob Hill, who resigned from the Naval Academy last summer to sign a contract with the Phillies, is planning on returning to Muhlenberg next fall to complete his work for a degree.

Nobody won a nickel on the football game except the bookies. The gambling public will howl about that for the next twenty years, but anybody stupid enough to bet should get stung now and then.

Very much in evidence at the basketball game Friday night were Ed Donovan's bobby socks roofers. He obliged by wearing only one scivvy shirt. Incidentally Ed., how about giving the brunettes and red-heads a chance—blondes aren't the only women in the world...

Notice how the service has picked up in Kenny's store since Les Gore went to work? One of these days, if the service keeps improving, a guy will be able to get his daily ration of sourbelly and chitlings in less than a lifetime.

Is it true that Gordon Daggy, after getting the old "Dear John" is going to join the Navy? If it is true, good luck Gordo, but why drag "Skinless" Lukens in with you—he's tired enough as it is.

Did you notice Dave Tyson and his Columbia coed at the dance? It seems that we're seeing quite a bit of her lately—is it anything serious Dave??? Pablo Markavage kept his record clear with a new lovely. His motto—"You'll never see me with the same girl twice".

Faith in young American manhood reached unprecedented heights Saturday night as Doran, Kessock, Karobeinick, Eskels and Co. ceased operation for the day at the early hour of 2300 with a weak cup of "joe."

Senior Professor Corriere made with the cigaros for the alumnos when Mrs. came through with a bouncing baby nino.

Just think, in a few more hours the big vacation begins. Have fun, finish your term papers, and don't plug up the chimney—Old Santa's coming.

A Debt Unpaid

Once again in the Christmas season the lovely star of Bethlehem shines in our hearts and again, as always, it brings us a message of hope.

For Christmas speaks to us of small beginnings—small beginnings which have grown into great things. We have only to think of what Jesus has already done in the world to feel a glow of profound thankfulness and a thrill of hope that greater things are yet to come from the inspiration and power of Him who was born in Bethlehem.

Do you realize how much we DO owe to Jesus? Think of a hospital. There were no such things before the time of Christ. It is He who touched the heart of mankind with compassion for the sick and suffering. It is He who taught us that any act of kindness to a brother man is an act of kindness done to Himself.

It is He who consecrated marriage and home life—motherhood and childhood. It is He who taught us to seek knowledge and truth—to value all good work for its own sake. By coming to earth as a man, He taught us the dignity of human nature—He showed us how deep is the love of our Father in Heaven for each one of us—a love that doesn't shrink from sending His only begotten Son into the world to teach us, to reveal God to us, to give His life for us.

But above all, we owe to Him our conviction that life has a meaning and purpose to be fulfilled and completed in a fuller, richer life to come.

Let us thank God for all that He has already done for mankind through Jesus Christ our Lord—and let us lift up our hearts in the sure belief that as He has done great things for us already, so in the days to come His truth will go marching on, and His love will grow in the great brotherhood of mankind, and His Kingdom come on earth as it is in Heaven. That you should catch this vision and learn to know your part and place in it is my Christmas wish for you.

Dear Sirs:

Orchids to a great bunch of boys who have bucked tremendous odds AGAIN, and come through on top for us.

Lemons (dozens of 'em) to those who could have AND DID NOT schedule a pre-game Pep-Rally, a royal send-off, and a real welcome home for the team.

Someday someone is going to be rudely awakened unless we pick up this "fumble" and start running again like we did in October and November.

OBITER DICTA Now We Know

by Dave Tyson

That reported ouster petition circulated on the Bucknell campus against Coach Al Humphreys proved to be a dud. Those of us on the outside pictured a tornado striking Bucknell, while actually those on the inside were aware of nothing unusual.

This illusion was built up by an Associated Press reporter at Lewisburg, who just didn't get the word. The Bucknellian of December 12 sets the record straight:

"Contrary to the statement made by the initiators that the petition would be turned over to the (Athletic) Council after signatures were secured, no petition demanding the ousting of Humphreys and his assistant, 'Bus' Blum, was received by the Council.

Through its president, Thomas J. Mangan, the Council announced that the malicious and groundless newspaper reports sent out by an unauthorized Lewisburg correspondent did not reflect the attitude of the majority of the students and administration of Bucknell.

Throughout the meeting, telegraph messages, telephone calls, including one from the football team, were received from various student groups, pledging their support of Humphreys."

Humphreys was re-appointed for two years by an unanimous vote in the Athletic Council meeting, which we feel is good news. It's an indication of the right kind of spirit. We wish him the best of luck next season, (until he comes to Allentown).

Christmas Story For Moderns

Both of the children were sleeping
They were dreaming of Santa and sleighs,
Of reindeers and stockings and candy,
Of presents that were on the way.

While both of the children were dreaming,
While mother was sleeping, the dear,
Father was out raising whoopee.
He received a large bonus this year

He and the boys had a party.
They painted the town a deep red;
But at three o'clock they all parted
So dad stumbled home to his bed.

Dad staggered into the kitchen
And paused by the dining room door—
For there was a bundle of goodies,
Toys, drums and candies galore!

Standing there in the parlor
Just as bold as he could be,
A man in a gay colored costume
Was trimming the Christmas tree.

Dad, a benevolent fellow,
Offered the stranger a shot.
The guest said that Dad was a good fellow,
And they went to get what they had not.

Dad found the stranger sang tenor,
And Dad thought that he could sing, too.
They decided to practice together,
They would sing just one song... maybe two.

They started with 'Jinglebells' jolly,
Next came 'Sweet Adeline',
The 'Old Oaken Bucket, soon followed,
And 'Mother Machree' sounded fine.

This kept up until morning
When they both fell asleep on the floor.
Johnny and sister awoke then
To see all the presents on the floor.

The morning was here and the sunshine
Was brilliant and full of good cheer
But many a home had no Christmas
For Santa Claus did not appear.

But Johnny and sister were happy
When Christmas had come and had passed,
For Santa had left every present
That they had longed for—at last.

Moral:
Good children, remember my story.
Its moral is clear, so I think—
If you want many presents for Christmas,
Try driving your Daddy to drink.

—Bob Bosch

GIVE FOR JOY

As the Christmas season draws near, our hearts turn to the carols, the decorations, the giving and receiving associated with this joyous season. Somehow, hatred and prejudice and petty dislike passes from our minds. We are filled with love and generosity—as were the men of more than two thousand years ago—when the greatest gift of all times came to earth.

We give gifts to our family, our loved ones, our friends—to all of those whom we know and admire. This year, however, there are others to whom we should give. We do not know them; most of us have never seen them. They are the impoverished people of other countries. They are those whose hearts have no room for Christmas; their time is taken up with scraping together for a meager existence.

When we have exchanged our gifts and have enjoyed our holidays, and are preparing to return to college and studies, let us then remember these people. Let us not let the opportunity pass us by to enter into the true spirit of Christmas. When we pack our suitcases why not pack an extra one with discarded clothing for those who need it so desperately. Clothing that we have in the rear of the closet, or put aside in some trunk or under chest is of no use to us. However, to the cold and the suffering this clothing is a blessing—and perhaps a preserver of life.

Let those of us who have an abundance of sentiment give our clothing to the men, women, and children, who need it so bad, as an offering of thanksgiving for the birth of One who gave His all for us. For those of us who are more calculating—let us give to the clothing drive for a peaceful world. It is no secret that people who are warm and without hunger follow peaceful pursuits.

Thus, whether our hearts be filled with the spirit of Christmas, or a desire for peace—or both—give generously, all of your discarded clothing, that which you no longer want, but, that others can wear. Send Muhlenberg's Clothing Drive over the top. F.D.W.

MULE CAGERS FACE PENN IN PHILLY

Saturday will be a rough day for the stumbling Muhlenberg cagers, as they go to Penn's Palestra to see if they can regain their winning form. Penn will be looking for a chance to repay the Mules for the three straight defeats suffered by them in the past two seasons.

Tigers Outclass Mules Sat. 37-33

Lightning struck, at Rockne Hall, last Friday night, when a bewildered Muhlenberg quintet sustained their second loss of the campaign to a polished Princeton team—the final tabulations giving the Orange and Black a 37-34 victory.

The Mules jumped off to an early 13-7 lead in the first half, but wilted rapidly before a withering attack, Princeton capturing a substantial lead by half time.

In the early moments of the second half 'Berg spurred to life, and bounced back into a 2 point lead. The Jersey gentlemen, however, were not to be denied. They bolted back and were never headed throughout the remainder of the contest.

Princeton presented a well coached team. Their passing and ball handling was superb as they consistently caught the Muhlenberg defense off balance. The Mules passing was inaccurate, and their failure to solve the Princeton defense was very disappointing.

Van Breidakolff, Princeton center was one of the finest pivot men this writer has ever seen. His deception and steady ball handling were indispensable to the Tiger victory.

The spirited play of Eddie Donovan was the one bright spot in defeat. His 13 points made him high scorer of both teams. His defensive play was even more spectacular, as on numerous occasions he broke up Tiger plays.

Muhlenberg	G. F. Pts.	Princeton	G. F. Pts.
Born'r f	1 3-4 5	Wilson f	0 1-3 1
McGee f	0 2-3 2	Lowry f	5 0-0 10

Theisen g	1 0-0 2	Kelly g	1 1-3 3
Mac'n f	1 0-0 2	Pratt f	1 1-3 5
Totals	10 13-17 33	Totals	14 9-26 37

In the 44-45 campaign the Red and Blue fans were stunned to see a high-flying Penn squad, captained by the great Howie Dallmar, lose to the set shots and floor play of Dick Whiting and a fighting Mule team. When Penn came up to Rockne Hall later in the season, they were treated to the same type of performance, as the Mules eked out a one-point verdict. The next year it was almost a different story, with a mediocre Penn club almost upsetting the pregame dope.

Penn has the stuff this year to give Bud Barker and squad the lumps, and are dying to do it. Carlson and Casey are back from the 44 club, and Colberg from last year's team. The big news for the Penn rooters was the return of "Chink" Crossin and Buddy Novak however. Novak is a sure ball mover and a good shot, while Crossin is one of the slickest ball players to set foot on the boards at the Palestra. He gained All-American mention in '43 and played for the top-ranking Bainbridge Naval squad while in the service. He does more tricks with a basketball than a prof can do with a marking pencil, and his left hand is deadly.

The Mules will definitely have to show more organization than they have against Princeton if they look to pull this game out.

Outpoint Bonnies 26-25 In Roughest Game Of Season

Bill Bell Carries Brunt Of Running Attack; Sikorski Scores Thirteen

Muhlenberg's rampaging football team climaxed their best season in the school's history by coming home wearing the victor's crown of the naturally milder, cooler burning tobacco leaves. By defeating a hard hitting St. Bonaventure team, the

SIDE COURT STABS...

by Herb Needleman

Princeton was here Friday. They were represented by a squad of twenty small but viciously aggressive and well trained ball players, two coaches, one trainer, two student managers, five well oiled, bellow-lunged fans, and six basketballs. They came down on one chartered bus and maybe three cars, but somehow managed to bring a truck load of fight and basketball savvy with them.

It was enough.

This unimpressive aggregation did more damage to the post game festivities than 65 sub-machine gun armed, militant chaperones and a revival of prohibition could ever have hoped to achieve. If Randy Brooks had come down on a wire from the rafters of Castle Gardens sprouting wings and blowing his horn like a 20th century, peg-trousered Gabriel, he wouldn't have gotten more than a polite hand from a few pre-theos—things were that gloomy.

Saturday a different tune was played. The bandstand was Stoll Field in Lexington, Ky., and 3000 cub-nels and lesser ranks watched two northern teams clash, with Schwartzwalder and Co. coming up on top by one point.

It was a great day for the Mule eleven, definitely establishing them as a power to be reckoned with, in seasons to come.

The only disappointment was the lack of a crowd. It seems strange that while 60,000 football fans turned out to see the Philly High School championship bout, only five percent of that number rattled around in the stands of Stoll Field. It looks like the native Kentuckians would rather sit at home and watch their thoroughbreds gamboling over the blue grass than pay hard cash to see two equally-pedigreed ball clubs (but not brought up on corn pone and hominy grits) bump on the same sward.

Maybe they didn't sell mint juleps in the stands.

Last year was the hey-dey of the post season game, and chamber of commerces all over the states tried to capitalize on the fever. But like all temperatures, it reached its peak and is falling back to normalcy now. Some thirty bowl games are being played this year, but we doubt if they'll number half of that next December.

We'd like to bring this week's effort to a close by wishing ALL of our readers a Merry Christmas, etc. You two guys go out and have yourself a ball over the vacation, but don't forget to come back by the stroke of eight Friday, or you'll be strung up by your thumbs and have your yo-yo's taken away for keeps.

Mules ended their season with a record of nine wins against one defeat at the hands of Delaware.

The Muhlenberg line proved itself to be round and firm, but far from free and easy on the draw, holding their own against a Bonnie forward wall that outweighed them 27 pounds per man.

'Berg drew first blood as a pass, Bell to Dean, was good for 22 yards and the touchdown, but the Bonnies bounced right back as Leo Haggerty carried the ball 45 yards to the 4, and Phil Colella took it from there.

It was Bell to Sikorski again, late in the first period, culminating a 63-yard sustained drive to the Indians' 12. The pair proved themselves to be the smoothest working combination since Weber met Fields, or L.S. met M.F.T., by converting on a pass, Bill to Ed, and the score stood at 13-6.

Ed Sikorski opened up the second period with a three yard plunge for a T.D., giving the Emmaus citizens a topic for conversation for years to come.

But Bonaventure let everyone know that they were still in the ball game, as Haggerty ran 74 yards to the Mule one, and Kay carried it over. The half ended with the Mules in front, 19-12.

Bonaventure scored halfway through the third period on a pass, Curtin to Lovulo, and Mazewski converted to tie the score.

The Mules marched 94 yards, where Harry Mackin fumbled, and Carm Sbordone carried it the rest of the way. Quint kicked the point that proved to be the margin, as the Indians scored again on another pass from Curtin to Lovulo, but failed to convert.

It was George Bibighaus, Little All-American end playing a great game for the Mules, who staved off a last minute threat by intercepting a pass on his own five and running out to the 10.

Students Laud Assembly; Seek More Shows

A triple treat awaited the first night audience at the assembly program presented last Monday evening in the Science Auditorium, and after the final curtain (there were many) the largest group to witness an assembly yet this semester departed from the Little Theater reinforced by an evening of good entertainment. The show was repeated again on Tuesday evening and was met with the same favorable reception.

Directed by John E. T. Rogers, "Wives Should Sleep At Home", a one act comedy, portrayed the trials and tribulations of an impatient husband, Robert Kantra, incurred by an innocent but somewhat errant wife, Gloria Marks. Both waved their arms and stamped their feet in true dramatic ire, being reconciled frequently during the course of the play in comprising embraces. The latter was appreciated by the enthusiastic audience, which, typical for 'Berg students, emoting in strictly worldly demonstrations of approval. Bennisinger in the role of the mild mediator from next door enjoyed his play on the stage, smoking leisurely and perusing the current Esquire, at the same time injecting his lines when called for. Mike Rogers and Pickard seemed more at home on the stage as moving men than in many of their classes. Mike breathed fragrant cigar smoke into the face of the leading lady while Pickard draped himself over the local furniture and yawned.

The "Four Mule Kicks", an all student combine of musical talent, were called back at least three times for encores. Augmenting their talents was Beverly Ingham, who sang several numbers with the groups. The "Kicks", an harmonious blend of trumpet, bass violin, electric guitar and piano, assembled about the piano to render smooth rhythm in an informal presentation of popular numbers. "Get Up Those Stairs, Mademoiselle", an impromptu encore by popular request wound up their part of the program in good style.

The third part of the triple feature was the showing of the Muhlenberg-Delaware movies in slow motion.

Track Team Needs Housing Also . . . Just Like Us

The housing problem is showing its teeth again on the Muhlenberg campus; last week it was learned that intramural sports are being delayed because of it. This week Coach Ernie Fellows revealed that track practice is being held up due to the lack of indoor facilities.

The gymnasium which is now occupied by students will be used by the track team as soon as they move out. In the meantime Ernie Fellows is trying to acquire the Armory for his team to practice in. If he is unable to acquire the Armory, he will turn to the Allentown Y.M.C.A. for help.

The team will practice outdoors providing the weather remains warm, but if not, the team will hold off practicing until the students are moved from the 'Berg gym.

Ernie Fellows said he wants to enter men in the indoor track meets in Philadelphia and in New York if he is able to get a squad in shape. There are several men who look pretty good and will probably be entered in these meets which will be held in the above mentioned cities early in the new year.

"Smoke" Over The Tobacco Bowl

One of the major factors in the acceptance of the bowl bid was the fact that the Kiwanis Club of Lexington was running the affair for charity, but the Athletic Administration of Kentucky U. rented out their stadium for a cool grand. Tch-Tch—and so near Christmas too. Somebody dropped the brick as far as ballyhooing the game. It got about as much advance publicity as a Jap sneak attack.

Mask And Dagger Inducts Thirteen

At an initiation ceremony held in the Science Auditorium, Friday, December 6, the Mask and Dagger Club inducted thirteen new men into the organization. The initiation procedure revived the unique ceremony of pre-war days, and was invoked upon the largest group to be initiated for some time.

The men whose dramatic talents have been recognized by membership to the campus drama society are: Louis Rossi, Earl W. Feight, John Walters, George Bannon, Richard Gallos, Ernest Wallender, Howard Harris, Robert Kantra, Edward Pickard, Wallace Stefany, Paul Rabuck, Donald Fink, and James Gross.

President of the Mask and Dagger, Robert Oswald, announced the names of a play reading committee, selected to recommend a play to be presented this spring. Included in this committee are Gerald Rogers, Earl W. Feight, James Reppert, Robert Bosch, Harold Helfrich, and Louis Rossi.

Phi Kappa Tau Makes Kiddies' Christmas Real

On Wednesday, December 18, the local chapter of Phi Kappa Tau was instrumental in making Christmas a real thing to a group of underprivileged children.

Ten children, selected from the Welfare Ward in Allentown, were treated to a Christmas Party at the chapter house. Among the festivities included in the program was a visitation from old Saint Nick himself who distributed gifts to the boys and girls. Games were planned for the occasion and these, of course, were followed with refreshments suitable to the season.

In charge of party arrangements was a committee of three men: John McKinney, Edward Minner, and Corky Hunter.

Barbas Play Host To Deutscher Verein For Weihnachtsfest, Dec. 17

Dr. and Mrs. Preston A. Barba were hosts to the Deutscher Verein at the annual Weihnachtsfest held Tuesday evening at the Barba's home in Emmaus.

The arrival of Santa Claus, in the person of Dr. Harry Reichard, was the highlight of the evening and everyone present received gifts after performing for him. The story of Joseph, Mary, and the innkeeper was enacted by three guests of the club, Dr. and Mrs. Wood and Rev. Renninger. Songs by a quintet led by Dr. Wood and group singing of Christmas carols completed the program.

Other guests for the evening included Dr. Pfeuger and Dr. Shoemaker of the German department, Mrs. Harry Reichard, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Horn, and Dean and Mrs. Sherwood Mercer.

AKA Considers New Members

A panel discussion, in the form of a debate led by four members, on the topic of "Evolution" will be the feature of this evening's meeting of Alpha Kappa Alpha, honorary philosophy fraternity. The organization will meet at Dr. Stine's home at 8:15.

At a special meeting on Monday evening, the fraternity acted on the names of fifty men who will receive bids for membership. Initiation for new members will take place January 9.

"Rhodes" Men Chosen For '47

Announcement was made today of the award of the Rhodes Scholarships for 1947 for which preliminary interviews were held at 'Berg this fall as a result of which the College recommended two men to the State Committee.

From 871 men applying throughout the United States regional committees picked 48 of whom all but five had been in the Service. They will go to Oxford in the Fall of 1947.

Of the two recommended by the College one man was chosen on the basis of his written record, recommendations, and letter of application to be interviewed by the State Committee in Philadelphia last week. This was Herbert Dowd, '43, now at the Fletcher School of International Relations in Medford, Massachusetts.

The Pennsylvania Colleges presenting successful candidates were Haverford (two) and Swarthmore (one). No other college in this state was represented among the winners.

Of special interest to Veterans is the selection of Charles G. Bolte, who graduated from Dartmouth. He is the National Chairman of the American Veterans Committee. Interviews and recommendations for the Rhodes Scholarships to Oxford in 1948 will take place here next Fall and applications will go to the State Committee early in December, 1947.

Bridge Entries Near Closing

Sam Krouse heads a three-man Student Council committee to run a campus tournament. Dave Tyson and Gordon Daggy fill out the other positions. They, in conjunction with Mr. Andrew Erskine of the English Department, who will umpire the tournament, announce that entries are now being taken by Mrs. Gallos in the English office.

All men interested must register in teams of two, and the deadline for registration is Saturday noon, December 21. A $1.00 entry fee will be collected from each team entering to purchase an award for the winners.

A Muhlenberg bridge squad of four pairs will be picked from the results of the tournament, and will represent Muhlenberg in the national play-offs.

Some sort of intercollegiate bridge competition is also being considered with other colleges in the Lehigh Valley.

WSSF CAMPAIGN SEEKS $2000 FOR AID

Opera Company Featured In Assembly Tonite; Next Thursday, Fritz Krueger And Company

An impressive array of distinguished artists representing the Philadelphia School for Opera will present "An Evening at the Opera" tonight at 8 p.m. in the Science Auditorium. Consistent with the policy to offer assembly programs of the highest quality in entertainment value, educational enhancement, and artistic ability, this evening's program will feature selections from several of the finest operas.

A trained ensemble of male and female soloists will participate in selections from "The Marriage of Figaro", by Mozart; "Tosca" by Puccini, "Pagliacci", by Leoncavallo; "Un ballo in Maschera", by Verdi; "Hansel and Gretel", by Humperdinck; "Tannhauser", by Wagner, and "Carmen", by Bizet. A complete program of the evening's entertainment with the names of the soloists appears elsewhere on this page.

One week from today, January 16, the Program Committee has arranged a recital by the leading lyric tenor of the Philadelphia Opera Company, Fritz Krueger. Possessing a tenor voice of rare beauty and flexibility, Krueger will feature many well-known selections appreciated by music lovers universally. He has appeared five times with the Philadelphia Orchestra, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy.

Miss Betty Jean Kimble, young and beautiful soprano, who appears on this evening's program, will return with Mr. Krueger next Thursday evening to augment, with her colorful voice, the musical rendition.

Debaters Open Season In Forum Participation

On Monday evening, January 6, the Forensic Council met in West Hall to review their arguments for the forum to be held at Moravian College, tonight, January 9, at 8:00 p.m. Moravian for Women, Lafayette, Lehigh and Muhlenberg are the only four schools of the Lehigh Valley Debate Association participating in the forum.

Edward Sullivan will represent Muhlenberg College and will take management's viewpoint of the affirmative side of the question, "Should Labor Have a Direct Share in the Management of Industry".

January 16, is the tentative date set for the interscholastic debate with Temple University.

E. Philip Bollier, debate coach, stated that Muhlenberg will participate in another forum on January 30. This forum will be held here.

Announce Staff For '48 Ciarla

Earl W. Feight, Editor-in-Chief of the 1948 Ciarla and his Business Manager, John Phillips, recently made known to the WEEKLY their choice of staff assistants for the next edition of our year book. With Haps Benfer as Faculty Adviser, Feight and Phillips are striving to put the Ciarla together by the fall of 1947-48 term, which has been set as the date of publication.

Aiding Feight in the task of putting the Ciarla in black and white are the four Associate Editors, Wally Hunter, Ralph Bagger, Howard Haring and Art Damask. Their staff assistants have been named as follows: Charles Quinn, Paul Schroy, Charles Mosser, Theodore Getz, Al Gapsch, Adolph H. Wegener, Charles Markley, Leon Loch, George Pappas, Ray May, George Baker, John Walters.

War Housing New Exhibit In Art Gallery

England, Russia, South Africa and Australia have already seen an exhibition dealing with the vital problems of war and peacetime housing which will be presented in a new and revised edition at the Muhlenberg Gallery on January eighth. The new edition, revised for use in this country, is based on the exhibition U. S. Housing in War and Peace prepared last year at the request of the council of the Royal Institute of British Architects by The Museum of Modern Art, New York. The exhibition under the title The Lesson of War Housing will remain on view at the College Gallery through January and will then continue its tour around the United States.

The initial showing of the exhibition in London in July and August of 1944 was greeted by a large and interested audience and an enthusiastic British press. The Office of War Information, Overseas Division, which sponsored and put on the exhibition in London, collected and shipped the material for assembly abroad. OWI also prepared duplicates of the exhibition for Australia and South Africa and a copy of the section on building techniques and prefabrication for Russia.

The present exhibition, consisting of approximately 50 panels of enlarged photographs, drawings, plans and brief texts, stresses the lessons for peacetime building and city planning which have been learned from wartime housing problems. Since large-scale housing is our major source of experience for the problems of city planning which must be faced after the war, this American edition places the emphasis on the lessons we have learned.

Housing shortages in war-swollen industrial centers necessitated the building of new houses in huge volume, at maximum speed, with a minimum of manpower, materials and movement. The first section of the exhibition indicates our extensive pre-war experience with large-scale, planned housing and shows the types of shelter developed to meet the crucial problems of the war emergency.

Haring Appoints Prom Committee

Extensive plans are under way to make the Junior Prom, scheduled for February 14, the gala social event of the year. Howard Haring, President of the Class of 1948, has announced a large committee to supervise the undertaking.

The name of the band for the evening will be announced at a later date, but it can be revealed that the Juniors are negotiating for one of name caliber. Other details, as to place, chaperones, and dress, are also to be announced later.

The committee includes, in addition to the co-chairmen, Art Damask and Morgan Haney, the following men: Yar Chomickey, Lewis Fluck, Willard Kindt, James Reppert, Harry Custer, Alferd Pouse, Willard Fluck, Thomas O'Hagan, Ulrich Horger, Anthony Marino, Harrison Moyer, Adolph Wegener, Joseph Fiske, Ernest Wallender, Frank Napolitano, Roy Meck, Donald Miller, Ralph Boyer, Russel Kirk, and Earl Feight.

History Group Meets Tonight

This evening at 8:00, the Muhlenberg Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta will meet at the home of Mr. Norman Wilkinson, 2105 W. Livingston St. There will be a general discussion on the Foreign Policy Association which meets in Philadelphia on Saturday, January 11.

Fred Brause, representing the Muhlenberg Kappa Chapter of the fraternity, will report on the national convention which was held in New York City, December 26-29.

Phi Alpha Theta, National Honorary History Fraternity, held its 25th annual Convention at the Hotel New Yorker, from December 26 through December 29. This affair was highlighted by the reelection of Mr. Don Hoffman to the position of Secretary-treasurer. Mr. Hoffman is a Muhlenberg alumnus, class of 1932 and has been outstanding in the fraternity for several years. The duties of the Secretary-treasurer have assumed greater proportions than the name implies, with the decision of the convention to incorporate into it the executive duties of the organization.

President Philip I. Mitterling announced that any persons wishing to attend the Foreign Policy Association Saturday, should contact Dr. Swain, Dr. Johnson, Mr. Wilkinson, or himself. Anyone interested should take advantage of the opportunity and give Muhlenberg a large representation at the meeting.

INTERMISSION

Charity Drive Benefits Foreign Universities

A year's supply of school books for a Chinese student is only one of the innumerable things that a contribution of $2.00 to the World Student Service Fund can buy. The Muhlenberg drive, launched yesterday morning, has already been answered with large contributions of clothing, and a few money contributions. The parents of three Muhlenberg students, for instance, have sent checks to the WSSF committee, one check being accompanied by a note saying that the check was in the place of the family's old clothing which was being sent to bombed-out relations abroad.

Weekly Interviews . . . Howard MacGregor College Treasurer

After bringing his family to Allentown during the Christmas holidays, Mr. Howard MacGregor, Muhlenberg's new Treasurer, has been left waiting on the doorstep of his new home at 424 North Leh Street until his furniture is shipped up from Decatur, Georgia. He assumed his duties in the college business office on January 1st, and says that in the short time since then he has been struck by the friendly spirit shown by all those on the Muhlenberg campus from top to bottom.

"Mrs. MacGregor and I have never been on the campus of a men's college, except as visitors, so this is a new experience for us," he says. "Our first impressions of Muhlenberg have been unusually good."

Students Attend SCA Conference

During the Christmas holidays, three Muhlenberg men travelled to the University of Illinois to attend the National Assembly of the Student Christian Association Movement held there from December 27 to January 3. These men, Walter Doberstein, Richard Bieber, and Franklin Sherman—were the M.C.A.'s official representatives.

The S.C.A.M. is a nationwide, interdenominational organization composed of the members of campus Y.M.C.A.'s, Y.W.C.A.'s, and Student Christian Associations such as our own Muhlenberg Christian Association. The National Assembly of the S.C.A.M. meets every four years. This year more than 1300 students, from Maine to California, attended.

Our delegates were able to participate in the legislative proceedings of the Assembly, to share in the thinking of other students, and to benefit from the addresses of such men as Dr. Albert Outler of Yale and Mr. Charles Bolte of the American Veterans' Committee.

Next Wednesday, January 15, the Cedar Crest College Y.W.C.A. and the M.C.A. will meet jointly in the Muhlenberg Chapel Lounge at 7:30 p.m. to share in the experiences of these delegates.

All men, whether or not they are active members of the M.C.A., are invited to attend this meeting.

REV. HARING SPEAKS

Rev. Leon A. Haring, Jr., Presbyterian Chaplain to students in Philadelphia colleges, opened the Muhlenberg campaign officially on Wednesday morning in Chapel. He pointed out in his talk what Muhlenberg could gain by giving to the World Student Service Fund.

Mr. Philip Bollier of the English Department, who saw the distressing conditions of some of our world neighbors while in the Army in India, made an appeal in Chapel this morning as part of the WSSF drive, and Jim Hemstreet, a Navy veteran, will deliver a Chapel talk tomorrow.

COLLECTION PLANS

Contributions are to be solicited from a number of groups separately. Students living in the two college dormitories will be contacted personally by a team of solicitors, while those commuting to the college will be given pledge cards to sign and later given an opportunity to make their contributions at a desk set up in the lobby of the Administration Building.

All fraternity men were asked to contribute at their regular meetings on Tuesday evening, and the Faculty will be contacted and asked to contribute in a letter from Chaplain Doberstein, Faculty director of the WSSF.

CLOTHING DRIVE

During the Christmas holidays, a letter was sent out by the Muhlenberg WSSF Committee to the parents of all Muhlenberg students, asking them to help in the drive by gathering together as much old clothing as they could and sending it back to the campus at the beginning of the new year. Receptacles have been set up at strategic points about the campus to collect this clothing.

Fragmentary reports from yesterday's collections indicate over one hundred dollars have been already received.

Crider Assumes Frosh Leadership

Responsibility for leadership of the Freshmen class rests on the shoulders of Jack Crider, who was elected president of the first year students just prior to the Christmas recess. Crider enjoyed a landslide victory over all his opponents although balloting in the freshmen class was extremely light, representing only a meager handful of the six hundred class enrollment.

The remaining offices were filled in close voting, the winners sliding into office on rather slim margins. Walter Doberstein from Marinette, Wisconsin, was selected to the vice presidency of the class, while Joel Skidmore and Duane Williams were chosen to fill the secretary and treasurer slots respectively.

With the election to office of these men the organization of all the classes is complete. The upper three classes will elect again for officers sometime next semester, but the foursome now installed as freshmen class officers are to hold office until June.

ANALYSIS OF GERMAN YOUTH Thumbs Up!

Editor's note: Peter Florey, the author of the following article, was a student at the Law School of the University of Heidelberg until last June, when he came to the United States. Since that time he has been living in Lansdale, Pennsylvania, where he has been improving his knowledge of English until he will be able to enter some American law school.

Florey grew up in Nazi Germany. His father was imprisoned in a concentration camp and his family was scattered. Peter himself spent many months in hiding and after American forces entered Germany served as an interpreter. He is one of the first Germans to be permitted to enter the United States since the war.

America, to him, represents concretely the hope of all the democratic elements of world youth and work here is "like a vacation." His answer to the question, "What is the future of German youth?" constitutes, the WEEKLY believes, a frank appraisal of the potentialities of Democracy in the post-war world. It also demonstrates, more clearly than any abstract appeal can, the real importance of the World Student Service Fund drive now taking place on campus. Mutual understanding among the youth of the world can mean more than lengthy treaties, and American gifts cutting "windows into the huge prison called Germany" are a short cut to One World.

OBITER DICTA . . .

"Faith Of A Liberal"

by Dave Tyson

If you feel compelled to plunge into the grim confusion of everyday affairs with fists flying to do battle against the forces of Evil, a word of caution comes from a man who has put a great deal of thought into the eternal philosophical problem of how an individual can best lend a hand in furthering the cause of Goodness and Truth. Morris R. Cohen is his name. For a great many years he was professor of Philosophy at the College of the City of New York and the University of Chicago, one of those scholars whose magnetic personality drew thousands of students to his classes. His most recent book, The Faith of a Liberal, is a collection of some of his essays on a varied number of topics from Spinoza to Baseball.

To those fired with a great social consciousness, he has this to say:

"What I wish to suggest is some modicum of doubt as to the complacent assumption that only by absorption in some contemporary social problem can the philosopher justify his existence. The great philosophers, like the great artists, scientists, and religious teachers, have all, in large measure, ignored their contemporary social problems. Aristotle, Leonardo da Vinci, Shakespeare, Newton, Buddha, Jesus of Nazareth and others who have done so much to heighten the quality of human life have very little to say about the actual international, economic, and political readjustments which were as pressing in their day as in ours. The great service of Socrates to humanity was certainly not in his somewhat superficial criticism of the Athenian electoral machinery of his day, but rather in developing certain intellectual methods, and suggesting to Plato certain doctrines as to the nature of the soul and ideas—doctrines which in spite of all their impracticality have served for over two thousand years to raise men above the groveling, clawing existence in which so much of our life is sunk."

This seems to be his pet observation. He harks back to it time and again, as when in another essay he states:

"Yet when all this is said, we must admit with the serene Spinoza that passionate pity is a human weakness. The benevolent desire to play the part of God or Providence to other mortals is a fruitful source of illusion."

"It is well not to lose all sympathy with our fellow men. But it is not well so to identify ourselves with them that we become infected with their passionate confusions and compulsions. He who wishes to preach to those in the market place must see more than the market place. He must go up alone to the mountain to pray, not only to recreate his spirit and learn to articulate his insight, but also to set an example of the wisdom of learning to live alone with one's ideal. Without such ability, society is contemptibly cheap, constituted by a lot of empty ciphers."

Don't knock yourself out, the man says. Don't waste all your energy trying to buck a blundering humanity. The world will sooner or later learn by sad experience that you are right, though it may not be in your time. A vital and commendable service is rendered, to be sure, by those who hold the dam against the flood of moral anarchy and chaos, whether they be ward politicians trying to clean up their cities' precincts, or country school teachers trying to instill a sense of the Right and the Good in their young pupils, or small businessmen conscientiously trying to reach an agreement whereby their workers will receive a fair share of the profits of their toil. They all have a right to believe that by laying hold of one corner of the world and lifting, they are helping to raise the whole world just a little bit higher.

But they all take their cue from those men in the past who have viewed the market place from afar and indicated to a struggling, seething humanity in what direction it should turn its efforts. You should never be afraid to follow an inclination to do the same.

If fame is any incentive, it may be well to point out that, though your name will not be in the papers today, it may appear in the history books of tomorrow.

Students Seek To Form Campus Flying Club

Flying - enthusiastic students throughout the nation's colleges and universities are now organizing flying clubs, whose main purpose is to provide opportunities for the fliers to practice and learn at comparatively low cost.

The cry among pilots and those desiring to learn to fly, is usually that the cost of flying and lessons is prohibitive. A member of the newly formed club will receive instruction in navigation, meteorology, and radio procedure, as well as use of plane facilities at reduced rates.

Also among the advantages is the relatively inexpensive procuring of a license.

Plans and a charter for the organization have already been formulated, the lacking essential is membership. For details write to FLYING CLUB—BOX 44, WEST HALL — MUHLENBERG COLLEGE—ALLENTOWN.

You ask me for the future of the German youth. The only answer is a short report of the life of the German boys and girls. They were born into the glory of an empire heralded to last a thousand years. In reality it collapsed after twelve years. They were young and enthusiastic. They believed in the only idea they knew. When they found out that this idea was not right they fought for their very life in the frozen steppes of Russia or were confined to the horror of air-raids. Peace means for them life in ruins, hunger and hopelessness.

They hear a great deal of talk about democracy and freedom. Actually they are subject to the ruthlessness of occupation forces. Actually they witness the heart-rending migration of millions of refugees from Eastern Germany, thousands of whom perished. Actually they lose their last belongings by being turned out of their houses when they are requisitioned for the families of Allied soldiers. Actually they know that again concentration - camps exist in the Russian occupation zone. Actually they have loved ones in PW camps all over the world. Actually they have loved ones who are shipped to France and Russia as slave-laborers. Actually they must look on while their factories are dismantled. Actually they are aware of the intention of the Allies to keep the Germany standard of living at the lowest possible level.

The only solution for this situation in Germany is mutual understanding. Victor and vanquished must construct a better world as it is attempted by the United Nations. You know of the recently announced policy of good will on

by Bob Bosch

(The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily those of the author. I am the victim of an irresponsible typewriter.)

The modern trend in feature writing seems to make it necessary that the present day columnist be a super spy, a literary dicitry, a Conan Doyle without his Dr. Watson or his Sherlock. By predicting marriages and divorces, the births of babies and the deaths of kings many columnists like Walter Winchell have ridden their way to fame and fortune. In the long range political forecast field we find Drew Pearson way out in front. If we spell the proper words backward we find his forecasts are a startling 80 odd percent accurate. Even on this rare . . . excuse me . . . sheet my August colleague has made several prophecies with all the charm and ability of a modern day Cassandra.

But the idea of reading the future is now rather out-moded and is passing back into the tea cups from where it was strained. At the present there is a great tendency for the columnist to achieve glory and the praise of a grateful nation by revealing the activities of some undercover group. As a matter of fact the red baiting seems to have been taken over by the old witch hunting crowd.

I would be foolish not to know a good thing when I see it. In Spain, the students were instrumental in overthrowing Alfonso and there was an active Red element among them. All over the world on the college campuses there are little coals that I will expose. I hereby dedicate all the Communistic activity that I uncover to the Republican Party. I hate to see them disappointed now that they have been looking so long.

Once I settled down to my work I found the going rather tough. I spent the entire morning last Tuesday tracing a red flannel shirt that a student bought down town. On second examination I found that the shirt had not been purchased by a student but rather a faculty member. I cut two afternoon classes on Wednesday and investigated two Sophomores wearing sweat shirts and worn dungarees. I was ready to turn them over to the authorities when I learned of the laundry embargo that had been ordered and I was foiled again. Still no Reds. By Thursday I had a line on the workmen and I approached them slyly with phrases like "down with Bourgeoisie" and "Red Front!" All I got in return was a "Wo husht du doch?"

The rest of the week was spent in fruitless search. The Biology department was refusing to study any red flower; the library had the section on Russia surrounded with an iron curtain; the book store had burned its copies of Das Kapital; The WEEKLY was publishing N.A.M. reports and referring to the school colors as Sunset and Grey. Workmen were planning to remove the offending colored glass from the various windows about the Campus.

Then came my Big Break! I rushed over to the bulletin board and there I discovered some party literature which had been posted. Sure enough, it was in the lower left hand corner underneath two MCA notices and a call for Actors by the Mask and Dagger. Suspecting Moscow I tore the inflammable writings from the board. It was no mild sign begging the workers of the world to unite. Rather it was a more insidious bit of propaganda that called for active revolution. "There is a time for all things. A time to pray and a time to fight . . . AND THAT TIME HAS NOW COME." With this conclusive proof in my hand I offer it to you, the reader, as proof of the communistic activity on the American campuses. Laugh that one off, Mr. Stalin, if you can.

No, I'm not going that far, but I can take you as far as Somerville. So you live in New York, huh? My husband's sister lives in Allentown, but I don't suppose you'd know her. She's a clerk in a department store; been working there for 15 years. What's this college you go to? I never heard of it. No, I don't follow sports much. My husband does. Do you play football there? My husband played in high school. That's how I met him, at a dance for his football team. We fell in love at first sight. I see you're wearing your discharge button. How long you been out of the Army? . . . Oh, the Navy. Well, one's as good as the other, I suppose. My son was in the Army, but my husband's sister's boy was in the Navy. He got to be a seaman first class, but he wasn't in very long. He was on a destroyer and got to Hawaii. Sent his mother back a hula skirt. But he's out now and workin' for his dad in the shop. What was you on? . . . Well, I never heard of an LCS, but there was so many of them ships in the war that I don't suppose you could tell one from the other. It's grand to have all you young fellows back again, though I miss seeing all those uniforms on the streets. I come up this way quite often to see my husband's sister and his folks, and I used to pick up all the boys in uniform that I saw. They used to tell me all about their experiences overseas. Were you ever to Hawaii? Do they really wear those grass skirts there? My boy was down at Keesler Field for a long time, until the war ended. I was glad they didn't send him overseas, and I used to write him and say that he should try not to be sent over. He says he liked the Army and says he might re-enlist. My husband says he doesn't blame him a bit, but I tell him he ought to stay home and get a job. My husband was in the Army in the first World War. He was sent over to . . . You want out here? But I'm going on for quite a ways. All right, if you think this will be shorter.

He Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

Long time no see peoples, our thanks to John Fitzgerald for taking over for us recently. Going to try and get John to take a regular turn at the column as there was lotsa favorable comment; cheez, maybe I'll lose me job . . . This office has heard that Ed Sikorski is thinking seriously about quitting school for the pro football ranks. Quite an honor for the good lookin' one, but we sure hope he finishes out his work here at 'Berg before making the jump . . .

Received greetings from Bud Gosling and Reg Preli, ex crewmen of Navy days at 'Berg. The former apparently thinking up next years Studebaker while at work for the automobile people, and the latter going to school in New England . . . Saw Dick Keiper t'other evening and the Bethlehem Flash should be back at school come February . . .

Big hellos to Mrs. Ernie Fellows and little "Steve" who are now firmly entrenched in their new home. Mrs. F. couldn't make out the two tone paint jobs in the new home but if she had seen the crew of "Scabs" that did the job, she would readily see what happened. Ernie got some of the gang to make with the brushes; the refreshments ran rampant and so did the paint; result, surrealism on the walls . . .

We hear that Gurney Afflerbach, Athletic Director on sick leave is making great strides in regaining the old steam. Sure hope so, and also that it won't be too long before he's back . . . Musta seemed odd to the "feetsball" players who sit on the lines and watch, but they certainly deserve a rest. "Diz" Dean looked mighty promising in his debut on the Rockne Hall court. Little more practice and the "dazzler" should be right up there; didya see the way he drops those foul shots in ??? WOOOSH . . .

By the time the vacation was over, we suppose Bill Breisch, the 'Berg trainer, was well ready to make for home from the sunny south. Tell me Bill, did you really buy those horses, are you just using them for the season??

Jim Kessock left his usual gang high and dry lately when he and Peg Krause did the town. The guys are gonna hate you Jeem, and me too; wotta gal, (how do you make a whistle on paper?) . . .

Coach "Bud" Barker got his Christmas present early this year when the Mrs. came thru with a little girl answering to the name of Miss Delby Jane, welcome Miss Barker and congrats to the folks . . . Noted Dick Whiting at the LaSalle game and the ex-Mule hoopster looked in right good shape . . .

Dick McGee makes like a dying calf on a cold and frosty morning when mention is made of a certain lovely "Florence Nightingale" at the Sacred Heart Hospital . . . Ed Schwob penning letters regularly to a lass in Nyack . . .

Stan Richman and a very nice gal at the game recently, her name is Sydelle . . . Ken Keiter got a pillow for Xmas—and does he ever need it???? Could name lotsa guys that received hangovers, but that wouldn't be ethical. "Sad Sack" John Drake hauled in his poor tired frame from a hectic ten days in New York. Straighten out John, you're killing yourself . . .

You can see Mr. Hollister's face between 11th and 12th on Hamilton St. anytime of the day or night, courtesy of a local photographer . . . Looks like Wally Hunter is really in love this time, even going so far as to move next door to his heartbeat . . . Where is Mrs. Donovan's unathletic boy, Bob? I haven't seen him in a long time . . . "Whitey" Abel got himself well sunkissed over the holidays . . . Big "Back to the Navy" movement being led by "Madman" Jack Gaskill, and overslept and underfed "Bloodless" Lukens . . . Jim Doran was booed loudly as Hazleton defeated the local pros Sunday afternoon. Don't the A-town fans enjoy seeing a local boy make good????

Start looking around for a tux and a frill—the first big dance of '47, the Junior Prom, is due early in February. It promises to be a real affair, and the committee is hot on it already.

Ex-Berg V-12 Buster Wieand hit a local pub Saturday night looking for former buddies . . . He's at Villanova now.

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner, Alumni Secretary

A letter I received from one of our graduates, still on active duty with the Army, may be interesting to those of you who are veterans. He says, "While it is still the policy of the recruiting stations to enlist every one that can walk, many of the new enlistees are discharged almost immediately after it has been determined by screening tests that the men are either physically, mentally or morally unable to perform the duties of a soldier. In other words, it is now necessary to have qualifications, in addition to being classified as a male biologically, before one can expect to draw pay from the U. S. government."

Quite different from the Army and Navy as you and I knew it, isn't it? Yet, it is indicative of the trend of things today. Particularly is this true on regard to men who think that they can get positions in business and industry on the mere fact that they possess a college degree. There are more men and women in college now than at any time in our history. In the next five or ten years, many of those who will apply for openings in the business and professional fields will possess college degrees. It will not be, merely the fact that you HAVE a degree, but what YOU HAVE DONE IN GETTING YOUR DEGREE, that will weigh the scales in your favor. No longer will the possession of a degree be the "open sesame" to a good job. It is up to you, now, to really take from college all the information and knowledge that you possibly can, for the competition in the years to come will be rough. Think of that, the next time you settle down to that term paper, or study for that exam. You may be truly thankful some years from now.

MULES BRIDGE ENGINEERS, 67 TO 45

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

Well, it's all over. The paper hats, tin horns, and ice bags have been put away, and replaced by text books and alarm clocks.

Pardon, us while we loosen our X-mas neckties, and we'll talk sports.

Ed Sikorski is sporting a new leather jacket given to him by the producers of the Blue-Gray ball game, which came off in Montgomery, Alabama. Ed spelled Indian Joe Neiman of Temple at the fullback slot, working in a classy backfield that featured Carmen Falcone of Penn, Colella of St. Bonaventure, and Slosburg of Temple. The Rebs had it, though. It's a good thing that this miniature Civil War was staged some 90 years too late. If Lee had had a few boys like Harry Gilmer, Shorty McWilliams, and Neil Armstrong on his team, we might well be doffing our lids to the strains of "Dixie", and Harry Truman would have to add "Old Black Joe" to his repertoire before the next Big Three convulse.

During the vacation, we had the pleasure of watching Joe Fulks, big gun for the Philly Warriors score 35 points against Providence. Fulks is about the deadiest eye with a basketball in any league. He drops them from any part of the court with the ease and nonchalance of Gromyko saying "Uh-Uh" at a U. N. meeting.

Fulks and Red Baldwin were raised on the same turf down in Kaintuck, a state which turns out high calibre ball players as consistently as Kenny does hot dogs.

From our seats at Rockne Hall last week, that LaSalle club looked like the class of the Philly District. They were fast, aggressive, and took advantage of every break that came their way. If they hadn't had an off night, it might have been a different story. When they had possession of the ball, they didn't wait for an opening, they made them.

Chuck Theisen, moving up to a starting berth for the first time this year, made a strong bid towards his keeping it, by virtue of his smart floor play and offensive drive. This was the first real chance Chuck had to strut his stuff, and he took advantage of it. It looks like Bud Barker has at last struck the right combination in Baldwin, McGee, Schwob, Donovan and Theisen. This quintet displayed more balance and poise than any seen on the boards so far this year. It's got height, speed, and plenty of drive.

It looks like a mass migration of former Muhlenberg ball players up to Hazleton is starting. Jimmy Doran, Charlie Trinkle, and Joe Podany are three who have signed to play for the Hazleton pro club. The coal-crackers should have a pretty smooth outfit.

Al Saemmer is back on the campus again after recuperating from an automobile accident that caused him to miss the current basketball campaign so far, but Bud Barker hopes to have him back in uniform and working out soon.

Prexy Thanx

President and Mrs. Levering Tyson wish to express through this message in the WEEKLY their sincere thanks to all their friends, particularly the members of the college community, who helped brighten their Christmas with their many cards. To acknowledge all these greetings personally is impossible, and the Tysons take this opportunity to thank every one for their cards.

Seek To Extend Win Streak To Five In Saturday Tiff With State

Fresh from their fourth straight victory, the Muhlenberg Mules travel to Penn State Saturday nite for a tough ball game. Penn State is a rough team to beat on its own floor and they take full advantage of it by using a tight zone defense. So far this season, the Nitany Lions have won three of the six games they have played. The teams which beat them were, Bucknell and West Virginia and Pittsburgh. All the defeats were by a few points and Bucknell won in an overtime period.

The Penn State team which the Mules will face will be practically a new one from last year. Hatkevich, their star from last year is gone as are Light, Nugent and Currie, their big center. Lawther, their coach however, is still there and he still uses the conservative style of basketball which has made many teams look silly. The two big games this year are Milt Simon, holdover from last year, and John Lawther, Jr., the coach's son. These two were instrumental in the surprising defeat of a strong Georgetown team.

Bud Barker's club is riding high after bowling over Villanova, Penn, and LaSalle on three consecutive dates, but still leaves a lot to be desired. The 59-44 score was far from indicative of how close the LaSalle team was to upsetting the apple cart. Berg's offensive, except for a few obviously better moments, was generally listless, and it was only the outside shooting and individual play that won the game.

Barker will start the same five that opened against Penn and LaSalle. Ed Schwob, whose ball moving and defensive play has been a bright spot in the Mule attack, will be paired with Harry Donovan at the guards. Dick McGee will again throw his hook shot from the pivot, and Red Baldwin, who seems to be opening up with his two handed jump shot, will split the forwards with Chuck Theisen.

ED SCHWOB

Headly ball mover and clever shot who will see plenty of action against Penn State.

Rehash Of Villanova Game

Bud Barker displayed a rejuvenated, high spirited basketball team on December 18 as the power laden Mules kicked in Villanova's Wildcats 59-45, in the spacious Villanova Field House.

Villanova, recent victor over Princeton, was outplayed and out-fought throughout the game despite a sparkling performance by their Captain, Joe Lord.

Red Baldwin's return to the lineup was one of the main reasons for a better playmaking ball team. He and Dick McGee rang up 34 points between them and were ably assisted by the two Donovans who accounted for 18 more. Theisen and Schwob scored little but were heavy factors in the steady plays being run off. All substitutions seemed to be made at opportune moments, because each one fitted into the clock work precision of the plays run off. McGee's left-handed shots were magnificent and had the fans gasping all night.

Hooks and Slices

Muhlenberg recently gained recognition as the top college in the State during the sports campaign of 1946. All the teams have done well, no matter what the sport.

Why not add golf to this list of athletics, and give the boys who follow the white pellet a chance to display their prowess on the links.

by Bob Hoyer

The unpredictable sports card of 1946 has terminated. This writer wishes to peer into the future with a few conservative predictions for the new year.

Connie Mack will pay all players on his squad salaries ranging from $12,000 to $40,000; consequently the Athletics will win the American league flag and come out victorious in the October classic by trouncing the Cincinnati Reds in four consecutive games.

Joe Louis, champion beak-buster in the history of fistiana, will fight Conn and Mauriello in the same ring at the same time. Both will be limber before the rounds reach six.

Ted Williams will steal in the neighborhood of 40 bases, and average a bunt for every third game.

George Munger will journey shortly to the Mayo clinic for a rewiring job, in anticipation of directing his team from quarterback next season.

Thunderous, applauding crowds will greet Tony Galento when he cracks the four minute mile this spring.

Seriously, now, John L. Lewis may be the new commissioner of baseball.

Two promising gridiron machines that failed to score a point all season will play in the first annual limburger cheese bowl, at an undisclosed city on the east coast before a chilled, thrilled throng.

Muhlenberg will abandon both football and basketball in order to field a winning baseball team.

That's all the dope on next year's doings, and here's hopin' 'Berg will not take seriously our last prediction.

CHUCK THEISEN

Veteran of '44-45 season whose timely shooting helped pull the Penn game out.

Packed House Sees 'Berg Drop LaSalle

Rockne Hall, Saturday night, was the scene of the fastest action since the inaugural of the present campaign, as the sharp shooting Mules outscored a fast La Salle College quintet. 'Berg took the lead early in the first period, and increased their advantage as the evening rolled by, the final count reading 59-44.

The game remained close throughout the first period as the score at that time read 13-10 in favor of 'Berg. With the progression of the game, it became apparent that the Mules had too much sting for the Philadelphia boys, as they piled up a 30-20 half time lead. With a commanding 12-point lead in the second half Coach Barker floored a whole new team. The reserves played well, and kept the visitors in check for the short time they played.

This was a game of team work and especially was this true of the Mules as every member of the squad played well. Harry Donovan led the parade for Muhlenberg with 15 points while Red Baldwin took second place honors with 10 tallies. Eddie Schwob and Chuck Theisen played superb floor games. Also, this game marked the initial appearance of Diz Dean in the 'Berg lineup, and from all appearances Ol' Diz will be booked for much more service in the games to come.

McCann and Walters displayed amazing floor work for the La Salle team, while Gallagher paced the losers' cause with 16 points.

In the opener of the twin bill, Al Jessen led the Jayvees to a 36-30 victory over La Salle Jayvees. 'Berg had to overcome an 8 point half time deficit in order to pull this one out of the fire.

'Berg Five Trounces Lehigh To Win Sixth Of Season

It was strictly the Mules over the Engineers as 'Berg took the measure of Lehigh last night in Rockne Hall to the tune of 67-45.

Led by Captain "Tex" Baldwin who was high scorer for the evening with 15 points, the 'Berg quintet was never headed. Baldy, who is normally a slow starter, is quickly approaching mid-season form and his pivot work was sharp as were his duties at the backboards.

Grapplers Lose 27-3 To Lehigh

Although they won only one of the eight bouts in bowling to Lehigh University, 27-3, for the inaugural of the 1947 Wrestling season, Muhlenberg's grapplers put up a fight which showed promise for the future. Rudy Amelio, husky 128-pounder from Bethlehem, won the only bout taken by Muhlenberg, when he outclassed Hinlein of Lehigh, 5-0. Rudy was in control of the action from start to finish.

SUMMARIES

128-pound class—Amelio, Muhlenberg, defeated Hinlein, Lehigh, 5-0.

136-pound class—Kelsey, Lehigh, threw Dougherty, Muhlenberg, with a double-bar at 1:39 of first period.

145-pound class—Burns, Lehigh, defeated Steinbach, Muhlenberg, 11-3.

155-pound class—Scvetcz, Lehigh pinned Braverman, Muhlenberg, with a double-bar after 6:35 (third period).

165-pound class—Ericson, Lehigh, pinned Nestleroth, Muhlenberg, with a reverse bar and chancery at 2:43.

175-pound class—Jackson, Lehigh, defeated Wessman, Muhlenberg, 6-4.

Heavyweight—Le Lasso, Lehigh, defeated Evans, Muhlenberg, 1-0.

Total score—Lehigh University, 27; Muhlenberg College, 3. Referee—Bishop.

The first quarter ended with the Mules leading 20-14 as Harry Donovan and Chuck Theisen were really "on target". Coach Bud Barker used his substitutes freely and here big Ed Donovan came to the front. Ed accounted for 13 points and defensively was outstanding. Late in the second quarter he came through with a one-handed push shot from far out which brought the crowd to its feet.

As per usual, the floor play of Ed Schwob was really first rate. The little guy was all over the court and he teamed with Theisen and Harry Donovan to keep the ball moving.

The half ended at 42-29 and the proteges of Barker were running the tally up. Everyone on the bench got into the game and showed up well. Third quarter score was 53-37 and once more the subs took the floor. As the last quarter came to its end, the first team took over and the score ended at 67-45.

High scorer for the Engineers was F. Rehnert, closely followed by Marantz. The latter did a bang-up job as floor man and play maker for the Brown and White.

1946 Ciarla On The Press

The 1946 Ciarla is now on the presses and will be available—at long last!—in about four weeks. Any students having questions as to whether or not they are entitled to a copy are requested to see Jim Gross.

The book will tell the story of life at the college from July, 1943, till June, 1946.

The book will be given to all students who have been credited with five dollars in Ciarla fees during that time. To men who are eligible but have been graduated, the book will be sent. Students who entered college after March, 1946 will receive a copy of the 1947 Ciarla, to be published in September of this year.

The new staff, headed by Editor Earl Feight, is now at work on the publication.

Urges Filing Soon Of Terminal Leave Claim

To avoid a last minute rush and a resultant considerable delay in payment, Major General William H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, U. S. Army, is urging eligible Army veterans who have not yet filed claims for unused furlough time under the terminal leave bill to do so immediately.

Claim applications with complete instructions may be obtained at any Post Office. After filling in the necessary information, veterans should mail at once the claim application with photostatic copy of discharge papers attached to the appropriate paying office designated on the back page of the instruction sheet.

Bridge Tourney January 17

Friday, January 17th, is the date set for Muhlenberg's bridge tournament. Entries have been extended to this Saturday noon, and all those interested are asked to register in pairs with Mrs. Gallos in the English office.

The tournament will be run off in one night, each North-South team playing four hands with each East-West team. The hands will be pre-arranged by Mr. Andrew Erskine, Faculty umpire.

To date 10 teams have entered, and the results of the tournament will decide which four teams will represent Muhlenberg in the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament this winter.

Preliminary rounds with other colleges will be played by mail, and if Muhlenberg lasts until the final rounds, the Muhlenberg team will be sent to Chicago on April 18th and 19th, all expenses paid by the national committee. Forty-nine colleges are sending teams in to the tournament.

Rehash

Arranging a schedule would be minor. The only hitch is to have the athletic committee donate golf balls, a playing agreement with the Lehigh Valley Country Club, and transportation. The transportation problem is also of minor concern due to the fact that eight men are carried on a golf team, two as replacements. There are quite a few men on the campus very interested in this sport and a little action on the part of college officials can easily remedy the problem.

Won't some of the members of the college staff give Muhlenberg's forgotten sport a boost. Golf isn't an old man's game, but one of the youth who possess steady coordination, steel nerves, and smart golfing sense. Golfers of today become the better golfers of the future.

Matches are already ok'd by men from F. and M., Gettysburg, Lafayette, and Lehigh. All we need is the good word from college officials.

Analysis Of German Youth

the part of the American Military Government towards its former foe.

And there is evidence of cooperation of the German youth. One year ago the Law School of the famous Heidelberg University was authorized to open again. I enrolled and studied law in addition to my work as an interpreter. The gay and easy atmosphere of a freshman year was missing. The students came and went silently. Very few words were exchanged. The students were separated by invisible walls. They bore within themselves the burden of a sad childhood. Their ideas had crashed. They had spent years of their life following leaders who were criminals.

Those boys are skeptical and cynical. A very few have a family or a home to which to return. Mostly they have to take refuge at strangers in cold, unfriendly rooms. They are living in a material desert. And, what is worse, they are living in an intellectual vacuum.

I knew they were depressed in their isolation. In order to help I picked out a few that appealed to me. I invited them to come to my room which was both warm and large. I outlined no programs for our meetings, we just talked over what we had in mind. I invited as guests, professors of law who made us acquainted with forgotten poets. Painters explained works of music. Musicians spoke about the evolution of mankind and American soldiers reported about Germany. This cross section of students representing all the schools of the university appreciated the tolerance and freedom of our meetings. We did not criticize adversely the Nazi ideals but rather we criticized them constructively along democratic lines. In this way we did not offend the young boys who were imbued with totalitarian ideas but rather we gave them the chance to compare their ideas with ours and then to make their own choice.

The German youth is very easy to be won if somebody would show him a real way out of despair to a decent way of living. Your gifts and books help to cut windows in to the huge prison called Germany. And, I am sure, the German youth will accept the challenge for liberty.

Faculty Club Hears Dr. George Brandes

Dr. Robert C. Horn, Vice-president of Muhlenberg College, was elected president of the Faculty Club at a meeting held on Monday evening, January 6, in the West Hall Reception Room. Prof. Luther Deck was chosen to act as secretary-treasurer of the organization.

The Faculty Club, with this meeting, became once more an active organization on the campus after nearly four years of inactivity caused by unusual war-time circumstances. The Club serves to bring together members of the faculty from all departments, and through common interests and aims to achieve social and educational fellowship. Membership is open to any member of the faculty of Muhlenberg College and is purely on a voluntary basis.

Dr. George Brandes, head of the Chemistry department, presented a talk on "The Chemistry of Life". His topic included a discussion of the newer knowledge in the experimental field of nutrition.

No announcement has been made as to the date or the speaker for the next meeting.

Ciarla Staff

Frank Lambert, Ulrich Forger, Ed Pickard, Yar Chomicky, James Reppert and Lewis Fluck.

The Ciarla's business details will be handled by John Phillips, who will have Ernie Wallender as his right hand man or in more official terms, Advertising Manager. Will Kindt, John Quinn, Dick Peters and Jack Rowe have been named as their assistants.

Earle Feight wishes it to be made known that the Ciarla is a product of the efforts of Muhlenberg students and he is therefore desirous of any and all suggestions and contributions from the student body, all of which will be given proper consideration. Through the efforts of the staff and the student body in general this year book can be made "a bigger and better CIARLA of which an enlarged Muhlenberg will be proud."

agency. Six of the best war housing projects and a group of community buildings are featured as a sequel to this section. Channel Heights and Marin City in California, the Lake Jackson project in Texas, and housing at Windsor Locks, Connecticut, Coatesville and New Kensington near Pittsburgh are shown, as well as community buildings in Vancouver, Washington; Vallejo, California; Center Line, Michigan; Appalachia, North Carolina and Washington, D. C.

Emphasis is on the final section, which presents in lively fashion, through positive and negative examples, some things we have learned about construction, job organization and land use as well as about social, administrative and political planning.

The exhibit is especially timely, now that not only the veterans, but a large part of the nation as a whole finds the lack of a roof the most haunting fear. Allentown is no exception and this survey of methods of solving the problem of shelter will be of immediate interest to the veterans, workers, college students, and politicians of this locality.

Singers Star This Evening

Fritz Kreuger, distinguished young American lyric tenor, and Betty Jean Kimble, young and beautiful soprano, will share the spotlight this evening when they present a program of favorite songs at 8:30 in the Science Auditorium.

The program will consist of German lieder, American ballads, as well as various solos and duets.

In a few short years, Mr. Kreuger has progressed from the position of dynamite man in the U. S. Forestry Service to renown as one of the country's leading tenors. He has appeared with the Philadelphia Opera Company and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. He has appeared as soloist with orchestras conducted by such famous maestros as Fritz Reiner, and Eugene Ormandy. Mr. Kreuger's well-trained voice is noted both for its rare beauty and color and for the mastery of imagination and style with which he presents his songs. He has studied in China, Italy, and Germany, as well as in the United States.

Far from thinking of a musical career when in school, Mr. Kreuger was a philosophy major, but spent much of his time in various athletic activities. The time was apparently well spent for he was an All-State Nebraska half back. In addition he earned the distinction of playing on the first basketball team in China. The first game in China's history was played between a team representing his university and that of an American warship.

Only after he had acquired his A.B. degree did he begin a serious study of music, subsequently acquiring two bachelor of music degrees, the last being from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Plans Initiation

Returning to campus activity, Sigma Phi Epsilon, local social fraternity, will hold a formal initiation Thursday evening, January 16 at the residence of the chapter secretary, Denton Kriebel, 1516 Walnut Street, Allentown.

President Ralph Dinsi has announced that the weekly meeting of the fraternity will be held on February 4, at 7 P.M., in the West Hall Lounge. Mr. Haas, faculty adviser, will be the speaker for the evening.

WSSF Drive Reaches $600, Far Short Of Goal; Deadline Friday

Faculty, Commuter Contributions Lag In Campaign

Student response to Muhlenberg's World Student Service Fund Drive has been apathetic as the Drive, far short of its $2000 goal, enters the final phases. As of Wednesday the total contributions from all sources was slightly short of $700.

In an effort to give all students adequate opportunity to contribute the Steering Committee decided to extend the drive two days, making the official close 4:30 p.m. Friday afternoon. The table for receipts will be in the Administration 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

An investigation into the possible reasons why the Drive has failed to get out of low gear revealed that while nearly 80% of the dormitory and fraternity students have contributed only 25% of the 700 students living off the campus have aided the campaign.

On Tuesday evening total contributions from the faculty and administration amounted to less than $150, an amount far less than was expected in pre-campaign estimations. Average donations per giving student were two dollars with the commuting men and slightly over one dollar among the dorm students. Faculty and outside supporting contributions averaged the highest per donor.

Arrangements have been made with the faculty treasurer of the WSSF, Dr. Morris Greth, to accept money at the treasurer's office any time until June 1. This is to accommodate men who are currently low on cash or waiting for government subsistence checks to come in.

A more successful phase of Muhlenberg's attempt to relieve stricken persons in war dissipated countries is the Clothing Drive under the sponsorship of the Muhlenberg Christian Association. One half ton of wearing apparel has already been deposited in the receptacles placed around the school. This clothing will be distributed through Lutheran World Action.

As per usual, student activity cards will suffice as admission for students and their dates. The week-end will be further highlighted by the Muhlenberg-Valparaiso basketball game at Rockne Hall on Saturday, following the dance.

Lambda Chi Names Chapter Officers

At elections held on Tuesday evening, January 7th, at the local chapter home, the Lambda Chi Alpha national fraternity chose their officers for the coming term starting February, 1947.

Howard Haring added to his laurels by garnering the office of President of Lambda Chi. Haring already holds the office of President of the Junior Class, choir member, and tennis team member. The job of Vice President went to James D. Reppert, who is a member of A.K.A., Alpha Psi Omega, and secretary and treasurer of the Mask and Dagger. He is also head of stage crew for the school.

Wistar Paist was elected treasurer, and Harry Custer assumed the office of secretary.

Arthur Damask, co-chairman of the Junior Prom committee was chosen social chairman and Bruce Stitzel was named initiation chairman.

One Day To Go . . .

WSSF Drive Depends on YOU

Muhlenberg's most recent accomplishment:

In the current World Student Service Fund Drive, promulgated to extend aid to foreign students less fortunate than we, 650 Muhlenberg men or 55% of the enrollment have given $700 toward the $2000 goal as the drive nears the goal.

This is what can be done:

Colleges throughout the nations are joining to meet the call. Surpassing their quotas, American students are giving generously. Mills College in California, with an enrollment of 725 and a goal of $3,000 responded with $4,300. Smith College, with its 2000 students, surpassed its quota by giving 6,000 to WSSF. Bucknell with some 1300 enrolled has set a $4,000 goal and are well on their way to success.

Some students, apparently, have been able to cast the Government Exam Offers Positions

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced a Junior Administrative Technician examination for making probational appointment to such positions in the field of administration as Personnel Assistant, Budget Examiner Position, Classifier, etc. The entrance salary is $2,644 a year for a 40-hour work week.

Positions to be filled from this examination are located in Washington, D. C., and throughout the country except in the following states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Louisiana, and Mississippi. The age limits, waived for persons entitled to veteran preference, are from 18 to 35 years. A written test is required of all applicants. In addition to passing this test, they must have had either 3 years of experience in the performance of technical or administrative duties or 4 years of college education with specialization in appropriate subjects such as business administration, public administration, etc., or an equivalent combination of experiences and education at the rate of one academic year of study for nine months of experience.

Applications for this examination must be received in the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D. C., not later than February 11, 1947. Information and application forms may be obtained at most first- and second-class post offices, from Civil Service regional offices, and from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

College Announces Schedule For Spring Term Classes

Tyson And Mercer At Boston

Ben worrying about whether you're to be saddled with an eight o'clock class next semester? Or a class on Saturday morning? You'll get the bad news early next week. It was announced yesterday that the complete schedule of courses for the February-June 1947 term would soon be released, probably Monday.

A Schedule Committee, composed of four members of the Faculty, has been arranging the courses for the past several weeks. Late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Robert Boyer of the Physics Department, bleary-eyed after a total of no less than 50 hours of work on the schedule, finally completed the assignment of times and classrooms for each course.

The entire schedule is to be printed, and will then be released by the Registrar's office.

The Schedule Committee of the Faculty is composed of Dean Sherwood Mercer, Professor Luther Deck of the Mathematics Department, Mr. Robert Boyer of the Physics Department, and Mr. William Wilbur of the Social Science Department.

Dean Sherwood Mercer, chairman of the Schedule Committee, left Sunday morning with Dr. Levering Tyson to attend a conference of the Association of American Colleges in Boston, Massachusetts. The series of meetings, lasting for one week, are being held in the Hotel Statler.

Dr. Tyson, soon after his return, will leave again for Detroit, Michigan, for another week-long conference of the National Lutheran Council.

Seventeen Seniors In Who's Who Publication

'Berg Men Cited For Activities

Seventeen Muhlenberg College seniors have been officially accepted to have their biographies appear in the 1946-47 edition of Who's Who Among Students In American Colleges and Universities.

Ten Teams In Bridge Test Tomorrow

Ten teams are entered in the campus bridge tournament which takes place tomorrow, Friday, at 7:00 p.m. at the Lambda Chi house on 23rd street. The results of the duplicate tournament, which will be run off in one night, will decide which four pairs will represent Muhlenberg in the National Inter-college Tournament next month.

Andrew Erskine, faculty umpire, has announced that all those in the tournament are to pay their entry fees of $1.00 per team by Friday afternoon at the English office. Those teams that can furnish decks of cards are asked to loan them to Mr. Erskine at the time they pay their fees.

Forty-nine colleges are entered in the National Tournament. Preliminary rounds will be conducted by mail during the months of February and March, and those colleges that manage to reach the final rounds will send a team to Chicago on April 18th and 19th, all expenses paid by the National Committee.

This is Muhlenberg's first venture into the tourney.

This publication is an overall distinction for outstanding college students, a nationwide honor organization that recognizes service to the school, campus activities, scholarship, and all the social and honorary fraternities to which a student may belong.

Nominations for this special recognition originate from the administration of the college and are then presented to the Who's Who publication for their approval. This publication is not to be confused with the A. N. Marquis & Co. publication, or with that known popularly as Who's Who In America. The first issue of this book appeared in 1934. Since that time with the exception of the war years representatives of Muhlenberg College have had their names listed among the biographies.

ALL SENIORS

This year all the men who were selected are seniors; however no stipulation to this effect is created by the publishers of Who's Who.

The seventeen students cited for this honor are listed below: Robert Bosch, a former editor of the WEEKLY and still a contributing member of the feature staff, is active in the Mask and Dagger as well as Alpha Psi Omega. Bosch is a member of Alpha Tau Omega, and has formerly served with the Choir and the Student Council.

Melvin Dieter is a member of the classical language, fraternity, Eta Sigma Phi, and has been a member of the Chapel Choir. Dieter sports three years straight running on the Dean's list.

Three times president of his class, James Hemstreet was elected to the local chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary activities fraternity, in his Junior year and also served as Junior Marshal at graduation that year. Hemstreet is past president of the Alpha Tau Omega and has served more than once on the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Maurice Horn is a member of the Cardinal Key Society. Horn, aiming for State Department work, holds membership in Phi Sigma Iota and Tau Kappa Alpha, honorary Romance language and forensic fraternities respectively.

Harold W. Helfrich, Jr., is a former contributor to the WEEKLY. Helfrich is President of the Student Body and is seen often in Mask and Dagger productions. He is now president of the Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity.

Harry Boretzky sandwiches working in the School Store between his duties as West Hall Proctor and hitting the Dean's list. He is a former contributing member of the feature staff of the WEEKLY.

An Alpha Tau Omega man, Carl F. Knowles was former Business Manager of both the WEEKLY and the Ciarla. Knowles lists among his club activities membership in the Muhlenberg Christian Association, and Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history fraternity.

ATHLETES NAMED

Oscar R. Baldwin in his first year at Muhlenberg was picked for the All-State basketball team. Baldwin captains this year's varsity. He is a former member of the Student Council and served on the Graduation Ball dance committee. He has two seasons as pitcher on the baseball team.

All-State and Little All-American end, George Bibighaus made

Applications for college work grants will be accepted by Mr. Davidson in the library from Monday, January 20, to Saturday, February 8. Work grants are assigned for one term only. Both new and former workers must apply during the period specified for the coming term.

The behavior of a certain misguided minority during chapel periods has now reached such unhappy proportions that this editorial becomes an unwanted necessity. Deferred for some weeks in hopes that the problem would correct itself, this article is now somewhat shamefully and reluctantly born into the college community as a small crusade aimed at improving existing conditions.

We, at Muhlenberg, are fortunate in possessing a Chapel of unusual beauty, at once a physical and spiritual asset to our campus. This church, as the House of God, should be awarded the proper respect due it whether we be Catholic, Protestant or Jew. Under a system of compulsory chapel attendance, the difficulties of creating a reverent and religious atmosphere are increased. Students are attending, in many instances simply because they must. This, however, does not release them from the responsibility of comporting themselves in a manner which is demanded of an intelligent college student and a Christian.

A commotion at the beginning of the service is bound to exist. In a period of less than ten minutes over five hundred men must file into the chapel, obtain a chapel attendance slip, find a seat, relieve themselves of their books, etc. Restlessness and conversation, although unfortunate, are practically unavoidable. Against this we do not file our complaint. We have more serious charges to make, more severe abuses to expose.

The following abuses are bona fide observations made during the course of recent services: (1) Studying for subsequent classes. (2) Reading letters from home and the current girl friend. (3) Eating sandwiches. (4) Smoking a pipe. (5) Writing letters. Certainly others which indicate the same general disrespect and disregard for what should be universally-apparent proper etiquette, have gone unobserved. If these listed observations seem to step on anyone's toe, know that they are meant to do just that.

The appointment of monitors to assure that all seats were taken might avoid the situation which places men on the stone floor on either side of the pews where they feel, in this informal position, more inclined to be out of order. But ultimately the responsibility rests on the individual. You may not be in the mood to worship, but there are others who are trying. Consider them.

Mask And Dagger Committee Works On Choice For Spring Play

Having read over twenty works, the Play Selection Committee of the Mask and Dagger Club met last Friday evening in the Library. Each of five men present reported on the various dramas they had read giving each a rating to determine its potentiality for a 'Berg production.

Leading the list of possibilities were Hay Fever, The Green Bay Tree, and several dark horses from the classic English and French repertoire.

No decision was reached, nor had it been intended that one should, the meeting merely being for the purpose of exchanging ideas. The committee will meet this Friday at the home of James Reppert for the purpose of making the final selection which will be announced next week.

OBITER DICTA . . .

Red Threat

by Dave Tyson

You have to hand it to the Communists for being shrewd. When they bore into an organization, they realize by now that the members of that organization would rather run than fight.

There is a long list of groups that have been weakened by the Communists, or have collapsed completely: the American Labor Party in New York, the CIO, the Political Action Committee, and numerous other labor unions and citizens' organizations, most of them truly democratic. As soon as the rank and file members of these organizations discover a few Communists in their midst, they're apt to run like jackrabbits. And a few Communists can stain a whole group Red in the eyes of outsiders, who also shy away and leave those few Communists with a clear field.

No better example of this can be cited than the American Veterans Committee. The AVC is a fertile ground for Communists. They recognized its potentialities early and began their usual practice of working into key positions. Strangely enough, the Communists are usually welcomed in such an organization until they are recognized. They're always willing to work, to do the dull routine jobs, always willing to run for office, and therefore are usually elected by a complacent rank and file, which doesn't wake up until it's too late.

Rather than give in to the Communists and let the AVC fall to pieces, as many other organizations have done, the AVC has decided to fight it out with the Reds. At last summer's AVC convention in Des Moines, though the words Communist or Radical were never mentioned, an undercover campaign for control resulted in a victory for the AVC's right wing.

More recently the issue has been brought to a showdown by the AVC's national planning committee. That body adopted a resolution opposing the entrance of Communists into the AVC and denouncing the Communist party for exploiting "the hardships of the veteran in order to further the party's selfish political ends." The resolution is being submitted to the local AVC chapters for their approval.

There is a great deal of talk about the Communist threat, but like the weather, little is done about it. You can't fight Communism by running away from it. If the AVC's right wing, for instance, quit the battle and formed another veterans organization, it might well be the same story over again. The only way the so-called "threat" can be licked is for those who oppose Communism to be ever vigilant, to be willing to work and devote their time, and even willing to risk their reputation, in the fight. And the fight can't be carried on from an ivory tower. It has to be slugged out toe-to-toe right inside these potentially progressive organizations.

MULE KICKS

Dear Mule Kicks,

There are a few questions which I would like to have answered before I state my reasons for writing this letter.

1. Am I, or am I not, a student?
2. Does the W.S.S.F. stand for World Student Service Fund or something else?
3. Am I not in this world or could I be out of it like my girl says?

Now to get on with my story. Yesterday I was coming down the Ad Building stairs when I saw some guy throw a pair of 9 1/2 D black patent leather pumps into a large basket. I rushed down the stairs whipped out my Activities Card to prove that I'm a student, and proceeded to put them on. Just as I was wiggling my toes to make sure that they were as good a fit as they first seemed, two brawny hands grabbed me and dragged me to the W.S.S.F. Committee.

There I had to give my life history, tell how I was a juvenile delinquent, and ended up by swearing I never use more than two lumps of sugar in my coffee. Needless to say, I was also relieved of the black patent leather pumps, size 9 1/2 D, and by the time I got back to the basket, someone else had lifted mine.

Right now I am about to put some time in the iron lung at Allentown General Hospital, as I contracted a swell case of pneumonia walking home in my bare feet. Before I go, however, I would like to be sure that this letter has fallen into the proper hands, so please be obliging enough to print it in the WEEKLY so that some action may be taken to rectify the situation.

Sincerely,
 A MARTYR FOR THE CAUSE

Why Obiter Dicta

No doubt you have often glanced over the lengthy and often interesting column, entitled "Obiter Dicta". Although the text of said column is quite understandable, few people are aware of the meaning of the title nor of the ingenious type of individual responsible for this Latin touch.

David Otto Tyson was born way back when he was very, very small. Complying with convention, he had two parents, one male, one female. Outwardly Otto's entire youth was quite normal. He started school when he was six months old and graduated from kindergarten at the ripe old age of ten. From this point his advancement was quite rapid, first grade, second grade etc., right on up until he became Managing Editor of the WEEKLY.

This sudden rise to fame would have upset many a sturdy constitution, but not David Otto. Now was the time he had been waiting for, the chance to make a name for himself. The doors of creative writing were open, and his lifelong ambition to be a writer was about to become a reality. David burned the midnight oil and wrote and wrote until he ran out of English words and had to resort to the only other language he knew, Latin. However his Latin vocabulary was even more limited than his English. Otto's knowledge of Latin consisted of two words, Obiter and Dicta, thus he wrote; "Obiter Dicta, Obiter Dicta," over and over again until he could write no more. Translated, these words mean "in passing" or "a passing remark" and are used by judges when passing sentence on a convicted law breaker. D.O. was first subjected to them when he was five years old and he never forgot them. It seems he had taken his father's car out without father's permission. Everything went fine until he came across a stop sign, naturally, not being able to read at the age of five, he drove right through it. David was immediately "tagged" and upon failure to produce his driver's license was taken to a court of justice. After a brief hearing the judge sentenced Dave to 30 days and attached an "Obiter Dicta" which read as follows: "In lieu of the fact that the defendant is rather young, I would like to recommend a daily portion of ice cream to be served to him while in confinement."

Thus Dave always associates Obiter Dicta with ice cream and ice cream with that kindly judge. This lasting impression is quite evident today in his association with the WEEKLY, and even if it does get monotonous, who am I to say, delete it." He likes it and he is the boss.

He Awful Truth

by Gordon R. Daggy

Everybody wants to get into the act, and this week the guilty finger has pointed my way. Miami Mike, who is heavily burdened with extracurricular you know what, has intrusted his brainchild to yours truly. I shall attempt in the following paragraphs to uphold the high journalistic standards of this column and to truthfully report on who is doing what to whom and why.

ALONG THE PRODUCTION LINE: Honors and congratulations go this week to three men who now are sure they are MEN. Dick Holben and Co., have been blessed with future Bobby Soxer and close on his heels are Horace Swartz and John Rogers who are now supporting FAMILIES instead of just wives.

Along the grapevine comes the word that one George Whitner, having indulged quite heavily in Kickapoo-Joy-Juice on Saturday night, mistook himself for an American aborigine and went charging into Osmans brandishing bow and arrow and accosting the bartender with, "Me wantum heap fire water".

Marty Fels had a blind date Saturday night. Marty's only comment was, "The date wasn't blind, but the buddy who located her certainly was". Better luck next time, Marty.

Bill Glase had a hot time over the weekend when his car burned up around him. Now he is convinced that the little tube on the rear fender is not a cigarette dispenser. Live and learn!

The boy who cried "woof" has cried once too often. Result: Rudy Zakos is now the proud possessor of a fiancée. How does that rope around your neck feel, Rudy?

This week is "Be Kind To Professors", week and if you don't believe me, just refresh your mind of the examination schedule. Me-thinks 'twould be more effective if the WSSF, instead of subjecting us to long winded speeches every morning, would incorporate the letters, WSSF into a brief and meaningful slogan such as: "Will you Send a Sawbuck, Friend?"

The social spotlight is turned on Schmoey's Barn which housed a gay and later groggy crowd of celebrities on Saturday night. Among those present were, Roger "Rum" Volpe, "Fearless" Francis Yanoshik, Dip "Never say Die" DePiero and a host of other teatotalers. A sipping good time was had by all.

Jack Gaskill has been burning the roads across N. J. recently. You never used to go home, Jack. What's the scoop and what does she look like?

INFORMATION PLEASE: The WEEKLY office has been cluttered for weeks with an unknown phone number, 5151 ex. 442. Will owner of said number please claim same. Rumor has it that the party on the other end is . . . Wow! . . . Will the talented artist who contributed the cartoon for the Xmas issue of the WEEKLY please leave his name in the WEEKLY office so that he may be contacted.

Oscar "Red" Baldwin has been asked to play football for Penn State. This request was a result of his fine body-blocking, displayed in the Mule-State basketball game.

PARTING NOTE: School SPIRIT does not come in bottles, nor can it be purchased in bars. It is not distilled, but rather INSTILLED. All you have to do to become intoxicated with it, is to APPRECIATE your school. The results will surprise you and it won't cost a cent.

You ex-Gobs might have noted in the last issue of "All Hands" that several ex-Muhlenberg men were included in the photos. Sheldon Jackowitz, "Horse" McClure, Bob Boyce, and "Soupy" Campbell were showing their kissers on duty with the NROTC . . .

Plans formulating quickly for the Junior Prom on tap for February 14th. Junior Class holding back the hot details until they're ready for a complete release very soon. Howard Haring, Prexy, is going all out to make the affair topnotch, and working with the Athletic Department to make sure all the guys and gals will have seats for the "Valpo" game on Saturday, the 15th . . .

Local telephone operator please confirm, are you being hitched up come May 17th? If so Louise, leave quietly and gently, the hearts will be breaking as it is . . .

Dean Kendig out of the "sick bay" after a pretty good bout with the flu bug. Some wise guys said he just wanted to be near Miss Virginia Gantt and if so, it's pretty much all right—the Dean and the very nice lady are gonna be Mr. and Mrs. in the near future. Congratulations are in order, and here they are . . . Phi Eps are planning a dance soon and should be a nice affair. The Phi are trying to regain pre-war standards and doing a nice job. We understand that they, along with the Phi Sigma Epsilon crew are seeking domiciles and hope to be entrenched in new homes soon. . . .

LATE FLASH: Word has just come to this scribe that the faculty is not to be outdone along the production line. Congratulations to Mr. Al Jones of the English Dept. for his fine work in the production of his latest young 'un, a bouncing baby gal.

Alumni
Memo

John H. Wagner, Alumni Secretary

The Executive Committee of the Alumni Association met last Friday evening in the Library and discussed plans for the big Victory Reunion which will be held next May 30th and 31st. The details will be announced later, but I am mentioning it here as a reminder to those men of the student body who will finish their collegiate work this month and leave the campus. You Seniors who are leaving are most cordially welcomed to attend those activities next May as the guests of the Alumni Association. It has been a tradition that the graduating seniors are the guests of the Association on this occasion and we want to continue this custom. So, put down the dates in your little black book (I imagine most of you have a "book") and plan to be with us on these days when we will celebrate.

From time time, we have spoken of the Placement Bureau. The Bureau is operated by the Alumni Office and serves both students and alumni in an effort to secure interesting positions. To the seniors who are leaving, let me remind you that if you will, at any time, indicate to us the type of employment in which you would be interested, we will make an effort to bring you in contact with the firm who offers the type of employment you seek. Many seniors are placed through the efforts of the Bureau before graduation, and many alumni also take advantage of this service. There is no charge at any time for this service.

'BERG TOPS LEOPARDS IN THRILLER, 47-40

BLIND PASSES AND SIDE COURT STABS

A lot of noise has been bouncing around these cloistered halls concerning the long awaited, but late in showing, intramural program. The idea, which hatched last spring in the form of a softball tourney staged by the dorm students, navy fliers, and frats, was stalled this year when the administration decided that the sack time of the homeless frosh was more vital than their recreation, and converted the West Hall gym into a barracks.

This move, while saving the school from having to turn the mall into a bivouac area, also deprived the Athletic Office of its only indoor gym floor—save one. The other floor is situated in the basement of the Ad Building, but is small enough to forbid the playing anything but a restrained cribbage game without running the risk of becoming part of the wall-paper.

Everybody we've talked to wants some sort of an organized program. The athletic office knows that this is a major factor in the sustaining of school spirit, and is anxious to let some of the spectators play some ball themselves. There are plenty of good ball players on the campus, and all of the makings of a red hot league are here—minus one—a place to play.

Cheer up, guys, any day now the speed demon construction gang on Chew Street will get together and put the last piece of compo board in place, and the gym will be back in use. In the meantime, plans are being made for the forming of a snow ball and penny pitching league.

Track is another phase of the sporting scene that is being curtailed by the lack of space. Ernie Fellows is still looking for a place for his cinder men to work out on, and may have to use the macadam plot outside the Science Building as a last resort—weather permitting. Neither sleet nor snow—and the rest of it—could stop a few rugged trackmen that we saw last week. They were giving a pretty fair imitation of a bunch of prospectors musing towards the Klondike as they took their laps around the Muhlenberg oval.

Bud Barker already has his eye on some prospects for next year's club. Peiffer and Hoffman, lately of Allentown's state championship five are on the list as possibilities, and a fellow named Gottlieb, All-Metro choice of the New York district will probably enroll in February.

The V.F.W. of Allentown has really found a gold mine in 'Berg ball players. Jack Crider, George Bibighaus, Harry Mackin, and Johnny Sweatlock are a few that are making the team one of the hottest in the valley.

Those guys you see dribbling, passing, shooting, and generally running mad on the court outside of the Science Building are the exponents of the latest Bull Ritten brainchild, basketball, otherwise known as race suicide. Don't ask us what future there is in it.

Kings Point, Temple Next Home Tests For 'Berg Quintet

Having shown a reversal in form in losing easily to Penn State last Saturday night, the Mules will face the Kings Point Merchant Marine this Saturday night and Temple next Wednesday night. Both games will be played at Rockne Hall.

The Mules were disappointing in losing to an average Penn State team. True, the Nittany Lions are always difficult to beat at home where their tight zone defense fits in perfectly; yet, judging from 'Berg's previous record and personnel they should have beaten the Lions by at least ten points.

Kings Point Merchant Marine has a fairly good team. They have won five out of nine games this season. They have lost to Columbia by 63-34, Yale by 56-34, and also lost a close one to Georgetown. From their season's record they shouldn't prove too difficult.

Temple also has been a disappointment so far this season. According to the pre-season dope, Temple was to be one of the top ten teams in the country. Yet, after their initial one point victory over Muhlenberg, they lost to Oklahoma A. and M. by nine points, 43-34. They then beat Colorado 47-40. However, in their last four games they have been pretty poor. They beat Wyoming 51-44 but then lost to University of Southern California which, by the way, exhibited some of the most remarkable one-handed shooting ever seen in the East. Brigham Young followed with a two point victory and then Penn State swamped them 62-46. Last Saturday night they lost to Duke 59-56. That gives Temple a season record of three victories and five defeats. However, this must be noted, they have played the top teams in the country.

Harry Donovan will again, undoubtedly, guard Lerner of Temple. In the first game this year between the schools, Harry prevented Lerner from making a single set shot. Also Baldwin and McGee are in better condition than the first game and they should make the going a little easier. If the two teams live up to their pre-season expectations this game should be one of the best played all year.

Barker will in all probability start the same team against the Mariners and Temple that he has used in the past four games. "Red" Baldwin will pair with Chuck Theisen at the forwards; Dick McGee will jump center; and Harry Donovan and Ed Schwob will work from the guards.

GRAPPLERS WIN FIRST AT SWARTHMORE, 21-9

Meeting their second opponent in three days, the Muhlenberg wrestling team defeated Swarthmore College, 21-9, in a dual meet on Friday, January 10. The Mules took all but three bouts in an impressive display of skill, speed, and strength. The match was decided by Burt Wessman, blond 175-pounder from Mephram High, Long Island, who pinned his opponent, McCutcheon, in the third period to give Muhlenberg a 16-9 advantage in team points and guarantee victory. The coup de grace was administered by "Smiley" Bill Evans, when he turned in the fastest pin of the evening in the heavyweight division. "Smiley" threw Trimmer after only 28 seconds of the second period. Jerry Braverman also gained a fall over Jack of Swarthmore. He pinned the Garnet grappler in one minute and four seconds of the third period.

The Mules were hard pressed through the lightweight classes. Although Ted Getz in the 12-pound class defeated "Shorty" Burroughs, 8-0, to give the Cardinal and Gray combination a three point lead, Rudy Amelio and Eddie Dougherty both lost close decisions to their opponents to put Swarthmore out in front 6-3. However, here the Mules took over again, and began to show the form which won the match for them. Cliff Steinbach cleverly outpointed Gurraro, 15-2, remaining in control of the action throughout the bout. Braverman then turned in the first pin of the season for the Mules. Then after Larry Delp lost a decision to Kelley, Wessman sewed up the match for 'Berg.

The grunt-and-groaners journey to Brooklyn tomorrow for a match with Brooklyn Polytech. The summaries of the Swarthmore match follow:

121-lb. class: Getz, Muhlenberg defeated Burroughs, Swarthmore, 8-0.

128-lb. class: Hillman, Swarthmore, defeated Amelio, Muhlenberg, 3-2.

136-lb. class: Roy, Swarthmore, defeated Dougherty, Muhlenberg, 6-3.

145-lb. class: Steinbach, Muhlenberg, defeated Gurraro, Swarthmore, 15-2.

155-lb. class: Braverman, Muhlenberg, threw Jack, Swarthmore, bar and half-nelson, in 1:04 of third period.

165-lb. class: Kelley, Swarthmore, defeated Delp, Muhlenberg, 13-3.

175-lb. class: Wessman, Muhlenberg, threw McCutcheon, Swarthmore, bar and chancery, in 1:36 of third period.

Heavyweight class: Evans, Muhlenberg, threw Trimmer, Swarthmore, reverse bar and chancery, in 28 seconds of second period.

Baldwin Injures Toe, Wrist Monday

In a Monday night practice session at Rockne Hall, Red Baldwin suffered a sprained wrist and split toe, setting the 'Berg victory hopes down another notch. Baldwin was driving in for a shot under the basket during a scrimmage session, when he lost his balance twisting his wrist and splitting his toe. Barker hopes to have Baldwin back in top shape in time to meet the Kings Point team.

Call Out For Golf, Boxing Teams

Any leather pushers walking around that want to organize a boxing team stop at the WEEKLY office and see Herb Needleman. A lot of interest has been observed concerning the forming of at least one informal team. If enough punchers turn out, a schedule might be arranged.

Cy Davis also has the welcome mat out for any golfers on campus. Davis is a ranking amateur golfer from Hershey, and already has a tentative schedule arranged.

Focus On . . .

ED SIKORSKI

December the 14th, 1946, the greatest gridiron machine ever assembled under the name of Muhlenberg, reached the high water mark of its success by shading a star studded St. Bonaventure squad, 26-25, in the first annual Tobacco Bowl game at Lexington, Kentucky. Fine coaching, spirited team work, and the excellent performance of a number of individual players all contributed to the greatest football achievements in the history of the school.

Of the individual performers, Eddie Sikorski was high on the list. His is the story of a local boy who made good. Three years he carried the pigskin for Emmaus high school, and in 1942 played varsity ball for the Mules. His playing career was rudely interrupted by the advent of war, but he returned to the 'Berg lineup this fall to establish himself as one of the best all around backs ever to wear the Cardinal and Gray.

Sikorski was the leading ground gainer in the Mule backfield and his eleven touchdowns gave him second place honors in the scoring department. Time and again, only his driving legs and big red helmet could be seen, as he ripped through opposing linemen with almost a clocklike regularity. Eddie's offensive play was no less spectacular than his ability to defend and hold when the chips were down. Bill Murray, football coach at the University of Delaware, will give ample testimony on his ability to back up a line.

Shortly after the Tobacco encounter, Sikorski was invited by Ray Morrison of Temple to join the northern squad for the annual Blue-Gray classic at Birmingham, Alabama. He saw action in each of the first three periods of this game, but was unable to play in the final quarter due to a shoulder injury.

The New York Yankees of the American professional league recently sent a contract to Eddie, and it is feared by 'Berg boosters that he will accept the proposal terms. Dispel your fears, for he plans to be in the Mule backfield for the curtain raiser of 1947.

Hank Baietti and Bob Smith, former Mules, are now playing on Long Island University's basketball team for Clair Bee.

Muhlenberg has lost only two basketball games in Rockne Hall in the past three years. Temple in 1944 and Princeton this season. 1945 the Mules went undefeated on the local court . . .

Drop Lafayette From Ranks Of Unbeaten; McGee High Man

Before a record breaking crowd of 2700 screaming fans, the Mules kicked in the highly touted and undefeated Lafayette Leopards 47-40 in one of the most thrilling games this season. Excitement prevailed throughout the game as the fans enjoyed a real ball game.

The opening minutes of the game showed the tension that has had the both teams on edge this past week. Each team was "feeling" the other out. Lafayette broke the ice after two minutes—the crowd went wild. Schwob threw in a one-hander and Harry Donovan dropped a goal and two fouls. Lafayette retaliated and held a 7-6 lead. Then the game was nip and tuck until the last 3 minutes of the half when McGee went wild with great hook shots from way out. Loneragan and Harry scored just before the half ended, the Mules holding a 26-19 lead.

As the second half got underway, Dick McGee, Tex Baldwin, and Schwob threw in points to loose the Mules lead. With 10 minutes remaining, the Mules held a 17-point lead, and the fans became quiet. During the last seven minutes, Barker's boys worked the ball around beautifully until the ball could be worked underneath. Harry Donovan played a great floor game and controlled the defensive board throughout the game. A spirited rally by a frustrated home team failed to come close, and the Mules ended the game with their most glorious victory. Theisen, Schwob, and Loneragan were great workers throughout.

Preliminary also a Thriller
Despite a sparkling performance by Marv Jaffe, who tallied 23 points, the Jayvees lost a thriller in the preliminary game 48-47.

beam of isolation from their eye. Some students, apparently, see the advance of education as one of the hopes for permanent world peace. Some students, apparently, realize that an investment in WSSF is an investment in the future. And these students are to be commended for an intelligent analysis of the problem.

This is what has been done. Can Muhlenberg men be proud of their recent response to the WSSF?

He has the ability to adapt his fine musicianship to young audiences having had much experience in college and USO recitals in addition to his big time appearances. He prefers to introduce each of his numbers with a few comments, frequently of a humorous nature.

Assisting him in his recital tonight, which is his second here within twelve months, will be his charming wife, the former Miss Margaret Lehmann, who was a full-time professional musician prior to her marriage and now acts as his able accompanist.

Also appearing with him is personable Miss Betty Jean Kimble who will be remembered for her charming performances in the excerpts from Figaro in the Assembly program last week. She is a former pupil of Mr. Krueger's and one of Philadelphia's rising stars.

The Athletic Department has announced that additional seating for students and dates has been provided for the Valparaiso basketball game on February 15. This is Junior Prom weekend. After the usual student section is filled, balcony seats are to be available. There are no reserved seats in either section and first come, first served.

'Berg Loses To Lions By 48-36

Penn State pulled its second upset within a week's time last Saturday night by trouncing the highly favored Mules in State's packed field house.

The Lions were definitely "hot" as they canned 52% of their tries while the Allentownians hit on only 16%. This was the first time that Barker's boys came up against a zone defense, and the change proved disastrous. Harry Donovan was the only player able to hit one-handers consistently, while Dick McGee ran a close second.

A rousing first period rally during which State had an 18-3 lead seemed to frustrate the Mules, but the boys put up a rally that came within five points of tying the score. After this it was just a matter of time as the players, fans, and officials outplayed and outnumbered our club.

Two of the clubs that have beaten the Mules thus far this season are not scheduled for return matches—Princeton and Penn State. No revenge for another annual.

"M" Club Plans For Annual Show And Junior Prom Program; Meeting Monday

President George Bibighaus, of the Varsity "M" Club has announced that there will be another meeting of that organization on next Monday, January 20th, at 11 A.M. in the Science Auditorium.

At the last meeting held, it was unanimously voted by the members present to begin plans for the 1947 Varsity "M" Club show. Also voted upon and accepted by the club was the suggestion that the club take whatever steps possible to aid in the awarding of certificates to those men who have earned their letter in varsity competition here at Muhlenberg.

A committee of four was appointed to prepare plans for entertainment at the Junior Prom on February 14th at Dorney Park. Several skits and offerings are being considered now by the members of the committee for the program which will take place during the intermission of the dance. Those on the committee are Mike Rogers, John Keefe, Jim Schell, and Bob Gernert.

Attendance at the meetings has been rather low, and the President made an appeal to all members to try and be present at the next meeting. Meetings last about twenty minutes.

Bob Hill, former heavyweight boxing champ of the Naval Academy and member of the Philadelphia Phils baseball club, attended 'Berg in V-12 days . . .

"Haps" Benfer, Director of Admissions, played against the fabulous Jim Thorpe while he was at Albright College . . .

Harry Donovan is current scoring record holder at Rockne Hall, by virtue of his 43 point total over Newark, this season . . .

WSSF DRIVE . . .

Campus Total Over $1000

Contributions to the World Student Service Fund by several campus organizations and gifts from individuals outside the college community boosted the final total of the Drive, which closed last Friday, to $1050.

Although the Treasurer of the WSSF, Dr. Greth, will accept contributions until June first in the Treasurer's office, the sum raised during the nine days drive is believed to have reached maturity. It represents only about one-half of the sought for $2000 goal.

Poorest response to the drive's attempt to raise money for foreign students is placed upon the faculty and the town students. In fraternities and dormitories the response was calculated to be as high as 90%.

The Student Council voted to donate $100, the Muhlenberg WEEKLY $25, the Muhlenberg Christian Association $50, and the Phi Sigma Iota, local romance language fraternity $5.

Frank Sherman, drive director, released the following statement to the WEEKLY.

"I would like to thank sincerely, on behalf of the World Student Service Fund and Lutheran Student Action, all those whose generous help made possible the recent campaign—the planning committee, solicitors, publicity workers, faculty advisers and speakers, and especially all those who responded with their gifts.

We did not nearly reach our quota; but, as you can observe, this was due solely to our failure to reach effectively the commuting students. The contributions of those who did give—residents of East and West Halls, and the fraternity houses, a number of the town students, the faculty and administrative people, and the two campus organizations—were very satisfactory. I think that we can feel that our thousand dollars or more will be of real help to those in need.

The need for aid to students in Europe and Asia will probably continue for another year, at least, and Muhlenberg next year will again want to do its share. Therefore, looking to the future, I would make this request of all students and other interested persons: please formulate roughly your comments on the drive which has just been concluded, and your suggestions for achieving greater success in the future, and drop a note addressed to the World Student Service Fund in the press box on the door of the WEEKLY office, second floor of the Administration building. Your continued interest and aid will be appreciated."

Vincent Lopez Band To Play For Junior Prom

Castle Garden Scene Of Formal Dance February 14; Week-end Events Planned

Two red letter days, February 14 and 15, will mark the crest of Muhlenberg's social season with the presentation of the Junior Prom Weekend.

The Junior Class in securing Vincent Lopez for the night of the 14th and in arranging for seats at the Muhlenberg - Valparaiso basketball game in Rockne Hall on Saturday following the dance, show their intentions of making this a weekend spangled with superlatives.

VALENTINE'S DAY

The decorations and general atmosphere for the occasion will center around the Valentine's Day motif. A return to Castle Garden at Dorney Park, where Muhlenberg's last dance, the Senior Ball, met with huge success, insures the week-enders a dance floor capable of accommodating the expected large crowd and at the same time offering a quiet setting for the affair.

Vincent Lopez has one of the finest dance bands in the country, and over a period of several years has established himself as a talented pianist and as an arranger of music in the strictly "danceable" style. He has a regular network program, "Luncheon with Lopez", which goes out over the air at noon, emanating from the Taft Hotel in New York City. In recent years he has attained high popularity among colleges for his work in just such dances as the coming Junior Prom.

All the local social fraternities are planning house parties emphasizing a week-end of dining, dancing, and entertainment.

The possibilities of vacating the third floor of West Hall and using it as a dormitory to house some of the girls on campus for the weekend, as was done in years past, is being investigated by the Prom committee. The project is now contingent upon many factors—administrative, financial, and practicability of accomplishment; therefore no promises are being made to date.

STRICTLY FORMAL

The dance has been declared by the committee a formal affair, making this the first strictly formal event of the '46-'47 social calendar. Admission for students and their dates will be, as usual, via activities card. Alumni and guests of alumni, and students will be charged at the door a reasonable $2.00 admission per couple.

Chaperones for the occasion are Dr. and Mrs. E. T. Horn and Dr. and Mrs. Russell Stine. The Administration and faculty are cordially invited guests.

The committee appointed more than three weeks ago by president of the Junior Class, Howard Haring, is under the leadership of co-chairman, Morgan S. Haney and Arthur Damask. They have announced that decorations for Castle Garden will be novel and, it is hoped, elaborate within the limits of the budget. They are asking the voluntary cooperation of members of the class in helping to decorate and make this dance the success which is expected.

Edward M. Sullivan and John Crider, presidents of the Sophomore and Freshmen classes respectively, announce a combined meeting of the two classes to be held on Thursday, February 6, 1947 at 4:30 p.m. in the Science Auditorium. All sophomores and freshmen are urged to attend so that they may help in making arrangements for a proposed dance to be held sometime in March. The dance is to be a combined function of both classes.

VINCENT LOPEZ, music maker.

May Adopt New Entrance Tests

Dr. Henry Chauncy, director of the College Entrance Examination Board, will be on the campus Saturday morning to meet with Muhlenberg's Admissions Committee and discuss the use of the Board's scholastic aptitude test in the new Muhlenberg admissions program.

The College Entrance Examination Board, located in Princeton, N. J., was established in 1900 to coordinate the secondary school entrance requirements of twelve member colleges. Since then the number of colleges and students served by the Board has increased tremendously.

Starting in 1926, the Board has been administering scholastic aptitude tests which predict a student's academic success by determining his aptitude for college work.

During the war the Board was called upon to administer a wide variety of tests to men in the armed services: the Navy's V-12 test, the Officer Qualification Test, the attainment tests used in the Navy's service schools and in the vast network of the United States Armed Forces Institute. Every veteran was probably subjected to a Board test at some time in his service career.

Nineteen Seniors Complete Work; Graduation In June

Nineteen members of the Class of '47, who will have fulfilled all requirements for their bachelor degree by January 31, slip quietly from the halls of Alma Mater after exams next week and proceed to file notebooks, slide rules, textbooks and undergraduate memories in the forgotten crannies of the cellar or attic.

Those students who will present themselves for the degree of Bachelor of Science at the commencement exercises on June 2, 1947 together with the remainder of their class who will be finishing up next semester are: Earl A. Bender, Jr., Lloyd J. Graner, Raymond Hefter, Walter W. Stolz, and Merle C. Wertz.

Those to be awarded the Bachelor of Arts degree at that same time are: George H. Abel, Jr., John R. Bogert, Robert K. Bosch, Benjamin Celian, Frank T. DiPierro, Melvin E. Dieter, Edward F. Halperin, James A. Hemstreet, Richard M. Holben, Carl F. Knowles, Donald I. Martin, Orlando W. Miller, Martin Shemella, and Robert H. Wessner, Jr.

A categorical listing of these men according to their courses of concentration reveals that nine or

Four Students Will Speak In Radio Forum

Four Muhlenberg students will be starred in a panel discussion over WCAU, Philadelphia, on Friday, January 31st. John E. T. Rogers, James D. Wilder, John P. Reumann, and Fred Brause will be featured in the second half of the CBS program, "Opinion Please", to be presented over WCAU at 5:00 p.m., January 31st.

These four men were chosen by Dean of Students Kendig and the Faculty Advisers of the Forensic Council to represent Muhlenberg in a discussion of the topic, "Should 18-Year-Olds Vote?". The first fifteen minutes will be occupied by two well-known speakers discussing this topic from the New York studios of CBS.

The purpose of this program is to present the opinion of leading members of the younger generation on this vital issue in an informal discussion of the franchise rights of our younger citizens. Their opinions, expressed in an informal conversation, will be contrasted with those of the two distinguished speakers to be heard earlier on the program.

Local listeners may hear this program by dialing 1210 on their radios.

Der Deutsche Verein Has Illustrated Lecture

An illustrated lecture on the treatment of the nativity story by famous artists, given by Dr. Pfeuger, was the feature of Monday evening's meeting of Der Deutsche Verein at the home of Dr. Harry H. Reichard.

The scheduled election of officers was postponed until the next meeting since a number of members were unable to attend because of concentration on final examination study.

Those who were present were treated to a sauerkraut supper prepared by Mrs. Reichard.

The cabbage for the sauerkraut was grown in Dr. Reichard's own back yard. The supper also included hot dogs, mashed potatoes, apple pie and coffee.

Classes Begin On Tuesday; Enrollment Will Top 1300

Muhlenberg students will register Monday, February 3, for the Spring semester under the newly arranged organizational set-up in the Administration. Already the College has admitted or readmitted about 200 more students for the term, so that total enrollment will surpass 1300.

Bridge Tourney Selects Teams

Muhlenberg's bridge sharks battled it out at the Lambda Chi house last Friday night in the campus tournament. Of the ten teams entered, the following four pairs came away as top men: Fred Brause and Bob Berg; Lew Fluck and Harry Graveman; Dick Peters and Jim Leavitt; and Willie Francis and Charlie Mosser. Those four teams will represent Muhlenberg in the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament which gets underway next month.

Andy Erskine supervised the tournament, which was played under duplicate bridge rules. Tension was high throughout the evening, and the almost dead silence that pervaded the tournament was an indication of the high-pressure bridge being played.

A play-off will be scheduled early next semester to decide the Muhlenberg championship team which will be presented with an award.

"M" Club Show Committee Named

Work has begun on the annual "M" Club show, with the appointment of a committee by President George Bibighaus to make the initial moves to "get the show on the road".

Headed by Mike Rogers, the committee consists of Cy Davis, John Sweatlock, John Keefe, Bill Lybrand, and George Bibighaus. They will, in the near future, meet with representatives of the Mask and Dagger and try to ascertain open dates for the "Little Theatre". Dean Perry F. Kendig must also be consulted as to availability of the theatre inasmuch as he is in charge of assembly programs.

It is the plan of the "M" Club to present the show as early as possible this year. Work is now in progress on entertainment for the Junior Prom, on February 14th.

Reveal Results In X-Ray Tests

It has been announced by Dr. Thomas H. Weaver, Jr., Director of the College's Division of Student Health, that the results of the Tuberculosis X-rays taken on December 4 and 5 are now available.

Only one of the 1355 prints taken showed evidence of pulmonary disease. This person has been informed of his existing condition and has been referred to his family physician for treatment.

Five of the films revealed anatomical variations, one revealed glandular involvement, two showed abnormal cardiac outline and nine were classified as miscellaneous findings. In this last category was included an ex-G.I. in whose left scapula a piece of shrapnel was lodged.

There was a total of 1337 films with no significant abnormal findings.

Plans are being made to conduct a yearly program so as to detect early cases of Tuberculosis. When this program is established students will be skin tested for evidence of this disease and X-rays will be taken as required.

This program is being carried out with the hope that Tuberculosis might, in the future, be eradicated.

According to the new administrative arrangement, the staff is headed by President Levering Tyson and Vice President Robert C. Horn. Dr. Horn handles any special duties which he may be called upon to undertake. Dean Sherwood Mercer is responsible for academic work and admissions to the College.

ADMISSIONS COMMITTEE

The actual interviewing and accepting of prospective students is handled by the Admissions Committee, headed by Dean Harry A. Benfer. Dean Benfer, in addition to his task as Director of Admissions, continues his counseling work with Freshmen. In charge of the academic work of upper classmen is Dean Mercer.

Mr. Paul Gebert is now Registrar, charged with the keeping of the academic records of the College. He also takes care of the actual mechanics of registration.

REGISTER MONDAY

Registration for the new term is to take place Monday, February 3, with classes beginning the next day, Tuesday. The hours and place for registration will be posted shortly. It has been announced, however, that the pre-war custom of having department heads available for consultation at registration will be reverted to.

The classes schedule for the term was posted January 22. At the same time an instruction sheet was posted, and each student was to take two trial schedules and fill them out. If a student is continuing in the same course, he is to stay in the same section at the same time as this semester.

MAJORS SPECIFIED

Dean Mercer's Office has called attention to several specific rules. All men who will become Juniors in February must have their programs for their remaining semesters approved by the head of the department in which they are majoring. This must be done before they select their new schedule of classes.

Pre-medical students who have not as yet consulted Dr. Shankweiler about their courses must see him and arrange them before registering for the Spring semester.

Similarly, Pre-legal students are to see Dr. Swain before registering. Pre-theologs meet with Dr. Doberstein, and students who expect to teach see Dr. Kilmer. Any student who plans to shift from the Arts to the Science course or vice versa must have Dean Mercer's approval.

NO LATE REGISTRATION

The penalty for late registration is five dollars. It is further to be noted that no courses can be dropped or changed after February 15. If a student drops a course after this date, he will receive an "F" for the course.

Any changes made in a schedule must be made between the fourth and fifteenth of February, and these must be changed on the trial schedule submitted to the Registrar.

On Monday Dean Benfer registered over 150 new freshmen. In addition, 50 more students will be admitted with advanced standing. Most of these are returning veterans. This will bring the total enrollment to over 1300 students, the largest in the school's history.

Any arts student with problems in his program is requested to see (Continued on Page Four)

EDITORIALS . . .

THE HEAT IS ON

Criticism comes easily to an ignorant person. There has been a good deal of criticism, for instance, levelled at the present Muhlenberg basketball team for the "doubtful" record it has compiled so far. This criticism has taken a vicious form, too—that of indirection. Rather than make a bold statement, the critics tell you "They say Barker isn't such a hot coach after all", or "I understand they're passing over a lot of good basketball material on the campus." If the season's ultimate record should prove these critics wrong, they could easily disclaim any responsibility for originating the charges.

There are a few important considerations the critics fail to see. First of all, a new coach has taken charge of a group of players who have attained a large degree of success other years in their own way and under a different system. He's trying to mold them into a team, a single unit, a winning combination . . . not an easy job.

Then it has to be realized that the war is over. This is postwar basketball. Muhlenberg, you will have to admit, was playing way out of its league the past few seasons. This year the situation is different. The other schools now have the material and the old spirit. They're out to get us. The heat is on.

FAILURE OF A CAUSE

As the WEEKLY goes out to the offices of other college papers and subscribers all over this section of the country, it will have to announce that Muhlenberg has not raised its promised $2000 for the World Student Service Fund. The figure of $1050 contributed to date tells a sad story of failure in Muhlenberg's first charity campaign of this sort.

Part of the blame for the failure, to be sure, can be laid at the feet of the WSSF Committee, whose members may not have used the proper psychology or methods in approaching the Student Body and Faculty. Much experience has been gained, however. The Student Council would do well to have the reasons for the failure outlined in a report which could be passed on to such campaign committees in future years.

But in the last analysis, it is not the members of the WSSF Committee who meet an obligation of this sort. It is the contributors who make or break a campaign. A large segment of the Student Body, and an even larger segment of the Faculty, has not responded to the appeal. Their names are not on the rolls of the WSSF Committee for even a token contribution.

The national WSSF campaign will not be closed until June. It will be possible for these who have not contributed to do so before then and to show those on the outside that this college, by John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg, shall not fail in its pledge.

HONOR SYSTEM?

The other morning in chapel, Dr. Doberstein brought up the issue of an "Honor System" for taking examinations here at the college. The WEEKLY would like to present the case to the student body and get some reaction.

As used at other schools, the system calls for a pledge in the front of each quiz book stating that the student will neither give or receive assistance during the exam; the student signs the pledge, the instructor presents the examination and then leaves the students with the test, their conscience, and the signed pledge.

Student opinion is sought by the WEEKLY, and we hope to receive letters expressing comment and ideas on the system. Should enough student opinion appear, the WEEKLY would gladly present the issue to the administration for consideration and possible action.

ASSEMBLIES IMPROVE

Last Thursday's assembly program, though classical in nature, was not too high-brow for the crowd of more than 200 students and faculty members who saw it. Dean Kendig has expressed satisfaction at the enthusiastic reception given the program. In answer to requests for more, he announces that assemblies of the same caliber are scheduled for next semester.

MULE KICKS.

Editor's Note:—The WEEKLY has received several letters for the "Mule Kicks" column. We are anxious to help the students voice their opinion, but we refuse to print letters without the student's name who wrote the letter. The names will not necessarily be used when the letter is published, but will be kept on file in the WEEKLY office.

This is in line with the policy of the WEEKLY, and must be adhered to in order that students will not abuse the privilege of making public their sentiments through the medium of the paper.

Dear Mule Kicks:

The following is a reply to the article in the last edition of the WEEKLY which was written about the homeless frosh. This letter is directed to the martyr of intramural sports.

We "fortunate men" would like to offer our sincere and most humble apologies to all intra-mural athletes for preventing them from participating in intra-mural sports. We hope we will not be barred from future intra-mural competitions for being so inconsiderate of all other students.

Since the appearance of the article we have grown guilt complexes and have horrid nightmares thinking only of the deprived unfortunate athletes.

We love our home in the gym, but since we are very kind hearted, we would be willing to give up the gym, which would be a great sacrifice for us, if the intra-mural athletes would trade places with us, giving us their rooms in return.

Sincerely,

Sixteen Sack Happy Frosh

Editor's note: Sorry if the point of last week's effort was misconstrued; the purpose of it was not to paint a picture of a bunch of potential All-Americans going flabby while sixteen guys monopolized the gym for sleeping quarters. It was rather an attempt to put a bug in somebody's ear about the formulating of an intermural program NOW, so that when the facilities are again available, it can be inaugurated without delay.

Muhlenberg WEEKLY

Dear Editors:

Last week you gave us some constructive criticism on the occurrences during chapel. This week why not put the shoe on the other foot and call the Administration's attention to a condition which needs remedy—but badly. This concerns the Commons.

We are being taken to the tune of $13.12 per week for food that is hardly society style. Why must we pay for food we do not eat on weekends or days on which we are absent from school? Can't some system be invoked whereby we pay only when we are there to eat?

Moe with No Dough

Dear Editors:

This Mule is kicking hard. What about? Something that should stir the Administration or Business office to action.

I should, but I'm not kicking about the price of food. I don't pretend to understand prices.

I'm not complaining about the metal trays we eat on. I became accustomed to that in the service.

I'm not kicking about the lack of condiments on the table, or the lack of silverware. It's gotten so I don't miss them anymore.

But I am kicking about the unsatisfactory (to say the least) system of a blanket price. I'm sure someone could think up a system whereby a student doesn't have to pay for meals missed on weekends or during the week.

Where does the money saved on these "missed meals" go? It could be used to lower prices, but apparently that is not the case. Please, please, print this letter.

HOPEFUL

Dear Editor,

Please listen to my sad lament

A tale of woe I now present.

It happens when the night shades fall

And the lights go on in yon West Hall.

I take Swain's History book in hand

To spend an evening I had planned

To use in study and on maps

To soothe the Prof and our dean Haps.

But as I burn the lamp of learning

I find my eyes are slightly burning.

I move my chair and tilt the lamps

But still I find my eyes have cramps.

Now sirs, can't things be done, but soon

To supplement the shining moon.

Attention Deans and Presidents kind,

Please fix the lights before we're blind . . .

A once 20/20 student.

Fraternity News

PHI KAPPA TAU

Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity will conduct an initiation on Friday evening, February 7, at the chapter house to induct five members of the pledge class who are upper classmen. The men to be initiated are James Knerr, Arthur Long, William Raines, Robert Vetter, and Frank Yanoshik.

At the last meeting of the pledge class new officers were elected to replace the members about to be inducted into the fraternity. The new officers are Peter Wycoff, President; and Edward Kleitz, Vice President.

Preparations for the houseparty weekend, February 14 and 15, are now under way. Chairman of the committee for this occasion are Brothers Frank Dipierro and George Baker.

PHI SIGMA IOTA

Phi Sigma, Iota, the national honorary Romance Language fraternity, held its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday night, January 15.

Maurice Horn read a paper on Japan and the Japanese language. In co-operation with the appeals for foreign aid, the local Lambda chapter voted to donate five dollars to both the World Student Service Fund and American Aid for France, Inc.

The faculty adviser, Dr. Anthony S. Corbiere announced that the next regular meeting will be held in the third week of February.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Sigma Phi Epsilon, gaining significant strength through the initiation of eight new men into the fraternity, returned to prominence again as one of the leading social fraternities on the campus. The formal initiating ceremonies were conducted at the Chapter Treasurer's house on January 16.

The eight new brothers are George Brownias, Henry Douglas, Frank Falcione, Robert Haldeman, James F. Ibbotson, Maynard Reinbold, William H. Schneller, and Walter Yost. On January 17 Robert Engle became a pledge.

Following the initiation a luncheon was served at Hemmerly's Grille. Attorney Cassone and Earl White, business agent for a local life insurance company, were speakers for the occasion.

The Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

After all the hemming and hawing, George Bibighaus finally took the plunge and announced the engagement. It's all up to Reimer now to point out the "ins" and "outs" of matrimonial bliss . . . Looks like Hemmerly's is getting to be quite the spot for social lions these days. Spotted a large contingent of ATO's there recently and the music wasn't bad either . . .

IS OUR FACE RED DEPT. Last week we announced the arrival of a Rogers heir. Inasmuch as there are five Rogers' on campus we played safe, (for our own benefit too), and said that a boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers. But alas and alack, there are two Johns among the crew; and so our sad story starts. Master David Glenn Rogers is the son of The John R. Rogers'. And John E. T. Rogers, well known man about town, hasn't got a son, or a wife, or a what have you. (This will most likely cause trouble too). But our apologies . . .

We heard that the recent assembly program was a swell job. All those present had a fine time and are anxiously awaiting some more of the same. Dean Kendig slipped the bug in our ear that the programs on tap for next term are right up there with the best . . . Signing of Vincent Lopez for the Junior Prom seems to be a very swell set-up. If you have any doubts, tune in on your static getters and catch some of his fine work around noon time. He's an old hand at making good music and all hands should have a 4.0 time . . .

Jim Russick made a mild kick about the phone number we ran last week. But we noted he and the lovely Audrey on pretty good terms at the ball game recently . . . Brother John Keefe hard at work on the entertainment for the Junior Prom with a committee of "M" Clubbers; ought to be right funny if the Brother lets loose with some of his "take-offs" . . .

We noted the local papers hinting that "Doggie" Julian might take over basketball mentor's job at Albright. That would really be something, wouldn't it? The "Dog" putting the usual show on for the other side of the court . . . "Hurry up get wells" to Mrs. Oscar Baldwin and Mrs. John Fitzgerald, both on the sick list . . .

Big Bob Fratscher making all the gals in Easton go into mourning as he contemplates move to Allentown . . . First time we ever spotted Bob Hale making the rounds over the past week-end . . . "Salty" Griffin, ex-crew man here at the V-12 Unit, up to see some of the old gang. He and Kenny Conrad had a tete-tete while your reporter looked on and picked up the pieces . . .

The "fresh meat" for the coming term is starting to roll in. Many a good looking prospect; ought to be some material there for something. Wonder if there is a student in the crowd. Check with "Haps" . . .

WEEKLY is on the lookout for staff members for the coming term and also a crew to take command for the fall cruise. Any of youse guys with hidden talent, we mean in newspaper work, give yourselves a break and come out for the sheet . . .

Joe Podany among visitors to the campus recently. He's involved in the national pastime of "home hunting" right now . . . Also Pete Gorgone about the premises after his successful season with the New York Giants Football team . . . We swore we wouldn't tell—but we did hear that Norm Morris and his frau Min are gonna "draw one" and round out the family to three. Irvington, N. J. take note . . .

The WEEKLY received a great turnout for the proposed boxing team. However, we hear that the Athletic Department is doubtful as to the acceptability of the idea to the college. We're still working on it and will keep the students posted as to what's what . . . Did you spot the Ole' Fur Trapper, "Tuss" Becker at the Lafayette game? Now an "extinguished" school teacher up Mauch Chunk way, Tuss hasn't forgotten his Alma Mammy . . .

Noting the "face lifting" operations in the basement of the Ad Building makes a guy think of the many improvements that could be instituted . . . Local dentists take note: Harry Donovan and Jim Russick prospective patients. Harry caught one in the King's Point skirmish and had a tooth chipped. Then Russick got hungry during a scrimmage recently and while nibbling on Dick McGee's elbow, dropped a chunk of porcelain; (Audrey's gonna hate you) we know exactly how you fellas feel, having spent hours on West Hall practice football field searching for a couple of our own choppers. Ain't it hell when you can't bite anyone and have to gum 'em up a bit . . .

VOX POP

by Droop Hearson

A recent Wallop Poll of American adults in the 18-30 age group encouragingly revealed a promising future for humanity. The answers to carefully prepared queries disclosed an interest in affairs, both world and domestic, heretofore unknown in this country. Especially to be lauded was the foresight shown in answers in questions such as, "Do you honestly think it necessary to contribute to causes for improvement of present conditions in foreign countries?" Replies were varied but action on the problem showed commendable use of logic, as witness the contributions of one eastern Pennsylvania men's college to the W.S.S.F.

So that a clearer overall picture of the general attitude might be obtained, the questions were not confined to current events. Asked what important gains the Army had made when they liberated Paris, I. V. League, a senior at Hoorayrph U. replied, "Is Army in on this too? I thought it was only the Bears and the Giants. Anyway, I didn't know Paris was liberated. I thought he got ten years and a twenty thousand dollar fine."

Striving for accuracy, the poll included citizenry from all walks of life. A successful businessman was asked, "What do you think of President Auriol's selection of socialist Paul Ramadier as premier of France's new Fourth Republic?" "Haven't got any time right now. Besides, I never heard of the guy. What's wrong over there? They got another president again? Ah well, they never could do anything right without us. Well, I gotta be going."

On one occasion the age limit of the group being polled was exceeded.

"How might the guerilla warfare between Greece's leftist rebels and her central government be construed to affect world security?" was the question put to a heavy-jowled, cigar-smoking gentleman with busy eyebrows who muttered to himself as he lumbered up an Alexandria, Virginia street.

"Let's see . . . three and a half million . . . ten thousand per day . . . portal to portal . . . huh, what's that? How should I know? I have enough troubles of my own. Let's see . . . March 31 . . ." With that he walked on.

The results of the poll, interpreted by a specially chosen committee, point toward an eventual solid world organization, experts agree. With its goal of world peace growing out of such individual selflessness as was displayed in the people's answers, the organization will very likely take the name of "Federation of International Allied States for Contentment and Order"; or, in its abbreviated form, FIASCO.

"Hamlet" For Spring Play

Muhlenberg's Mask and Dagger Club, plunging into what is considered its most ambitious endeavors since the founding of the club, will commence work next semester on Shakespeare's powerful tragedy, "Hamlet".

"Hamlet" was chosen from a list of ten or more plays under consideration by the play reading committee. The final selection came from the entire Mask and Dagger organization in a meeting held last Monday evening in the Haas Room of the Library.

Tryouts for the cast will be held early next semester. The play is tentatively scheduled to go before the student body the latter part of April.

The members of the play reading committee were Chairman Gerald Rogers, Robert Bosch, Earl Feight, Harold Helfrich, James Reppert, John Rogers, and Louis Rossi. James Reppert has been reappointed as stage manager for the spring term by the executive committee of the Mask and Dagger.

Two one act plays to be used for assembly programs are now under consideration. The names of the plays and the dates for tryouts for them will be announced at a later date. They will be directed by Robert Oswald, current president of the Club.

TEMPLE DROPS MULES AGAIN, 58 TO 54

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

Here's a chance for some of you to step back from your final inquiries and take a swing at a sports exam. The ratings are as follows:

Below 70%—Hang up your suspensory, brother; try cribbage.

70-80%—Cedar Crest Jayvee material.

80-90%—Apply to WEEKLY office for Sport's editor's job.

So that the many readers of this column won't have to stand on his head, and to keep peace with our compositor, we'll rely on the honor system and print the answers right side up.

1. What sport is gradually replacing divan polo as the national pastime among the semi-athletic public?

A. Reliable statistics show that the man in the street is turning more and more to pitching pennies as a method of relaxation.

2. What effect will the appearance of night baseball on the national scene have on the country's birthrate?

A. After watching the Allentown Redbirds and the A's play, we feel safe in stating that there's still a big field for the biological urge. It's cheaper, too.

3. What song is threatening to make the New York Bookies' (Dead Pan Alley) Hit Parade?

A. "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

4. How did the University of Newark, an uncoed school, manage to get the female cheerleaders?

A. Rumors have it that the gamblers gave them a six-point handicap. But they might be false.

5. What's a good bet in the fourth at Hialeah tomorrow?

A. If you know this one, drop in at the WEEKLY office and we'll give you our typewriter, two tickets to the Delaware game, and four back issues of the Bluejacket's Manual.

6. How many fatalities have resulted from that grand American sport, "Ritterball"?

A. See Prof. Deck in the Dept. of higher mathematics.

7. What halfback for the Chicago Cardinals will wear only Brooks Brothers' pads and jerseys next year?

A. Charlie Trippi, who will be listed on the programs next year as No. 5 $.

8. What college's Alma Mater is "Hurrah for the Red and Blue", or "Hail Pennsylvania"?

9. What are this school's colors?

10. What famous athlete holds the tobacco expectorating record at 40 ft. against a 30 m.p.h. gale.

A. For the answer to this question, tear off the top of your English Prof's head and mail it to this column.

Hot Long Island Club Next; Features Two Ex-Mule Stars

When school resumes in February the first team that the Mules will play host to will be the Long Island University basketball team. This game with the Blackbirds and return game at the garden March 6, will undoubtedly have a great deal to do with 'Berg's National rating in basketball.

Clair Bee, the famous coach of Long Island, had a rather poor season last year. His team just managed to win half of their games, losing all the big ones, including one to the Mules. This year, however, he has an aggregation which is good and could be terrific if they started making a fair percentage of their shots.

The leading offensive and perhaps defensive player for the Blackbirds is six foot eight Dick Holub who plays the pivot. He leads all New York City basketball players in scoring with a total of 175. He relies on a hook shot and so far when he has been hot, no one has beaten L.I.U. When Long Island played Brigham Young, Holub was not supposed to play because of an arm injury. However, Brigham Young was winning by a few points and Holub was inserted with six minutes to go and only scored nine points to rout the Westerners. Only two teams have bottled him up and both of them, Texas and Southern California, were the only teams to beat Long Island so far. Defensively, Holub controls the backboards. He also holds the individual scoring record for Madison Square Garden this season.

Short Jackie Goldsmith, the famous set shot artist of the Brooklyn team, hasn't been as good this year as last. He only has had one good night, and that was when he scored 23 points to rout Oklahoma A. and M. Since then the most he has scored has been 13 points and that was the exception rather than the rule. However, he is a dangerous threat and can ruin a team when he gets going.

Hank Baietti, well known to Muhlenberg and Allentown fans for his performance with the Mules in 1943-1944, is also on the first string of this strong Long Island team. However, Hank for some unknown reason just can't seem to score. He averages five to six points a game and that is a (Continued on Page Four)

Kings Point Mariners Sunk

The Mules chalked up No. 8 of the season Saturday night at the expense of the King's Point Merchant Mariners by a score of 61-46. The visitors were in the game for the first 20 minutes, and then fell apart as 'Berg began to roll.

Timely shooting by Tex Baldwin and Harry Donovan started the barrage early in the second half, and the Mules were never threatened.

Strategy took effect as Bud Barker inserted Lonergan and Lewis at opportune times to spark the attack. Ed "Rabbit" Schwob was a consistent thorn in the opposition's side as he repeatedly broke up plays and stole the ball. Dick McGee and Tex Baldwin owned the backboard.

Ed Donovan proved his worth again as he dunked four goals and played a great defensive game.

The Jayvees waxed the Allentown Veterans' High School team in the preliminary, 42-20. Jim Russick topped the smooth Little Mule five with 16 points.

Inside Dope On Hawaiian Five

Editor's note: Bob Fretz, former WEEKLY feature writer, here reports on the University of Hawaii basketball team which the Mules meet Monday, February 24 at Rockne Hall.

"Aloha" from the Island of Oahu where Coach Bert Chan Wa's "Roaring Rainbows" from the University of Hawaii look like potential bad medicine for ALL opposition this season. I am sorry to report however, that, because several excellent prospects will not be eligible until the new school term begins in February, it is impossible to give an accurate idea of what kind of team the boys from U. H. will floor against 'Berg when the two meet at Rockne Hall next month.

The Rainbows have copped all contests scheduled thus far, downing local opposition with ease and dispatch. Victims have been the Catholic Youth Organization (51-49), Ewa (62-26), and the Hawaiian Sports Stars (49-34).

The team, which has been developing so promisingly here in the "Land of the Pineapple and Hula Skirt", consists of Eddie "Hotdog" Toui and Dewey Kim at forwards, Harry "Clown" Kahuanui at center, and Damien Rocha and Richard "Dick" Mamiya at the guard positions.

Kahuanui, the tallest man on the squad at 6' 5", was formerly a guard, but has been switched to the pivot post to better utilize his ranginess.

Ed Toui's success is keynoted by his versatility. Among other things he is probably the best shot on a team whose accuracy around the basket is, at times, woefully lacking.

Dewey Kim's only apparent claim to a berth on the quintet is his steadiness. Like the Diamond Head out at Waikiki, he is always there.

The guard positions are being handled capably by (a) Damien Rocha, who played at Oregon State last year, and (b) Dick Mamiya, a talented, all-around athlete who plays a fine game.

Coach Chan Wa has good replacements in Edwin "Boy" Liu, a fine shot, Abe Cockett—a promising ball player who needs experience more than anything else—Tai On Chock, Stan Brilhante, Richard Lo, and the Haake Brothers.

But wait, Mules, the best is yet to come. To bolster this imposing crew, February registration will add at least two—and possibly five—experienced courtmen to the Hawaiians' roster!

WRESTLERS WALLOP BROOKLYN POLY FOR SECOND STRAIGHT WIN

Continuing in their winning ways and gaining momentum with each bout, the Muhlenberg College Wrestling Team snowed under the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute team on Friday evening, January 17, by the overwhelming score of 35-3. Only in the 121-pound class did the rugged Mules fail to gain a pin over their Flatbush opponents. In that class Morgan, B.P.I. defeated Getz, 5-3.

Jerry Braverman, Muhlenberg's sturdy 155-pounder, was forced to go two extra periods before he came out as victor over Longo of Poly. At the end of the regulation three periods the score in individual points was tied at 1-1. Braverman, in the first overtime period secured a reversal on his opponent and took a 3-1 lead in points. However, Jerry was not satisfied to coast in with this, and proceeded to pour on the power with a half-nelson and bar to pin the Brooklyn husky after one minute and two seconds of the second overtime period.

Burt Wessman made his bout just as short as Braverman's was long. Big Burt, wrestling in the 175-pound bout, used a body press to flatten Petersen (B.P.I.) in 59 seconds of the first period. Cliff Steinbach and Ed Dougherty each gained two pins over their opponents. Steinbach threw Soeghnen twice with a bar and chancery hold, once in the second period (at one minute), and again in the third period (2:20). Dougherty used a crossbody ride and a half-nelson to toss Zona in the second period (1:02). Ed again used a leg hold on the Brooklyn, and pinned him with a figure-four scissors and double-bar (1:47). Delp, Evans, and Amelio also threw their opponents.

Saturday afternoon the Mules travel to Philadelphia to face another top-notch team, Temple. The match is scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock.

The summaries for the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute match follow.

121-pound class: Morgan, B.P.I., defeated Getz, Muhlenberg, 5-3.

128-pound class: Amelio, Muhlenberg, threw Speiss, B.P.I., with a half-nelson and inside crotch; 1:25, second period.

136-pound class: Dougherty (M) pinned Zona (B.P.I.) with a crossbody ride and half-nelson; 1:02, second period.

145-pound class: Steinbach (M) pinned Soeghnen (B.P.I.) with a bar and chancery; one minute, second period.

155-pound class: Braverman (M) pinned Longo (B.P.I.) in the second overtime period with a half-nelson and bar; 1:02 (second overtime period).

165-pound class: Delp (M) pinned DeLeo (B.P.I.) with a body-press; 2:05, second period.

175-pound class: Wessman (M) pinned Petersen (B.P.I.) with a

Make Rockne Hall Scene Of Fourth Victory Over 'Berg

Bedlam broke loose, last night, at Rockne Hall, with Temple University conquering an inspired Muhlenberg team; the final score being 58-54. Beyond a shadow of a doubt, this was the greatest game played on the local court this year. It was a contest of two great rivals; both rising to almost superhuman performances.

From a spectator's standpoint it was a thriller. It was one of those great sports events that lingers long in the memory of all those who witnessed it. Every person among the overflow crowd sat nervously and excitedly throughout the entire forty minutes of this spirited struggle.

The game got under way with little Schwob opposing the giant Borsavage at center. 'Berg blazed over the boards, and practically burned the laces, dominating the play for the first ten minutes of the game. As the clock ticked away, a stunned Temple team quickened their pace, and closed the gap; the half-time score reading 26-24. The second half was played at an even more furious tempo. The score was tied on numerous occasions, and at no time did one team have more than a four point lead, except during the last three minutes of play.

It is almost impossible to single any individual performer for either team. Big Dick McGee played the game of his career, as he collected 21 points for the losers, while Eddie Schwob stole everything but the pants from the Temple team. Fox, although he only scored five points for the Owl team, played a defensive game which was nothing short of sensational.

We must commend both teams for the great show. 'Berg and Temple are bitter rivals. Despite this, every performer displayed none but the best sportsmanship.

In the preliminary contest the 'Berg Jayvees were shaded by a fast stepping Perkiomen Prep team, 32-31.

This game was characterized by a slow start on the part of both teams. As the contest progressed, however, they picked up speed and ended with a furious fourth period. Arrison led the attack for the Mules.

Prep finally sank the deciding point on a foul shot in the closing seconds of the game.

March Of Dimes Campaign In Full Swing; Help Asked

Midway through its annual drive for funds, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is calling on everyone to give, and give generously for the cause, and aid the unfortunate to walk, and lead normal lives again.

Avid Equestrian Seeks Companions

Dean Perry F. Kendig, for some years a horseback riding enthusiast, is planning to take up the sport again with the first return of mild weather.

Mr. Kendig has asked that anyone interested in riding contact him so that arrangements may be made for trips to a local riding academy. He offers his car as transportation at times mutually agreed upon.

An avid equestrian, Mr. Kendig is expertly informed on all matters pertaining to horses, except perhaps, who looks good in the fourth at Haliieah.

Mrs. Hal Marine, secretary of the local campaign has announced that although the local contributions have been satisfactory, the goal is not reached. The nerve center of the drive, at the Americus Hotel, is continually at work boosting the solicitors and contributors to go "all out" for the drive.

At present the local branch of the foundation is caring for 57 patients at the Allentown Hospital. This includes paying for nurses, transportation to the hospital, braces, and in severe cases, private nurses.

Contribution boxes have been distributed throughout the city and the school itself. No matter how small the donation, the cause is there, and help is needed badly and urgently.

The drive will be climaxed on January 29 at a banquet at the Americus Hotel, at which the Honorable Basil O'Connor will be guest. Mr. O'Connor is the national chairman of the International Red Cross, as well as the Infantile Paralysis Foundation. He is the ex-law partner of the late President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale in the Americus Hotel lobby, at $2.50 per person, the proceeds of which go to the drive. Everyone attending must purchase a ticket. Half of the proceeds from the entire campaign remain here in the local area and the balance goes into the national fund, which may be called upon should local funds become exhausted.

The charming young lady on the posters and contribution boxes, should be enough to solicit funds from all in the Muhlenberg Community.

The Battle Is On . . .

There has been considerable comment recently about the "proctor system" employed here at Muhlenberg in regards to examinations. The college has made its position quite clear. Any student found dishonest in scholastic work shall leave college.

With mid-semester examinations in progress at the present time, the lines are rather clearly drawn for a battle, Muhlenberg, versus cheating and dishonesty.

Ineligible now, but certain to gain a post when semesters change, is Robert "Bobby" Kau. An ex-merchant mariner, Kau is generally regarded by sports experts here as the best ballhandler in the Islands. A fast, sure worker on the court, Kau may be just what the doctor ordered to bring this Hawaii quintet into its own. Bobby is a letterman from the University's '41 squad.

Another former merchant marine recruit is George Malama. Although only a freshman, George has had three years' experience in a local league, where last year he was named the "most valuable" player. This lad, too, seems assured of a place on the first team.

Three other boys with court experience expected in the fold are Donald Fong, and the Wong Brothers, Robert "Ah Hong" and King Sing.

It's impossible to pick the boys who will make the trip to the Mainland, but one thing is certain — those that do will carry lots of basketball trouble for the opposition. The Rainbows are roaring, that is!

far cry from his twenty point average at 'Berg. However, his defensive play is outstanding and with Dick Holub may have the height to control that backboard.

The playmaker and perhaps steadiest player on Long Island is Lipmann. He brings the ball down court and sets up all the plays. His set-shots are the most reliable ones that Bee can count on.

Bob Smith, who is also a former member of the Mules is now also a member of the Blackbirds. His playing has been good enough to earn him a starting berth.

As a unit Long Island has beaten such teams as Oklahoma A. and M., Valparaiso, Tennessee, Oregon State, Brigham Young, Utah State and St. Louis University. The Blackbirds use either a man-to-man defense, or as is most likely against 'Berg, a tight Zone. No one has yet cracked that zone with a great deal of success and remembering 'Berg's trouble against Penn State's Zone defense, that could be disastrous for the Mules.

The Spirit of Service

TELEPHONE LINEMEN braving blizzards to keep lines up and calls moving . . . telephone girls refusing to leave their switchboards even while floods mount and fires rage . . . former telephone employees coming back to work of their own accord to help out in a crisis . . . All this is a familiar story to the public.

To telephone people, it's tradition.

It's the spirit of service that makes telephone people think first and act first in the interests of the public.

It's a devotion to duty that no thing and no one can possibly destroy.

It's loyalty to a cause that is greater than those who teach it, those who learn it, those who feel it, and those who stand by it.

For telephone people, from fledglings to old timers, know what telephone service is and what it means and what it must continue to be.

They know that a single telephone call can be the difference between life and death, joy and sorrow, success and failure, victory and defeat.

They know that nothing must stop telephone calls from going through.

Nothing!

You count on telephone people. You always have. You always can.

They know their obligation. They live it. It's a part of their very fibre. It's second nature to them. It's the thing that keeps telephone service going against any obstacles. It's the thing that seems to produce miracles of service when miracles are needed.

It's the thing that assures telephone service for the people of Pennsylvania . . . come what may.

Junior Prom Formal Next Friday With Lopez Band

Only eight days remain before the magic baton of Vincent Lopez touches off his band to music and the couples to dancing over the spacious floor of Castle Garden's ball-room.

Junior Prom festivities get underway at Dorney Park on February 14, dancing from 9 'til 1. The dress, as announced previously, will be formal and admission will be via activity card.

Extra seating has been arranged for the Saturday night Muhlenberg-Valparaiso basketball match. All fraternities are planning weekend house parties for the big occasion.

A popular musical figure in the public's eye since he was just a lad, Vincent Lopez, who brings his popular orchestra to Castle Garden on the 14th, has set the style for many accustomed musical pleasures and has pioneered many innovations on the radio and in personal appearances.

When Lopez was only 18 years old, his band was the first to be featured as a stage act in itself, shortly after the first World War. This was in a show with the famous comedian, Pat Rooney and Mation Brent. This was the first conductor to feature himself as an instrumentalist and he also set the example for other maestros by permitting the specialists in his band to perform solos.

On the airwaves, Lopez has set most of the standards. The first to conduct a band on a radio broadcast, Lopez took his boys to Newark, N. J., to take the air for WJZ from a transformed cloak-room used as a studio. Not knowing just what to say, he said, "Hello, everybody — Lopez speaking," and gave birth to radio's first catch phrase.

Lopez was the first to sell his band for a commercial program and also the first to appear on a regular sustaining series. . . . He was the first leader to announce his own radio series and the renowned "Nola" became radio's first theme song.

Lopez' was the first band to use scenic effects and special lighting effects. He carried a control box to transform the lights of a room into colors harmonizing with the type of music the band was playing. He was the first to use a vocalist with his band, Joe E. Griffin handling the lyrics, at the Pennsylvania Hotel. And Lopez was the first to offer a symphonic jazz concert—with performance at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and Boston Symphony Hall back in 1925.

And still one of the "first" bands in the land—Vincent Lopez.

Garbo, Surrealist Films, Rugs, On Art Department Program

Greta Garbo, one of the screen's first ladies, will appear in the movie version of Eugene O'Neill's classic "Anna Christie" to be shown tomorrow evening in the Art gallery of the Library building. There will be two complete showings, one at 7 p.m., the other at 9 p.m.

10 Will Attend Foreign Policy Association

Ten men will represent Muhlenberg College this Saturday, February 8, at the Foreign Policy Association Meeting to be held in Philadelphia's Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

Representatives from many of the local colleges will be present to hear the main speakers of the day and then to participate later in a series of Round Table Discussions.

Under discussion and criticism will be the policy of the United States toward the Soviet Union. An attempt will be made to define in as exact terms as possible our present policy toward Russia, and upon this basis to ascertain its chances for the successful maintenance of good relations with that nation.

Drama Club Sets Dates For Try-outs

Tryouts for Mask and Dagger's spring production, "Hamlet" will be held on Monday, February 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Science auditorium. Under the discerning eye of Director Andrew H. Erskine, a cast will be selected to begin rehearsal at once on the play which is one of the most ambitious undertakings in recent years.

Married students are urged to bring their wives to tryout for the female roles in the cast.

The Shakespearian tragedy will play three times, the first a matinee production on April 30 before a high school assemblage, and twice on the stage of the Science Auditorium, May 1, and 2. This

Banquet Toasts Fall Athletic Squads

Football and soccer heroes of the past season were feted at a banquet last Monday night at the Elks' Club, as Muhlenberg paid tribute to its victorious teams.

Mr. George B. Balmer, long time head of the athletic committee was chairman for the evening, and introduced the entire coaching staff who made short speeches to those in attendance.

Highlighting the evening were presentations of gifts to "Chili" Altomose, head soccer coach, and "Maj" Schwartzwalder, head football coach. Co-captains Larry Delp and Homer Robinson presented their soccer mentor a valuable leather wallet.

Most valuable player, and captain of the football team, John Sweatlock, presented Schwartzwalder a beautiful leather traveling case on behalf of the gridiron gladiators.

Letters and sweaters were also awarded to those men earning them during the past season. Those receiving football awards were: Averno, Beers, Bell, Bibighaus, Bogdziewicz, Crider, Dean, Dietz, Keefe, Lane, Mackin, Miller, Mirth, Moyer, Quint, Reimer, Roveda, Sbordone, Schell, Schreiber, Sikorski, Sweatlock, Barker, Shaudy, Ware.

The list of soccer lettermen is: Lesko, Hertzog, Moyer, Robinson, Mazzacca, Hughes, Gutshall, Delp, Fisher, Colombo, Amelio, Feist, Campbell, Everson, Young, Datten, Davis.

Notably absent, due to illness, was Mr. Gurney F. Afflerbach, director of Muhlenberg athletics. Recently, members of the squad presented him with an autographed football, used as the Mules defeated St. Bonaventure in the Tobacco Bowl game.

In a statement to the WEEKLY regarding the gift, Mr. Afflerbach said, "It will be some time before I can thank them (the football team) personally, so I'd like to have you express my appreciation to the team."

Library To Be Open Sundays

Mr. John Davidson, Librarian of the College, has announced that beginning with Sunday, February 9 and every Sunday thereafter, the library facilities will be open to the student body from 6 to 10 p.m.

Pre-Medical Club Will Be Reorganized Soon

Muhlenberg's Pre-Medical Club under the sponsorship of Dr. John V. Shankweiler, head of the Department of Biology, will undergo a reorganization in the near future.

Last semester the Club, meeting in an informal status, enjoyed a brief run of well attended and highly educational lectures. Since these were the first attempts to bring together the pre-medical, pre-dental, and pre-veterinary students of the campus following the organization's long period of inactivity during the war years, it was decided to defer formal reorganization until early this semester.

There were no qualifications or stipulations imposed upon those participating in last semester's activity, but entrance into the group this semester will require that the following conditions be met:

1. The applicant must be a sophomore or above.
2. Must have received a grade of "C" or above in General Chemistry.

Enrollment Nears 1300; Government Dorms Open

With registration still incomplete, Muhlenberg broke all existing records once more as nearly thirteen hundred men crowded the library to enroll for the February - June term all day Monday.

When the final registration figures are available, Director of Admissions H. A. Benfer said this week, the student body is expected to number about one hundred more than were present during the last semester. Simultaneously, Dean Benfer announced that no new freshmen would be admitted until next fall, and that the summer term would be restricted to upper classmen and men now in college whose requirements will fit into the summer schedule.

Of the approximately two hundred new men who began their work this term about one hundred and fifty are freshmen and fifty are upper classmen who were pre-service students at Muhlenberg.

This all-time high in registrations occurred in spite of the fact that there was a certain number of students who left college because of failure to keep up with academic requirements.

In order to help accommodate the large student body with respect to housing, the college opened on Sunday the first of the government-built dormitories on Chew Street. This new dormitory, which was begun last spring and which is reserved for the use of veterans only, has been designated as South Hall. At the present it houses sixty-two men in thirty-one two-man rooms. Most of these men had been forced to live in the gymnasium in the basement of West Hall during the past semester.

Directly behind the newly-opened dormitory is a group of buildings which will also serve as temporary dormitories for veterans. Almost completed are thirty-seven units for married veterans, the first twelve of which will be occupied at the end of this week.

There are now more than four hundred and fifty students living on the campus, one hundred and fifty of them in West Hall, two hundred and forty in East Hall, ninety in fraternity houses, and sixty-two in South Hall.

President Tyson announced this week that it was expected to accommodate practically all resident students in campus buildings by the early part of this spring. Many of the resident students now living off the campus have had to use rooms in private homes of Allentown.

Penn Professor Is History Group's Next Speaker

Dr. Edgar Barclay Cale, Assistant Professor of Political Sciences at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history fraternity, on Tuesday, February 18.

Dr. Cale was born in Uniontown, Pa., in 1910 and attended the branch college of the University of Pittsburgh there from 1928 to 1930. He then transferred to the University of Pennsylvania from which he was graduated in 1932. He subsequently received the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy from that same school.

Dr. Cale did his doctorate work on the rise of the labor movement in Pennsylvania, and after gaining this degree he was transferred to the Wharton School.

In 1942 he was in South America on a Penfield Fellowship gathering material for a book on the governments of the South American countries. Before he could gather all the necessary data he was forced home by the war.

Since his return from South America he has devoted much of his time to administrative work. He is presently Director of the Summer School, the college collateral courses, and the Navy Units stationed at the University.

An experienced and able speaker, Dr. Cale is now moderator of the radio show called "The University of Pennsylvania Forum".

Keiter Heads Local AVC Chapter Unit

Edmund S. Keiter, Class of 1934 and Business Manager of Muhlenberg, was elected first permanent chairman of Allentown Chapter No. 1, American Veterans' Committee, at its regular meeting, Monday night, at the Y.M.C.A.

He was handed the gavel by George Frounfelker, Class of 1941, who has been temporary chairman since the chapter was organized in December. Frounfelker was elected to the post of first vice-chairman.

The Allentown chapter will be chartered officially at an open meeting at the Jewish Community Center on this coming Monday night. William Batt, Jr., of Philadelphia, member of the AVC's national planning committee, will present the charter to Ned Keiter, and will deliver an address on Foreign Policy.

The meeting is open to the public, and the Muhlenberg student body is invited.

Student Body Meeting

President Harold Helfrich, has called a meeting of the Student Body on Wednesday, February 12, at 11 a.m., in the Science Hall Auditorium.

Classes will be suspended, and there will be no chapel session during the meeting. This is the first general meeting of the entire student body and will provide an excellent opportunity to present matters of importance to the students.

Any special business, which a student wishes brought up and discussed, should be taken to members of the Student Council prior to the meeting.

EDITORIALS . . .

"What's wrong with Student Government?" is a question asked a lot on campus. Yet it's asked all too little to bring any real results.

The Administration of Muhlenberg College is frankly on record as favoring student government. Authority is vested in a Student Council of nine members, elected in the Spring of the year from a list of candidates who will be Seniors the next year—the year during which they serve. These men are to be the highest body of student government and supervise student activities.

The Fault Is You

But what IS wrong with the whole set up? More than a suggestion comes from a line by W. Shakespeare, "The fault, Dear Brutus, lies not in our stars, but in ourselves!"

Fundamentally, brother, anything wrong with Student Government is your fault. Citizens get government only as good as they deserve.

Frosh Record Poor

And the record of the students in elections last term has been downright poor. For example, only a mere handful of Freshmen could spare the time to nominate officers for their class. Less than fifty per cent took the trouble to vote.

Yet let Crider, Doberstein, or any other class officers make a move that someone doesn't like, and somebody's sure to growl: "What are they trying to pull around here. I got me rights . . ." The fault lies not in the stars but in you.

Kick, Don't Gripe

What's needed around here is not so much under-cover griping but some constructive attempts at improvement.

This afternoon at 4:30 there's a joint meeting of the Sophomores and Freshmen in the Science Auditorium. Be there!

Next Wednesday from 11 o'clock till 12:30 there'll be a meeting of the entire student body in the Science Auditorium. That's the time to do your griping where it counts.

Reforms?

We'd like to suggest a few reforms ourselves.

1) Add more men to the Council. Back when there were 500 students there were 9 Councilmen. Now, with 1300 students, there are still only 9 representatives. We suggest an extra member for every 100 students over 900—or 13 Councilmen. Any other ratio would tend to make toward an unwieldy Council, but an amendment to the Constitution, passed by the student body, is necessary.

2) Compulsory attendance for Council members at a certain percent of meetings. Too often only 6 out of the 9 are present. On Monday a quorum was lacking. Thus, students are further deprived of representation.

3) Improvement of lighting system, especially in West Hall and the Ad Building.

4) Investigate possibility of putting Commons on a meal-by-meal or five day week basis.

Undoubtedly there are many more suggestions. But nothing will ever happen unless you get to student body meetings and push those ideas!

What's wrong with Student Government? Nothing that you can't cure. You get only the kind of government you deserve.

Blind Date

Oh, I'd love to. I haven't been in here in a long time. Do you come here often? We used to all the time when we were Freshmen. I always like to get something to eat after a movie, anyway, don't you? Particularly after that movie—I want to sit down and let it sink in. Wasn't Gregory Peck divine? I think he's cute. No, I didn't like her so much. I don't think—No thanks, I don't smoke—I don't think she's so pretty, do you really? Oh, there's Thelma Rappaport. Do you know Thelma? Hi, Thelma. Did you see Gregory Peck, too? Wasn't he divine? Thelma's the president of our class. She's cute, don't you think? She's awfully well liked by everybody—Oh, you're smoking a pipe! I like a man with a pipe. But I can't stand cigars. Do you smoke cigars? I'll have a Banana Royale with two dips of chocolate. What kind of tobacco do you smoke? My father uses Briggs. He won't smoke any other kind. What year are you in out there? I'm a Sophomore, majoring in English. I think I'm going to change over next semester to Home Economics, though. What's your major? Oh, History. Are you going to teach it? I don't see why you'd want to take History unless you were going to teach it. Do they have a juke box in here? I wish they did. Have you heard "Ole Buttermilk Sky"? I bought it when I was home. Did you play football this fall? Oh, I'll bet you did. You look like you'd be good. That man with Thelma, he's on the Lehigh team. Heavens, I don't know what position. You beat Lehigh, didn't you? Oh, I think that's wonderful. A close game I bet, wasn't it? Oh, no—really? When's your next basketball game? I'll have to see some of the games. You have another good team, don't you? Who's that cute little fellow on the team who scores all the points? Oh, he's cute, don't you think? All the girls out at college just go—Where are we going? But I don't have to be back yet—I have a one o'clock permission. —D. O. T.

CANADA DRY

All you outdoor sportsmen who dream of vacationing in the real outdoors, but are usually discouraged by the lack of sufficient funds—don't despair.

There are places only 24 hours ride from here which afford some of the finest camping and fishing a sportsman can imagine. Canada is the spot. Almost anywhere in this vastly wooded and multi-laked area, the present day fisherman is offered unlimited opportunities. The amazing part of this dream is the fact that all this can be had at an exceedingly low price. A sturdy, rustic log cabin can be erected for less than 300 dollars, and if you want your own lake, all you have to do is lease it from the Canadian Government at a very low cost. The French Canadians and Indians can build a cozy four room cabin in less than three weeks. All the logs and other equipment needed can be found right on the spot, so worries of bringing materials in are therefore eliminated.

The problem of food is a minor item. Vast and productive farms are located in spots that are easily accessible, and the prices are wholesale.

This particular hobby could be turned into a prospering business, due to the fact that many returning servicemen have sought refuge in the great outdoors and have found the peace and happiness which eluded them during those war-torn years.

Last year a four room furnished cabin could be rented by a person at a dollar per day. Boats sell at five dollars, and bait is present in enormous quantities.

Some of the best fishing memories of my life have been afforded by the Great Northern Pike and the smallmouth bass that inhabit the numerous lakes in unending quantities. Those of you who are more interested in the rainbow or brook trout will find sport that has always been dreamed of. The

by Mike Rogers

We took ourselves a breather this past week and it sure felt good to give the ole sack a workout; now back to the salt mines . . .

"Haps" Benfer did a great job of tying the knot for Prent Beers and his new Mrs. a few days ago. Brother Keefe is almost lost now with his buddy gone: wotta break for Helen . . . Jim Schell about the place minus his appendix. They chomped him open right before exam week and now he's back in good shape . . .

Mike Bogdziewicz and Carm Sbordone, (takes all day to get those two monickers spelled right), among the social elite at the local beanery with two very nice looking gals . . . Bob Donovan and Ed Schwob just sat down for a cup of joe and whatta you think, two fair ones came along and just sat right down with 'em; ain't it hell to be sooooo popular . . .

Rog Volpe went home after exams and Cy Davis was running around lost, chee ain't it sad to see such a good looking guy all alone???? Jim Kessock made the game with a pretty sister-in-law-to-be, of "Goober" Umlauf. Yep, John and Mid are making the final plans for the looong walk sometime in the near future . . .

Had a letter from George Axe, crewman of the V-12 unit after his hitch in the fleet, who is returning to 'Berg soon with a brand spankin' new frau; anybody got a place for George to live???? Among the recent arrivals are Mrs. Diz Dean and Rickey. Yep, the Maj has got the kid all lined up for '67 . . .

Tentative dates for the annual "M" Club show are set at May 15, 16, and 17. That's the week before the final exams and should leave everyone in a good frame of mind for the ensuing battle . . . Also along the thespian line is Mask and Dagger announcement that "Hamlet" will be on the docket for the spring production . . .

"Doc" and Mrs. Eyerle were among the missing at the last weekend basketball session, where was you all???? But we have yet to miss Joe Egan and Ruth, yessir that's a regular team . . . Wally Wirth and his betrothed seem to be trespassing on the rocky road at present, we're pretty sure it's only a temporary sitcheeahshun and they'll soon be making with the goo-goo eyes again . . .

We got the word from baseball coach "Hoss" Lough that it won't be long before the diamond aspirants will soon get the call to make with the spring practice. The Mules have got the makings of a hot squad with last year's boys forming the nucleus, and you horsehiders ought to be getting ready . . .

Welcome back to "Marty" Binder, "Red" Franklin, and all the rest of the old boys. Big man in the V-12 in '43 and '44. Dean Fisher, back again sportin' an Italian accent. "Hey chief, you lika my seester?"

Beeg Bob Fratcher got in the act by moving in the Rho Dami Rho house. The list of guests at that joint reads like a rogues gallery . . . Who could be the attraction that holds P.U. sorry, U.P. Horgor in Scranton . . . Noticed that a few tempers were flaring up after the hectic registration. There must be an easier way to get squared than that ordeal . . . John E. T. Rogers still doesn't know what the Third International is—Chevrolet coupe, eh John . . . Can anybody tell me if the emporium in the basement of the Ad Building is going to be painted and what happened to the beatened slate in the same vicinity ???

Student Council has called a meeting of all the crew here at school for next Wednesday at 11 to 12:30. Ought to be a rip snorter with 1200 trying to squeeze in the Science Auditorium, better be on hand early for a "front row center". President Harold Helfrich gave us the dope for anyone with something to say, speak up at the meeting when the proper time arrives . . .

Also on the agenda soon will be various class elections. Would be nice if each class could hold a real "get together" with more than 5 or 6 members on hand, and make nominations. Kinda end the joking aspect of school politics and do a worth while, serious job of choosing class leaders . . .

Our nomination for sharpest "Bow Tie" specialist in these parts is Mr. Robert Crabtree of the Treasurer's office. The "money man" really picks beauts, nice and flashy—it's a wonder they don't blind him so he'll give you a pair of twenties for your old battered fin . . .

George Bannon playing "Dick Tracy" in New York recently. Might have been the "trench coat and homberg," George. Or do you have a sinister sneer ???

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

The Placement Office will have openings for summer counseling work in various camps. Men who are planning to take the summer months and "get away from the books" will find that a helpful, invigorating summer in the country will do wonders for the work in next fall's term. Most camps pay a salary plus living expenses in return for living with and instructing youngsters in various activities.

One of the better known boys' camps, Camp Miller, located in the Poconos and operated by the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, has a number of openings for counsellors. In the past numerous Muhlenberg men have worked at Camp Miller and have enjoyed their experience tremendously. NEXT WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, Mr. C. J. Eliasson will interview Muhlenberg men who are interested in positions at Camp Miller for this coming summer. The interviews will take place in the reception room in West Hall and will be conducted from 1 to 5 p.m. I strongly urge all of you who are interested in summer camp work to contact Mr. Eliasson at that time.

Remember the date—Wednesday, February 12th.

'Berg Bridge Teams In First Round

Muhlenberg's Ely Culbertsons go at it again next Thursday night, February 13th, when Muhlenberg enters the first round of the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament.

Muhlenberg's team will play 18 set hands to be sent to Andy Erskine by the national committee. From the results, Muhlenberg's standing with the other colleges entered will be established. Should Muhlenberg place high enough, the team will be sent to Chicago on April 18th and 19th for the final rounds.

The results of next Thursday's play will also determine the college champs from the four pairs on the Muhlenberg team. Fred Brause and Bob Berg; Lew Fluck and Harry Graveman; Dick Peters and Jim Leavitt; and Willie Francis and Charlie Messer.

OBITER DICTA . . . "Mr. Roberts"

Every Muhlenberg student who did his time in the Navy will be astonished at the way Thomas Heggen captures the atmosphere of shipboard life in his recent book, Mr. Roberts. Heggen, a former Navy Lieutenant, describes life aboard the USS Reluctant, a Navy transport, not as the folks back home idealized it with its supposed discipline and efficiency, but as the life really was.

Actually, Mr. Roberts is a collection of short stories, all built around the constant and bitter conflict between the officers and men on the one hand and the captain on the other. The officers and men hate the skipper's guts, and Lieutenant Roberts is their hero for his outspoken courage.

Every character that takes part in the ridiculous daily episodes aboard the USS Reluctant is recognized as the counterpart of one of the reader's own shipmates, if the reader is a Navy veteran. If the reader has never stepped across a quarterdeck, he is sure to get a few chuckles from the absurdities Heggen recounts.

The book has serious undertones. One chapter for instance, tells how Roberts and a Quarter-master pass a night watch on deck talking about San Francisco and wondering what's going on in the bars and clubs on Market Street at that moment. Any fellow who has stood a First Watch on the conn in mid-Pacific can recall such an experience.

Thomas Heggen is a University of Minnesota graduate. He was on the staff of the Minnesota daily paper, and wrote a rival humor column to Max Shulman, author of Barefoot Boy with Cheek and The Zebra Derby.

But where Shulman's humor is ribald and rather superficial, that of Thomas Heggen has a certain amount of depth. The best humor is that which portrays actual life in its most ridiculous form, which is what Heggen does in Mr. Roberts.

Chapel Choir Plans Extensive Semester

The College Chapel Choir will give its first public performance of the semester this Sunday evening, in the high school auditorium at East Mauch Chunk. Because of the over capacity audience that appeared for the choir's recital, at East Mauch Chunk last spring, the auditorium has been secured for Sunday night's performance, and it is expected that a record crowd will both turn out and be accommodated.

Word has also been received that the choir expects to make some recordings for a leading commercial phonograph company some time before the end of this semester. The recordings will be of college songs, and, pressed in limited numbers, will be available to alumni and friends of the college who might be interested.

The choir's extensive itinerary for the balance of the current semester includes appearances at such large Pennsylvania cities as Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, and Lansdale, and points as distant as Wilmington, Delaware.

Dr. Harold K. Marks, director of the college choir, announced this week that there are still a number of openings in the choir, and that anyone who is interested should make an appointment with him for a tryout.

Library Reveals New Circulation Plans

A new system for the return of books to the library is now in effect, it has been announced by Mr. John Davidson.

A slot has been placed in the side of the main circulation desk for the insertion of books. Provided the book is not overdue, it may be returned in this manner without the acknowledgment of the librarian. Overdue books involving the payment of fines must, as usual, be handled over the desk through one of the librarians.

The new procedure, aimed at alleviating the congestion around the main desk, will guarantee the safe return of the books and at the same time protect the borrower.

'BERG TRIPS L.I.U. AT ROCKNE, 55 TO 53

GETTING BRIEFED FOR BIG WEEK . . .

Caught while receiving instructions from Coach "Bud" Barker, are Ed Schwob, Dick McGee, Red Baldwin, Harry Donovan, and Chuck Thiesen.

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

Let's start off this week's effort by welcoming Ollie Saemmer back to the fold, and congratulating him on the great job he turned in against Bucknell last week. Saemmer may prove to be the shot in the arm that the Mules need to keep their name on the black side of the record book. The former Liberty High star made his debut on the Rockne Hall boards in fitting style, after missing the first half of the season due to injuries sustained in an auto accident.

Ollie's got plenty of hustle, and Bud Barker's club needs hustle as badly as a ham-on-rye does a bottle of Schlitz.

Saemmer's return lessened the jolt of the loss of Jake Bornheimer, towering pivot man, who left school due to illness in the family. Jake hopes to return in the spring.

Also out for the remainder of the season is Red Graner, guard from Allentown, who suffered an ankle injury last week.

A couple of first rate teams really got a working over the past weekend, with Kentucky laying one on the Fighting Irish, 60 to 30, and West Virginia doing the honors to the Temple Owls, 85-48. How Temple, a great defensive ball club as far as we can see, could fall apart that badly makes as much sense as a Slim Gaillard record.

Toss out the welcome mat and a bottle of Sloan's liniment (for external application only) to ye scholars of the half-nelson and hammer-lock. The wrestlers did a good job in dropping one to the Navy, and will be on the rebound when they hit Gettysburg in their sixth match of the season.

Take notice that Dick Dunkel spots Kentucky, West Virginia, and Notre Dame as 1, 2, 3 in the nation, and West Virginia, Seton Hall and Canisius the same way in the East, with no mention of Muhlenberg in the first 15. What's up, Mr. Dunkel? Are we too far down in the valley to merit notice? Aw, c'mon, Richard—open that door to recognition.

George Bibighaus was the big man in Lehigh last week, when

Mule Cagers Face Engineers, G'Burg, Leopards Next Week

Muhlenberg's basketball team will face the most grueling portion of its schedule during the next eight days. Having played Long Island last night they will play at Lehigh Friday night, Gettysburg Saturday night and Lafayette next Wednesday night. The last two games will be played at Rockne Hall.

The game with Lehigh will be a return engagement, Muhlenberg having won the first game by more than twenty points. However, even in defeat Lehigh showed a well-coordinated team lacking only in height. Marantz and Rehnert are both fine ball players who gave 'Berg plenty of trouble in the first game. The Engineers may prove more troublesome than most people think, this Friday night. This is a traditional game and a victory for Lehigh will be a major upset and make their otherwise poor season a success.

Gettysburg will be Muhlenberg's opponent Saturday and they will bring a good team into Allentown. They gave Pennsylvania a scare before losing to them by three points. Lafayette also beat Gettysburg in the last two minutes of the game which had been tied continuously. Dracha of the Bullets is a fine set shot artist and was All-State while attending Gettysburg High. Sachs, Rambo and March also are good men and may be remembered for their play in the football game against the Mule Eleven. In their last game the Bullets beat Lehigh by twelve points and really looked good. This game will not be a pushover and the Mules will have to be in top form to win.

Lafayette went home a sad club after Muhlenberg beat them last the local coal-crackers tossed a testimonial feed in his honor. George walked out of the hall looking like he'd hit the jackpot on Truth or Consequences.

George got the nod from the American Legion as the outstanding athlete of Pennsylvania. Yeah, Joe, a real celeb.

Don't get scared if you should hear strange rumblings around these cloistered halls. It's just the new beef trust of football players that have gravitated to this here institution from parts far and near. Practice is due to start sometime in March, and we'll let you know more then.

'BERG IN LEAGUE LEAD AS BISONS BOW, 57-43

Holding a ten point lead throughout the fray, 'Berg gained top billing in the Mid-Atlantic League standings last Saturday night at Rockne Hall, by trouncing Bucknell University before a capacity crowd.

Once again it was the spectacular shot-making of the "in and out" Mules. Big "Oink" McGee put on another masterful performance that sparked the team to its ninth win in thirteen played. All told, McGee rang up 11 sensational goals and added a foul for a 23 total. The game also marked the initial appearance of fleet Al Saemmer, who played a hawking floor game and bucketed 9 points during a short stay in the ball game. Steady and nerveless Chuck Theisen continued his fine work as the team's playmaker and also broke into the high-scoring column with 13 points. Theisen is a ballplayer's ballplayer from the word go.

Bucknell displayed a crafty pressing zone defense that caused the home team trouble, but only for a few minutes toward the end. Good basketball sense and alert passing soon solved this slick defense and the Mules went on to widen the score to 13 points as the tilt ended.

McGee Gains In Scoring Race

In the scoring rundown up to the Bucknell game, Harry Donovan still held the lead in the scoring race with a healthy 172 points. Dick McGee boosted his total to 156 by scoring 23 points in the rout of Bucknell on Saturday.

The statistics follow:

	Gls.	Fls.	Total
H. Donovan	61	50	172
McGee	62	30	156
Baldwin	31	26	88
E. Donovan	29	6	64
Schwob	29	6	64
Theisen	21	11	53
Bornheimer	18	9	45
Mackin	9	7	25
Graner	9	4	22
Loneragan	6	3	15
Saemmer	3	3	9
Capeheart	2	2	6
Dean	1	3	5
Lewis	1	0	2

Pete Gorgone and George Bibighaus are the only 'Berg gridmen to make little All-American teams.

Racketeers Wanted . .

Dr. Shankweiler, tennis coach, announced that the tennis team will begin workouts as soon as the weather permits and that all prospective candidates for the squad should turn in their names to him or his secretary in the biology office.

A twelve game intercollegiate schedule has been arranged, featuring some of the strongest teams in the East.

Professor George Rickey used to toss lots of leather as a top notch boxer in his college days. The head of the Art Department is quite a cook also . . .

"Whitey" Kurowski's name still appears on a 'Berg locker. He's a brother to the baseballer for the Cards . . .

Cornel Wilde, movie actor, was expert fencer in college days . . .

'Berg Back On Bandwagon With 10th Win Of Season

The floor joists of Rockne Hall groaned last night as a sell-out crowd sat on laps, coats, and other parts of their anatomy, to watch the Muhlenberg Mules play host to the towering Blackbirds of L. I. U. A certain economics prof's waiting line in the library had nothing on the queue of people waiting outside to watch a fighting Mule team sneak past the New Yorkers, 55-53.

Long Island, starting two former home town favorites, Hank Baietti and Bob Smith, jumped to an impressive five point lead on pivot shots by Holub and Kassler, and some beautiful outside shooting by their diminutive guard, Jackie Goldsmith. The insertion of Ollie Saemmer into the lineup seemed to make the difference as the Mules caught fire, knotted the score at 23-all, and went ahead on a foul by Mackin.

Big Ed Donovan came into the lineup early in the second period, and scored three quick one-handers to keep the Mules in front. Saemmer put on a sweet exhibition of hustling floorwork, stealing the ball from the tall boys, generally causing them about as much trouble as a wasp's nest in a phone booth. The Mules increased their lead to 6 points to head the Blackbirds, 32-26 at the half.

The start of the second half looked like a repeat performance of the first, as Holub and Goldsmith collaborated to tie the score 47-all. Goldsmith put on a real show for the fans as he popped them in from way out without stopping to get set. A foul by Saemmer, a one-hander by Harry Donovan put the Mules ahead, and they were never topped.

JAYVEES DOWN LEHIGH

In the best played, highest scoring preliminary game of the year, the 'Berg Jayvees drubbed a fast Engineer squad at Rockne Hall last night by a score of 65-54.

The Mules bounced off to a first period lead of 11-3, and held their advantage throughout the second period having a half time lead of 30-23.

With the opening of the second half the Engineers set a rapid dizzy pace, and captured a quick lead. Muhlenberg recaptured the lead in the final quarter and won the contest going away.

This game marked the initial appearance of Hoffman, star performer for A.H.S. a year ago. Hoffman played a fine game, especially on the defensive. Al Jessen once again stole the scoring honors for Mules.

Matmen Lose To Navy, 34-0

After three straight victories, Muhlenberg Varsity Wrestling team suffered their second loss of the season at the hands of the highly-experienced Navy matmen at Annapolis. Total team score was 34-0. However, this score by no means shows the fight which the Muhlenberg squad displayed. Rudy Amelio, previously victorious in three out of four matches, was defeated 2-0 by George DeLong in the second overtime period. The two men had battled on even terms throughout the regulation nine minutes without either having scored a point.

Jerry Braverman, pinned in the second period with a half-nelson and body-press, staged a stirring rally and nearly pinned his opponent, Hathaway in the third period, but was thwarted when Hathaway's shoulders were declared to be off the mat. Ted Getz in the 121-pound class held McIver to a 4-4 tie, only to lose on a 1-point time advantage. Fletcher, the Navy captain and 145-pounder, was hard-pressed to defeat Cliff Steinbach, 6-2.

The dual match with Bucknell University, originally scheduled February 12, has been postponed until Friday, February 21. The Mules' next encounter will be with Gettysburg in Rockne Hall this Saturday, as a preliminary to the basketball game between these two schools. Several changes in the lineup for the Gettysburg match may be necessitated by injuries incurred at Annapolis. The revamped lineup has not been decided upon as yet, but it is certain that Jerry Braverman will not see action. He suffered a shoulder separation and will be sidelined for several weeks.

The summaries of the Navy match follow:

121-lb. class—McIver (Navy) defeated Getz (Muhlenberg), 5-4.

128-lb. class—DeLong (Navy) defeated Amelio (Muhlenberg), 2-0, in two overtime periods.

136-lb. class—Smith (Navy) threw Dougherty (Muhlenberg) in the first period with a cradle hold in 2:33.

145-lb. class—Fletcher (Navy) defeated Steinbach (Muhlenberg), 6-2.

Mauch Chunk, Pa.
February 13, 1947

Dear John,

John, before I say anything, I want you to understand that I think you're one of the nicest boys in all the world, and the last thing I would ever want to do would be to hurt you. However, I feel it is only right for your sake and mine that I tell you right away how I feel about us.

I will never forget the wonderful times we have had together, and I will always think a lot of you. I think there really was a time when I did love you.

I've written you that I've had a few dates with Dexter. Now one of those things has happened over which you and I have no control. Dexter has asked me to marry him, and I have accepted.

I hope you won't take this too hard. It was a big decision for me to make, but I've never been so sure of anything in my life.

Dexter is a fine person. I'm sure you'd like him and I hope you can meet him soon. I know you would approve of him. We have not set a date for the wedding yet, but I hope you can come to it.

John, I know you're going to make a success of your life and I know the right girl will come along some day to make you happy. I hope we can always be friends. Please write.

Fondly, VIOLET

Dear MULE KICK,

As long as the campus is being beautified for the coming year, how about a few essential improvements about the campus? Every so often a fellow from East Hall heads for the ROSEMARK for an evening snack, only to find that he must grope his way through mud and trees before reaching 23rd Street. One big improvement would be a macadam walk and a light to see where one is going. Also, the officials are building new offices, yet the classrooms with their dim lighting go untouched. Poor lighting is the cause of poor eyesight. How about some action?

Politicos Convene At Capital

Prospective politicians from all leading Pennsylvania colleges and universities will assemble in Harrisburg the week-end of April 18-20, 1947, in a model state legislature, under the sponsorship of the Intercollegiate Conference on Government. Governor James H. Duff is expected to address the opening session on Friday morning, April 18, in the Education Forum.

This year's meeting will be the eleventh annual state-wide conference arranged by Intercollegiate Conference on Government to familiarize Pennsylvania students with the way in which their government operates. The first was held in 1934, and the group has met every year since then, except during the war. This will be the fifth time it has met as a model state legislature, with the student delegates pretending that they are members of the real General Assembly and introducing, debating, and adopting bills which have been previously drafted on their respective campuses. Nine legislative committees will set up to give preliminary consideration to all bills introduced.

Political science students will comprise the bulk of the "politicians" at the convention. They will meet in a legislature that will operate under the present Pennsylvania constitution, except in so far as the constitution provides for two houses and for certain legislative procedures which time and space will not permit. The model legislature will be unicameral.

Next Week Games

January 15 and snapped their winning streak of 16 straight games. Anderson realizes that he can't have a successful season nor again win the Middle Atlantic Championship unless he beats 'Berg. It is also common knowledge that the team that he looks forward to beating most is Muhlenberg. Therefore everyone is looking forward to this coming Wednesday night when Lafayette meets the Mule Five at Rockne Hall.

Lafayette hopes history will repeat itself and like last year win this second match of the season after dropping the first. Zippel, their great center, Milne, a smart looking forward and Semko a good set shot artist will undoubtedly be at their best in this game. They also know that they will have to stop Dick McGee if they want to get anywhere. He was the main factor in the victory over Lafayette last month. Muhlenberg may be a very tired team by next Wednesday having played three games in the previous seven days and that may cause them the most trouble. However, with the return of Al Saemmer, their reserve strength is considerably improved and the boys know that they will have to win this if they want to win the Conference championship. The game should be one of the better ones of the season.

Starting lineup — Lehigh: Petrone, forward; Goodman, forward; Rehnert, forward-center; Marantz, guard; Johnson, guard. Gettysburg — Sachs, forward; Hart, forward; Dracha, center; Blastino, guard; Pure, guard. Lafayette — Semko, forward; Milne, forward; Zippel, center; Jordan, guard; Duym, guard.

Biology Department. The society was founded in 1931 by Dr. Shankweiler. The organization endeavors to bring the medical profession closer to those students who intend to join its ranks by securing as lecturers men who through years of service have reached eminence in the field of medicine. Annual visits to health institutions, hospitals, and medical schools also form an important part of the society's program.

JOINT STUDENT-FACULTY COMMITTEE IS NAMED

College Adds Six To Faculty; Staff Also Increased

In an effort to satisfy the increased demands precipitated upon certain departments of instruction by the rising tide of enrollment at Muhlenberg College six new men were added to the faculty this semester.

Three of the departments which bear the brunt of the recent influx of students beginning their academic work this semester — the English, Physics and Social Sciences Departments — have augmented their roster of instructors. Also among the recent additions to the college employ are two new members to the accounting staff of the Treasurer's office and an added assistant in the athletic office.

Three of the faculty appointments, which at present are still temporary appointments, went to fill positions in the Department of Social Sciences. Robert K. Bosch, recently completing his work here at Muhlenberg for his A.B. degree, is now teaching the freshman history survey courses. Richard V. Hamory, a brother of Eugene Hamory, of the Chemistry Department, comes to 'Berg from the Bethlehem Steel Company where he was employed in the accounting phase of the corporation. He is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and is now engaged in teaching the required Economics course. The third addition to this department, Mr. L. R. Drown, retired member of the Department of Education at Lehigh University, has taken up his duties as instructor of Economics also.

One addition has been made to the Physics Department. Edward S. Tinley, recipient of both his B.S. and M.S. at Lehigh, joined the department. Mr. Tinley, a former Army Captain serving in the European Theater of War, was formerly an instructor in Physics at his Alma Mater.

Mr. McConnell and Mr. William L. Kinter are the newcomers to the English Department. Mr. McConnell received his Bachelor's Degree at Wheaton College and was awarded his Master's degree at Yale University in 1940. From 1940 to 1942 he was taking work at Columbia University for his Doctorate. His previous teaching experience has been at the Kingswood School, W. Hartford, Conn., and at Westminster School in Simsbury, Conn.

Mr. Charles Stecker, who has begun work in the Treasurer's office is a graduate of Penn State, B.A., '35. He is a Bethlehem man and comes to Muhlenberg from the Accounting Division of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The two secretarial assistants are wives of veterans now attending Muhlenberg. They are Mrs. Marion Harte in the Treasurer's office and Mrs. Evelyn Freed in the athletic office.

Dr. Lloyd W. Eshleman, who instructed in Economics last semester, is no longer with the faculty.

Ballad Singer Star At Assembly This Evening

Tom Scott, famous ballad singer, will present a program of American folk songs tonight in the Science Auditorium. Appearing on the first of the assembly programs to be offered during the new semester, Scott will feature the fascinating songs and melodies common to the New World scene.

TOM SCOTT . . .

Although he is famed for being both an accomplished musician and a well-known stage personality, Mr. Scott is best known for his sincere and inspiring interpretations of American folk music. Among the many songs to be heard tonight, there will be ballads, courtin' tunes, spirituals, roustabout songs, railroad chants, sea chanteys, voyageurs' songs, barge songs, songs of the Northwoods, songs of the American Indian, cowboy songs, and creole songs. Thus, Mr. Scott will cover a wide variety of the folk songs which are so much a part of this country's native culture.

Featured as the "American Troubadour", Tom Scott has appeared on many radio programs, especially the Fred Waring show. Among his other triumphs are included appearances in various Broadway productions and in several elite clubs, among them being the "Rainbow Room" and "Cafe Society Uptown". Mr. Scott has also given recitals in the mecca of American musicians, Town Hall.

Tom Scott is also noted for his outstanding work both as a composer and arranger. He has come a long way on the road to success since he first set out for New York from his native Kentucky with only his lunchbox and eight dollars.

Today, his name is a by-word for native American music, both on Broadway and in radio. Muhlenberg students and their friends have an unusual treat in store for them when they hear Tom Scott perform in his inimitable fashion tonight.

This assembly program marks the opening of the current semester's entertaining features. A list of distinguished speakers and popular personalities will comprise the assembly shows for the balance of this semester.

The shows are under the supervision of Dean Perry F. Kendig.

Extensive Debating Schedule Released

The spring debating schedule for February, March and April has been compiled. Eight of the debates are to be held in the West Hall auditorium on the campus and the remaining seven are to be held away.

The schedule is as follows: February 19, Temple, home; February 20, Gettysburg, away; February 24, Rutgers, away; Feb. 28, Gettysburg Women, home; March 8, Bucknell, away; March 10, Princeton, home; March 13, Lehigh Valley Debating Association at Moravian; March 19, Ursinus, home; March 20, Drew University, home; March 27, Rutgers, home; March 29, University of Vermont, home; April 1, Ursinus, away; April 10, Albright, away; April 15, Penn State Women, home; April 16, Columbia, away.

All of the home contests will be held at 7 p.m. with the exceptions of Temple and Penn State Women, both of which will be held at 7:30 p.m.

Bridge Teams Now In First Round Of National Tourney

Mr. Andrew Erskine will distribute prearranged hands to Muhlenberg's bridge team tonight at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house as Muhlenberg enters the first round of the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament. The hands were set up and sent to Andy Erskine by the national committee, and from the results Muhlenberg will be scored and ranked with respect to the 140 other colleges competing in this year's tournament.

Mr. Erskine

Thirty-nine states and the District of Columbia are represented in the entries, it was announced this week by Foster M. Coffin, Director of Willard Straight Hall, Cornell University, and Chairman of the Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee.

For the purposes of the tournament the country was divided into eight zones as equitably as possible, on the basis of numerical distribution and geographical proximity of the colleges. After a round played by mail on the campuses, the two highest pairs in each zone will go to Chicago on April 18 and 19 as the committee's guests for the face-to-face finals to determine the national pair championship.

Among the other colleges in this zone against which our team will be competing in the preliminaries are:

Delaware, Georgetown, Johns Hopkins, Bryn Mawr, Chestnut Hill, Lehigh, Penn State, University of Pennsylvania, Washington and Jefferson, Hood, Swarthmore, Maryland, Franklin and Marshall, Haverford, Lafayette, Pittsburgh, Drexel, Bucknell, Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania College for Women and Temple.

Must Register For Summer Session

Students who wish to attend the college's summer session for 1947 must signify their intentions to attend on February 24th. The enrollment for the summer school is being limited to 500 students and those who are first to sign for attendance at this session will be given first consideration. On Monday, February 24th, the administration will circulate forms regarding attendance at the summer session. Students who plan to attend college during the summer should return these forms with a positive answer in order to be admitted for that special semester. After the five-hundred student quota has been filled, no further enrollments will be accepted.

Muhlenberg men wishing to make changes in their courses must do so before the end of this coming Saturday, February 15th. After this date, no changes in courses will be accepted by the Registrar's office. Any student who drops a course after this date will receive an "F" for the course. Acting Registrar Paul Gebert will be receiving students who wish to make changes in their schedules in his office up to and including Saturday, after which time all changes will be strictly forbidden.

All undergraduates will once again complete their registration for a new semester by filling in those little tests of writing endurance, the matriculation books, before the start of the semester.

Will Consider Gripes, Sit As Tribunal; Student Body Meets

Meeting for the first time this semester, the Student Body yesterday heard Council President, Harold Helfrich, announce that a student-faculty committee has been set up to act as a tribunal and sounding-board of opinion.

A crowd of over 500 students jammed into the Science Building auditorium for the meeting, which began at 11 o'clock. Chapel and one class were cancelled for the event.

Helfrich opened the meeting by outlining the activities of the Council in the past semester. He revealed, for the first time, the organization of the new student-faculty relations committee, which is to serve as an advisory body on campus questions.

The co-chairmen are the Dean of Students and the Council President. Members include councilmen and the following faculty members: Dr. Victor Johnson, Mr. Frank Lough, Mr. Francis Warlow, Mr. Westbrook Barritt, Mr. Warren Swenson, Librarian John Davidson, Business Manager Edmund Keiter, Prof. George Rickey, and Dean Perry Kendig.

Initial meeting of the group will be next Monday evening at seven o'clock in the Council room. The meeting is not open to the public, but anyone may present a grievance.

Before the student body meeting was opened to the floor, Dr. Levering Tyson reviewed the course of student government on the campus. "This is an historic moment," he said, as he summarized the difficulties of running a college today and traced the trend toward greater management of their affairs by students themselves.

Dr. Tyson emphasized the importance of now-defunct East and West Hall Dormitory Councils. These are to be organized at meetings of the dorm dwellers later. He further cited the fact that the student body constitution has been hailed by Mr. Roger Baldwin, head of the American Civil Liberties Union, as a model for college campuses.

After the meeting was thrown open to the student body, several important motions were made, two of them proposed amendments to the constitution. A motion to add nine Freshmen and nine Sophomores to the Student Council was defeated. Another motion, which was carried, suggested that the president of each class be put on the Council, bringing its number to 13. Another motion successfully voted upon proposed a one week period pass between nomination and election of class officers.

Both of these, in order to become effective, must be added to the constitution in the form of amendments. During the next two weeks the proposals must be postulated.

Donald T. Miller is at present serving as Secretary to the Verein. Since he entered Muhlenberg in 1944, he has been active in Der Deutsche Verein and is a member of the Mask and Dagger Club, and Chapel Choir.

A faithful member of Der Deutsche Verein is Adolph Wegener, a Junior who has been very active in the Verein and also participated in athletics while at college.

Ralph Bagger, a veteran of the E.T.O., also spent some time in Germany. While at college, he has been active in Debating, Forensic Council, WEEKLY, Pre-Theo club, and has been placed on the mythical Dean's List.

Charles Krauss, a Junior, has also seen action with his Uncle Sam in the E.T.O., notably in Germany. He has also been active in Der Deutsche Verein while at Muhlenberg.

BIG WEEKEND INCLUDES . . .

Prom, House Parties, Valparaiso Game

A record attendance is expected tomorrow night at Castle Gardens as the Junior Prom, making its post-war debut, begins the festivities of a week-end studded with fun and frolic.

The orchestra of Vincent Lopez, noted for its danceable, somewhat conservative style, will play from 9 'til 1 in the spacious ballroom at Dorney Park. In developing the Valentine's Day motif the decorating committee has worked hard and long, rendering atmosphere conducive to a memorable evening.

The basketball game between Muhlenberg and Valparaiso is the main attraction Saturday night. Seats for all should be readily available.

Another gala house party heads Lambda Chi Alpha's social calendar for the annual Junior Prom week-end. As is customary, dates of brothers and pledges will take over the fraternity house, which will be brightly decorated along a Valentine motif, beginning tomorrow afternoon.

EDITORIALS . . .

With a student body of 1300 men, Muhlenberg College should possess a wealth of diverse talents. Undoubtedly in our midst there are numerous artists, writers, debaters, actors, athletes and pinball champs, whose potential talents, if exposed, would contribute greatly to a bigger and better school.

Why do these fortunate and gifted personnel insist on being so selfish with their talent? That question I can only attempt to answer. Perhaps they feel there is no room for them in extracurricular activity or perhaps they feel they haven't the time to devote to anything other than studies. One prevalent comment is, "So and So has his name in everything, what chance have I got against some one who is in." The only reason "So and So" has his name in everything is because no one else was available. Don't let that BMO look frighten you or discourage you from participating in your school. Chances are you have a lot more from the ball than he does.

As far as need is concerned, we need everything. The Mask and Dagger needs actors, "M" Club needs actors for its forthcoming show and the WEEKLY, the poor old struggling WEEKLY will be a dead issue in June if no more interest is shown. The staff now consists almost entirely of seniors who will graduate in June. This is a great opportunity for those interested in newspaper work. There will be many editorial slots to fill come next Spring and at the present time the means for filling those slots are meager. Right now the WEEKLY is frothing at the mouth for a cartoonist and photographer. If you are the lucky fellow who possesses the above-mentioned talents, please give us a break.

Come out! Come out wherever you are!

OBITER DICTA . . .

The Great Borelli

by Dave Tyson

Muhlenberg never produces a backfield star of any promise without the sportswriters immediately comparing him to the notorious Nick Borelli, Muhlenberg's Red Grange. The record turned in by the 1946 football team, best in Muhlenberg's history, was enough to silence the scribes. But alumni who remember the Great Borelli still talk of him with reverence and awe. "There was a football player," they say.

Borelli went through 'Berg in days when Haps Benfer had a mustache. Coming from Cliffside Park, N. J., he dropped the "i" in his name after he arrived here and called himself Nick Borelli. But tradition has always retained the name of Nick Borelli.

He was under contract to the Athletics, who helped him through college, and then farmed him out to the Three-I League in the West for a season after he graduated in 1928. Nick was married while out West and returned home to Cliffside Park where he now teaches Physical Ed at Cliffside Park High.

As a baseball player at Muhlenberg, many was the time the fans saw him belt the ball into Liberty Street, and not infrequently over the roofs of the houses on the other side of the street. "He was the best three-sport man we've had here at Muhlenberg in many years," says Haps Benfer, his coach for several years.

It was as a triple-threat full-back, however, that Borelli made most of the headlines. "He had the uncanny ability," says Haps, "of picking up his maximum speed in one step. He wore no shoulder pads or head gear unless he was forced to do so. He could kick 60 yards and pass from 50 to 60 yards."

Borelli's greatest game was against Lehigh in 1927. Known only as an offensive player up to that time, he proved that under pressure he could do everything, both on the offense and defense. As a result, Walter Camp gave him honorable mention on his All-American squad of that year.

Borelli played basketball, too.

Haps says he had shiftiness and was a good competitor. "When the going got tough, you could count on him."

His most spectacular stunt on the basketball court was down at Swarthmore in 1928. Muhlenberg was behind, 29 to 30, with the game drawing to a close. Borelli took the ball in under the Swarthmore basket. Looking up at the clock and seeing only a few seconds left, he muttered "AW, to hell with it!" and let the ball fly the length of the court towards the Muhlenberg basket. As might be expected of the Great Borelli, the ball dropped through. Final score: Muhlenberg 31, Swarthmore 30.

Dean Mercer States Requirements For Graduation

Dean Mercer wishes to call the attention of all students, particularly Seniors, to the following paragraph from the Muhlenberg College Annual Bulletin relative to Physical Education:

"Students who are sophomores, juniors, or seniors in the academic year 1946 to 1947 will continue with the old plan as set forth in the catalogue, with this exception, that Physical Education will receive academic credit for one semester hour per term. These credits in Physical Education will be added to the former number of semester hours for graduation. Seniors must have 130 semester hours for graduation, including the Physical Education; juniors, 132; and sophomores, 134."

All those who have heretofore planned on graduating in June 1947 who will not have 130 semester hours credit by that time are asked to see Dean Mercer. A man with less than 130 hours can graduate only by special Faculty action.

MULE KICKS

Dear Sir:

Just before the first classes of the day convene one sees students arriving on the campus from all points of Allentown and surrounding territories. Roughly calculating, two-thirds of Muhlenberg's student body of 1300 live off campus. This situation poses a common problem: how does a fellow get in touch with another off campus student if he is in a hurry and has not exercised enough foresight to record that particular student's address or phone number in his little book?

I have been on other college campuses where the problem was solved simply by means of a college directory. To my knowledge, Muhlenberg has printed no such directory this year. Such a publication (which usually includes the student's home town, class and course in addition to his phone number and address) would undoubtedly prove to be quite an asset in the hands of any 'Berg man. Information of the same type about the faculty members should also be included.

I hope that those who agree with me in this matter and who are in a position to act will take the ball and carry on to the end that Muhlenberg might have a student directory.

Sincerely, RICHARD C. HERB

Dear Sirs:

The question about school now is WHY DOESN'T THE BAND PLAY AT THE BASKETBALL GAMES? When the season started the band was making plans to play at the basketball games, the same as it did before the war. That was dividing the band in half and having each half play at an equal number of games. A full band would be too big for such indoor playing, as well as giving some of the members a rest. But the band was refused seating in the Gym in that it was decided that at basketball games a band was not proper and caused too much noise. So the band does not play at the games.

The other week when we had a visiting team bring their band it really did have a very miserable effect upon our student body as well as the visiting students and team. This shows that a band does have time between games and time out periods to play a few numbers that help the team along during its rest periods, as well as developing the old MUHLENBERG spirit again.

Editor's note: The band has been absent from Rockne Hall because there simply isn't enough room this year, even for the student body. To accommodate about a ten piece band would take space for thirty people. With the student body overflowing the seats into the aisles, it's hardly fair to take more room for band instruments, even though this is, of course, desirable to add spirit to the evening.

The band from the other college, which the writer mentioned, simply came uninvited, all the way from New York with the team, and was accommodated only through the courtesy of college officials.

To the Editors of the "WEEKLY"

Sirs:

The library's opening for the evening study hours evidences a real desire to serve the student on the part of the librarian and his staff—a desire that might well be contracted by other administrative functions on this campus—notably the commons. It remains for the student body now to reciprocate the library's move by cooperating with library regulations and, whenever it is possible, by returning overnight books early Sunday evening rather than Monday morning.

In the commons, too, a spirit of cooperation could be developed if the students would recognize a present opportunity to make the first move toward such cooperation. It seems to me that such an opportunity exists in relation to the silverware and the sugar situations. I suggest, therefore, that the students as individuals:

1. Return over-week-end books early Sunday evening if possible so that other students will be able to use them;
2. Return all silverware borrowed from the commons, getting the knives and spoons needed in the rooms from home;
3. Call a halt to the practice of taking sugar and sugar dispensers from the commons in order that sugar may again be served in a less regimented fashion without depriving any student of a sufficient amount.

By these means, the value of the library's latest attempt to serve the students will be increased for every student, and serious handicaps to the development of a desire to serve the students on the part of the commons administration will be eliminated.

Sincerely, DAVID J. HOH

DANCING DEMONS

by Ed Pickard

Saturday last a great social function took place in this the beautiful Lehigh Valley, the cookies held a dance and when the cookies held a dance, brother, well let's leave it at dance. The underlying theme that the girls used for the dance was a huge red heart but believe me they weren't advertising dog food. When you see a six foot heart displayed in a girls' college, look at it with an open mind, but remember all college girls these days are on the prowl and fair is foul as foul is fair.

Fair or not the fact still remains the same the girls are definitely on the prowl and the dance proved it. Ah Oui—once inside the place and I thought I was back on the Rue La Paix, clothes you know, the same all over. Once you find your ma petite in the milling throng; she takes your hand in a vice like grip that couldn't be broken by Houdini. The only possible way to break the grip your Judo Jane has on you is to offer to shake hands with the reception line. After a gentle nudge in the shins you realize that this is the thing to do. Very graciously you meet the faculty and all their second cousins. Your name may have been Jones when you entered the line, but at the end it couldn't be pronounced in Esperanto. Oh well—the social graces you know.

One nice thing about the cavorting cookies was the way some dressed. Never let anyone tell you that a C-girl can't dress for a pickard dance. If one young lady (she's probably working on her masters) that galloped by me to the rhythm of a slow rhumba, had been given a candle, the dance could have ceased and a presentation of MacBeth taken place. Then too, there are the more daring girls who dressed to make Amber look like a piker. Don't let it worry you though, they say, it's done with bones. Although it should be noted that some of the more conventional girls used straps, not to hold up the dresses but to have some place to pin their flowers. In most cases though it was just about a toss up as to which offered the most camouflage, the flowers or the dress.

The dance had to end at twelve o'clock, but we fooled them and found a bar open until one. The only trouble is that in the institution after a dance, the doors are locked at two and the windows barred at ten after. Fate I guess has decreed that you must be back by two. In most cases though, you will find the passionately inclined couples back at 1:45; who can tenderly say goodnight in 15 minutes? The reception room is usually so crowded that you have a rather hard time keeping track of your woman. One poor guy started to kiss his gal goodnight and when he opened his eyes he found himself making love to a house mother in Calico.

I must admit though with all the tribulations of the affair it wasn't a bad deal and hope the cookies have many more.

He Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

Are you warm, ready, and rarin' for the main event tomorrow eve? If not you'd better get on the ball and get hot, the Prom shapes up as a terrific affair with everyone and his brother on hand . . .

Speaking of stars we'd like to toss a handful of shining stuff at Al Saemmer. Although his basketball playing has been slightly more than terrific, it's not for that we are pounding the drum. Many of you don't realize that not more than a few months ago Al was in an auto accident, which put him in the hospital for weeks and which required yards of bailing wire, glue and scotch tape to hang him all together again. Every time we see Al zooming down the floor with the ball and making wonderful plays, we stop and think of what a bunch of "moxie" and wotta carload of guts is packed in that little frame . . .

We have had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Tom Scott, the star of tonight's assembly show, do his stuff. Take our word for it that he's one of the best. No matter what kinda music you like, this guy will make you like his. Sorta on the "Burl Ives" style, and if he keeps going, that music will soon be known as "Burl Ives-Tom Scott" style . . .

Have you donated to the cause which is helping to buy a key for the poor guy who can't rouse RICHARD? You haven't? Well stick around, you will . . .

Post-basketball sessions at the Superior are the most popular times for the teen-agers to make with the autograph books. Of course the gals can't keep away from "Addie" Donovan. His table ought to have a turnstile and cash register, so the kid could rack up some dough . . . "Pappy" Pat Carazo is one man terror in the local stork derby. He and the Mrs. have just come through with number three, and it's another link in the Carazo basketball team, as they're all boys. Nice going peoples and lotsa luck . . .

Local bridge fans will be pleased to know that Dr. Levering Tyson, and Mr. Victor Schmidt gave the two younger Schmidt boys, Art, and Vic Jr., a real trimming recently. Trump was floating fast and furiously, and the tension really mounted. Now that the smoke has cleared away, Dr. Tyson is offering Art Schmidt FREE BRIDGE LESSONS.

Yessir it really happened. The ole' hermit man himself, "Skinless and Boneless" Lukens has a date for the Prom. She's a real nice gal from yonder "Collitch" and Dave will no doubt spend the evening telling her how he developed so rapidly under Charles Atlas . . .

Mr. and Mrs. "Reds" Krimmel doing the town recently, a kinda rare occasion when we catch them about . . . All these guys who used to resemble fugitives from back alleys are now making like "Esquire" posters. Yep that practice teaching is a boom for local clothes merchants too . . .

Shortages in the local supply of "soup and fish" or "monkey suits" has caused considerable rise in stock of aspirin. The gals don't seem to have any trouble at all—just a yard or two of unbleached muslin, couple safety pins, and a fin's worth of posies takes care of the fairer sex . . .

Art and Kitty Hill reported on the beam from Columbia University. Art is attending Teachers' College, while Kitty is pounding the typewriter in the Housing Office. They asked to be remembered to all hands at 'Berg . . . Art Damask at basketball games with a sweet lookin' chick. Can you see her OK without the pince nez, Art???

We've got a bouquet of rotten onions for some of you fellow students who have cars on campus. There's nothing more discouraging than to be shivering on the corner waiting for a bus and have one of you cowboys buzz by with empty seats. Doesn't take so long to haul a couple of pals, and even a block or two helps. Whatta ya say??? Give us poor unfortunates a break and we'll remember you in our will . . . Rumors have got Jim Doran, ex 'Berg student at Roanoke College, way down south . . .

Fred Pauly broke out recently with a "brand new" 1941 automobuggy. Really a classy job . . . Latest crop of sombreros features the classy jobs on Ed Schwob and Bill Johnson. Out for the title of "Chief Fur Trapper" eh fellas???

By the way, here's a household hint we picked up recently and thought you might catch a chuckle—"One of Juniors marbles tossed into the kettle when cooking jelly will prevent sticking and burning"—poor Junior, tossing his marbles around like that, tch,tch . . .

Alumni
Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

The January-February issue of the Alumni Magazine has been distributed and there are still a few copies available in the lobby of the Administration Building. The cover this month features Coach Bud Barker's basketballers who are the topic of conversation throughout the Valley.

Other featured articles tell the story of entrance requirements and the appointment of "Haps" as Director of Admissions, the testing bureau under the guidance of Dr. Carl W. Boyer, a story on Muhlenberg's new treasurer, Howard MacGregor, a fine basketball story, Dean Kendig's article on the Extra Curricular program, well worth your time, a chart of the Tobacco Bowl game, (the alumni are still playing that game over and over), and many other features which should be of interest to you.

Issued six times a year, the magazine reaches every alumnus through the mail and is distributed to the student body. It will pay you to form the habit of reading the Magazine, so that you can keep abreast of developments and activities among the alumni. For some day, YOU will be among that group, and the magazine will be the link between you and the college.

schedule. A Saturday afternoon bowling party to be held at the Wal-Ten Bowling alleys is one of the features of a very active weekend house-party.

The co-chairmen of the social committee, George Baker and Frank DiPiero, announce that an addition to the house recreational facilities, a new lounge, will be ready for use during the Junior Prom week-end.

"Ciarla" Wants Action Photos

The Editor-in-chief of the 1948 CIARLA is desirous of obtaining candid shots taken about the campus during the past semester. These pictures will be used in the CIARLA, and any and all responses will be gratefully accepted. Any men wishing to cooperate please contact the Editor, Earl W. MULES MAUL LEOPARDS 68 TO 53

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

Some day the Administration is going to decide that we've absorbed enough book learnin', and shove us out into the cold world armed with a sheepskin, a few surplus chapel chits, and a wary respect for economics profs. When the big day comes, we're going to endow our successor to this desk with a supply of false mustaches and a blank accident insurance policy.

This racket is far from safe.

Just the other day we were sitting in Kenny's pushing a hot dog into our face, when a heavy arm spun us around and a voice that matched said, "I wanta make words with you, pal."

Now we're strictly law abiding citizens. We do not make a practice of spitting on the public streets, or talking to the bus driver while the vehicle is in motion, and if we owned a car, we would never park it in front of a fire plug.

We don't know this guy from nowhere; we haven't been dating his sister; and we haven't poisoned any dogs of late, so we can't figure his beef.

He talks, and after a half hour, we get the pitch. Leaving out the invectives, it boils down to this, "Why should a student and loyal supporter of Muhlenberg have to squeeze out two skins to get his date inside Rockne Hall?"

The way he tells it, you'd think we were the ones who set the ticket price for the L.I.U. and Valparaiso games which is definitely unright. We give him the shrugged shoulder, raised palm routine, which doesn't come off so well, as by this time he has our right arm in a hammerlock, and is endeavoring to get a Flying Mare on us.

Finally he lets us go, with the promise that we'll get the scoop on the situation. So we stopped down at the athletic office and spoke to Ben Schwartzwalder. His slant on the deal is this:

(1) That the basketball games are handled under a tight budget.

(2) That if the seating capacity of Rockne Hall was turned over to the student body and their dates at a lesser fee, the school would not be able to meet the demands that a high caliber basketball schedule presents.

(3) That at other schools, the University of Kentucky for example, the students are only allowed to attend a fraction of their ball games, due to the lack of seating capacity, and that after a little quiet reflection, we are getting a fair break after all.

Well, that's about all from the office viewpoint. If you've got any other dope, let us know.

Good to see Johnny Bird, a swell guy and a fine ball player, starting for the Lafayette Jayvee team. Johnny was 6th man on the 'Berg '44-'45 Tournament club . . . Nick Van Bredalkoff, lanky center for Princeton, who caused Bud Barker and Co. so much trouble from the pivot position, and gave us plenty of headaches trying to spell his name, has left the cloistered halls of Nassau for greener fields; namely, the New York Knickerbockers . . . Stan Heck, former Lehigh grizzer is now making with the commercials on Bethlehem's new radio station, W.G.P.A. Tune in 1100 for laughs to hear the 200 pound fullback quote, "And Duz is so-o-o gentle for your precious undies too."

Ed Schwob is the present holder of the New Jersey State High School scoring record. He scored 41 points in a play-off game.

No-It's Not The Ballet Russe . . .

VALPARAISO HERE SATURDAY; J'VS FACE V.F.W. IN OPENER

Saturday night will find Muhlenberg playing host to Valparaiso which will be making its second swing through the East. Valparaiso, once a top-flight team mainly due to its terrific height advantage, has degenerated and is now nothing but a third rate team outfit. Most of its star ballplayers have graduated with the exception of Paul Meadows and the rest of the team is made up of green freshmen.

Earlier this season Valparaiso announced that it had perfected a "T" formation which would increase their offensive strength. However, after losing four straight to Wyoming, Hamline, Holy Cross and Toledo by more than 15 points in each game, they gave up the idea. So far this season the Mid-Westerners have won ten and lost ten. They have beaten no one of any importance and have also lost to Long Island University 71-52. Holy Cross beat them by 76-49 and Hamline and Butler, average basketball teams at the best, have beaten them twice. Muhlenberg should have little trouble winning as Valparaiso appears in the same class as Lehigh and Gettysburg.

The preliminary game may turn out to be the better game of the evening as the Muhlenberg JV's will play the V.F.W. basketball team. Members of the V.F.W. basketball team include Cy Davis, Dick Miller and Jim Capehart, all of 'Berg's '43 basketball team which went to the National Invitation Tournament, Bibighaus and Roveda and possibly Mackin, members of this year's football team. The JV's have improved since the season started and with the addition of Dick Hoffman of Allentown High School and other new players the team has looked much better.

Next Wednesday night Muhlenberg will travel to Gettysburg and play the return match of the home and home series. Muhlenberg won the first of the two games last Saturday night in a rather easy victory mainly using the reserves. Since the game will be on Gettysburg's court this time the going should be tougher and the Mules should be pressed more but should still win.

Bullets Drop Groaners, 16-14

Capitalizing on the weakness of the injury-riddled middle weight divisions of the Muhlenberg line-up, Gettysburg College last Saturday handed the Mules their third set-back of the current campaign, 16-14. Each team won four individual bouts, but the Bullets scored two falls as against only one for the Frankett-coached squad. Only in the heavyweight division was the 'Bergman able to pin his opponent. In this class, "Smiley" Bill Evans flattened Gible with a reverse bar and chancery after less than one minute of the third period.

Rudy Amelio continued his torrid pace in winning his fourth out of six bouts this year, 2-0. Rudy was in control of the action throughout the fight.

Ted Getz, Muhlenberg 121-pounder, started the Muhlenberg scoring when he defeated Sam Schmidtenner of Gettysburg, 4-0, in the initial bout of the evening. After Amelio boosted the Mules' lead to six-zero, Sam Freeman, a new-comer to the Muhlenberg line-up, was pinned by Erb with a crotch and half-nelson. Steinbach and Delp also lost decisions to their Gettysburg opponents. Mike Finelli, a second stranger to followers of Muhlenberg's grunt-and-groaners, staged a beautiful fight against Bender, only to be pinned in the final five seconds. Finelli wrestled in the 165-pound class in place of Larry Delp, who moved down one weight to fill in for Jerry Braverman. Braverman is out of action due to a shoulder separation he suffered at Navy two weeks ago. He may be lost to the team for at least another week. Sam Freedman wrestled in the 136-pound class, vacated a week ago when Ed Dougherty was declared ineligible because of a deficiency in scholastic grades.

Big Burt Wessman, blonde 175-pounder, easily defeated Keler and very nearly pinned him. Saturday the Mules journey to Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster to engage the strong team of Austin Bishop, one of the nation's better-known coaches. Again a changed lineup may be necessitated due to injuries.

Coach Ernie Fellows has asked that all prospective track team members who missed the meeting yesterday, contact him at their earliest convenience, either in the West Hall Physical Education office, or the Athletic office.

The coach announced that practice will begin in the gym, as soon as it becomes available, which will most likely be this coming week. The team will move outside for workouts, weather permitting, and will try to be prepared for some of the remaining indoor meets this winter.

Official opening of the outdoor season will be April 16.

H. Donovan, Al. Saemmer Lead 'Berg Scoring Attack

Putting on one of the finest exhibitions of the year, the mighty Mules continued their dominance of the Mid-Atlantic Conference by humbling Bill Anderson's Lafayette Leopards at Rockne Hall last night by the convincing score of 68-53.

Mutual respect slowed the action in the first period but the Mules after being on the short end of a 2-0 count, by virtue of a two-pointer by Marty Zippie, assumed the lead seconds later and were never headed.

The scoring was well handled by Harry Donovan, and Saemmer, with frequent assists from Baldwin, McGee, and Mackin. The Mules' power continued through the second quarter and the half ended with the Mules ahead 31-15.

As the second half commenced it was evident that Bill Anderson had given his boys the good word during the half time lapse. And, led by Zippie, Milne, and Semko the Leopards closed the gap to six six points late in the third quarter. The Mules began to purr on all cylinders in the last period and poured it on to wind up the affair at 68-53.

Marty Zippie led the Lafayette scoring parade with 16 points and put on a show that was both entertaining and amusing. Semko garnered 13 and Milne racked up twelve.

Harry Donovan fattened his season total by 26 points to lead the Mules, and was followed by Saemmer and Mackin with 16 and 11 respectively.

The Jayvee club wasn't as fortunate, however, as they dropped the opener to a fast moving Lafayette outfit, 41-34.

Jumping ahead to a 4-0 lead on buckets by Hoffman and Moyer, the Little Mules looked like they were going to walk away with the game. Somebody must have slapped a lid on the 'Berg basket, as the Leopards tied it up, and went ahead, scoring 15 points to the Mules' 5.

Midway through the second period however, the Jayvees began to click, and sparked by the clever shooting and backboard work of Al Jessen, tied it up, and went ahead 22-21 with about 10 seconds to go in the half. Lewis took the ball out and let go with a "I hope the wind is right" shot that went as the half ended. Score 24-21.

The second half was marked by "gypsy shots" aplenty. Hooks, stabs, underhands, etc.; the Leopards had the edge as they pulled up and won going away.

Student-Faculty Committee Named

ed on campus bulletin boards. In order to be passed, a two-thirds vote in favor of the motion must be cast by students present at the next student body meeting. The exact time and place for this meeting will be announced soon. Meanwhile, the columns of the WEEKLY are open for student comment on the issues.

Two other committees were revived after motions from the floor were favorably voted on. They are the Library and Commons committees, both of which were in existence before the war but had lapsed. Committee members are to be appointed by the Student Council.

Another motion made, seconded, and passed calls for new elections this term in all four classes. The men to be elected will serve until June. In addition, the suggestions were made that more publicity be given future elections and that pictures of the candidates be posted.

Arthur Damask, speaking for the Junior Class, announced informal dress for men will be acceptable at the Prom. The price for alumni will be $2.

The problem of seating at Rockne Hall for basketball games was discussed. One suggestion advanced was that a certain area be set aside for the entire student body and that after a certain time any seats not filled be placed on public sale.

The question of whether unlimited cuts are going to be offered honor roll students was answered by the fact that the faculty, at its last meeting, deferred action on the proposal.

The Sergeants-at-arms for the meeting were John Keefe, Marshall Rogers, and Robert Donovan.

Another feature of the meeting was that copies of the WEEKLY poll were distributed to be filled out. Results will be tabulated and announced in the paper later.

Ciarla Seeks Info

Information concerning each of the 1300 students now attending Muhlenberg is being sought for use in the 1948 edition of the CIARLA. Individual questionnaires will be distributed tomorrow to each student at the same time as he receives his Matriculation Book. These are to be completed and returned together to the Registrar's Office on Monday, February 17.

In addition to the usual data (name, class, course, etc.), students are requested to give full facts concerning their extra-curricular activities: membership and offices in campus organizations and fraternities, positions on the WEEKLY or CIARLA staffs, participation in Varsity sports, and scholastic honors.

The material accumulated from these questionnaires will be compiled and prepared for publication by the members of the Classes-and-Class-Functions Staff of the 1948 CIARLA, Charles Markley, Leon Loch, George Pappas, and Ray May, under the direction of Associate Editor Ralph W. Bagger.

Harmony Prexy Of AKA

Eugene Harmony was elected president of Alpha Kappa Alpha, honorary philosophical fraternity, at a special meeting of the organization held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in room 110 of the Administration Building.

Other new officers include Harry Graveman, vice-president; Lewis Fluck, secretary; and Frank Di Piero, treasurer.

The next meeting of the fraternity will take place Thursday evening, February 20, at 8 o'clock at the home of Dr. Stine.

Oswald Directs Student Plays

Two one-act plays, a melodrama, "The Curse of Jack Dalton" and a light Russian comedy, "The Proposal", are on the bill for an assembly program to be presented by the Mask and Dagger Club on Thursday evening, March 27, at 8 p.m. in the Science Auditorium.

The final selection of these two plays was made by Robert Oswald, president of the club, and approved by Andrew H. Erskine, the faculty adviser. Oswald is to assume full direction of the two one-act plays.

Tryouts will be held tonight in the Science Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Not only Mask and Dagger members but also any other students interested in dramatics are urged to try out for the parts. The roles, Oswald announces, are not heavy or difficult. Student wives are invited to try out for the female roles.

"The Curse of Jack Dalton", a typical melodrama with the "corn" flowing freely, but it is hoped, artistically should provide rollicking entertainment for the audience. "The Proposal" is a product from the artful pen of Anton Chekov. Elizabeth Bergner, talented German actress, is currently being starred in this play which is touring the East. The play is a portrayal of Russian peasant life and works itself into one of the most vicious three way arguments ever to precipitate upon the stage.

Faculty Club Hears E. T. Horn

"The Japanese Language" was the topic Dr. Edward T. Horn chose when he spoke last Tuesday evening, February 11, to the assembled members of the Faculty Club in the West Hall Auditorium.

This group, comprised of both faculty and administrative men of Muhlenberg College, plans to meet about once a month at which time a speaker, chosen from the faculty, will present the topic for discussion. Dr. Horn, currently offering a course to students on the history of the Japanese language, is well qualified to talk on the subject. For many years he worked with the Japanese people as a missionary to that country.

The Faculty Club was only recently organized after many months of inactivity during the war. It is a social organization which aims at bringing together men of common interests for fellowship and education.

At their last meeting officers were elected. They are: President Dr. Robert C. Horn, Vice-President of the school, and Prof. Luther Deck, secretary-treasurer.

ATO Houseparty

Alpha Tau Omega has chosen the Junior Prom as the event to inaugurate their first House Party of this semester.

The House Party will begin on Friday evening with the Prom. On Saturday afternoon there will be a picnic social off the campus. An informal record dance and refreshments will follow the Valparaiso game on Saturday evening.

Sunday, following the traditional custom of ATO Houseparties, will be reserved for an informal get-together at cards.

PKT Initiates Five

On Friday evening, February 7, five Phi Kappa Tau pledges received their formal initiation into the Eta chapter of that fraternity.

The five men initiated, all of whom are upperclassmen, are as follows: Morris Houck, Arthur Long, William Raines, Robert Vetter, and Frank Yanoshik.

Phi Eps Plan Sweetheart Dance

Official opening of the social season for Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity will take place February 22, at the Jewish Community Center, 6th and Chew Streets, when the "Sweetheart Dance" takes the spotlight.

Along with dancing to the music of Harry Romig's orchestra, the local Alpha Chapter of Phi Ep will choose its first official "Sweetheart". Judges for the contest will be the chaperones for the evening, Mr. Andrew H. Erskine, Professor George Rickey, and Dean Perry F. Kendig, of the Muhlenberg faculty and administrative staff.

Dress for the occasion will be informal, and tickets, available at the Jewish Community Center or from fraternity members and pledges, are $2.50 per couple. Refreshments will be served and dancing will continue from 9 to 1.

The dance will be in a rather belated, but still appropriate Valentine motif and will be the initial social affair for the eleven recently initiated men.

Those who are new members of Phi Epsilon Pi are: Oscar Cherney, Nat Farber, Irwin Salitsky, Norman Cohen, Kenneth Dollinger, Alan Lakin, Irwin Kreindel, Alan Feinberg, Herbert Garber, Paul Steinberg, and Leonard Glazier.

Bridge Tournament

The contest is one of the few intercollegiate events in which men and women can compete on an equal basis. The sixteen players in the Chicago finals will be guests of the Committee at the famous Palmer House. All finalists will be awarded key charms to commemorate their participation, while each player of the winning pair will receive a cup for his or her permanent possession. The college represented by the winners will have custody of the large Intercollegiate trophy for one year.

SPE Elects Bill Evans

Bill "Smiley" Evans was elected to head Pennsylvania Iota chapter of Sigma Phi Epsilon at elections held Tuesday evening, February 11, at West Hall Lounge.

The newly chosen prexy is present treasurer of the Inter-fraternity Council, and captain of the wrestling team. During his pre-war days at Muhlenberg, Bill was active in both football and wrestling.

For the Vice-Presidency, the members elected Bob Haldeman, also a pre-war athlete at 'Berg. Bob was an Ensign on a destroyer and saw much action in the Pacific.

Secretarial duties will be assumed by Paul Evans, brother of the new president. Evans was a Chief Yeoman attached to Admiral Turner's staff and participated in four major engagements.

The balance of the officers as elected are as follows: George Bournias, Comptroller, James Ibbotson, Historian; Walter Yost, Senior Guard, and Frank Falcone, Junior Guard.

SPE has returned to full time activity with many brothers back from service, and has assumed its place among fraternal organizations.

Rickey Leads Artists On Tour

Professor Rickey will conduct tours in the Metropolitan Museum, the Frick Collection and the Museum of Modern Art in an all day art junket in New York next Saturday. He is taking his undergraduate classes from Muhlenberg College and will be happy to add to the group any of the students present or past from the adult education drawing and painting class. He will meet the group at the Fifth Avenue entrance of the Metropolitan Museum at 10:00 a.m. Saturday morning when the Museum opens. After luncheon at the Museum around noon the party will move down Fifth Avenue to the Frick Collection, then later take in the gallery shows at the Museum of Modern Art. Professor Rickey has warned his students that this will be a hard and concentrated day, but he will be glad to have as many come as can make it.

Debating Schedule

Paul Gesregan, president of the Forensic Council and Mr. E. Philip Bollier, coach, expressed the desire to have as many Muhlenberg students attend the home contests as possible. The question to be debated is "Should Labor have a Direct Share in the Management of Industry?"

About Chapel's Architecture And Symbolism

The Muhlenberg Chapel is reported to be one of the most beautiful on any campus in the East. Next chance you have take a look at the symbolism and heraldry of the building.

As you enter, you may have noticed before this the two statues flanking the large west window on the outside. The one on your left is Martin Luther; that on your right, Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, patriarch of the early Lutheran Church in America.

The symbolism throughout follows a definite plan. The south side of the building traces the development of the church in Europe, while the north side follows the church in America.

The architect, Dr. Frank R. Watson, when the chapel was designed made known his wish "that the harmony of the whole conception of the chapel shall be maintained from beginning to end, and that permission may never be granted to break in by introducing discordant notes into an otherwise perfect chord."

The small aisle windows on the north side, for instance, picture prominent men in the Reformation, while the great clerestory windows overhead contain corresponding heraldic designs and details, "suggestive of places or events associated with the figure represented beneath in the aisle window of the same bay."

The Choir, with windows yet to be installed, is devoted to men of the medieval church, and the Sanctuary, going back even farther in time, is given over to personalities of early Christianity.

In the same way as an artist signs a painting, so an architect signs a building when it is completed. This tradition at one time served a useful purpose. An architect could silence those who falsely claimed to have designed his cathedral by pointing out a secret mark he had left at some spot in the building.

Dr. Watson "signed" the Muhlenberg chapel by carving the faces of the two wooden angels over the clergy stalls just to the left of the altar, in the likenesses of the late Dr. John A. W. Haas, president of Muhlenberg for many years, and Dean Emeritus George T. Ettinger.

There will be a meeting of the City Staff, Sports Staff, and Feature Staff of the WEEKLY on Friday, 21 February 1947, at 11:00 a.m., at the President's Home, 2401 Chew Street. All members of the above staffs are required to attend. Those who have classes at 11:30 will be excused by Dean Mercer, provided no tests are scheduled for that time.

Debaters Face Temple Home Tonight

Representing Muhlenberg College's Forensic Council, Phil Mitterling and John Reumann journeyed to Gettysburg College on Wednesday afternoon, February 14.

Upholding the affirmative side of the question: "Should Labor have a Direct Share in the Management of Industry", Phil Mitterling presented the 12 minute construction speech. John Reumann gave the 10 minute rebuttal speech and the 8 minute summary speech. The entire debate with the Gettysburg girls was conducted in Oregon Style.

Following this session, E. Philip Bollier, debating coach; Paul Gesregan, president of the Council; Mitterling and Reumann dined with their hosts and accompanied them to the Gettysburg-Muhlenberg basketball game.

Tonight, at 7:30 p.m. in the West Hall auditorium, Muhlenberg will oppose Temple University. The same topic will be discussed and 'Berg will again take the affirmative side. James Wilder and Robert Smith will do debating.

Forty-One Named To Dean's List

Editor's Note—Following is a list of those men whose names have been placed on the honorary DEAN'S List for scholastic achievement:

* Robert H. Albright, Ralph W. Bagger, Richard E. Bieber, Robert K. Bosch, Peter A. Bossart, Ralph A. Boyer III, Richard K. Brown, Melvin E. Dieter, Russell B. Everett, Irvin E. Fry, Richard S. Hill, David K. Hoffman, David J. Hoh, Laurence G. Horn, Kenneth W. Keiter, Charles F. Krauss, Donald L. Kuhnsmann, H. William Kulp, Bruce B. Kurzweg, Edwin D. Leonard, Solomon Levine, Harvey A. Pre-Meds Will Elect, Hear Dr. Trexler

Dr. Clifford Trexler, graduate of Muhlenberg College in the Class of '22, will be the principle speaker at the first meeting of the Pre-Medical Club this semester to be held on Wednesday evening, February 26 at 7 p.m. in Room 305 of the Science Building.

Dr. Trexler is a graduate of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, and for many years has been one of the leading surgeons at the Allentown Hospital. In his talk to the Pre-Medical men he will outline the requirements, both of personal and academic in nature, necessary toward success in the field of surgery. He will also give an account of the contributions of the war in the further development of surgical technique. Dr. Trexler served in the Army Medical Corps during World War II and was discharged with a distinguished service record.

Preceding the introduction of Dr. Trexler there will be a short business meeting of all members of the club to elect officers for the semester. The president must be a junior, but the remaining offices may be filled by a member of any class.

This will be the first time the club has been officially organized since before the war, although last semester the pre-medical, pre-dental and pre-veterinary students enjoyed several informal meetings.

The qualification for membership are as follows: 1) a sophomore or above 2) a grade of "C" or above in General Chemistry or a sophomore pre-med subject 3) must take a pre-med subject in the sophomore year. All students meeting these qualifications are invited to the meeting next Wednesday.

German Club Ballots Name Donald Miller

Officers for the present semester were elected at the regular meeting of Der Deutsche Verein last Monday evening at the home of Dr. H. H. Reichard.

The new officers are: Vorsitzender (President), Donald T. Miller; Stellvertreter zum Vorsitzenden (Vice-President), Donald Brobst; and Schriftfuehrer (Secretary), Adolph Wegener.

The newly-elected president assumes the duties of his office after having served for two semesters as secretary of the Verein. He succeeds John Reumann. At the next meeting the retiring president is scheduled to deliver a "farewell" speech, and the new president will make an inaugural address. Plans and policies of the Verein for the coming year will be formulated at this time.

The highlight of the social hour which followed the election of officers last Monday was an enlightening expose of the Army Counter Intelligence Corps, presented by Dr. Shoemaker of the German department, who saw service in Europe as a member of that organization. Dr. Shoemaker's talk forcefully and decisively pierced the blanket of complacency and assurance which has been woven by official versions of conditions inside Germany today. Dr. Shoemaker concluded his revealing talk by assailing the censorship policies of the U. S. A general discussion followed the talk.

After the meeting the refreshment committee served a luncheon to the members and guests present. The next meeting will be held on March 3, 1947, final details for which will be announced later.

Name Commons, Library Committee; Student Body To Meet Next Wednesday

Acting on motions originating from last week's Student Body meeting, the Student Council has announced the creation of two new committees—a Commons Committee and a Library Committee.

Nominated to a committee which will explore the College Commons situation are Donald Stoughten, George Eichorn, Franklin Sherman, Ralph Bagger, and David Hoh. The purpose of this committee is to act as a body between student patrons of the Commons and the Administration.

The Library Committee is composed of Harry Gravemen, Russell Everitt, Jim Reppert, Art Damask, and Bill Dennis.

A budget committee, charged with the allocation of funds was formed, and is to be headed by Phillip Mitterling.

The next student body meeting has been set for Wednesday, February 26 at 11 a.m. All students are urged to attend this meeting. The nominations for all class officers will be conducted at this meeting.

The following amendments were proposed to the student body constitution at the student body meeting last week.

To become part of the constitution, they must be favorably voted upon at the next meeting of the student body, the time and place for which will be announced later.

1) "Proposed that the period between nomination of candidates for student council and their election be extended by at least a week, to provide for increased publicity of the nominees." (majority required)

2) As an amendment modifying Article IV (Student Council), the following:

"In addition to the regularly elected members, the presidents of each of the classes shall automatically become members of the council immediately upon their election. If the President of the Senior Class shall already have been elected a member of the Council when a Junior, the Vice-president, or (if necessary) the other officers in turn shall succeed to the Council position. The total number of the Student Council members shall be thirteen."

Amendment (1) is an amendment to the by-laws, and requires a majority vote; Amendment (2) is an amendment to the Constitution and requires a two-thirds approval.

If adopted each will be submitted to an editorial committee for final phrasing.

Casting Of Hamlet Begun; Assembly Plays Readied

The role of Hamlet, young melancholy prince of Denmark, one of the largest single roles ever created by William Shakespeare, will be assumed by John E. T. Rogers, it was announced by Andrew H. Erskine.

The complete cast for Hamlet has not as yet been released. Rehearsals begin this evening in the Science Auditorium at 8 p.m., and will include tryouts for some of the parts not yet cast.

There will be a meeting of the cast of Hamlet tonight at 8 p.m. in the Science Auditorium. All members of the cast are expected to be present. All others interested in trying out for the parts not already cast are urged to attend.

At the time of this writing three more of the large cast in addition to Hamlet have been released. Gerald Rogers will be seen as King Claudius, the incestuous usurper of the crown. Rogers has been active in Mask and Dagger for some time and is no stranger to the stage.

A newcomer to the Muhlenberg stage is Edmund Deam who will be cast as Polonius, Prime Minister under Claudius, Louis Rossi, who was popularly cast in Dover Road last semester will return before the footlights in the role of Laertes, son to Polonius. Ophelia, who plays opposite Hamlet and Queen Gertrude have not been selected.

The play, which is the longest written by the masterful Shakespeare, has been cut down from the original by Mr. Erskine. The play is rarely presented in the unpurged version. Hamlet's part which is best with soliloquies has over 1400 lines in the original, and still will contain somewhat over 1000 in the version to be presented here.

Production dates are set for April 30 and May 1 and 2.

EDITORIALS . . .

An increase in the number of our Student Council representatives from the present nine to about thirteen was suggested in this column two weeks ago. The proposed amendment to the Student Government Constitution which would provide for the presidents of each of the four classes to be members ex officio of the Council seems to us to meet admirably the evident need for broader representation.

Underclassmen—who for the next year and a half, at least, will continue to outnumber the Juniors and Seniors—from time to time have voiced their feeling that justice demanded they be given some share in our government. Others have pointed out the wisdom of reserving the honor, power, and responsibility of Student Council membership for those who have experienced three years of campus life. The present plan gives to the Freshmen, Sophomores, and Juniors access to the Council through their chosen leaders, thus assuring that the suggestions of these groups will be heard; at the same time it preserves for the seniors a majority of more than three-fourths.

Through this procedure, also, as many as six different men will reach the status of Seniors each year having had one or more terms experience in meeting with the Council to deal with practical campus problems. And the students would have come to know the capabilities for leadership of at least these men. If the Student Body adopts both this amendment (which requires two-thirds approval since it modifies the constitution itself) and the suggested amendment to the By-Laws to allow a greater time between nomination and election of Council members, we think an increase in campus democracy, Student Council efficiency, and general student welfare should be noted before long.

The responsibility of the student body in this matter is clear: to turn out to the Student Body meeting in full force when it is called, to bring to the floor in the open debate the significant issues involved, and, if the amendment is made, to assure by active participation in the whole nomination and election process for both Student Council and class officers that really representative officers are chosen. The next open meeting will offer opportunity also, of course, to discuss whatever issues had to be left untouched last week because of the pressure of time.

Muhlenberg's GI's will be interested to learn that on January 26th the Veterans' Administration ruled that President Truman's declaration of the termination of hostilities on the last day of last year does not affect the expiration dates for the federal programs of education and rehabilitation for veterans of World War II. This ruling extends the life of both Public Laws 16 and 346 since the 4-year and 9-year limitations do not begin until some future date when either the President of Congress declares the official termination of the war.

Figures furnished by the VA indicate that at the end of December a total of 2,391,670 veterans were engaged in training under Public Laws 16 and 346. Of this number, 1,094,332 veterans are enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

According to information furnished the American Council on Education by 132 educational institutions throughout the nation, the average monthly cost to the veteran student for board and room, has increased 25.8% since September 1945. The national average costs per month for the veteran students were found to be:

Board and Room Costs for	National Average	Range of Costs Reported by All Institutions Excluding Junior Colleges
		LOW	HIGH
Unmarried student living on campus	$ 53.33	$32.00	$120.00
Unmarried student living off campus	64.13	30.00	130.00
Married student living on campus	79.86	47.00	165.00
Married student living off campus	105.19	75.00	304.00
Married student with one child living on campus	99.68	70.50	205.00
Married student with one child living off campus	130.77	85.00	307.00
Married student with more than one child living on campus	106.53	73.00	235.00
Married student with more than one child living off campus	140.56	83.00	340.00

As of January 14th, eleven bills had been introduced into the House and one into the Senate to raise or to remove entirely the present restrictions upon the maximum amount a veteran may earn and continue to receive subsistence payments.

Two bills, HR 161 (Allen-La.) and HR 870 (Rogers-Mass.) have been introduced to raise the monthly subsistence of all veterans receiving education or training pursuant to the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944. Congressman Allen seeks to increase the payments for single veterans to $75 and for married veterans to $100 plus $15 for the first child and $10 for each additional child.

Congressman Rogers introduced the bill backed by the American Veterans' Committee which would increase the subsistence payments for a single veteran to $100, and of the veteran with one dependent to $125 per month, plus $10 for each additional dependent.

Sveriges Vetenskapliga Son [Swedens Scientific Son]

The cooperation of Muhlenberg College with the Scandinavian-American Foundation resulted in the enrollment of Bo Malmstrom in the junior class last semester. Bo, and that is not a nick-name, has been in America for five months. I am happy to number Bo among my friends at college. Bo has been quick to blend himself to the American scene, in fact, his ability to adapt himself is so acute that in many instances he steals the scene itself.

Five months ago Bo was spanking new in America and a stranger to these Muhlenberg surroundings, so effervescing with an altruistic spirit, I thought I would take him under my protective wing. As it happened, he didn't need my altruism nor my inhibiting wing. He, too, was sizing me up. I guess he saw me as one of those G.I.'s straining nervously in a period of civil readjustment; so Bo, the Swede, befriended me on my road to recovery. Thanks, foreigner.

I've waited a long time to write this story—waited for Bo to go away for a weekend so I could write free of Swedish censorship. Some things which I could write, Bo knows only too well, are things which he would not want to get back to dear old Stockholm where he enjoys, I understand, a sterling reputation. Not that America has cast Bo astray or vice versa, but you know how parents are. If they ever found out that Bo lost his silk (made in Stockholm) shirt in a poker game, slept three Sunday mornings in a row without going to church, and traded his last copy of the Swedish National Anthem for a cardinal and grey yo-yo—that would just about cook his Scandinavian goose.

To be fair about the thing I interviewed Bo, so that he could not accuse me of making up a story. The results were not extensive.

"Were you born?" I asked. To which he answered after more than the usual amount of consideration, "Yes".

"How many parents do you have?"

To which he was quick to reply without once using his fingers, "The usual number, two".

"Do you like America and American girls?"

To which he answered intently, "Especially".

The interview ended on this note.

Bo, who intends to go into biochemistry work, is one of Dr. Brandes' brightest satellites. Chemistry, so they say, is a universal language although it's Greek to many of us. In one Organic Chem lab we had Bob Shamai from Bagdad, Bo Malmstrom from Stockholm, a stray Pennsylvania Dutchman, a boy from Brooklyn and other foreigners. It sounded like bank night at International House when these four got to arguing about the formula for some simple compound like hexamethylenetetramine. Doc Brandes' lectures are still being offered in English although he is considering presenting them in six or seven basic languages.

I took Bo home between semesters when I found he had wired himself to my suitcase. Really though, he was welcome, so don't believe his story that he slept in the garage. Anyway, we moved the lawnmower and the car out for the night and sprinkled sawdust on the grease.

Next day I showed Bo Philadelphia. He wanted to have some snapshots of the city for his memoirs, so I took two roles of Bo standing before various historic edifices. Bo's English vocabulary, the result of six years of the English language at the Swed-ing Gymnasium, is generous; but his comments on my home city of Philly were limited to a candid American expression. "It stinks." The next day we went to New York.

At the New York office of the Svenka Dagbladet, the Stockholm newspaper of which Bo's father is Managing Editor, we ran into more Swedes—except the secretary. Bo approached her and in his best English, of which he is proud, asked the whereabouts of a Mr. Per Persen. Looking up inquiringly she replied, "I'm sorry, I don't speak Swedish". Bo was highly insulted. The next four hours were spent in visiting all the Swedes in New York. And if you don't think that's a feat, try it.

Bo is fond of New York, more fond of its plays and good music. Stymied in our attempts to get tickets to the theater or the opera, we directed our attentions to food and the local Smorgasbord. It was the first place I ever saw chow come by me on a revolving table.

Bo thinks he knows N. Y. like he does his Organic Chem, but it was after I left him in the big city that night and went over to Staten Island that he got lost. As he tells it in his own inimitable way, he was trying to go cross-town from 5th to 3rd Avenues. New Yorkers will appreciate his account:

"I walked one block over and looked up at the sign. It said 'Fifth Ave.' So I walked one more block over and looked up at the sign. It said 'Fifth Ave.' I could not understand it, so altogether I walk four blocks and all the time the same thing I read, 'Fifth Ave'. And you know what?"

Yes, Bo, we know what. You were walking on Fifth Ave. all the time.

The four authors, Rusty, Glo-Glo, Mickey, and Bev, denizens of Curtis Hall, claim to know Muhlenberg better than Muhlenberg knows itself. Let the article speak for itself. It is submitted in answer to a recent WEEKLY feature, supposedly directed at our neighbors across the valley.)

Hello, Lana. This is Horatio Schmorten, but my friends call me Atlas. —He was in my company at — He told me to call you. —What do I look like? Gad zoots! I'm the best looking man on campus. You think I'm kidding? Could be. Do you have a car? Oh well, meet me at the Rose Gardens by the bridge. What do you have to lose? See you at 4:30, after class.

Gee, I thought I was being stood up but you certainly were worth waiting for. No, I'm not looking to see if my watch is broken. You don't look anything like your picture. Ruff! Ruff! Well, what did you expect, Tyrone Power? What do you want to do?—Anything I want—That's a sweet thing. Nice day for a walk over to Trexler Park. Yeah! walk. Oh this varsity letter? It doesn't mean much, just that I was captain of the football team in '43. Don't get excited; I wasn't that good. Then I left school and spent 2½ years in the Navy. It wasn't easy, that Navy life. In fact, I never worked so hard in my life, day and night. Where was I stationed for all that time? Oh, I was pretty lucky. Spent most of the time 20 miles from home. Always did love the U. S. But I'll never forget that last night I spent in San Diego. There I was at 30,000 feet. After that rot-gut and grapefruit juice, even she looked good. As a beer drinker she'd make a good garbage collector.

Well, there was this one blonde that gave me a rough time—Purple Heart, don't cha know? Just chalk it up to experience.

No, I'm not bitter, I'm Horatio. I'm tired. Let's sit down for a while. Gad! these ducks will even eat cigarettes. Want one? Take two, they're small. Can I hold your palmolive?—not on your lifebuoy! Always could tell a joke. I've got a million of 'em.

Oh, you say you've heard enough. Right you are. Where can I buy a sweater like that? Can you knit argyles? They can't be too loud—just something like red, yellow, and purple with an

by Mike Rogers

If we took time out to tell all those concerned what a complete success we thought the Prom was, there would be time for nothing else. Really was a "bang-up" affair, and the orchids are hereby tossed to all hands who made it possible . . .

The recent commotion at one of the local frat houses and the conduct of one of its members is being hushed up, and rightly so. There certainly is no reflection on any of the other members but it looked awfully bad for the guy who was featured in the act and made an ass of himself . . .

Jim Gross had that lonely look about 1 a.m. Saturday; yep she didn't get an all night and Jim was SOL . . . Noted Ed Gregg, alumnizing about the dance . . . Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Sweatlock hanging to the background at the affair, giving the younger set a chance . . .

Becoming quite a "natural thing" of late is Dave Tyson and "Rus-ty" . . . Rog Volpe and a fair one from home last week-end . . . Gordon Daggy and Mary Lou Rogers from the Crest are getting buddy buddy of late. Dag's phone bill to Philly will undoubtedly hit the skids now . . . Big contingent up from Mt. Airy lately included ex 'Bergmen Dan Dimmig, Jack Schwalm, Luther Wilson, Jim Miller and others, nice to see some of the old gang around . . .

Bill Smith and Cy Davis had a pair of lovelies for the dance and we know that Cy had a rain check . . . By the way, Cy, how much was deposited in the "Harrisburg Bank" . . . Word has it that U. Peter Horger is still stuck in those "back alleys."

Just got word that Bill Palmer is taking the fatal step the 25th of January with a Miss Mary McAuliff. Bill is an ex-WEEKLY editor and a V-12er here . . . "Ugly" Jim Kessock caught the stage-coach to "New Yawk" again this weekend . . . That is the second time . . . Times must be bad in the big city . . .

If "Shorty" Lybrand could do as well for himself as Al Saemmer did for him this weekend, he'd be 4.0 . . . Even "Cyrano" Karabeinick finds his own !!!

"Big Dick" McGee is being pressed for the title of "Oink" since his buddy "Anemic" Russ Strait returned to A-town . . . Women of A-town take heed and lock your larders . . .

If a two buck parking violation had been paid Saturday nite, "David Otto" would have made a quick trip to the woodshed . . .

Paul Markavage's "puss" gracing the Morning Call again . . . If you failed to get your Sunday paper, see Paul, he has five thousand copies.

Appearance of a "wee bit of things to come" was witnessed at the Prom when a couple of fugitives from the "M" club enlightened the intermission with a few character sketches. Rumor has it that the sketches were so successful that the participants have been asked to join the "L" club in Bethlehem.

Prom weekend was accentuated by many and mighty extra-curricular social functions. The "Athenians", Rho Dammit Rho and the ATO all contributed to what may well be termed "The Lost Weekend".

Visit from Ben Reist recently recalled old days here at 'Berg. Ben's now at Pitt prior to entering Princeton Theological school. Been doing some great work around his home stamping grounds of Wilmerding, Pa., and already has a nice reputation for good sermons . . . Ben also brought news of "Smokey" Seamen and "Rusty" Fennell, ex-V-12 men. Both at Pitt. "Smokey" is starting to click with some of his poetry and the publishers are taking to it . . .

John Strohmeyer has a short story coming out soon in McCall's publication Blue Book. The ex-Navy man has plenty of experience in writing and from reports his stuff is on the beam . . . Dick Keiper complaining about an 8-year old prodigy at the place he's living at off campus. The little "Quiz Kid" is taking Dick to task on matters of Biology and Mechanics, and will most likely show up with Dick on exam days . . .

Ken Keiter really was fouled up recently in class when a Prof made such hash of his name that Ken himself got it wrong a little later.

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

If you have attended the last two basketball games in Rockne Hall, you have heard about the excursion to New York for the game with Long Island University in Madison Square Garden. Just in case you haven't heard the word, here are the details.

The train will leave Allentown at 4:04 p.m. Thursday, March 6th, arriving in New York at 6:35. That should give you plenty of time to grab a bite and be at the garden by 8 p.m., when Lafayette squares off against City College of New York. In case you are not too much interested in the fate of the Leopards, you can enjoy a more leisurely dinner and make the Garden in time for the Mules 1947 debut in the famous arena which should take place approximately at 9:30 p.m. The train leaves New York at 11:50 p.m. and, barring unforeseen developments, should pull into the Queen City of the Lehigh Valley at 2:13 a.m. Tickets are good ONLY on the trains mentioned above. They will not be honored on any other train or on any other day than Thursday, March 6th.

The price of the round trip is $3.60. This is a saving of eighty three cents over the regular fare. Tickets for the game may be secured through the Athletic office, but you'd better HURRY or you'll be left at the post.

This trip is planned primarily for you, THE STUDENT BODY. We must have 300 tickets sold by March 4th. Already there has been a good response from the people of Allentown and over one hundred tickets have been reserved. So, let's go to the Garden. Stop in at the Alumni Office and make your reservations NOW.

Phi Sigma Iota . .

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock, Phi Sigma Iota, the national honorary Romance Language Fraternity, will meet in the recreation room in the basement of West Hall.

Richard C. Harrier will read a paper, the subject of which will be announced at that time, followed by a discussion.

All members are reminded of this meeting and cordially invited to attend.

MULES COP DIVISION CROWN AT G'BURG

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

The prelim to the Valparaiso game last Saturday caused quite a fuss among the 'Berg coaching cartel when Zimmer of the Vets knocked a cartilage loose in his knee. The big boy is a prospective blocking back on next fall's grid machine, and looks like he could put quite a dent in the opposition's secondary . . . Dick Miller put on a classy show for the hometowners, complete with fancy dribbling and clever shooting.

A big disappointment to the fans, but a bigger relief to Bud Barker, was the showing of Paul Meadows, Valpo guard. Meadows was kept under wraps for the greater part of the game, and didn't show too much, which doesn't exactly grieve us. Meadows is touted as the fastest man in basketball and last year he dunked shots from all angles at Rockne.

Hailed by the AP as the game of the week, the Muhlenberg-Navy tilt looms as the major bump to get over on the way to points North. Navy is rough anywhere, anytime, but on their home court they're Murder Inc.

A win over the Middies would boost our rating from sixth in the East to about fourth, and maybe open the Garden doors a bit wider.

We've seen this Kenny Shugart play a couple of times, and the diminutive guard is really a shrewd operator on the court, and is peskier than a snoring roommate to the opposition.

Two ex-'Berg ball players who are making good in a big way down at Roanoke College, Virginia, are Jim Russick and Jim Doran. Both boys stepped into starting roles on the Virginia school's basketball team, and were the big factors in Roanoke's defeat of Hampton-Sidney last week.

With the score knotted at 49 all, Doran sunk a foul to put the game on ice.

Here's what the Roanoke city sheet had to say:

But it was the two "Yankee Doodle Dandies"—both answering to the first name of Jim—who did the rebound work and generally raised havoc with the Tigers' offense. On the offensive side of the ledger, Doran scored 9 points and Russick tallied eight. Both hall from Ridgefield Park, N. J.

Plenty of fists have been flying up Canisius way, and it doesn't smell very good to us. Tom Muller, Canisius center, got the boot from the administration after becoming embroiled in two brawls, one with N.Y.U., and the other with Long Island's Dick Holub. Muller is reported to have floored Holub in the early minutes of the first L.I.U.-Canisius with a rabbit punch.

The part of deal that isn't exactly reminiscent of chanel (any number), is that the Blackbird squad was greeted by the partisan Canisius fans with cute remarks concerning their racial background, and later mobbed the entire L.I.U. team.

It looks like the Columbians and Ku Kluxers don't have a monopoly on the kind of guys that write on subways.

GOOD FORM - WRONG SEASON

Harry Donovan takes "footballish" pose as 'Berg took Lafayette over last week. Standing by is "Oink" Magee, while Leopards Milne and Semko move in. The man on the bottom is a mystery, but no doubt about the fellow with the whistle. Don't be surprised if this fall finds Donovan in pads and cleats, as Ben Schwartzwalder might get ideas from this shot.

NAVY BIG TEST FOR 'BERG SAT; HAWAII DUE MONDAY

Saturday afternoon the high flying Mules travel to Annapolis to meet the U. S. Naval Academy in what promises to be the most stern test in the hectic campaign.

Beating the boys from the ensign factory on their own floor is regarded in most circles as bordering on the impossible. Just an average team away from home, the familiar surroundings, fan-shaped backboards, 100% Navy crowd, and several other unmentionable factors, combine to give the Middies an advantage over any and all.

Navy has an impressive string of 11 wins, the latest and most powerful victims being West Virginia, and Penn State. It is to be remembered that Navy was the team that knocked the former from the ranks of the highly regarded, while the latter handed the Mules a 48-36 spanking several weeks ago.

The locals go to Annapolis facing a foe that has an old score to settle. Last year after Navy had gone undefeated for ten games, North Carolina upset them by one point, and the Mules humiliated them by seventeen at Rockne Hall.

The one pre-game glimmer of hope that shines in an important manner is that the game's officials will be appointed by Asa Bushnell.

The big guns in the Navy attack are Waldrop and Shugart, who will be well remembered by local fans for their heads-up ball playing.

HAWAII CLUB GREEN

The University of Hawaii Basketball Team arrived Monday from Honolulu and will play seven other basketball games besides the one against Muhlenberg Monday night, Feb. 24. Tonight they meet an average St. John team in Madison Square Garden in New York.

The team is composed of ten members, six of whom are Chinese, two are Hawaiian, one is Japanese and one is Caucasian. Three of the players, Eddie Liu, Richard Mamiya, Damien Rocha, come from St. Louis while the rest come from out in the Pacific.

The Rainbows, as they are called, are coached by Bert Chan Wa and will travel through six states and play such teams as St. Johns, St. Joseph, Canisius, Western Kentucky and Utah State. They aren't a very tall team, their tallest man being six foot four, but they are fast and tricky. The main thing to be decided about the team is whether they play the same brand of basketball as is played in the states.

There are only two lettermen on the team, Robert Wong and Robert Kau. This lack of experience may

67 Turnout For Baseball

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of baseball (among other things), and this was proved Monday afternoon as sixty-seven diamond aspirants answered Coach "Hoss" Lough's call to the colors.

Coach Lough will have a number of lettermen back this year as a nucleus for his squad. Al Saemmer and Eddie Schwob, keystone combination of last season, are back again to vie for their respective positions. Diz Dean, and Hank Henry, who patrolled the pastures for 'Berg last year, are all set to go fly chasing for the '47 Mules. The hill corps of Walt Busch, John Myers, and Cliff Kindred, who turned in such a creditable job last year, will be bolstered by the return of Paul Snyder, steady performer on the '43 squad. Big George Bibighaus, who does not confine his talents to the football field, will be out for the first base berth, and Paul Karobinek will be gunning for the backstop position. Also out to add strength to the catching department will be Albert Neiman, ex-Villanova receiver, and Armand Capriotti.

Announcement was made that indoor workouts will begin next week. No windows will be in danger until mid-March, at which time the squad will begin holding practice sessions outside.

prove to be their main handicap especially in close games. However, they must make up for this somehow, otherwise they wouldn't send a green team half-way across the Pacific and across the United States.

WRESTLERS NIP HAVERFORD 19-13

Sweeping five of the eight bouts, the Muhlenberg College wrestling team yesterday afternoon flattened the grapplers of Haverford by the score of 19-13.

Rudy Amelio scored the quickest fall when he threw his opponent, Lasday, with an inside crotch and chancery in 2 minutes and 7 seconds of the first period. Ted Getz also scored a pin for the victors when he tossed Hastings with a bar and body press in the second period and again in the third period with a bar hook and half-nelson.

Larry Delp ran his consecutive win streak to two straight in the 155 pound class as he outpointed Walker, 4-0. Steinbach and Evans also were victors on points for the Mules. Cliff Steinbach outlasted Smiley, 4-2, and Bill Evans beat Maroney, 5-1.

Burt Wessman lost a close decision to Rodewald in the 175-pound class, when the Haverford boy won, 11-9. Hilbert Gross, recent addition to the squad, wrestled in the 136-pound class and, after leading 7-2 on points, was finally pinned by Taggart in the third period, with a chancery and body press after 2:06. Mike Vinelli, captain for the match, was pinned with a bar and chancery in 37 seconds of the second period.

On Saturday, the 15th, the Mules were defeated by the matmen of F. and M., 33-3. The only victory for the Mules was scored by Larry Delp in the 155-pound class on a decision.

121-lb. class—Getz ('Berg) threw Hastings (Haverford) with a bar and body press in 1:16 second period and with a bar and chancery in 1:01 third period, 5-0.

128-lb. class—Amelio ('Berg), threw Lasday (Haverford) with a crotch and chancery in 2:07 first period, 5-0.

136-lb. class—Taggart (Haverford), threw Gross ('Berg), with a chancery and body press in 2:06 third period, 0-5.

145-lb. class—Steinbach ('Berg) defeated Smiley (Haverford), 3-0.

155-lb. class—Delp ('Berg), defeated Walker (Haverford), 3-0.

165-lb. class—Kinnich (Haverford), threw Finelli ('Berg), with a bar and chancery in .37 in second period, 0-5.

175-lb. class—Rodewald (Haverford), defeated Wessman ('Berg), 0-3.

Heavyweight class — Evans ('Berg), defeated Maroney (Haverford), 3-0.

LOOK GOOD IN 79-48 WIN AS STREAK STRETCHES TO 7

It was a victory for the invading forces down at Gettysburg last night as the Muhlenberg Varsity handed the Bullets a resounding 79 to 48 defeat and walked off the floor with the championship of the Northern Division of the Middle Atlantic Conference.

VALPOS FALL TO 81-65 BLAST

In the greatest scoring marathon ever staged in Rockne Hall, our Mules turned on the team with a blistering final period surge to overwhelm a surprisingly strong Valparaiso team. When the smoke finally lifted, and the girders cooled off, the score board revealed a Muhlenberg victory by an 81-65 score. Rockne Hall officials declared this the highest aggregate score ever accumulated on the local boards.

The contest opened unfavorably for 'Berg well-wishers, as the boys from the Hoosier State streaked off to an early 7-1 advantage. At this point the Mules called time, and quickly overcame their handicap when play was resumed. By half-time our boys appeared well out of danger, but what a surprise we all experienced with the resumption of play. The Indians stuck within five or ten points of the Mules throughout the third period, and then really whooped it up in the final frame. With their fast break netting them a rash of points, they crept to within a single marker of the puzzled Mules. With just four minutes showing on the East Hall clock, our Mules galloped up and down like five scared rabbits, scoring an amazing total of 15 points. Valparaiso was held scoreless during this final deluge of 'Berg baskets.

Harry "Boom-Boom" Donovan rifled his way into scoring honors for the evening with 28 points, his screaming one-handed shots preventing possible disaster. Dick McGee racked up 17 points and Al Saemmer totaled 15, as they captured second and third place scoring honors respectively. Once again, the diminutive, Saemmer played a brilliant floor game.

Sturdy eagle-eyed Al Bean paced the visitors with 25 counters. Only his uncanny ability to score while fading away from the basket kept his team from suffering a smashing defeat.

In the preliminary contest the local V.F.W. team suffered a 69-60 reversal at the hands of 'Berg Jayvees. This proved to be a fraternal battle as every member of the V.F.W.'s starting five are Muhlenberg students, and several have performed for 'Berg teams of the past.

The Muhlenberg Jayvees made the victory complete as they won a close game, 58-56, the first defeat the Little Bullets have suffered this season.

The Varsity was sparked early in the game by Tex Baldwin, and stepped ahead after the first five minutes, maintaining its lead until the final gun was fired.

The score was 29 to 18 at the half, and 54 to 35 at the end of the third quarter. Barker's Boys, as they have done more than once this season, ended the game in a blaze of glory, piling on 25 points in the last quarter.

Harry Donovan was in the lineup for most of the game and racked up 6 field goals and 4 fouls to become high scorer for the night with 16 points.

Jessup and Lewis were outstanding for the Jayvee quintet, which trailed Gettysburg for three quarters. Taking the advantage in the final quarter, the Jayvees held it in the closing minutes to win the game by a two-point margin.

Lafayette, Muhlenberg's closest competitor in the race for the division title, beat Bucknell last night, 49 to 40, but the victory in no way challenges Muhlenberg's championship position.

The Middies of Annapolis also managed to eke out a 55-53 win over the University of Pennsylvania. It was their 12th straight victory of the season, and primes them for their tilt with Muhlenberg this Saturday afternoon.

Frosh And Sophs Plan Sport Dance

On Thursday, February 6, the freshman and sophomore classes met in the Science Auditorium to plan for the Soph-Frosh Hop. It will be held at the ever popular Castle Gardens, scene of the other big school dances, on Friday, March 14, and will be a sport dance.

The following committees were appointed by chairman Ed Sullivan: program committee; Richard Rau, sophomore; and Lewis Wence, freshman; publicity committee; William Wegener and David Hoh, freshmen; invitation committee; John Swift and Herbert Gernert, sophomores.

The orchestra has been signed, and arrangements are being made to make this dance as successful as the other class dances. Further information will appear in the WEEKLY next week.

More . . . MCA Plans

ers, there will be a general round table discussion periods so that everyone present will be able to express his opinion. Faculty members are being issued invitations to share in the discussion. The chairmanship of this subsidiary organization of the MCA is rotating. Donald T. Miller will serve as the chairman for the first meeting.

The current Affairs Forum, to be led by Dr. Victor Johnson will begin meetings on March 19. It will first study the United Nations and then continue into broader fields of Christian citizenship. At least one joint session with a similarly-minded group from Cedar Crest is planned for the near future.

For several months a group has been meeting in Room 209 West Hall under the leadership of Roy Fries, to hold mid-week devotions and to discuss religious matters. Anyone is invited to these Wednesday night meetings.

The Social Action Group of the MCA has been placing students as leaders of boys in the two Boys' Clubs in Allentown. The Muhlenberg students have been leading boys in photography, wrestling, recreation, and similar activities.

Students who are interested in such work can secure more information by contacting Ralph Boyer in room 214 D Hall.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week the Christian Association will distribute mimeographed sheets at chapel time, which will explain in detail the recent reorganization and future plans of that organization.

The WEEKLY Stands Corrected

The WEEKLY wishes to correct an error which appeared in an article on new faculty members last week. The information printed on Mr. Ralph McConnell and Mr. William Kinter was inaccurate and is to be corrected as follows:

Mr. McConnell received his Bachelor's degree at Wheaton College and was recently awarded his Master's degree at the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Kinter, who received his A.B. at Lafayette and his M.A. at Yale University, attended Columbia from 1940-42 for work on his Doctorate. His previous teaching experience included work at the Kingswood School, W. Hartford, Conn., and at Westminster School in Simsbury, Conn.

Physical Exams

All students, regardless of class, who entered or returned to Muhlenberg in February, 1947, are required to report for physical examination. Matriculation will not be completed until this requirement is met.

Exams will be held in the basement of West Hall on Tuesday, February 25th, 1947, as follows:

9:00 a.m., A to C inclusive; 9:20 a.m., D to F inclusive; 9:45 a.m., G to J inclusive; 10:10 a.m., K to M inclusive; 10:30 a.m., N to R inclusive; 10:45 a.m., S to T inclusive; 11:00 a.m., W to Z inclusive.

Dr. Boyer To Give More Tests

The battery of Personnel Tests required of all students will be administered on Tuesday, February 25, 1947. The students will report at 1:30 p.m. in the Science Building Auditorium at that date.

Lists have been posted on bulletin boards, and those names appearing there are those men of whom no record is on hand and are therefore requested to report for the tests.

ALL STUDENTS, whether their name appears on the list or not, who have NOT taken the tests are to appear. Dr. Carl W. Boyer of the Education Department will be in charge of the testing.

At a general faculty meeting held last Tuesday afternoon in the West Hall auditorium the "Probation Period", its meaning and consequences, were defined as follows:

Any man on probation shall be asked to leave college if, at the end of his probation period, he has one or more "F's" OR has an average of less than 70%. If there are special extenuating circumstances in any instances, the man's status must be reviewed by the Faculty.

Chuck Gordon Orchestra At Soph-Frosh Hop, March 14

Chuck Gordon, who brings his orchestra to Castle Garden for the Soph-Frosh Hop on Friday, March 14, has now one of the nation's outstanding dance orchestras. The band plays good music that is both sweet and hot, depending on the mood of the song and the dancers. It whips up the hit parade leaders in smooth style and applies the heavy rhythmic beats to the standards and stompers, with the result that it satisfies all types of dancers.

Instrumentation takes in four saxes, with blend and body rarely heard in bands today, two trumpets, two trombones, piano, bass and drums. Brass section is augmented by Gordon's own trumpet, stepping back to play along with the boys after a trip down front to apply the personal touch in announcing each selection and giving the downbeat.

Making good use of his excellent sax section, the band is pitched around the organ-quality blend of reeds and trombones. The arrangements are on the youthful side and ever bright, and although ensemble playing is emphasized, there are plenty of instrumental sidelights to apply the hot spark.

Vocal qualities are also in high order. Dottie Malone, a familiar radio voice, gives excellent account of the lyrical content of the popular tunes, particularly the ballads; and for the romantic songs, Ray Weber suits the fancy of the fair sex.

Gordon keeps the band's tonal qualities well modulated, never blasting or distorting, and being rich in dancing appeal makes the band one of America's outstanding attractions.

Phi Eps Crown Gloria Miller Queen At Ball

One hundred couples danced at the beautifully decorated ballroom of the Jewish Community Center last Saturday night as the Alpha Nu chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity held its first social affair since its revival last semester.

A highlight of the affair was the crowning of Miss Gloria Miller, escorted by Bob Roth, as the first Phi Ep "Sweetheart."

She was chosen from a group of six finalists by a corps of judges which included Dean Kendig, Prof. Rickey, Mr. Erskine, Bud Bollinger (the dance chairman), and Martin Fels (chapter superior).

Presented with a bouquet of red roses and crowned with a garland of gardenias by Dean Kendig, she also received an engraved compact from the members of the fraternity.

This affair, which is to become an annual event, marks the full return of the Phi Epsilon Pi to the Muhlenberg campus.

Election of officers will take place this week.

Phi Ep's representatives in the Interfraternity Council are Martin Fels, Kenneth Dollinger, and Stanley Yarus, secretary of the council.

Among the activities of the fraternity has been the revival of the fraternity newspaper, The "Alpha Nu's," under the editorship of

Plan Victory Reunion For 'Berg Alumni

Extensive plans are being laid for Muhlenberg's first post-war alumni get-together in the form of a gala Victory Reunion to be held on the Muhlenberg campus over May 30 and 31. Alumni Secretary, John Wagner has made his plans so as to make this a memorable weekend for all attending.

The alumni of Philadelphia area will hold a meeting of their association on March 18 at 6:30 p.m., in Kugler's Restaurant in Philadelphia. This meeting will be highlighted by speeches by President Levering Tyson; Floyd Schwartzwalder, Football Coach; and John Wagner, Alumni Secretary. Movies of Muhlenberg's 26-25 victory over St. Bonaventure in the Tobacco Bowl, taken by Dr. Shankweiler, will also be presented at this meeting.

A large group of Muhlenberg Alumni and students is expected to support the Mule quintet when it meets Long Island University at Madison Square Garden in New York City on Thursday, March 6. Tickets for the trip are still on sale at the Athletic Office and all those intending to make the trip are asked to make reservations as soon as possible.

Because of inclement weather several other area associations have had to postpone meetings which will be held as soon as weather conditions improve.

Judge Trexler, Distinguished Alumnus, Dies

Judge Frank M. Trexler, member of the class of 1879 and Muhlenberg's oldest graduate, died last Saturday at his home, 1115 Walnut Street, Allentown.

JUDGE FRANK M. TREXLER

Greatly respected by those alumni, faculty, and students who knew him, Judge Trexler was one of Allentown's most prominent citizens.

He began the study of law at the age of 18 and was admitted to the Lehigh County Bar in 1882. During his career he reached the position of president judge of the Superior Court, and retired after 32

Staff Votes 'WEEKLY' To Continue Publication

The staff of the Muhlenberg WEEKLY, official student publication since 1883, answered "No" to the question of whether the WEEKLY should be allowed to go out of existence at a meeting last Friday noon at the President's Home.

Brought to the fore at an earlier conference between the editors and Dean Kendig was the lack of cooperation from the student body and faculty, which was held up as sufficient reason to let the WEEKLY fail by default. It was decided, however, to leave the question to the staff itself.

The staff members were unanimous in the opinion that the WEEKLY should continue publication. They cited the fact that any student body needs an outlet for its opinions and talents, and pointed out that the WEEKLY is one of the most influential of Muhlenberg's student organizations.

Seeking to organize the staff on a sounder basis, the editors made assignments for the complete coverage of campus news. Reporters were assigned to all student organizations, as well as to those members of the faculty and staff who frequently have news for publication.

It was decided to hold regular staff meetings every two weeks to discuss matters of policy, finance, and organization.

Members of the Ministerial Aid Committee, the authorized agents of the Lutheran church for the supervision of preministerial students in colleges, will conduct interviews with Muhlenberg pre-theological students this Friday and Saturday.

Dr. John Doberstein, Muhlenberg Chaplain, will be chairman of the group in its talks with the students which start Friday morning and continue through Saturday noon.

Due to the increase in the number of preministerial students, the committee has decided to meet twice a year instead of annually.

The schedule of interviews has been posted on the Administration Building bulletin board.

Muhlenberg and Ursinus in that order, following to consolation honors.

Of note to the Muhlenberg fans will be the fact that the Mules have taken the measure of LaSalle already this season by 15 points, but have yet to face either Albright, Swarthmore or Drexel. The LaSalle team, while defeated by a good margin, has had a good season and features one of the state's leading scorers in Bob Walters.

The Middle Atlantic Conference is composed of schools along the eastern seaboard, and among the smaller schools for many years has been one of the stronger leagues in the country. The winner of this tournament might well claim the title of Eastern Pennsylvania champs, since LaSalle is undisputed champ of the Philadelphia District.

Ten To Be Initiated By Sigma Phi Epsilon

Sigma Phi Epsilon will formally initiate ten men into its chapter tomorrow evening at the Chapter Treasurer's Residence, 1516 Walnut Street, Allentown. The following men will be initiated: Joseph M. Eagan, Gerald F. Clymer, James A. Brown, Charles A. E. Moyer, Raymond Kurtz, John L. DeLong, Steven J. Strella, Joe L. Ellwood, Ray W. Petersen, John Mock, Jr.

Following the formal initiation, there will be an informal luncheon served at Hemmerley's Grille. Gerry Clymer will be master of ceremonies for the evening. The guests of the Alumni Chapter will be Denton Kriebel, Alumni Treasurer, and Rudy Ziegler, Alumni Historian.

Students Approve Two Proposed Amendments

At a special meeting of the Student Body on Wednesday, February 26th, the following amendments were passed by vote of the Student Body, and will become part of the Constitution:

1) Proposed that the period between nomination for candidates for Student Council and their election be extended by at least a week to provide for increased publicity of the nominees.

2) Proposed as an amendment modifying Article IV (Student Council), the following: In addition to the regularly elected members, the president of each of the classes shall automatically become members of the council immediately upon their election. If the President of the Senior class shall already have been elected a member of the council when a Junior, the vice-president, or (if necessary) the other officers in turn shall succeed to the council position. The total number of Student Council members shall be thirteen.

Amendment (1) is an amendment to the By-Laws and was passed by a majority vote. Amendment (2) is an amendment to the Constitution and was passed by a two-thirds approval. Both will now be submitted to an Editorial Committee for final phrasing.

Also at the meeting, nominations were made for class officers of the four classes. These nominations will remain open until tomorrow afternoon at 3 P.M. The men nominated already for the various offices are as follows:

Foreign Student Guest Speaker At German Club

Bo Malmstrom, a Swedish exchange student now enrolled in his Junior year at Muhlenberg, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the regular meeting of the Deutscher Verein on Monday evening at 7:30 p.m., in the recreation room of West Hall.

Malmstrom, in an effort to promote better understanding of foreign conditions, will construct a comparison of the educational systems of this country, as he sees it, and his homeland.

Jack Reumann, retiring President of the Club, will deliver a farewell speech to the group. Donald Miller, newly elected President, will then present his inaugural welcome with an outline of the organization's future plans and purposes.

Members are urged to be present at this meeting, and men interested in becoming associated with the Club are cordially invited to attend.

As is the usual custom, refreshments will be served by the members of the refreshment committee.

Lambda Chi Alpha Initiates Fourteen

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity will be fourteen men stronger on the Muhlenberg campus by the end of this evening as a result of initiation ceremonies conducted this week and last at the chapter house.

Three men, all of the upper classes and Pennsylvanians, were received into membership Wednesday evening, February 19. They are Homer Robinson, York; Wayne Schweitzer, Mechanicsburg; and Earl Adams, Tower City.

Following the traditional "Hell Week", eight other pledges were initiated on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, and three more will be inducted tonight. These men include J. Carl Behler and Edward McCormick, both of Allentown; George Brick, Wilmington, Del.; Larry Burnett, New York, N. Y.; John Christman, Shillington, Pa.; Louis Columbo, East Mauch Chunk, Pa.; Thomas Evans, Lansford, Pa.; Russell Kidston, Vineland, N. J.; John Kopituch, Elmhurst, N. Y.; Walter Roberts, Phillipsburg, N. J.; and Paul Tudder, Marysville, Mo.

Bagger And Hale Co-Chairmen For Commons Group

Ralph Bagger and Bob Hale were elected co-chairmen of the newly created Commons Committee when that group met last Tuesday evening in the West Hall Auditorium.

The committee, which came into being as a result of student pressure for action during a recent Student Body meeting, is composed of six men appointed by the Student Council. In addition to the co-chairmen those named to serve are David Hoh, Franklin Sherman, George Eichorn, and Donald Stoughton.

At this initial meeting the purposes of the group were set forth and discussed. The body will represent the student patrons of the college dining hall and will, in addition to making suggestions for improvements, act in the enforcement of regulations.

Students are urged to present their grievances or constructive suggestions to one of the members of this committee. All valid criticisms will be taken up with the

Mules Face Albright In Middle Atlantic Tourney; LaSalle Named

Crowning of the Mid-Atlantic basketball champions will take place on March 14th and 15th at Delaware University. In a special release to the WEEKLY, Dean Shober Barr, of Franklin and Marshall made known the plans for the tournament. Dean Barr is chairman of the committee handling arrangements for the Conference playoffs.

Following the custom of keeping the tourney away from any city in which one of the competing teams is located, the University of Delaware has been selected as the site for the "Shaugnessy" type play-offs.

The teams chosen to compete for the title are Muhlenberg, Albright, LaSalle, and a fourth team to be chosen when a southern conference winner is named. This last place is between Swarthmore and Drexel. The pairings for the play-offs will pit the LaSalle squad against the southern winner in the first game on Friday the 14th, and Muhlenberg against Albright in the second game that night.

On the following evening, the two winners will meet to decide the champion with the two losers meeting in a consolation game, and to name the third and fourth place winners.

Last season also saw the Mules among the elite named to the tournament which was held at Lehigh. The onslaught of Marty Zippel and the Lafayette team was too much for 'Berg and they came off with third place. Lafayette was the eventual winner, with Rutgers,

EDITORIALS . . .

"What's The Scoop" or— "Why The WEEKLY" ???

The WEEKLY almost failed to come out this week.

It's doubtful, of course, whether you, the reader, would have missed one issue, but there's an old saying to the effect that You Never Miss the Water 'Till the Well Runs Dry.

The editors were ready to give the WEEKLY up as a bad job. The old thrill of being on the inside of everything that goes on at Muhlenberg had been worn pretty thin by the enormous amount of work that had to be done each week by a handful of fellows. The complacency of the student body and the faculty, and the lack of cooperation there from both helped to make the job a dull one.

Student papers on other campuses have been dying like flies in the past few months for just this reason. But we can be thankful there are a few men on this campus who think it would be a great misfortune to let the Muhlenberg WEEKLY expire after more than fifty years of continuous publication through wars and depressions.

Most of these men are now on the staff of the WEEKLY. If you, the reader, would like to join a group which is determined to set an example of organization and spirit for the rest of the college, come around and see us—we'll put you to work.

If not, don't let us hear anything but constructive criticism from you. Please don't ask us why your fraternity isn't getting enough publicity, or why we failed to list all the degrees of a new faculty member. Back To Tradition On Wings Of Music . . .

The band is having the same kind of trouble.

Starting from scratch last fall, a bunch of spirited students threw together a snappy organization that provided plenty of pep at the football games, through rain and shine, from Lewisburg to Wilmington. Remember that pajama parade down Hamilton Street? We all thought the old college spirit was back to stay.

What's wrong these days? The Band is getting little response from its repeated calls for volunteers. Plans for a spring concert and for participation in the Alumni Homecoming in May will have to be dropped unless more volunteers turn out.

The Muhlenberg Band is the traditional stimulus for campus spirit. All musicians are urged to report for one hour each week, beginning this afternoon at 4:30 in the Dome Room of the Library.

OBITER DICTA . . . College Store

by Dave Tyson

"Boy! if the store were my concession, I would have given it up long ago."

Thus spoke Dr. James Edgar Swain, head of the Department of Social Sciences and manager of the Muhlenberg cooperative book store, when interviewed on Tuesday. The interview was granted in hopes the popular belief that the college in general (and Dr. Swain in particular) profits from the store might be dispelled if a short history of the store were run in the pages of the WEEKLY.

It's doubtful that many students even knew of the existence of a Student Loan Fund, much less that the store is tied up with the Fund. The story goes back to 1931.

In that year the late Dr. Henry R. Mueller, then head of the Social Science department, and Dr. Swain solicited contributions of about $250 from various faculty members with which they organized the Student Loan Fund. Its purpose has always been to help students with their college expenses, to tide them over until they are in a position to repay the money.

The college book store, which had been run by the Athletic Association up to that time, failed in the fateful year 1932. Dr. Mueller and Dr. Swain thereupon had the Student Loan Fund assume the store's $2000 in debts, and in January 1933 they began to operate the store on behalf of the Fund. Each year the books are audited and the store's profits go to the Loan Fund.

Several banks in Allentown set up time deposits with the funds first $500. They agreed to grant loans up to twice the amount of the Fund, the student borrowers to be approved by the Loan Fund Committee. The money is borrowed from the banks, not directly from the Fund. The Fund pays the interest on the loan while the student is in college, and the student then continues to pay the interest until the loan is repaid.

Now in its fourteenth year, the Loan Fund has an equity of about $29,000. Since 1933 loans totalling $18,200.51 have been made to students in dire need of cash, and not a single student has as yet defaulted in his payments, which is a record of which Muhlenberg can be proud.

The Muhlenberg book store, then, is the property of the Student Loan Fund. Until the war all the prices in the book store were kept below the usual market price. Text books sold for 10% less, for instance. Jewelry was the only item which sold at the regular retail price.

Today the utter confusion of GI student accounts, the slowness of the government in making payments, and the uncertainty of publishers filling orders has forced the store to adopt a more conservative policy. Items now sell at retail prices, but Dr. Swain hopes conditions will soon ease so the store can once again grant discounts.

Mr. George Palmer of Reading, member of the Board of Trustees, has been president of the Student Loan Fund Committee since its organization in 1931. Dr. Mueller was the treasurer until his death in May, 1937, and was succeeded by Prof. Luther Deck. The post of treasurer is now held by Dr. Victor Johnson.

Dr. Swain has been secretary of the Loan Fund Committee since 1931, and says "I guess you'd call me Manager and Treasurer of the store."

Aside from loans to students, the Fund has been used to purchase lamps and shades for the Library and to pay the expenses of student delegates to various national conventions.

Kenny Conrad, as permanent a campus fixture as the Ad Building tower, has been working behind the counter in the store since the fall of 1938. Dr. Swain was loud in his praise of Kenny as being "as dependable a worker as can be found anywhere."

MULE KICKS

Dear "Mule Kicks",

I have recently spent forty-nine minutes preparing my spring matriculation book. I consider it neat but I was rushing thru to get at tomorrow's assignments.

May I state that thru the medium of this column, my suggestions would eliminate this boredom of once every eighteen weeks—the matriculation book!

Using last semester's total number of students, I'd like to submit the following figures for the analysis of the college officials using my forty-nine minutes as an average:

Time used in preparation of 1200 matric. books 980 hours
 Time spent over a period of four yrs. (8 semesters) or 325 days 7840 hours

I realize that the information required is essential to the college administration but why the unnecessary repetition of schedules, dates, addresses (four cards require your home address on each side and a total of eleven times throughout the complete book excluding the college address which is required seven times!)

My suggestion—Require the student to file three sheets with the necessary information and center one each in the Dean's office, registrar's office, and president's office. This eliminates five separate files and the boring work of the various office clerks. Access to these files would be simple for Chaplain, Adviser, Personnel Consultant, Public Relations Office, and Alumni Office.

Respectfully,
 U. H.

Photos . . .

Registrar Paul Gebert has announced that new students at Muhlenberg will have identification pictures taken on Monday, March 3rd, at 2:30 in room 401 of the Science Building. This is for new students only. Those students who are not new to Muhlenberg, but have not had an identification picture taken, will be notified when to report for the taking of those pictures.

Wearing of coats and ties for these pictures is required.

Excuses . . .

Dean Sherwood W. Mercer wishes to remind all men who wish to be excused for absences due to illness that they must first report to Dr. Weaver in the Dispensary. After obtaining a slip from Dr. Weaver, the student should then go to the Office of the Dean to obtain his excuse.

All absences due to the heavy snowfall on Friday, February 21, have been automatically excused.

He Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

Our vote this week for the "Man About the Colleges" title goes to Ed Schlechter. He has, at various times, been a freshman at Lehigh, Lafayette, and Muhlenberg, and that's what we would call getting around . . . "Joltin'" George Bournias ought to get the word about the relative strength of a Ford as opposed to a street car. Said street car took the measure of his flivver to the score of one fender and a gas tank to nothing . . .

Fantastic happenings at a local pubbery recently saw a couple of our PALS, whose initials are Warren Fink and John Arnold give us a real going over with a cold shoulder. Apparently they thought your reporter was gonna louse up the act or something along that order 'cause we got the high sign to make like a mummy . . .

History majors all around the school are deciding between "Hark-Kari" and some slow Cyanide. With all those term papers due in, and a Senior thesis on tap within a matter of a couple of weeks, whew! wotta way to make a living . . .

Your reporter has been somewhat confused about the CIARLA (which is the 'Berg yearbook) due to hit the stands soon. It appears that the book due soon will cover the period from 1943 to 1946. Then the next edition out will be highlighting the 1948 era; yep we too wanna know what became of 1947. Some of the guys who have been hanging their shingles out here for many a moon but had to take time out to make with the war apparatus are gonna be S O L, (and that ain't Spanish for sun either) . . .

Have you noted John E. T. Rogers walking about the town with a mouth full of stones hollering into the wind? No he hasn't blown his top as yet, just readying for his "Hamlet" role for Mask and Dagger this spring . . . Complaints from the Phi Kappa Tau house that some members have no respect for privacy and that furnace tending should be done at more reasonable hours . . .

Louis Colombo hitting the high spots with a pretty Miss . . . Barbara Schantz wearing a small bell while in college store now, this should save her embarrassment and Harry Boretsky's blood pressure when she catches Harry "sans" trousers after store hours . . . Earl Repp isn't naturally cranky—just the strain of "Waiting For the Stork to Come In" . . .

Regarding the high flying criticism of the WEEKLY that's buzzing around the school, we have this to say. If more of the so-called critics would come to the WEEKLY office, and offer some of their services instead of chipping their teeth, we'd all be better off. This is directed especially to some of our instructors who take time off from classwork to blow off steam about the poor—oh so poor—school paper, but can't take time to navigate to the office and ask if they can be of some little service. Our humble thanks to Dr. Wood for his most gracious offer of assistance, and to the rest of the "GAS HOUSE GANG" (especially on the faculty—again) whew—open the window, Richard . . .

Big Sisto Averno met his match recently at a local hangout when a young lady entered and invited Sisto to "Rattle". And don't think that she couldn't make a go of it; rumors have it that she is playing tackle for Lafayette next season . . . "Red" Smith and Mrs. gave the Hawaii boys the once over while waiting for Mister Stork to make his rounds . . .

We had quite a conversation with Miss Gail Louise Graner recently at her home, "South Hall". What with her Daddy and a couple of Uncles here at 'Berg she's our nomination for Miss Muhlenberg. By the way, she's a cute six year older and we told her to kick "Uncle" Red in his sore foot, so there . . . Recent addition to the 'Berg family is Mrs. Bud Barker. At the ball game last week an usher asked the Mrs. if she was a coach's wife, unaware of her identity; when he received an affirmative answer he asked whether she was with the Hawaii team, ooooh me . . .

Big dope about the Mid-Atlantic Tourney coinciding with the Frosh-Soph Hop on March 14th will make a trip for the finals on the following evening a must for all basketball fans. It will bring back some memories of last fall when we make the trek to Delaware . . . Checked Mr. and Mrs. Bob Haldeman making with knife and fork recently. Bob was taking the vittles right in stride although he's gonna hit the cinders for the Mules once again after a long lay-off, thanks to Uncle Sambo . . .

Our view of the Student Body meeting yesterday wasn't so hot. Not enough students to make a dent in the auditorium. How come so many profs neglected to notify their classes that the changed schedule was due to the meeting? The meeting itself went in good shape with Hal Helfrich and Council on the ball. After session was over, the nominations were left open and one man made approximately 35 additions to the list of Senior Class nominees. By our constitution he was right, but the purpose of the move is escaping us. In our opinion, either the system stinks or the guy who packed the ballot, (for reasons unknown) is strictly H.S. What do you think? The Mule Kicks column is all yours and ought to be real fat next week . . . Jeanne Stephan moaning over husband's "Crew Cut"; proves the curly locks gets 'em—woe is me!!!

THE OTHER HALF

Funny as it may seem but perusing the paper the other night I noticed that Muhlenberg was not the only school in the country to hold classes last Friday. A few managed to make 8 o'clocks at Southern Cal . . . never snows in California. Thought of the week comes to us from the Drexel Triangle, "Men think that men are God's gift to women and I claim that they're someone else's gift from Hades" . . . Little women sound like the cookies over on the "Hill" . . . happens to the best of us, girls . . . The paper up at L.I.U. scored a big scoop this month and after an exclusive interview with Wellesley's Dean, came to this conclusion . . . "College girls drink too much—end of dry courses" . . . Guess they'd better move the school to Kansas . . . Why stop with the women, it doesn't take an interview to prove "Herbie's" not going broke . . . The ex GI up at Bucknell these days really has it made. The college has decided that the wives of Veterans attending the school can take one of the college's three hour courses free . . . I can see it now, Corp Finance flooded with wives learning to balance that ninety a month . . . The big drive up at Juniata these days is to buy a cow . . . no joke . . . and it is one of the finest ideas sponsored on campus this year . . . when the student body has enough money to buy the Heifer, a few more kids in Europe are going to have some milk to drink . . . HATS OFF TO JUNIATA . . . Way out in the corn fed lands of Nebraska it seemed pep was lagging on Hastings College Campus . . . may I mention the school is Coed . . . One freshman, when asked what to do for morale said: "More benches under more trees, Please" . . . Survey of the week took place at Hartwick College . . . in their paper they ran this question . . . "What makes a woman more Lovable . . . Her looks? . . . Her mind? . . . her liquor closet? . . ." You figure it out but in closing let me remind you in the words of Ogden Nash . . . on this campus or with the other half . . . Candy is Dandy but Liquor is quicker."

THE MUHLENBERG WEEKLY

KICKING UP CINDERS

by Herb Needleman.

The other day we were up in the lab trying to decide what made a certain lately deceased pussy cat tick, when one of the boys who was looking out of the window broke the academic silence with, "Hey—look at them damn fools running around in their pajamas!"

Don't laugh—some day you might have to wake the same guy up to deliver one of your offsprings.

Looking out the window, we saw Ernie Fellows putting some thirty-odd track aspirants through their paces on the macadam plat that bore fresh red blotches as evidence of Bull Ritter's influence on the campus.

We were a little bit surprised, in that except for a small notice that we ran a couple of issues ago, track had been the subject of as much talk as the scotch-hungry son in a teetotalling family.

The situation seems it be pretty prevalent in virtually all of the American colleges. With the athletic offices of the schools relying on the drawing sports of football and basketball to fill their coffers (and not being let down), most colleges were content to let the publicity angle on track and other sports take a quick header into the realm of obscurity.

After all, with an oil well in your back yard, why raise chickens for a living?

Yeah, it looks like the golden era of track is no longer with us. Sure, the running of the four minute mile, the Dodd-MacMitchell feud, and the hundred yard dash get a decent play from the dailies, but while any six year old can spell out the names of last year's all-American backfield, it takes a John Kiernan to let you know who holds the record for the 220 yard dash.

Plenty of people shrug off the sport with the idea that all you have to do to be a track great is put one foot in front of the other faster and for a longer period of time than the rest of the pack.

They're right.

And anybody can be a concert pianist—just push the right keys down at the right time. Move over Iturbi, I'm fronting this band.

For an example, take the mile run. A miler is waging a constant battle of wits with his opponents, setting his pace, getting his position, and weighing their reserve against what's left in his own go-tank. It takes plenty of the well-known intestinal fortitude to squeeze out that hundred yard kick when your lungs feel like you've swallowed a blow torch.

This year Ernie Fellows will be trying to take an encore on his 1943 performance, when his squad copped the Middle Atlantic championship. He may have one repeater from that year in Bob Haldeman, who also doubles as a tail-back come fall and football. Haldeman was a Grade-A sprinter in those days, and will try to prove that he's lost none of his stuff. The squad will also be bolstered by a healthy turnout of gridders, and should be plenty rough in competition this year.

Another indication of the general abundance of lead-bottomed scivvies on the campus was the poor turnout that Bill Ritter had for his intramural program. Only nine teams were registered at the recent meeting in the gym office, and of the nine, only A.T.O. and Phi Epsilon Pi represented the frats.

The deadline for entering a club has been set at tomorrow, Friday the 27th. Wednesday a meeting of all team managers was held to discuss the rules. In order for a team to be registered, eight names must be submitted.

Thinclads Preping For I.C. 4A Meet

The Mules 1947 track team will swing into early action, with five members of the squad anticipating service, at New York next Saturday afternoon in the annual indoor collegiate classic, the I.C. 4A.

Coach Ernie Fellows has some potentially fine material among the 45 candidates that reported for track last Monday a week ago. Great things are expected of Don Schaeffer and Bill Summer, both of whom were active on the 'Berg cross country team. They will compete in the IC 4A two mile event. Don Albert will be the Cardinal and Gray entry in the one mile run, while Bill Brown and Tex Williams, hurdlers, will round out the five-man squad chosen to represent Muhlenberg in this nationally famous event.

Eddie Sikorski and Julius Becton are promising sprint prospects. The boys are currently practicing in the West Hall gymnasium, and will continue there until the weather becomes more favorable.

The tentative schedule to date includes the following meets.

April 16—Gettysburg, Lehigh, Muhlenberg at Gettysburg.
April 25 & 26—Penn Relays.
April 29—Haverford—Home.
May 10—Bucknell, Drexel, Muhlenberg—Home.
May 17—Middle Atlantic Tournament at Rutgers.
May 21—Lafayette—Home.
May 24—Temple—Home.

Navy Sinks 'Berg, 69-57

The U. S. Naval Academy trounced the highly regarded Muhlenberg Mules at Dahlgren Hall last Saturday by the lopsided score of 69-57.

The Middies, led by Ken Shugart, put on an exhibition that warmed the heart of every "trade school" man in Forestal's Navy.

Muhlenberg, evidently sensing humiliation, endeavored to entertain the partisan crowd from the opening whistle. Defying convention, Al Saemmer started at center and just what the strategy was no one ever knew. Shugart started his scoring parade by flipping in a two pointer a few seconds later. Led by McGee and Baldwin, the Mules flashed the form of the team the Dunkel ratings think they are and forged into a 7-4 lead. Shugart and Robbins took over from this point as the Mules faded and spearheaded the Middies to a 35-20 half-time lead.

At one point shortly after the second quarter opened the Middies piled up a 24 point lead and the future ensigns relaxed a few minutes later with a 65-45 lead. The Mules spurred, McGee, Saemmer, and Donovan showing the way, and pulled up to within eight points of the Academy but Waldorp and Robbins widened the gap to 69-57 as the final gun sounded.

'Berg Faces St. Joe Saturday On Way To Garden Tournament

With three games remaining on their schedule for this season, the Muhlenberg Mules will play host to a strong St. Joe club Saturday night at Rockne Hall. This will be the last game of a successful season for the Philly boys. They have played a difficult schedule and have beaten some excellent teams. Out of twenty games this season so far they have won fifteen and lost five. Among the Hawks most noted victories were their 69-59 win over Rhode Island State, a 57-48 romp over St. John's of Brooklyn, and a 52-48 victory over Utah State. Among the other teams which have been bitten by the Hawks are Pennsylvania, Temple, Syracuse, Nevada and Hawaii. All of these victories have been against top basketball teams and although they did lose to La Salle, many consider them to be the best team in Philadelphia.

St. Joseph employs a blazing fast break and tries to run its opponents into submission by wearing them out. The Hawks can do this because they have two good teams and use the two team system, usually starting the second five. Norm Butz and Eddie O'Halloran are their two best ball players, the former being a fine pivot man and the latter a good guard. O'Halloran will probably be assigned to cover Harry Donovan. Ramsey and Dudek are the two best forwards that the Hawks have, and the O'Neill boys, Jim and Bob are a pair of guards, who see plenty of action. Jack Ramsey has been out for a few games but will be ready for this one. He is the Hawks' one-handed set shot artist.

Starting lineups:—Dudek, forward; Ramsey, forward; Butz, center; O'Halloran, guard; O'Neill, guard.

Athletic Board Meets, To Start Swimming Team

The athletic association has appointed Dean Benfer and Coach Schwartzwalder to make arrangements for a swimming team. Chairman Benfer has announced that arrangements have been completed with Mr. Feldman of the Jewish Community Center to use their facilities.

Dean Benfer, who will temporarily be in charge of the team, met with the candidates on Wednesday afternoon. Plans have been made to have team work on Tuesdays and Thursdays and general practice on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

This is in line with the general athletic policy of providing the sports which the boys want. Dean Benfer said, "The men asked for swimming. They have it now. It's now up to them to keep it."

Dean Benfer also announced that the committee had decided to try and arrange several meets this year. If possible, meets will be scheduled with Lehigh, Lafayette, Rutgers and the local Y.M.C.A.

Interview With Islanders

by Wally Stefany

Hawaii's tall quiet George Malama proffered a gleaming smile as his swarthy head appeared from under the green jersey he was wearing.

"Oh, you are from the Muhlenberg newspaper? You want to see us? Yes, I have found the people here good to us. They were better than in the other places we played. In New York they were not that way; they cheered us more here."

He smiled modestly at the opinion that the applause showed appreciation for a game well played. "Thank you," he returned.

A small wiry player, sitting on a bench near the lockers, was hurriedly removing a pair of limp sweat socks. He looked up momentarily to answer my question.

"Yes, we all play other sports. Over there is one of the fellows who plays on the football team. He plays right end."

The fellow who plays on the football team had just emerged from the showers. He stopped rubbing away the droplets that still covered his back, a broad back, and extended a friendly, powerful arm.

"How do you do," he answered with a firm handshake. "And my name is Harry Kahanui. U-A-N-U-I, that's right. Yes, we played football on the mainland last year. Several games. Keo Nakama? Sure, I know him." He appeared more satisfied when attention was diverted from him, and his eyes lit up at this discovery of a mutual acquaintance. "Keo doesn't swim for Ohio State anymore. He is back home and happily married now. He coached me in baseball when I was in high school."

The green clad cagers of Hawaii dropped a close, 77-64, decision to our Mules, at Rockne Hall on Monday night, in another free scoring battle.

The Rainbows sped off to an early, 13-8, lead in the first quarter. At this stage of the game 'Berg called time. With the resumption of play, the Mules steadied themselves and quickly swept past the Islanders. Their advantage was maintained throughout the remainder of the game, with a 37-31 half time score.

The second half was not too unlike the first, with 'Berg holding a lead ranging from six to twelve points throughout the last two frames. With just seconds left in the games, Harry Donovan ended the scoring for both sides with a long one-handed push shot.

For the third consecutive home game, Harry Donovan captured high scoring honors for the evening, with 29 points. In so doing he made his second highest total of the year. Antelope Dan Mackin, placed second among the Mule point makers with 14, while Al Saemmer chalked up 11 points to his credit.

Damien Rocha paced the visitors with 18 points, while Eddie Loui was making good 11 counters, with his beautiful one-handed jump shots.

Hawaii showed plenty of stuff, with probably, the fastest individual players that opposed the Mules all season. Their shortcomings seemed to be their lack of height and their failure to gain possession under their own backboard.

In the preliminary contest, Tex Rickert led the Jayvees to a 51-33, victory over Cetronia of the Class A league. Rickert's total of 20 points was his best of the season.

"Hamlet" Cast Complete For Spring Play

Final selections for the complete cast of the Mask and Dagger's spring production, Hamlet, were announced this week by W. Robert Oswald, president.

As reported in last week's issue of the WEEKLY, the roles of Hamlet, Claudius, Laertes, and Polonius have been assigned to John Rogers, Gerald Rogers, Louis Rossi, and Ed Deam respectively. This week's selections are those of Eunice Feight as Gertrude, Dorothy Campbell as Ophelia, Bill Wegener as Voltimand, Ernest Wallander as Marcellus, George Eichorn as Horatio, George Bannon as Bernardo, Ed Pickard as Cornelius, James Hammond as the Player King, William Kulp as the Player Villain, John Walters as Guildenstern, Robert Oswald as Rosencrantz, and Lou Wentz as Osric.

Mrs. Feight and Mrs. Campbell are both wives of veterans now attending Muhlenberg, the former having been seen in the College Little Theater last fall as Eustacia in Dover Road.

Also selected this week was the cast for a forthcoming production of a one-act mock-melodrama Curse You, Jack Dalton, by Wilbur Braun. The members of the cast are: Walter Diem, George Slack, James Bensinger, Charles Souders, William Kulp, Bill Wegener, and Harold Smith.

years of practice in his profession. The opinions he wrote as a member of the Superior Court and as its president judge are still recognized as among the best, not only from the standpoint of law but from the standpoint of his mastery of the English language.

His interest in the classics was also wide, and he took great delight in tripping up those few Muhlenberg students fortunate enough to make his acquaintance on their knowledge of Latin.

"Be kind" are the two most important words in a man's vocabulary," was a bit of advice he liked to give to those who sought his counsel.

In addition to his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1879, Muhlenberg awarded him a Master of Arts degree in 1882, and the honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1910.

Among those surviving is Arthur Trexler Schmidt, one of his grandsons and a Sophomore at Muhlenberg.

'Berg Debaters Face Gettysburg

The girls' debating team of Gettysburg College will meet the Muhlenberg orators, tomorrow evening, February 28, at 7 p.m., in the West Hall Auditorium.

Representing 'Berg on the argumentative front will be John P. Reumann, a veteran debater, and David Hoh, a freshman who will step to the podium for his first varsity debate.

The national question, "Should Labor Have A Direct Share in the Management of Industry", will again be under discussion. Muhlenberg will support the affirmative side of the question.

On Monday, February 24, John E. T. Rogers and Fred Brause upheld the affirmative side of the debate with Rutgers University on the subject of "Socialized Medicine". The debate, conducted in the Oregon style, was held on the Rutgers' campus at New Brunswick, N. J.

Dinner and entertainment was provided for the team at one of the local fraternities.

"Aloha" To Hawaiian Boys

"Did you and the boys enjoy your trip across the country? Were you treated well here?"

"Oh yes, we enjoyed it very much. We have been treated fine." But the latter answer seemed not to tell all. After a moment's pause he confided, "You see, we thought we might be greeted officially and perhaps be shown around your campus a bit. However, the spectators at the game were good, very friendly. But this is not only a basketball game; this is an educational tour as well," was his cogent remark.

The whole team was out of the showers now, and it was too crowded in the dressing room to stay. There were a few more handclaps, and then a chorus of parting thanks for the good luck wished them for Canisius and their other remaining games.

Perhaps they will visit the campus at Canisius.

Ed. note: When Ben Schwartzwalder, acting Director of Athletics was asked about the above situation, he answered that he had eaten with the Rainbow Squad, and "told them that they were welcome to come out to the school." However, it seems that there is a special organization on the campus, The Cardinal Key Society, whose express purpose is to act as official host for the school.

With all apologies, it appears that the Cardinal lost the key, or maybe he just didn't want to open the door.

SUMMER SESSION

Acting registrar, Paul Gebert, announced that students planning to attend the summer school session must notify him of their intentions by Friday, Feb. 28. Questionnaires regarding tentative schedules must be returned at this time.

Commons Committee

Commons administration through the committee who will meet from time to time with those in authority.

High on the agenda of proposals under consideration is a revision of the meal ticket system now in operation. Several plans have been presented and will be further developed tonight when the committee meets again in the West Hall Reception Room at 6:45 p.m. Upon crystallization of the new plan, it will be offered to the administration as a solution to this, a primary student concern.

Phi Sigma Iota

Charles Beuadelaire, French poet of the 19th century, was the subject of Richard Harrier's talk presented to the regular meeting of Phi Sigma Iota honorary romance language fraternity last Thursday evening in the recreation room of West Hall.

The date of the next meeting was set as March 20th, at the home of Mr. Lee Van Horn, 1624 Union Boulevard.

A. K. A.

James Reppert acted as moderator in a student discussion of the relative importance of faith and reason at the Alpha Kappa Alpha meeting last Thursday evening.

Mr. Robert Goesser will be the speaker at the next A. K. A. meeting on March 6, at 8:00 p.m., in the home of Dr. Stine at 2116 Allen Street. Mr. Goesser's topic will be announced at the meeting.

Phi Kappa Tau

A sweater dance was the big event at the Phi Kappa Tau house last Saturday night, as members and dates shuffled to music provided by famous recording artists. Minner and Gapsch were in charge of arrangements for the affair.

The Dean's List

Additions have been made to the Dean's List as released last week by the WEEKLY.

Those men who were also placed on the list are Richard Harrier and Carl Herzog.

'Berg Students In Who's Who

Under-Classmen Restore Old Tradition In Soph-Frosh Hop

Only a week and a day away is the renewal of another old Muhlenberg tradition when the sophomores and the freshmen present their gala evening at Castle Garden. For years prior to the war these two lower classes have collaborated in offering the student body one of the top-notch dances of the year.

This year, with Muhlenberg's largest student body ever, the "Soph-Frosh Hop" weekend promises to be the best in the long history of this tradition, for the festivities will continue the following night in Delaware as Muhlenberg's championship team makes its bid for Middle-Atlantic honors. It is expected that a large part of the student body will enjoy the dancing on Friday night and make the trip for the game Saturday.

The "Hop," an informal dance to take place from 9 till 12 on Friday, March 14, will be kept moving by the lively orchestrations of Chuck Gordon and his rising orchestra. Chuck's musical skill is the result of years of training and experience. Born in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, twenty-seven years ago, he organized his first orchestra while attending the Lancaster High School. He later studied in the School of Music at West Chester State Teachers College; and on graduating, he entered an advanced course of music at Temple, via the scholarship route. Meanwhile his orchestra was approaching its present high standards of music designed for dancing.

While Chuck himself is the top musical attraction, handling the trumpet especially well, but being able to play any instrument in the band in addition to preparing the arrangements, every member of the organization is well-suited for his job. The saxophone section, with a pair of trombones behind it, is particularly good. Dottie Malone and Ray Weber handle the vocals.

The invitation committee has announced that the chaperones for the occasion will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lough and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fellows. The entire administration and faculty will be guests at the dance. Alumni and friends may obtain tickets from Ed Sullivan, president of the sophomore class, for $1.50.

Latin America Offers Summer Center Classes

College students throughout America have been invited to attend the two Summer Centers of Mexico and Guatemala, sponsored by the University of Houston, President E. E. Oberholtzer of the University of Houston has announced.

The Mexico Center is now in its 4th year, while the Guatemala is in its 2nd year. The latter was the first such center ever opened in Guatemala by an American college. The Mexico group leaves Houston June 3 and returns August 20.

"Both centers feature courses in English of social, economic and cultural conditions of the respective countries, integrated with field trips to numerous places and institutions of cultural and historical significance within and outside of the capital cities", Dr. Joseph S. Werlin, Director, explained.

Students will leave Houston by train and bus for Mexico City. The Guatemala group flies from Mexico City to Guatemala City.

The courses offer standard college credit in sociology, history or Spanish, to students of all departments and divisions, on both undergraduate and graduate levels. Students may also attend on a non-credit basis, and the courses are open to non-students as well.

"Both centers offer students an excellent opportunity to obtain first-hand information about our neighbors south of the border, plus an opportunity to enjoy a vacation-like trip," Dr. Werlin said.

Approximate cost for the Mexico Center is $175.00 which includes all expenses from Houston and return, save tuition and meals in Mexico City. The Guatemala Center costs $300.00 for all expenses from Houston to Houston except tuition.

These centers are recognized by the Veteran's Administration, and veterans are exempt from tuition and receive their usual subsistence allowance. Enrollment is arranged through a letter of eligibility from the local Veteran's Administration of the student.

Race Relations To Be Discussed By Dr. Tarshish

"The Jew and the Christian in the New World" will be the topic of an address to be given Dr. Allan Tarshish in the Science Auditorium on Thursday evening, March 13. This program will mark the resumption of assembly programs for the new semester. Dean of Students Perry Kendig announced that there will be several programs offered to the students during the months of March, April, and May, among them being discussions by various educational leaders, E. Power Biggs, world-famous organist; the Bennington String Quartet, one of America's most distinguished string ensembles; the presentation of the play, "Hamlet", by the Mask and Dagger; and an outdoor concert by the Muhlenberg College Band.

Dr. Allan Tarshish, a leading authority on Christian-Jewish problems, will speak on the critical issues which are facing the world today. His discussion of current problems will be no doubt be of great interest to Muhlenberg students as he will give a frank analysis of an issue which any day may erupt into armed strife. Dr. Tarshish conducts a weekly radio program and is also a popular speaker, appearing in many Eastern cities.

Job Opportunities In Delaware Government . . .

Announcements have been received in the Personnel Consultation and Test Bureau concerning the merit system of personnel administration in the state of Delaware.

Employment opportunities in the Delaware State Government Service are described. Application must be filed by midnight, March 17, 1947.

Details can be secured by calling at Dr. Carl Boyer's office, Room 206-A, Administration Building.

Debaters Face Albright, Bucknell Orators Away

Two debates have been scheduled for this week by the Forensic Council. Both of the contests are to be away.

Tonight the Muhlenberg orators will oppose Albright at Reading, Pa. The affirmative side of the topic, Resolved that Labor Should Have a Direct Share in the Management or Industry, will be supported by 'Berg.

On Saturday evening, March 8, the debate will be against Bucknell. Again the national question is to be discussed.

Paul Gesregan, president of the Council, announced that plans are being made for a Debating Tournament. The Tournament will exclude all varsity debaters.

Pre-Meds Name Officers, Plan Semester Program

Herb Needleman, Sports Editor of the WEEKLY, was elected to the presidency of the Muhlenberg Pre-Medical Club at the first meeting of the club this semester held on Wednesday, February 26, in Room 305 of the Science Building.

Other officers elected, completing the first formal organization of the group since before the war, were: Robert Vetter, Vice-president; Vincent Newhart, secretary; Dave Hackett, treasurer. These men will serve out their terms of office this semester. Elections for next year's officers will be conducted in the Spring.

Dr. Clifford Trexler, graduate of Muhlenberg College in the Class of '22 and later of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, was the principal speaker of the evening. Dr. Trexler has been active in surgical work for over fifteen years and is now engaged in the surgical department of the Allentown General Hospital.

"Surgery, gentlemen, is the 'glamor child' of the medical profession," said Dr. Trexler, to the future doctors. "But it is not an easy job; sometimes it gets to be real labor. A surgeon must possess moral guts."

When asked to tell what he considered one of the most significant contributions of the war to medicine, Dr. Trexler listed the discovery and use of the wonder compound penicillin.

Mr. Johnke, representing the governmental agency charged with the inspection of foods, drugs and cosmetics, spoke to the men briefly of the need for qualified workers in this service. The requirements for the job are a college degree

College Lists Men For New Dormitories

All of the new temporary dormitories on the southern part of Muhlenberg's campus will be occupied by about March 15, according to a statement made by Mr. Edmund S. Keiter, Business Manager of the College.

Twelve apartments were taken over by married veterans and their families during the early part of last month, and twelve more are in the process of receiving occupants this week. By the time set by Mr. Keiter, thirty-six Muhlenberg men and their wives and children should be comfortably settled in their new homes.

When the dormitory project on the northeast end of the campus will be completed remains a mystery. Delays caused by the failure to obtain a suitable heating unit and a lack of federal funds have impeded progress considerably on these buildings. However, the College hopes to have them ready for occupancy in time for the summer term.

The following named men, selected by the Veterans Housing Committee, have been assigned units in the housing project: Harold Bell, Howard Graner, John R.

Copies Of New Ciarla Now Being Distributed

The first post-war Ciarla, yearbook of Muhlenberg College, made its debut on the campus this week. Published by the Class of 1947, the book tells the story of the war years, 1943-1946 on the campus.

Editor-in-chief for the undertaking was Jack Reumann, of Lansdale, Pa. Under his direction plans for the volume were formulated, and he is responsible for the general lay-out of the Ciarla.

Five associate editors took charge of specific sections of the publication. John W. Schwalm, '46, of Pine Grove, Pa., was in charge of the Faculty section. The chapter dealing with Training Units was handled by Foster Blair, '46, of Stroudsburg.

Paul E. Gesregan, from Ramsey, New Jersey, took care of the work dealing with fraternities and activities. Sports were supervised by Jack Yohe, a student from Allentown. Compilation of the Classes division was the responsibility of W. Robert Oswald, a native of Hazleton.

James W. Gross, an Allentown resident, was Business Manager of the entire undertaking and he also assumed personal supervision of distribution of the books.

Any student who is credited with five dollars in Ciarla fees from the period of July, 1943, to June, 1946, according to the records in the Business office, is eligible for the book. Copies will be mailed to students who have since been graduated or have entered the armed services.

Surplus copies will go on sale late this week in the telephone room of the Administration Building. Cost is five dollars. Jim Gross is in charge of this.

The new Ciarla represents a radical departure from its predecessors in design and form. The book has been reduced in size from its former unwieldy size. The book measures eight by ten inches, convenient for handling and library storage.

The lay-out makes use of alternating pages of pictures and text. The photographs are full page in each case, bled off the edge of the page, in the style of "Life" and other popular magazines.

The book is bound in gray bookcloth, a change from the traditional, artificial leather. In addition to a complete account of administration, faculty, classes, activities, and sports at Muhlenberg during the war years, the book includes a list of students entering during each accelerated semester and a report on the navy units trained on campus. The Ciarla is dedicated to the thirty-seven Muhlenberg men killed in service.

The final change made in the book was a change in publication dates. Yearbooks, from now on, are to be published in September of each year. This enables inclusion of spring sports, and graduation activities. This year's book was delayed until March, however, because much copy was lost in the mails and because of printing difficulties.

A staff is already at work compiling the next Ciarla. This volume will appear in September and will cover September till June of this school year. The editor is Earl Feight, and John Phillips is Business Manager.

Choose Title For 'M' Club Production

Preliminary work on the annual "M" Club show has begun and the committee is in the process of casting and reading scripts now.

"SHEEPSKIN DERBY" will be the title of this year's production and will be composed of variety acts.

Music for the show will be furnished by the "Four Mule Kicks" composed of Jim Gross, Tom Evans, Hugo Yanelli, and Nat Smith. Original music and lyrics will also be handled by this group.

The committee, composed of Mike Rogers, John Keefe, Bill Lybrand, Cy Davis, John Sweatlock, and George Bibighaus has announced that the previously tentative dates, May 15, 16, and 17 have been approved by the Dean and are definite.

Collaborating with the committee of "M" Club members is a group of students comprised of Bill Rizzo, Rodger Volpe, Gordon Daggy and Jim Kessock.

Participation in "SHEEPSKIN DERBY" is open to all Muhlenberg students and is not restricted to members of the club. A call for tryouts will be made in the next couple of weeks and anyone interested in taking an active part in the show, either in the cast or on the stage crew, should contact Mike Rogers, Chairman of the committee and director of this year's show.

Announce Date Of Oratory Contest

Three awards from the income of the Jeanie Kramer Krause Memorial Fund of $1,000 will be offered to three Juniors who shall have deemed best in an oratorical contest scheduled for Thursday evening, April 17, at 7 p.m. in the West Hall Auditorium.

These annual awards, established by the bequest of the late George Derr Krause of the Class of 1879, in memory of his first wife, are prizes for the best talks on the theme "The Influence of Music". The income is paid in the ratio of fifty percent for the first prize, thirty percent for the second prize and twenty percent for the third prize.

Members of the Junior Class who are interested in entering their names in the contest are asked to see either Dr. Harold K. Marks or Dr. John D. M. Brown.

NOTICE TO VETERANS

All students who entered school the semester beginning February 3, 1947 under either P.L. 16 or P.L. 346 contact the Training Officer in the Student Council room before March 8, 1947.

Weekly Staff

There will be a meeting of the WEEKLY staff on Friday, March 7th, at 11:00 a.m. in the Weekly office, 2nd Floor Administration Building.

All staff members will be required to attend, or give adequate reason why they cannot.

CAMPUS CAPERS

by Ed Pickard

"Where are the snows of yesteryear" . . . looking around the campus these days it sure isn't hard to tell . . . well, with the pavements duly shoveled we go on to the problem of the week . . . when will Rich get the door open . . . Up at Wagner College, after weeks of extensive research on the subject, they have discovered that the problem of Richard's closed door dates back a thousand years . . . "And so the cock crew, those who stood before the Tavern door shouted, 'Open then the door.'" from O. Khayam . . . many thanks to Wagner for helping to answer the problem of Richard's dilemma . . . From the West Point Pointer comes this question from the little men in gray . . . "Do you believe in Clubs for women? Yes, if kindness fails" . . . guess they'd better stick to the clubs . . . who ever knew a kind second John? . . . Big news from way out Nebraska way again . . . the girls at Hastings aren't satisfied that they now have more benches under more trees . . . they're holding a Home economics convention . . . Home economics is the study of how to stay married for the first three months . . . after that he's afraid to leave home . . . anyway much luck with the pancake convention . . . Kings College paper comes out with this statement about Coeds . . . "Coeds are very temperamental, 90% temper, 10% mental" . . . sounds embittered, must know a few of the inhabitants of our own "Hungry Hill" . . . Glancing through the paper of the University of New Hampshire I noticed a similarity to Muhlenberg . . . yes they go to chapel too . . . their dramatic society also bears the illustrious name of Mask and Dagger . . . they may, for all we know, even have a chapter of Flask and Stagger . . . The sports writers up at Gettysburg had some nice things to say about our hoopers . . . it seems when 'Berg played the Bullets up at G-burg, the G-burg fans thought, I quote . . . "Plank Hall should be dedicated to the boys from 'Berg" . . . their sports writers seemed to have a great deal of respect for good old Muhlenberg basketballers . . . Did you know skirts are getting shorter and neck lines are getting longer? . . . Well neither did I, but anyone wanting the straight dope on women's fashions just read the Albrightian . . . they seem to be getting the dope straight from Paris . . . Next week I shall discuss the new "Botany 500" with the one button roll . . . remember only two more weeks till the Ides of March.

IN PROFILE

Charlie Hollister

by Larry Tully

Before my interview with Mr. Hollister I was of the impression that the profs here at Muhlenberg had a somewhat gory past and would feel a little uneasy in the presence of a few feds or even the local gendarmes. This impression, I'm happy to say, went up in smoke, as Mr. Hollister casually told me that he never had his picture in any post office and would be glad to expose his past to the scrutinous eyes of the WEEKLY's readers.

MR. CHARLES HOLLISTER

Charles Hollister started the rough road to becoming an American Government prof at Muhlenberg by being born in the town of Bassett, Nebraska. His life during his grammar school days and while attending Rock County High was of the usual variety, although he did make a few references to some rough riding on his father's ranch. Nebraska State Teachers College followed, and upon graduating he treaded water for a while by teaching at Hastings High, which also happens to be in Nebraska.

This didn't last too long, as Mr. Hollister once more got the calling for more knowledge, and this time he decided to pursue it at the University of Arizona. There he better equipped himself for the job he was to undertake by getting his M.A., with "The Administration and Organization of the Sheriff's Office in Arizona" being the topic for his thesis. Before he left that wonderful climate for that case of pneumonia we all must catch here, he was pledged into several fraternities and got in some time teaching his favorite subject.

All this transpired before last semester when Mr. Hollister took his part in one of the perpetual threats in the lives of the Muhlenberg freshmen. 'Here he very quickly caught on to the Muhlenberg Manner of running things, for he is one of the few people with a reserved stool at Kenny's and a displayed autographed picture of him eating his favorite dish, tomato soup with milk in it.

As for the social activities of our Government prof off campus I am unable to officially comment, for he was rather tight-lipped about the whole thing. He has been seen about town, however, with a certain brunette from the nurses' home, and when questioned about his buying two tickets for the basketball games instead of just one, he replied, "Just try to go with out her". Well, I guess even profs have their troubles.

Just as the interview was closing, I thought I would get an answer to why a man who didn't have to worry about cuts would walk all the way out here on a day like the one of that grand blizzard we had. At first I thought that love for the school or for the particular class he had during his first period was the cause, but I found out he came here just to make sure the school was still standing. After all, Nebraska is a long way off.

Lose Something? Try The Library

by Bill Wegener

Do you suffer from nervous prostration at the thought of trying to assimilate some of the profound knowledge to be found in our well equipped Library; or are you one of those rare personages who walk around in a daze, having been caught in the blissful frenzy brought on by full realization of the profundity of Gibbon's Decline and Fall? Whether or not you fell with Rome, you have been leaving some of the necessities of life behind in the Library,—namely; two mechanical pencils, one hat, three and a half pair of gloves, and innumerable textbooks.

Apparently you have been overawed at the grandeur of our Library, and the efficiency of its staff. But you are missing the boat if you don't get acquainted with the very congenial ladies behind the desk. Miss Funk would surely surrender any of these lost items, for what would she want with a man's hat, or three and a half pair of gloves?

That odd glove really offers possibilities. If this institution were co-ed, some eager-beaver could walk about the campus with one hand gloved and the other kept warm in the hand of his beloved. But Muhlenberg isn't co-ed, and Cedar Crest is too far away to expect two young lovers to walk to classes together in this manner. It would be more practical if the claimant of the glove would carry his books in his gloved hand and keep his other hand in his pocket even though Emily Post frowns upon this practice. In this case, the First Lady of Etiquette would surely be considerate and make an exception. But the question arises why anyone would leave one glove in the Library. It looks expensive, is lined, and is in good condition. Did the loser get such a bad case of writer's cramp that the numbness of his hand would render the glove absolutely useless? Was the writer's cramp so severe that he couldn't even pick up to glove? Is there anything in the Library that would cause someone to leave the glove behind, or—aw heck! Someone was just absent-minded.

The Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

"M" Club show committee has been at work for the past ten days and just about has the thing all shaped up. The title of this year's "ops" is "Sheepskin Derby", (no relation to any "Derby" living or dead), and ought to be a whizzer (we hope) . . .

Today's the day for the big trip to the BEEG CITY. New York has usually given the Mules a nice time and a win tonight would set the 'Bergmen in solid with the so-called "smart boys," even though the Blackbirds are a home town outfit. Tonight would be a perfect spot to make the impression which might well lead to a "Garden Tourney" invite. Lotsa luck boys . . .

Mystery surrounds the office switch involving "Haps" and Dr. Horn. But that spot is "Haps" old hang-out and he most likely feels right at home there . . . Hot dope is that the swimming team will give the local boys some real competition. Fred Brause is the big wheel there and he says we ought to dig up some good material . . .

"Reds" Krimmel picked up last week's WEEKLY and spotted an oooold buddy on the front page. Seems like Chuck Gordon, the music maker for the Soph-Frosh Hop, is an old school teacher of Reds, down Jersey way . . .

Have you checked our new addition to the paper, or haven't you noticed the six pages? Giving it a little try-out to see how you guys take to it and what the comment is. We'd appreciate your letting us know what you think . . .

All our jokes re: Dave Lukens are hereby taken back, and cancelled. The "Underfed and Overslept" one turns up with an operation on tap by order of the local M.D.S. Good luck at your "opening" Skin, and make sure they don't take your "hootch" taster out . . .

New monicker for Harry Donovan is now "Spirit of '76". With all that bandage that Doc Weaver used on the guy he looks like he went through the battle. But we were an eye witness to the sewing and both Doc and Harry did a first rate job; orchids to the both of 'em, Doc for his needlework and Harry for his display of "guts" in coming back stronger than ever . . .

In case you didn't notice, the local "daily bladder" or Morning Call to you, had a chunk out of the WEEKLY sports page, word for word. Hmmm, looks like Herb and his boys are hitting the high spots now . . .

And speaking of Herb Needleman, the mail from a certain hospital in Philly is fast and furious. The gal is a nurse down that way and looks like Dr N. ought to have lotsa assistance . . .

Wanna take this opportunity to urge all hands to get out next Monday and Tuesday and vote. If everyone who had the right to vote, did so, there would be far less complaints regarding the way things are done in the various classes and Student Council . . .

Looked like old times with Oscar "The Red" in the pivot dropping those sharp shots like mad at the St. Jo game. He was suffering with a mean cold but that didn't hamper the old "Pelota Man" . . . Glad to see Cy Davis back aboard after a sojourn home. Our sympathy on the passing of his Grandmother, and again. "Glad to have you aboard" . . .

'Kids' Make Debut

Thirteen Muhlenberg swing enthusiasts, merging talents to form an organization called the "Kampus Kids", made their debut last night, March 5, in the newly renovated Temperance Ball Room at Ridge and Allen Streets.

The swing band had its birth in the second week of October, but at that time academic pressure on the members of the band forced them to postpone acceptance of engagements. A few weeks ago the opportunity of an offer presented itself, and the band decided to accept.

Leon Branton, a Freshman at 'Berg and an Allentown boy, heads the swingers. At present they are using four saxophones, featuring two very good tenor sax men in the persons of Harry Claus and Dick Shaw. Providing piano accompaniment is an able tickler of the ivories, Hilbert Gross. John Smith keeps the tempo on the drums.

Vets Notice

The Veterans' Administration is presently employing only a skeleton staff Saturday mornings in their offices at 1124 Turner Street. Those of you who desire to apply for Dental or Medical benefits, or any other service supplied by the Contact Section should plan to visit the offices during the week between 8:30 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. Your case will then be given prompt attention and the possibility of several return trips before you can present your case to a Contact Representative will be avoided.

Heading the sweet trumpet section are Tommy Evans, who will be remembered for his masterful job with the "Four Mule Kicks" and Leon Lock, while Jack McGuiken handles much of the solo artistry.

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

A check of the cards of the seniors to determine their choice of future occupation after leaving College shows the following rather interesting data: Twenty-nine occupations are listed with the number following indicating the students who intend to pursue that profession. Business—30, teaching—27, medicine—23, ministry—17, law—11, chemistry—10, no choice—7, journalism—5, dentistry—5, bacteriology—4, psychiatry, advertising, industrial relations, engineering and geologist—2 each, men's clothing, government service, sociology, C.P.A., mathematics, chiropractic, accounting, veterinary, medicine, mortician—1 each.

Numerous firms have already contacted the Placement Bureau relative to interviewing graduating seniors who will be available for positions in June. In a short time, the seniors will receive letters from this office asking them to indicate the type of position which they would like to secure upon graduation, and efforts will be made to arrange the necessary interviews. While the Bureau does not guarantee jobs for all men who complete their work, efforts will be made to place all men who desire to use the service offered.

OBITER DICTA Class Elections

by Dave Tyson

The WEEKLY's published list of Senior class nominees last week apparently came as a shock to the fellows who had attended the student body meeting on Wednesday. As published, the list was augmented by the addition of a large number of names for each office.

The action on the part of this WEEKLY staff member was admittedly not taken in as tactful a manner as it might have been, but the list was not "packed" in the usual obnoxious political sense of the word. Apologies are offered to those who felt the bounds of propriety were overstepped.

What actually happened was this: the names of the three or four men up for each separate office were nominated for all four offices. Only one name was added to the over-all list.

There are a number of reasons why this was done, the main one being this: as the nominations stood, only a few men were up for each office and were up for only one office. The men who were eliminated in the election for President, for instance, would have had no chance to be elected to any of the other three offices. This has usually been the case in the past, but because the practice is conventional is no reason for it being right or true to the best democratic traditions.

Take a fictitious character named Smith, who, we'll say, was placed on the ballot for President, but for no other office. Smith is a capable guy. A large segment of the Senior class feels that he'd make a good President. Election day rolls around and Smith loses. Smith is left out in the cold. His services are lost to the class. The majority may feel that he would make a much better Vice-President than Jones, who was elected to that post. But nothing can be done about it. Smith was not nominated for Vice-President.

It may be true in some cases that a fellow is qualified to serve in only one office and no other. Smith might make a good President, and a poor Vice-President, Secretary, or Treasurer. This is certainly true in public elections where for distance, a man may be qualified for the post of Mayor but not qualified to serve as Auditor. But in most Muhlenberg class selections in practical reality, this is not so. At any rate, the decision is best left up to the voters and in those Senior elections, their right to choose has not been tampered with in any way.

One objection raised to this idea is that it spreads the vote. This argument is valid when applied to the old Australian ballot in which you mark an "X" next to the name of only one candidate. The longer the list of candidates, the less chance any one of them has of obtaining a majority.

But this is not true of the preferential ballot. No candidate can win until he has a majority of the votes. Those candidates with the fewest votes on the first count are eliminated from the bottom up, with the voter's ballot going in turn to each of the candidates as the voter has them marked in preferential order. This process of elimination is followed until one of the candidates has a majority.

So a long list of candidates, rather than being an evil, is a benefit to the voter: it gives him a wider choice. If the candidate he marked first is eliminated, his vote is still good right down through the last man on the ballot. And the chances are, to get back to those two fictitious characters running for office, that the voter knows a lot of other fellows he would like to see in office rather than Jones if his first candidate, Smith, is eliminated.

Another objection raised to the idea is that it makes it easier for a campus clique to round up a sizeable bloc of votes and push a favorite candidate into office.

This is possible under any voting system, but even less so under the preferential system. The only answer to it is vigilance and interest on the part of the voters. The preferential system was adopted at Muhlenberg with the idea in mind of doing away with rule by campus cliques. The high caliber of student government in the years prior to the war is an indication of its success.

The way to get the most out of your vote, really make your vote go to work for you, is to mark every name on the ballot in order, because in counting the ballots once your preferences are exhausted your ballot is discarded. The only names not marked should be those of the candidates you do not know personally.

In the Senior election, as the nominations now stand, the best idea is to mark your favorite candidate number one for every office. If he's eliminated from the top offices, he still has that chance to be elected to one of the subordinate offices.

One problem that still has to be decided is which office a candidate assumes if he has a majority in more than one. Harold Helfrich, president of Student Council, says it's a problem whether the candidate (1) takes the office for which he received the largest majority of votes, or (2) takes the highest office to which he was elected.

Muhlenberg Favors Vets' Subsistence Increase

Best Instructor Title To Dr. Victor Johnson

We think it safe to say that the WEEKLY's first public opinion poll has been a success. Five hundred returns were handed in at the student body meeting on February 12th, which is a fairly representative segment of the college.

The difficulty in counting the returns is the reason for the delay in publishing the results.

None of the results are particularly shocking, though it is interesting to find out just exactly how Muhlenberg feels about important questions of the day.

The Bonus

Do you favor a bonus for veterans?

The first question, that of the bonus, is a political hot potato these days. Bills are now before sixteen state legislatures calling for a bonus for veterans, and there seems to be little doubt that all of them will be passed.

Muhlenberg swings right into this trend with 75.2% of the college voting Yes. All the campus groups were unanimous in their opinion, as indicated in the break-downs below, the Married Veterans giving it the greatest support.

AGE GROUPS
	17-20	21-24	25 or over	Total
Yes—(%)	69.5	77.0	82.9	75.2

Increased Subsistence

Do you favor raising the government subsistence allowance for veterans attending school?

Increased subsistence is a question a little closer to the hearts of most Muhlenberg men. And again Muhlenberg voted Yes, 81.8%.

The married veterans, apparently the boys who need the help the most, voted 93.5% in favor of it, which is the greatest unanimity shown on any of the questions asked.

On this question, as on all of them, political party alignments seem to make little difference. 38.8% of those answering claimed the Republican Party as their own; 22.2%, the Democratic Party; and 39.0% wrote themselves down for one of the other parties or as independent.

AGE GROUPS
	17-20	21-24	25 or over	Total

Military Training

Do you favor Universal Military Training?

Muhlenberg wasn't quite so sure of itself on this question, though it still voted Yes 62.4%.

The groups which voted against Military Training were the 17-to-20 Age Group and the Non-Vets. Both groups overlap to a large extent, and they represent the boys who would most likely get caught in the draft if the measure were adopted.

The Married veterans again showed the strongest support for the affirmative side.

Armed Force Unification

Do you favor unification of the armed forces?

Why the gray-haired students 25-and-over should vote so overwhelmingly in favor of Unification is hard to say, unless maturity comes with age.

Other campus groups were fairly uniform in their support for the measure, 65.1% of the student body voting Yes.

November Election

If over 21 in November 1946, did you vote in the election that month?

If the WEEKLY poll does any good at all, we hope it at least gets the student body thinking about affairs of the world.

That the student body is a pretty complacent group is borne out by the figure of 62.5% of those over 21 in November who said they did not vote in the election that month.

The Independent voters seem to be the most disinterested of all the groups. Not only have they hesitated to give their support to either of the major parties, but 73.4% of them failed to vote.

Presidential Election

Which of the political possibilities would you like to see elected President in 1948?

Tom Dewey, Governor of New York, and Republican Candidate in 1944, is Muhlenberg's choice for President in the next election.

Franklin D. Roosevelt's successor, Harry Truman, fared badly, even in his own party, most of the Democratic strength going to James Byrnes, recently-retired Secretary of State.

The vote for Harold Stassen, representative of the Republican progressives, was strong in all three political groups, which would seem to indicate that the Republicans would not do wrong to nominate him in 1948.

One name overlooked when the forms for the poll were mimeographed was that of Republican Governor Earl Warren of California. In the primary election last spring, he won the nominations in that state for both major parties for the post of governor.

This unusual feat made the political big-wigs sit up and take notice, and Warren's vote-getting ability has been cited as good reason for him to be nominated at the Republican convention in 1948.

He managed to draw four write-in votes on the Weekly poll, none of them from Republicans.

Dr. Victor Johnson, of Muhlenberg's Social Science department will have to be considered by both parties as a possible dark horse candidate.

Complete returns for this question, broken down according to political parties, are given below. The figures represent actual votes, not percentages. Votes for the three top men are then broken down according to age groups.

Faculty Member

Which Muhlenberg faculty member do you consider the best instructor from every standpoint?

The students gave the nod on this question to Dr. Victor Johnson, who won with a plurality of 44.

A graduate of Temple with a B.S. degree in 1931, Dr. Johnson took his M.A. at Penn in 1932 and his Ph.D. at Penn in 1939. He joined the Muhlenberg faculty in 1937 as a member of the Social Science Department.

As a specialist in the field of American History, he manages to draw most Muhlenberg students to his classes at least once during their college career.

The Freshmen seem to like Mr. Kenneth Webb of the Romance Language Department, a newcomer to the faculty.

Dr. John V. Shankweiler of the Biology Department, counsellor for Muhlenberg's pre-med students and coach of the tennis team, was placed in second position by 34 votes spread over all the classes.

	Frosh	Soph	Jr.	Sr.	Total
1. Johnson	2	15	11	16	44
2. Shankweiler	7	13	9	5	34
3. Koehler	10	2	2	3	27

6. Webb	12	1	0	0	13
7. Wilkinson	2	10	1	0	13
8. Nelson	6	7	0	0	13

Honor System

Do you favor the establishment of an Honor System at Muhlenberg?

Sixty-two percent of the student body voted "Yes" on the question of the advisability of introducing the honor system at Muhlenberg. The honor system question has long been a controversial issue at Muhlenberg, as it has been at other schools and colleges throughout the country. In spite of the fact that a higher percentage of the Freshmen voted "Don't Know" on this question, the greatest support for the honor system came from the Freshman and Senior classes.

	Freshmen	Soph.	Junior	Senior	Total
Yes—(%)	64.5	55.6	64.1	64.3	62.0
No—(%)	23.8	38.8	29.9	31.4	29.9
Don't know—(%)	11.7	5.6	6.0	4.3	8.1

Movie Actress

Who is your favorite movie actress?

Ingrid Bergman won this one hands down. From all the questions offering a wide selection such as this, the student body gave her the biggest vote. She even beat Tom Dewey by six votes, and the runner-up, June Allyson, showed a poor second.

Most of Lana Turner's support came from the Freshman class, which seems to indicate that the Frosh are still susceptible to the sweater girl type.

No break down was attempted on these next three questions, however, and only the top winners are given below. The votes not indicated were either considered as "Don't Know", or were so widely scattered as to be negligible.

1. Ingrid Bergman	29.6%
2. June Allyson	5.0%
3. Lana Turner	4.6%
4. Bette Davis	4.0%

Movie Actor

Who is your favorite movie actor?

Apparently Muhlenberg men identify themselves more with lean and casual Gary Cooper than with any other Hollywood star. As Clint Maroon in "Saratoga Trunk", he played opposite Ingrid Bergman, who seems to boost her co-stars into the limelight. Cary Grant, second place man, was her big hero in "Notorious", and Gregory Peck was psychoanalyzed by her in "Spellbound".

1. Gary Cooper	11.2%
2. Cary Grant	7.0%
3. Gregory Peck	4.2%
4. James Stewart	3.2%

Radio Program

What is your favorite radio program?

Bob "Pepsodent" Hope, and his fast ad-lib Tuesday night show, were voted into first place on this question by 13.0% of the student body.

Fred Waring, composer of "The Kick of the Muhlenberg Mule", who broadcasts his half-hour show at 11:00 a.m. every weekday, was given a 5% vote of appreciation by Muhlenberg's Chapel dodgers.

Jack Benny managed to edge out his arch-rival, Fred Allen, by 0.2%, in spite of the ranting of the satchel-mouthed Senator Claghorn.

RADIO PROGRAM

1. Bob Hope	13.0%
2. Fred Waring	5.0%
3. Jack Benny	4.2%
4. Fred Allen	4.0%
5. Supper Club	3.6%

Summary

Public opinion polls of this sort are often misinterpreted. The basic tenet of democracy holds that what the majority says shall be done. But entirely too many people are inclined to interpret this as meaning that what the majority says is Right.

Using the proposed Unification of the Armed Forces as a handy example—because 65.1% of Muhlenberg's students are for the measure, those opposed to it might feel a tendency to reverse their opinions.

Stick to your beliefs. Don't alter your opinions because you are in the minority. Change your views only in the light of cool reason.

Election News . . .

Chaplin Program On Movie Bill Friday

On Friday, March seventh, the movie program in the Art Gallery of the Library Building will consist of a series of Charlie Chaplin films revised from his very early days. These will include his version of "Carmen", "The Cure", "The Immigrant", "Laughing Gas", and "Hits of the Past".

Chaplin has set a standard for whimsical comedy which is part satire, part slapstick and which has aroused admiration throughout the world. There was a theatre in Paris which devoted itself, year in year out to 100 per cent Chaplin films. This English-born artist has just announced that he will make two pictures a year henceforth. These revivals of his old pictures will form an interesting comparison with the new productions.

There will be two showings; one at 7:00 p.m., the other at 9:00 p.m.

Council Will Cooperate In National Students Group

Full cooperation in the plans now being made for the forming of a new National Students Organization to represent in the broadest possible way the some two million students in the colleges and universities of the United States was voted on Monday night by the Muhlenberg Student Council.

Deutscher Verein Hears Talk About Education Systems

Bo Malmstrom, Swedish exchange student now at Muhlenberg, delivered an outline of the Swedish school system to about eighteen members of Der Deutsche Verein at its regular meeting of last Monday evening in the Recreation room of West Hall.

In Sweden, Mr. Malmstrom said, all children must attend four years of grammar school and four years of secondary school, beginning the former at the age of seven. After a pupil has finished secondary school, he may enter the gymnasium, which corresponds roughly to the period of up to the second year of an American college. A state psychological examination must be taken before entering the gymnasium, where he may study in either the humanities or science fields.

Tuition at the gymnasium amounts to about $30 a semester. Whether a pupil chooses the humanities or the science field, the study of several modern languages is compulsory. Considerable comment was evolved from the audience when Mr. Malmstrom disclosed that examinations at the gymnasium often take 6 or 7 hours. He concluded his talk with a brief picture of the Swedish university, where the Swedish student goes after leaving the gymnasium. A general discussion followed, during which questions were asked of Mr. Malmstrom.

Another feature of the Deutsche Verein's program last Monday were the farewell and inaugural address, made in German, which were given by Jack Reumann and Donald T. Miller, the retiring and newly-elected presidents, respectively.

The council approved a report presented by Franklin Sherman, who, together with Robert Albright, has been sent as a Muhlenberg delegate to a recent regional planning meeting held at St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia. Actually a continuation of a national student conference held at the University of Chicago during the Christmas vacation (to which Muhlenberg was unable to send any delegates), the St. Joseph's meeting drew representatives from about twenty eastern Pennsylvania schools.

The National Student Organization (NSO), Mr. Sherman reported, was conceived by the American delegates to a congress in Prague, Czechoslovakia, in August 1946, which set up the International Union of Students, an organization whose original impetus came from the strong sense of unity which European students in many countries fighting to overthrow fascism had felt.

Representatives of almost three hundred colleges and universities sent to the Chicago conference, agreed on the necessity of a permanent means of cooperation both among the individual campuses as such and among the various national student organizations presently functioning in this country. They voted to form a "NSO" founded on the common needs and desires of all American students, these needs and desires being the concern of the student for democracy, the perpetuation and strengthening of international friendships, understanding, and cultural exchange, and discussion and solution of their educational and economic problems.

After the business of the evening, coffee and cake were served to those present by the refreshment committee.

MULES IN BLACKBIRD'S NEST TONITE

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

This Middle Atlantic deal has caused plenty of talk around these parts, and we presume, at every other college involved.

The four schools that made the playoffs have as much business playing on the University of Delaware court as Molotov has speaking at a N.A.A. convention. With practically all of the schools centered around the Philly area, it seemed pretty obvious that the logical choice would be one of the available courts in this section.

We're pretty doubtful about the financial success of the whole affair, as it echoes a similar occurrence last fall, when two Northern football clubs played a post season game before an audience of 12,000 wooden benches in a Kentucky town.

The reason for LaSalle being named to the fourth spot is fairly obvious. The tournament committee wanted another first rate club in the playoffs to boost the tone of the contest, and give Muhlenberg a little competition.

Back in his native element, the pivot slot against St. Joe, Saturday, Red Baldwin made all of the fair weather fans eat crow by playing one of the smoothest games seen at Fourth and Chew this season. His slow, deliberate fakes under the boards were worth the price of admission alone, disregarding his handling of the ball, and masterful defensive play.

Watching Baldwin throw as many as three fakes on his guard, and finishing the act with a two-handed shot was like listening to a comedian build a story up to a climax, and then clinch it with the punch line.

That guy could make a fortune as a three-shell and pea hustler with a carnival.

If the lanky Kentuckian can repeat his performance tonight from the bucket and hold Dick Holub the way he has Marty Zippel and Hank Dudek, we may come back from the big city tonight with another mark on the black side of the book.

The New York fans are a bit confused. They don't know what team to boost for a Garden bid. With every club in the New York district boasting only mediocre records, Ned Irish and the Tournament Committee are having quite a problem in giving the nod to any hometown club. Undoubtedly N.Y.U. is the class of the big city, but seven defeats are pretty hard to overlook. Fordham got a swift kick from City which pretty well puts them out of the picture. L.I.U. looks like the logical contender, and their hopes hang on tonight's fracas.

We just received a letter from the Herald Tribune, concerning the East-West game and we're passing it on to you. Give us a hand, and get it in by Tuesday so we can make the Trib's deadline.

Last Saturday we were flattered no end, when the local sheet saw fit to reprint the prewrite of the St. Joe game, verbatim. Thanks for the compliment fellows.

Hoopla . . .

The Philly public high scoring record was smashed twice in three days this season, when Barry Love of Overbrook High dunked a cool 54 points in a game against Bok Vocational, only to have Stanzack of Roxborough score 55 two days later. What do they feed 'em down there?

HUSTLING 'BERG FIVE DOWNS ST. JOE, 66-47, IN BEST GAME OF YEAR

Bashing St. Joseph's giant killers with unexpected ease, the mauling Mules of Muhlenberg tucked the skids under the Philadelphians' post season tourney hopes, and enhanced their own by trouncing the Hawks Saturday night at Rockne Hall by a 66-47 margin.

Games with Long Island and Bucknell block the path to a fourth consecutive opportunity to prove that the Mules are one of the top teams in the East.

No less than nine Mules saw action and each performed in spectacular fashion. Dick McGee scorched the laces with his sensational long shots, Harry Donovan controlled the backboards, Al Saemmer covered the court with the speed of the antelope boy, Dan Mackin played the heads-up driving game of his career, and Eddie Donovan added more people to the "Ed's my boy" movement. Thiesen and Schwob set a blistering pace that wore the bigger, clumsier St. Joe boys out, and "Red" Baldwin performed in the manner that won him nationwide acclaim for the past two seasons. He had Dudek, high scoring St. Joe pivot man tied up in knots, and faked the same man out of his shoes with his deadly pivot shots while on the offensive.

From the opening whistle to the closing gun the Mules rolled with speed and precision seldom displayed this season. St. Joe kept in pace the first period which ended with the Mules holding a slim 14-13 advantage. Here it was that the Barkerboys went to work. Before the half ended the Mules, paced by Eddie Donovan and Red Baldwin, racked up 17 points, while St. Joe could only find the range for one field goal and two free throws. The half ended 33-17, Mules commanding.

From there on it was just a case of how bad Muhlenberg would hang it on the St. Joe collegiates. A bit of rough play under the Berg goal in the third period put a gash in Harry Donovan's head and while he retired for a two stitch sewing job his teammates revenged the deed by continuing the rout.

Wrestlers Finish Season; Prep For Middle Atlantics

Having closed their regular season with a 22-8 victory over the Lafayette Leopards at Easton a week ago Wednesday, Muhlenberg's varsity wrestling team has since been engaged in drills and workouts in preparation for the Middle Atlantic States Wrestling Conference championship matches to be held tomorrow and Saturday at Rutgers University. The season's record for the bone-twisters is five victories and four defeats.

The Muhlenberg team will leave tomorrow morning for New Brunswick, New Jersey, and return Saturday night. Teams the Cardinal and Gray will meet are: Rutgers, Gettysburg, Lafayette, Swarthmore, and Haverford.

Of these teams, Swarthmore, Lafayette, and Haverford have already been defeated by Muhlenberg in the regular season. The other teams which 'Berg defeated were Brooklyn Polytech and Temple. Gettysburg is the only Middle Atlantic tournament entry which scored a victory over the Mules, and that was by a slim two-point margin, in Rockne Hall, early last month. Rutgers, the host team for the tournament, has not met Muhlenberg this year. Muhlenberg is the defending champion, since it won the team championship in 1942 when the tournament was last held. Evans and Wessman are veterans of the 1942 championship squad.

Coach Carl Frankett's squad will be in top physical shape again for the first time since the Navy match on February 1, when several first position men were sidelined by injuries. Jerry Braverman, 155-pounder, has completely recovered from a shoulder separation. Steinbach, Wessman, Amelio, and Delp, other members of the squad who had been nursing slight injuries throughout parts of the year, are now mended and prepared for the championship tussle.

The first eight wrestlers who will compete tomorrow are: 121, Getz; 128, Amelio; 136, Gross; 145, Steinbach; 155, Braverman; 165, Delp; 175, Wessman; heavyweight, Evans. Also on the squad and available if needed will be: Moyer (121), Freedman (136), Egan (145), Finelli (165), Nestleroth (165), Townsend (heavy), and Ziegler (heavy).

The Mules got off to an inauspicious start for the 1947 season by being soundly thumped by Lehigh, 27-3. However, two days later, the Frankettmen met Swarthmore in their first league tilt and showed their mettle by pinning the Philly boys, 21-9. Muhlenberg continued to show championship possibilities in their next two encounters, when they walked Brooklyn Poly, 35-3 (losing only one bout), and drubbed Temple, 18-14. Here the three-match winning streak was abruptly halted by the powerhouse of Navy, which handed the Cardinal and Gray

Must Repeat Win Over L.I.U. Team To Gain Garden Bid

Tonight at Madison Square Garden, the pressure will be on and the feeling running high, when the resurgent Mules tangle with the towering Blackbirds of Long Island, in a struggle that might well produce a National Invitational Tournament bid for the victor.

'Berg boosters well remember the first contest between these great rivals, at Rockne Hall, on February the 5th. Barker's boys spilled their giant adversaries, 55-53, in a contest that took as much out of the spectators as it did the players.

Muhlenberg handed the Metropolitan boys their last reversal. With a chance for that Pot of Gold, the N.I.T., the Long Islanders should be tough. They will be playing before a partisan crowd, and will again hold the height advantage. Their success will be measured by the play of Dick Holub, huge pivot man and one of the greatest collegiate centers in the country. Only recently Long Island gained retribution when they smashed a strong Canisius team that had previously defeated them. Once again it was Holub who sparked the Long Island team. Another performer who starred against 'Berg, and must be considered a definite threat, is Jackie Goldsmith, one of the game's greatest set-shots. For the last time in his brilliant career, Hank Baletti, who led 'Berg's first tournament team will perform against the school he raised to basketball fame.

Viewing things from the Mule standpoint should not lead to pessimism. Only Navy has defeated Muhlenberg since mid-season. Last Saturday night, at Rockne Hall, all the latent power of a great basketball team broke loose. Old Oscar Baldwin shook out the moth balls, and turned in his top performance of the campaign. Baldwin's experience and great defensive ability will be indispensable to a victory over L.I.U. If the Mules perform as they did against the Hawks last Saturday night, then Muhlenberg may well be on its way to another National Invitation Tournament.

However, even if the Mules conquer Long Island tonight, they still must subdue a strong Bucknell team at Lewisburg on Saturday, to be listed among the tourney foes.

Following is a list of the twenty teams in their respective leagues:

ALL-STAR GAME BALLOT

Here's an invitation to any one that knows his basketball to take an active part in the choosing of an ALL-Star team to represent the East in the East-West basketball game to be played in the Madison Square Garden on March 29. The game is sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune for the benefit of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund for underprivileged children.

The Tribune is asking in-the-know students of 450 colleges across the East to aid them in the choice of ball players.

Fill out the ballot below, indicating your choice of the ten best ball players in the East, limiting yourself to one from 'Berg.

The entry must be in the box outside of the WEEKLY office by Tuesday for consideration.

Memories For Diamond Fans Of Old Timers

by Rodger M. Volpe

It's been a long time since the inspired Boston Braves of 1914 walked away with the National League pennant and a world's championship, but veteran players still insist that there was the luckiest ball club in history.

"I never saw such a gang of baseball misfits," John McGraw once remarked. "They were the dumbest looking ball club I ever saw, yet they ran off with the pennant—the lucky stiff."

Those Braves were a superstitious lot—and the most superstitious man was Manager George Stallings. Bits of paper or peanut shells, scattered about the ball park, were Stallings' chief hoodoo. Nothing, he believed, was a more potent omen of bad luck.

Opposing players knew Stallings' superstition, and nothing delighted them more than to tear up a scorecard and surreptitiously strew the fragments in front of the Braves' bench when Stallings wasn't looking. For a time, Stallings hired Oscar Dugey, ostensibly as a coach. But Oscar's real job was to keep the bench clear of all trash. Dugey still maintains that in his two years with the Braves he completely ruined his throwing arm shying stones at pigeons that flocked around the bench.

Stallings had another superstition that was ludicrous, but painful. If a batting rally started he wouldn't change the position he was accidentally caught in, until the rally was over. No matter how cramped and uncomfortable his position. Sometimes he would be caught looking at the stands. He'd hold the pose like a statue. Sometimes he would be stooped over and his back to the playing field. That didn't make any difference. He'd hold it.

When he was caught like this and couldn't see what was going on out on the field he would be miserable. Once he was caught crouched down in the corner of the dugout picking up a match. On that occasion the Braves batted all the way around. Stallings wouldn't move, and for fifteen minutes he suffered agony. At the finish his leg was so cramped that he had to be carried to the club house and given a massage before he could walk.

Thus—luck goes to bat.

A.T.O. . . .

Dinner in the Green Room of the Americus Hotel, and attendance at the Muhlenberg-St. Joseph's basketball game climaxed the first annual Father's day at Alpha Tau Omega last Saturday.

More than thirty fathers attended the affair, which was the initial attempt of its kind since the beginning of the war. Mr. Paul J. Gebert, registrar of Muhlenberg College, and James Hemstreet, past worthy master of the chapter, were the principal speakers.

Phi Eps . . .

On Tuesday, February 25, Phi Epsilon Pi held its first election since post war revival took place. Norman Cohen was elected Superior, Paul Steinberg was named Vice-Superior, Herb Garber was chosen Secretary-Treasurer and Irwin Kreindel was appointed Phi Eps historian.

Bob Roth and Marvin Dannenberg were initiated to the fraternity on March 4. Committees were appointed by the newly elected Superior and plans were formulated for a new pledge class.

Bids will be formally presented to the new pledge class at a party next week at the Whitehouse Inn.

Also on the agenda for the re-activated Phi Eps is a basketball team entered in the intra-mural league here on the campus.

International study centers throughout the world are being planned by the University, with prospects for a summer center in Paris in 1949 and later sessions in South Europe, North Africa, the U.S.S.R., and the Far East, with terms in the east and west alternating annually.

Further information may be obtained from Doctor Joseph S. Werlin at the University of Houston, Houston, Texas.

Library

Lest we lose the full significance of this chronic forgetfulness, let us consider the sundry other items left behind. The most prominent item is a profusion of textbooks, forgotten, ignored, despised, mutilated, or insulted otherwise. The librarian and staff wishes to inform the students that they don't appreciate bequests of textbooks because it carries an inference that they don't know their stuff. When it comes to mechanical pencils, we . . . we . . . I . . . you . . . oh, use your own imagination! I've exhausted mine. Suffice it to say that if you at any time lose anything, place the Library on your list of rounds in quest of it. If you find it in the Library, you'll be happy, and the librarians will be happy to get rid of this extraneous matter.

Phi Kappa Tau . . .

John Moore, newly elected president of the Eta chapter of Phi Kappa Tau, was installed into office on Tuesday, March 4, relieving Harold Helfrich.

In the elections held at the regular meeting of the chapter on Tuesday, February 25th David Hoffman was elected as Vice President. Ray Kauffman and John McKinney will assume the offices of Secretary and Treasurer respectively.

Richard Mueller was appointed Pledge Master; George Baker House Manager; Peter Horger, Rushing Chairman; Frank DeLong, Assistant Treasurer; Earl Feight, Chapter Editor; Ray Smith, Steward; and Morris Houch, Chaplain.

with a concentration in one or a combination of the natural sciences.

Two motions were favorably acted upon at the meeting: the first, calling for participation in a banquet reunion of all pre-med students in the Lehigh Valley; the second, setting forth plans for a trip to Philadelphia to visit one of the medical schools as a part of the educational program of the organization.

The next meeting of the group has been set for Wednesday evening, March 12, in the Science Building, at 7:45 p.m.

Dr. Murray Iobst, a Muhlenberg graduate and a prominent veterinarian, will be guest speaker at this meeting. Pre-veterinary students and pre-dental students, even though not affiliated with the organization, are invited to attend this meeting of special interest to them.

their only shutout of the year, 34-0. Still suffering from the effects of injuries received at Navy, the home-townners lost a heart-breaker to Gettysburg, 16-14, in their last home appearance of the season. The following week saw Muhlenberg lose their third match in a row and their last of the year, as they fell before Franklin and Marshall's power, 33-3. Haverford was the victim of a surge of vengeance for previous defeats, and succumbed to 'Berg by the score of 19-13. Then came the friends from Easton, 22-8.

In league matches during the season, Muhlenberg won 8 bouts by falls and 12 bouts by decision, while losing 5 by falls and 7 by decisions. Muhlenberg ran up 76 points against 46 for the opposition.

Evans, Amelio, Wessman, Getz, Steinbach, and Delp all have personal records of .500 or better.

Dr. Tarshish Speaks On Race Relations Tonight

Dr. Allan Tarshish will discuss the vital topic, "The Jew and the Christian in the New World", this evening in the Science Auditorium. The speaker, a noted authority on this subject, has long been sought after by the college and his appearance on the campus will no doubt be greeted by a great deal of enthusiasm on the part of the student body. The address tonight is in line with Dean Perry Kendig's policy of presenting qualified speakers who speak on matters of great interest to all. In view of the current strife in Palestine, the talk tonight on "The Jew and the Christian in the New World" should hold special interest for Muhlenberg students.

Dr. Tarshish will present his viewpoints on relations between the Jew and the Christian in this country. His frank discussions of this ticklish question have been featured in many Eastern cities.

Dr. Allan Tarshish conducts a weekly radio program over the local station in Hazleton and he also is a frequent speaker on the weekly program, "Message of Israel", broadcast over a national network. A noted leader in Jewish affairs, Dr. Tarshish now presides at the synagogue in Hazleton. He is also a member of the Anthracite Reciprocal Trade Commission and a board member of the YMHA.

Dr. Tarshish's appearance on the Muhlenberg campus tonight is the result of negotiations by the administration over a period of eighteen months. However, Dean Kendig stated this week that he feels the appearance of this splendid speaker was well worth the effort. Many campus groups have signified their intentions to attend the program this evening as a token of Muhlenberg's concern with the vital problem of inter-racial relations confronting the world today.

Next Thursday, Prof. Shaloo, noted sociologist, of the University of Pennsylvania Wharton School of Finance, will be presented in the weekly assembly program. Dr. Shaloo will also present his viewpoints on a matter of current affairs.

Discussion Group On Peace Started

Dr. Victor Johnson of the History Department will lead a student group in a study and discussion of the United Nations, it was announced today. This group will be one of the several "interest groups" now meeting under the auspices of the Christian Association.

The group will meet together six times during March and April. As a guide, they will use a discussion outline book, Power for Peace, by Dr. O. Frederick Nolde of the Lutheran Seminary in Philadelphia.

The introduction to this series will be presented as the program of the regular monthly M.C.A. meeting next Wednesday, March 19. Dale Johnson, chairman of (Continued on Page Four)

'M' Club Members To Meet On Friday

There will be a meeting of the members of the Varsity "M" Club tomorrow, Friday, March 14, at 11 o'clock in the Science Hall Auditorium.

All members are requested to be present inasmuch as work on the annual Varsity "M" Club show is beginning to get underway and the business of the show must be discussed.

Men who earned their letter this past season in football, basketball, soccer, and wrestling are requested to be present even if they haven't already received their awards.

An exhibition of photographs by Matthew B. Brady, 19th century master of the daguerreotype and collodion processes, the French photographer Eugene Atget, and the contemporary Walker Evans will open March seventeenth in the Art Gallery of Muhlenberg College. These photographs are circulated under the auspices of the Museum of Modern Art.

Matthew B. Brady was the son of Irish immigrants. Born in Warren County, New York, in 1823, he received no formal education. At the age of sixteen he met the artist-inventor Samuel F. B. Morse from whom he learned of the new process—daguerreotypy. In 1847 he set up a studio in Washington and eventually most of the influential men and women of the period came to have their portraits made. In the 1850's he began to work with the collodion process, and the photographs in this show are made of this method.

Although Brady is famous for his portraits of President Lincoln, Generals Lee and Custer, Walt Whitman, William Seward, Horace Greeley, and others of his contemporaries shown in this exhibition, of equal historical interest is his unique record of the Civil War. When the War broke out he left his fashionable portrait business and, with a buggy made into a traveling darkroom, he and a staff of photographers traveled to the battlefields. They worked often under direct fire with the awkward collodion process too slow for actual action shots; plates had to be sensitized, exposed and developed while still wet. Under such conditions, it is all the more remarkable that Brady's photographs of the Civil War, which are a rare and most valuable historical heritage, are also outstanding examples of the photographer's art.

The special contact prints in the Museum's Collection are made from original collection negatives in the U.S. Signal Corps files of The National Archives, Washington, D. C.

Eugene Atget photographed Paris for thirty years with a singleness of purpose rarely excelled. He made his incredible monument to a city in spite of poverty, lack of recognition, and cumbersome equipment. When he died in 1927 he left approximately 2000 glass plates and almost 10,000 prints—one of the most extraordinary achievements of photography. Yet his work was almost unknown and (Continued on Page Four)

Student-Faculty Group Meets Monday Night

Opinions, complaints, and suggestions from any student or any group of students concerning any matter whatsoever related to campus life will be welcomed by the Student-Faculty Relations committee when it meets for the second time next Monday night, President Harold Helfrich emphasized at the Student Council meeting this week.

The committee was established to provide a sounding board for student opinion and a direct channel for student action. It will continue to meet only so long as need for it is expressed and demonstrated on the part of the students. While the meetings are open to anyone who has legitimate business to present, they are strictly confidential, inasmuch as proceedings will be made public only at the explicit direction of the group.

Included on the committee are nine faculty members and administrative officers and the total membership of the newly enlarged Student Council. Co-chairmen are Student Council President Harold Helfrich and Dean of Students Perry F. Kendig. The committee will meet in Room 110, Ad. Bldg., at 7:30 p.m.

Horn, Hale, John Rogers, Duffy Life Officers; Haring, Doberstein Win; Sophomore Election Invalid

Maurice Horn, last semester's Secretary of the Senior Class, was elevated to the post of Senior President as a result of Monday's election.

Bob Hale was named Vice-President, John E. T. Rogers Secretary, and Jim Duffy Treasurer in the close preferential balloting.

A Muhlenberg student of pre-war days and now living in South Hall with his wife and child, Horn managed to beat out Bob Hale by one vote on the final count. Horn had 28 votes, Hale 27, and 23 votes had been exhausted by the final count.

In the final count of the Vice-Presidential ballots, Hale had 32 votes, John E. T. Rogers 24, and 22 votes were exhausted.

For Secretary, John E. T. Rogers had 30, Art Long 20, and 28 were exhausted.

And for Treasurer, Duffy had 29, Jim Wilder 20, and 29 votes were exhausted.

Of a Senior class of 93, the number turning out to vote was 78, which is an unexpectedly large proportion considering the complacency shown up to now.

The large number of exhausted ballots on the last count is attributed to the fact that such a large number of those voting do not understand the preferential ballot. Those declared exhausted had marked only a few candidates on the ballot, and when their choices were eliminated in the counting, the ballots had to be discarded.

The Freshman Class, also electing their officers on Monday, elevated Walter Doberstein, last semester's Vice-President, to the Presidency.

Five Shamrocks To Star During Soph-Frosh Hop

Entertainment by the Five Shamrocks, a new edition of the Mule Kicks reorganized around the St. Patrick's Day theme, will keep the Soph-Frosh Hop going at top pace during intermission tomorrow night.

The "Irishmen"—Jim Gross, piano; Leon Loch, trumpet; Hugo Yanelli, electric guitar; Nate Smith, string bass; and Al Berger, drums—have several novelty numbers lined up for their jam session.

In keeping with the St. Patrick's Day theme, the decorations and programs will feature the shamrock motif.

All alumni and friends may purchase tickets for $1.50 from Ed Sullivan, Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity House, or from Herb Gernert, 522 North 24th Street. Admission for students and their dates is by admission-to-class card.

The time is tomorrow night, Friday, March 14 from 9:00-12:00; the place, Castle Gardens; and the music, Chuck Gordon and his orchestra. It's informal.

Phi Alpha Theta To Hear Robert Boyer

Tonight at 7:30, Phi Alpha Theta will meet to hear a talk on atomic energy by Mr. Robert Boyer of the Physics Department. The attendance will be augmented by the presence of the fraternity's new members, among whom is Gene Ruppert, who was initiated this afternoon.

The subject of the talk is quite a departure from the normal for the historians, because few of them have studied much science.

However, the purpose of the scientific topic is to acquaint the members with this subject so that they will be able to discuss the effect of atomic energy on national security at a meeting of the Foreign Policy Committee in Philadelphia this Saturday. The members of the fraternity are planning to attend this meeting to hear a talk on this subject by the Secretary of the Navy, James Forrestal.

Veterans Administration regulations require periodic supervision reports to be accomplished on each veteran in training. P.L.—16 trainees must report to the training officer once each month, and P.L.—346 trainees must report once every three months.

In order to comply with this regulation and to avoid as much confusion as possible, the following schedule has been arranged. The groups are listed alphabetically.

A to G inclusive report during March, 1947.

H to O inclusive report during April, 1947.

P to Z inclusive report during May, 1947.

(P.L.—346 trainees are non-disabled veterans in training under the G.I. Bill.)

The Veterans' Administration office, on the Campus, is located in the Student Council room, and is open every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 10 p.m.

Commons Committee Proposes Five Day Week To Trustees

A detailed plan which would change the present meal ticket purchase system now in effect in the College Commons has been drawn up by the recently formed Commons Committee and is now in the hands of the Chairman of the Student Health and Refectory Committee, Mr. J. Wilmer Fisher of Reading, Pa., for approval.

WSSF Drive Report Totals Almost $1200

Final reports on contributions to the World Student Service Fund have been submitted by Dr. Morris S. Greth, Treasurer for the Fund.

The report, which is made as of February 24, 1947, states the total sum received from all contributions as $1149.00. An itemized list of contributions is as follows:

Student Council	$ 100.00
M. C. A.	50.00
Phi Kappa Tau	60.00
Alpha Tau Omega	142.00
Students—
(Campus and Town)	446.15
Faculty and Staff	175.50

All Freshmen Eligible For Forensic Cup

Under the direction of Ernest J. Hoh, assistant manager of debating, the annual Freshman Debating Tournament is being revived on the Muhlenberg Campus. The Tournament will extend from March 24, when the preliminary meeting will be held to May 5, when the final round is scheduled to take place. The purpose of this contest is to discover and develop new material for varsity debating, however, individuals entering are under no obligations.

ERNEST J. HOH

All freshmen are eligible to enter this war of words.

Teams, composed of 2 men each, will be made up on the evening of March 24, when the participants will meet with the assistant manager in West Hall auditorium. All fraternities and clubs on the campus have been asked to cooperate by encouraging debating among their groups.

Members of the faculty have been asked to judge the contests. Dr. Brown, head of the English Department and Dr. Swain, head of the History Department, will select the winners of the Forensic Council Trophy.

The silver cup has been in existence since 1933 when it was won by the Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity. In 1942 the Tournament was discontinued and during the war there was no intramural debating.

The topic to be discussed will be Resolved: That the Federal Government should provide free medical care for all its citizens. In order to prepare for this verbal battle students will find the library staff willing to assist them in locating source material.

E. Philip Bollier, debating coach, will act as a critic judge during the entire tournament. He will also serve as an adviser to the participants.

In separate meetings with the Dietician, Miss Hannah Clayton, and President Levering Tyson the plan was fully discussed pro and con in a test for feasibility and practicability. Despite the fact that no objections have been offered so far the final approval rests in the hands of the overall Board Committee.

The context of the proposal now awaiting endorsement is as follows:

"Beginning April 1, or at such time when exactly one-half of the semester's bill has been used up, it is suggested that the present seven day meal ticket be converted, by announcement simply to a five day week card. The student's bill in the Treasurer's office should then be set at $100 plus the cost of the five day plan for one-half semester. The latter cost should equal the sum of the existing five breakfast, five lunch, five dinner plan for one-half semester.

"At this time also it suggested that a week-end pass be made available in the Commons either on Thursday or Friday. The purchase of this pass would involve only the signing of the purchaser's name and subsequent billing in the Treasurer's office. There will, however, be no rebate if the student fails to eat all of the six week-end meals.

"In this manner the Dietician can calculate the number to expect over the week-end, and the student will not be assessed for meals he has not consumed."

For this plan to go in effect the Refectory Committee must hold a special meeting not ordinarily scheduled. That, coupled with the fact that the plan has been offered in the middle of the semester, was judged by Dr. Tyson not to augment the chances for success.

Six other suggestions were listed in the Report made by the Committee, all of which dealt with internal affairs not needing higher approval.

The line will be permitted to form on the inside of the building during especially inclement days. The extension of the breakfast hour to 8:00 a.m. was deemed impossible unless more help could be hired for that particular time. The sugar situation will improve if the expected increase in allowance comes through. Silverware has been on order since the beginning of last semester, but as yet delivery has not been made.

The members of the Commons Committee in addition to the Co-Chairman, Robert Hale and Ralph Bagger, are Donald Stoughton, Franklin Sherman, and David Hoh.

The Committee will continue meetings at regular intervals throughout the semester. All men with suggestions for better operation of the Commons are asked to submit them to one of the committee members.

Library Cooperates In Thesis Writing

Seniors, in the process of writing their Senior Theses, have been requested to register their names and topic of Thesis with Miss Mary Funk in the library.

Miss Funk is the reference librarian, and will be better able to assist the student seeking material if she has the names and topics. Books which come into the library after a student has checked for material, certain pamphlets, and material in books which is not located in the card catalog will be made available to the student thru this process.

OBITER DICTA . . .

Ingrid Bergman

by Dave Tyson

When you make the statement these days that Ingrid Bergman is your favorite movie actress, you're liable to be howled down as repeating something that goes without saying. It's the conventional thing to do . . . why mention it?

There was no doubt whatsoever who was the favorite actress on this campus when the staff of the WEEKLY began counting the ballots for the student opinion poll. Bergman even hauled down six more votes than the politically attractive Tom Dewey. The Republicans could probably run her for President in 1948 and win, if it weren't for the fact that she was born in Stockholm, Sweden, and is now only 30 years old. (The President must be born in the U. S. A. and be 35 or over; also, a citizen of the U. S. A.)

Ingrid Bergman was started on her acting career at the Stockholm Lyceum for Flicker. She is weary of telling interviewers today that "Flicker" is the Swedish word for Girls, not slang for Movies.

Her first two years of professional work were on the stage, and these were followed by four years in motion pictures. The Swedish film, Intermezzo, in which she starred, caught the eye of David O. Selznick, who brought her to Hollywood for an American version of the picture. It was released in 1940, with the late Leslie Howard playing the male lead.

She is married to a former Swedish dentist, who is now a surgeon on the staff of a San Francisco hospital. David O. Selznick frowns on any publicity about Bergman's daughter, nine-year-old Pia, apparently figuring that the ardor of Ingrid's fans would be cooled by the knowledge that she is a mother.

Ingrid Bergman is taller than average, standing 5 feet, 8 inches. She has light brown hair, deep blue eyes, and an athletic build. Like a busman on a holiday, her hobby is taking motion pictures of her friends.

She and her husband remain somewhat aloof from the fast social life of Hollywood, but this detracts nothing from her popularity. She never wears dark glasses to hide her identity, and would rather walk in public than take a taxi. She often stands in a box-office line unnoticed waiting to see one of her own pictures.

A year ago she might have gone to almost any theater in any town to see herself in one of three different character roles in films being shown at the time. She was playing the part of a serene nun in "The Bells of St. Mary's," a gay Creole in "Saratoga Trunk," and a studious psychoanalyst in "Spellbound."

Feeling that she might go stale in Hollywood, Ingrid Bergman came East to Broadway this season to take the lead in Maxwell Anderson's Joan of Lorraine. She believes acting on the stage keeps her in training for her work before the camera. She wants to remain in motion pictures for the rest of her life, stating that there are a number of wonderful roles for elderly women to play.

IN PROFILE—

Dr. Edward Horn

Time was when the Japanese homeland meant something more than an atomic bomb testing laboratory. That time was recalled vividly and willingly by Dr. Edward T. Horn of the Department of Religion, who spent 30 memorable years in missionary work in Japan.

Having no knowledge of the Japanese language when he first arrived in Japan in 1912, Dr. Horn endured a period of "enforced silence" which was, at that time, considered a good thing for all newcomers. Present day requirements include a knowledge of the language. Dr. Horn acquired a speaking and writing knowledge of Japanese in Kumamoto where he taught in a boys' school during his first eleven years in the country.

DR. EDWARD T. HORN

There was no hostile feeling toward Christianity or missionary work by 1912 for Japan had already, since 1868, been opened to the western world. But Dr. Horn observed that the mere absence of enmity alone was not all that was admirable in the Japanese. Racial intolerance was non-existent. The Japanese children played uncriminally with the children of the American missionaries.

When the disastrous earthquake of 1923 upheaved Tokyo, Dr. Horn was fortunately a hundred miles north of that city, but even at that distance the tremors could be felt and the water in pails and troughs could be seen swishing back and forth in small waves. As soon as

Out Of The Files . . . 25 YEARS AGO

In this initial column, which I have been asked to undertake, I wish to explain it will be my purpose each week to present an account of some of the events and personalities prominent on the campus twenty-five years ago; always within reasonable proximity of the published date of the present WEEKLY.

As you read this column, it is hoped that the memories and traditions of this institution, which, no doubt, have become somewhat tenuous and blurred by the turbulent intervening years, will be renewed and given fresh substance.

Tuesday, March 14, 1922.

Some of the most prominent headlines, as I glance at this issue, are those concerned with the victory of the Muhlenberg basketball team over Lafayette at the Y.M.C.A. After a rather strenuous and hard-fought game, the Cardinal and Grey team won by a score of 29-27.

In another column I read that the success of the team was due to the efforts of coach Roy Geary, who in less than a week's time produced a well-organized team capable of capturing the season's first victory by a 29-24 triumph over Ursinus. Close on the heels of the Ursinus victory was a series of defeats encountered at the hands of City College of New York, Crescent A. C., and Gettysburg; however, these losses were soon avenged by victories over Temple, Bucknell, Swarthmore, Moravian, and Haverford, in addition to Lafayette.

Another athletic event of consequence was the victory of the Freshman over the Sophomores in two matches by a score of 49-10 and 42-23.

The Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

We spent the past week-end in what is often referred to as the poor man's "Shangri-La", or sometimes just plain New Jersey. Saw Nelse Graham, and the ex-Berg star is now teaching school in West Harlem while earning his master's at Columbia . . . Checked Bill Palmer and his new Mrs. at the Garden last week. Looks as if married life is doing well by both Bill and the Frau . . .

Candy market cornered by Carm Sbordone; wotta life. He gets the stuff, (candy that is) from all the hometown gals and then he makes like Casanova here in the local bivouac . . .

Mid-Atlantic Tourney opens tonight and there ought to be a goodly number of Mule fans on hand. Regardless of recent showings, and personal feelings, I'm of the opinion that the boys are out to cop the title and will turn the steam on tonight. Win, lose or draw, the boys have done a 4.0 job as far as we're concerned, and deserve the backing. GOOD LUCK!!!

You can spot that gleam in Rodg Volpe's lamps soon as he hits campus. Yep, that little woman at home has him in a loop, and we can't say that we blame him. She's really a sweetheart and don't think he doesn't know it. Rodg says he's the boss tho, he's got her right where SHE wants him . . .

Lotsa flu, gripe, and colds kept much of the local action at a standstill over the recent week-end. The Frosh-Soph Hop on tap for tomorrow night should roust the gang outta hibernation. Promises to be a gala night with good music and fun for all. Hope to see you on tap.

Mrs. Arlene Knoll has been among the missing recently, having to play nurse to her ailing son. Hope the Big Boy is 100% real soon . . . Looks like the hottest outfits on campus are in that "I-M" basketball league. The games are real honeys with plenty of action and no sparing of horses. The blow-offs occur at West Hall gym an ought to jump down there and cteck the boys . . .

Recent cover of "LIFE" magazine had a photo of a Renaissance man. We thought the guy looked an awful lot like Hank Moyer and so did several others here in the office. What's the scoop, Hank, are you really posing for "LIFE" now, or is it some guy taking advantage of your good looks???

Now that the elections are all over and the peoples "cherches" are holding sway, how about some real good cooperation from all hands and make this last few weeks of the term a success in every aspect. I'm sure the guys who copped the votes will do their parts if we can get the rest of the crew on the ball . . .

The Student Council will be upped to 13 members and they ought to be able to accomplish a good many improvements about the school. Good luck to all the boys and let's see some action . . .

The "pigskinners" are readying for spring practice sessions which are now in session. Few of the boys are getting some repair work done with Hal Roveda and Sisto Averno going for the works. The boys should all be in good shape and have some good "BRISK" workouts. Wotta way to spell MURDER!!

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

At a recent meeting of the Alumni Secretaries of District II of the American Alumni Council, the question was raised as to the class affiliation of men who will graduate this year and in years to come. College policy decrees that the man is placed in the class of the year in which he receives his degree. However, for the purpose of reunions and other alumni social affairs, a man, who attended Muhlenberg before the war and who would have graduated with the class of 1944 or 1945, had his education not been interrupted, might like to be considered a member of that class. In the discussion which followed, the consensus of opinion among those present was that the graduating senior should be allowed to choose the class with which he would like to reunite, even though he had actually received his degree several years later.

I feel that such a policy is a wise one and therefore, I plan to ask each graduating senior, sometime before he leaves Muhlenberg, to indicate the class with which he wishes to associate himself. Normally, all the seniors would become members of the Class of 1947, so far as the records show the date of graduation, but, if there are any men who desire to be considered as members of another class, the one with which they would have graduated had they gone through four years of college, they may do so. Men who do not want any other class, will be listed as the Class of 1947. A form will be furnished you before graduation so that you may indicate your choice.

Think it over!

MULE KICKS

Dear sirs:

From all appearances it seems that the class of '47 is to be the forgotten class of Muhlenberg, or maybe some people would rather forget it. The recent Claria covered the war years and included the Class of '46. Now the Class of '48 is planning a book to cover the Class of '48, getting back to the pre-war system. But what about a book for the boys of '47? Not all of them are so ugly that they'll break the camera having their pictures taken for a class book. D.W.L.

To The Weekly:

Congratulations on a really well-executed student poll and an especially fine issue of the WEEKLY.

Rev. Goeser Addresses AKA

"The History of the Shaker Sect" was Rev. Robert Goeser's topic at the last meeting of the Alpha Kappa Alpha on Thursday, March 6 at Dr. Stine's home. Rev. Goeser elaborated on the Shaker's belief in the second coming of Jesus with a judgment of the world. He also brought out their ideas on the renunciation of sex and their belief that they were the true Church.

He then explained how the Shakers developed their colonies. These colonies were communistic in nature. The Shaker Sect was very popular throughout the 19th century and was the result of the Revival Movement. The next meeting of Alpha Kappa Alpha will be on March 27, at which time the Muhlenberg Chapter will be the guests of the Epsilon Chapter at Cedar Crest. Dr. Russell Stine will be the speaker on this occasion.

Do You Cheat? Here's Why!

In a recent issue of Life magazine, an article was printed, complete with pictures, on the subject of cheating at the University of Texas. The inference that this practice is prevalent in all institutions of higher learning, brought swarms of protests from many colleges and universities. The editors of the WEEKLY have no facts or figures concerning cheating at Muhlenberg, we have no information, nor have we taken any polls; however the fact that it does exist cannot be denied. Accordingly, we are printing below, a letter which was received by Life magazine, in reply to the recent article.

Sirs:

We professors are largely responsible for student cheating. We invite it by:

1. Our own stupidity. Any professor who gives the type of quiz that can be passed by cribbing off the cuff etc., isn't quite bright.

2. What we expect from the students in an examination. All semester he has been toting thick textbooks in some half-a-dozen subjects. In addition he has class lectures and collateral assignments. No mind, however brilliant, can absorb so much information in so short a time. Yet the student is expected to enter an examination blind, while the professor, who has confined himself in one field, has all along relied on his notes. He would "funk" without them.

3. The artificiality of the whole examination system. The student is supposed to know the answers to any question, sight, unseen, thrown at him. But in life, the lawyer may consult his legal tomes, the physician can refer to his medical books . . .

Attention . . . GRADUATING?

All men contemplating graduation in either June or August of 1947 are requested to report to Acting Registrar Paul Gebert before March 31st.

This is in regards to a final check of required credits for graduation and MUST be attended to by all men expecting to be graduated from Muhlenberg in JUNE or AUGUST, 1947. It is also requested that this be done as soon as possible as it is of vital importance to all men concerned.

RESERVE OFFICERS

As a part of the regular training program, for which attendance credit will be given, the Officers Reserve Corps will meet this evening. The meeting will take place in West Hall Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Instructors will be on hand and a regular meeting will take place. For this evening, Capt. M. I. Hunter A/C Res. will speak on "Strategic Bombing Survey," and Major Carl W. Boyer, AGD Res. on "Psychological Implications in the Army Classification System."

ARCADE

There will be a meeting of all students interested in the Arcade, Friday at 11:00 in the Seminar Room, West Hall. The purpose of this meeting is organization and election of editors.

Dean Perry Kendig Announces Assembly Schedule For Spring

MID-ATLANTICS TONITE AT DELAWARE

SIDE COURT STABS . . .

by Herb Needleman

We must be avid basketball fans. The Lehigh Valley really put out to get the best roadside diners and street cars for the 'Bergians. The coal dust was pretty thick all the way up, but when we came out of the tunnel outside of Newark, the fellow sitting next to me didn't have to do a "Mammy" in the aisle.

We knew we were at the end of the line when the conductor came in wearing a Windsor knotted tie and pegged pants, and yelled, "Aw right cha bums—check out."

The first game of the double-header was a clash of systems, with City College playing a fast-breaking, constantly driving game, and Lafayette doing their utmost to hold them down. Bill Anderson really showed his stuff. He knew that the only way to lick the New Yorkers was to keep them straining at the leash, and his team played ball that was deliberate to the point of aggravation. He substituted like a master chess player, pulling his first stringers when the pressure was too much for them, and saving them for the last five minutes of play. Marty Zippel played some of the best pivot seen by us in plenty of ball seasons. He faked, passed, and was a buzz saw on the defense and under the boards.

Between the halves the spectators were treated to a ball game between two settlement schools of the East Side. The average age of the athletes was somewhere between eight and nine, but St. Peter's pulled a fast one and slipped in a ringer. The kid was at least ten, and stood more than four feet.

Maybe there's something radically wrong with us, but we got a bigger charge out of watching the kids play ball than following the L.I.U. cheerleaders through their gyrations. It gets a little monotonous after a while, seeing six or seven young chicks take turns dropping their batons in time to the music.

One of the big surprises of the night was the absence of Jackie Goldsmith from the starting lineup. The little set-shot artist played one smart game while he was in, not limiting himself to shots from the outside, but driving in and following up loose balls. He lost his eye the second half, but still proved his work as a ball mover and floor man. The L.I.U. club as a whole looked pretty sharp in the first half, and would have been a pretty tough club for any one to beat.

Plenty of New York fans had a lot of good things to say about the 'Berg Club, and it seemed like we picked up a lot of unofficial rooters.

Word comes from over in Bethlehem that over one hundred candidates turned out for the Lehigh baseball team. The Engineers, coached by Eb Caraway, open against Hoss Lough, and look like a tough club to beat in any league.

We'd like to add our voice to those wishing Bud Barker and Co. luck in tomorrow and Saturday's tilts. We'll be looking for you to bring back the championship; don't let us down, gang.

King Kong Keller, New York Yankee star failed to make the grade on Maryland University's baseball squad . . .

Bucknell And L.I.U. Trip 'Berg Basketeers Away

Playing their last regular scheduled basketball game of the season, the Muhlenberg Mules lost to Bucknell last Saturday night by the almost unbelievable score of 84-65. Muhlenberg seemed completely demoralized and showed no spirit or fight, and at times hardly seemed interested in what was going on. Harry Donovan scored seven points the first half but did not see action in the second frame. The defensive play of the team was ragged and this was the worst defeat suffered by a Muhlenberg basketball team since before the war.

The score was tied at the seven minute mark but from then on it was all Bucknell with 'Berg being the victim. Williams, the Bisons' six foot, four center, was high scorer with twenty-four points. In fact, all of the starters for Bucknell scored more than twelve points. This was the last game the Bisons played under their coach Woody Ludwig and they really made this game a going away present. McGee, Saemmer and Mackin were high scorers for the Mules.

Marve Jaffe holds the high school scoring record in Madison Square Garden with a single game total of 28 points.

It was a big night for the New York fans last Thursday, when L.I.U. followed through on the performance of C.C.N.Y., and walloped the Mules, 60-54 in the second game of the Gotham vs. Lehigh Valley double header.

The tournament-conscious Blackbirds didn't waste too much time, taking the tap and feeding the ball to Holub, who yawned slightly as he dropped a pivot shot to break the ice. L.I.U. went on to build an early lead against the Mules and led at half-time 42-28 and it was well for the Blackbirds that they did. Most of their 14-point bulge vanished, but the Brooklynites had enough to win, 60-54.

The Barker Boys came storming back in the waning moments of the second half and the New Yorkers were in for a mild scare. No longer sharp, L.I.U. permitted Donovan A. C. to cut the huge deficit. Harry was 'Berg's most potent weapon and his personal exploits won the admiration and plaudits of the crowd. He collected 23 points, two more than the king-size, Holub, to be high man, but he alone could not carry the burden and our quintet's fate was sealed.

However, with five minutes remaining only seven points separated the teams and 'Berg was still in the ball game. With four minutes to go, L.I.U. scored their first field goal in seven minutes. The Mules scored three more points and then the Blackbirds turned on the freeze.

Intra-Mural Leagues In Full Swing; Jokers Lead

In the first week of the I-M league, some classy, high scoring basketball has been displayed and recorded. Director Bill Ritter is very much satisfied with the type of sportsmanship that has thus far been displayed by all teams and their members.

In a thriller of a game in League I, which proved to be the best tilt of the week, the Blue Beetles edged out the Flying Dutchmen to the tune of 36-35. Kishbaugh of the winners and Schiepe of the losers were the high scorers each dropping seven buckets from the floor and one from the charity line.

LEAGUE I

The Jokers who appear to be one of the hottest clubs in any one of the three leagues drubbed the Sigma Phi Epsilon club 78-20. Werst led the attack for the Jokers with 27 points. In their second league game they also ran up a terrific score in pouncing on the Eagles 72-26.

LEAGUE II

Competition for the time being appears to be a little closer in this league as the Horlachers "9" stopped the Tornados in their path by winning 58-47.

The South Hall Toads mowed into the Scholars intellectual standing on the hardwood as they downed them 39-28.

LEAGUE III

In the third division of the I-M league, the Misfits had the basket filled to size as they ate up the Breakfast Club team 52-31.

The second game of this league saw the Lambda Chi Alpha dunk the Danks to the tune of 41-28.

Bert Wessman Cops Title As 'Berg Wins Third In Tourney

Amassing the phenomenal team-point total of forty points, Rutgers University ran away from the field in the ninth annual Middle Atlantic Collegiate Wrestling Association championship tournament last Friday and Saturday, March 7 and 8. Rutgers, the host team for the tournament, had four individual champions and two runners-up. Gettysburg, placing two champions and two runners-up, scored 27 for second place in the tournament. Muhlenberg garnered one first and three seconds for 24 points and third place.

Muhlenberg was the defending championship team, having won the trophy the last time it was vied for in 1943.

Bert Wessman, stellar performer for the Frankett-men all season long in the 175-pound class, was crowned champion in this division at the tournament last week after he pinned Maroney of Haverford with a body press in two minutes and 57 seconds of the first period. Wessman had previously defeated Gible of Gettysburg, 4-3, to gain the finals. Cliff Steinbach took the second-place award in the 145-pound class. He was decided, 6-2, in the finals by Shallcross of Rutgers. Cliff had fought his way into the finals by drubbing Sassman of Gettysburg, an opponent who had beaten him in the regular-season dual meet in Rockne Hall.

"Smiley" Bill Evans and Larry Delp were the other boys who gained the finals for the Mules. Evans, after pinning Schleer of Lafayette with a body press in

Dr. Shankweiler Greets Six Vets For Tennis Squad

With six seasoned veterans back in the fold, Dr. Shankweiler indicated that 'Berg tennis prospects for the coming season are much brighter than last year, when the Cardinl and Gray racqueteers won 5 while losing 3.

Wearing the college colors again will be Cerney, Klink, Ranken, Haring, Moyer, and Hoh. A host of new material is also available, and some of the new candidates will be pushing the veteran net men for a place on the squad.

The following have indicated their intention of trying out for the club: Dannenberg, Anderson, Sonerecker, Erb, Ziegler, W. K. Hunter, M. Diefenderfer, Trupe, Peters, Morehart, W. Smith, Moehlying and Hill.

To date practice has been ruled out by the elements. However, with the first advent of sunny weather the Doctor will have the boys out on the asphalt for their initial workout. Practice and matches will be held at the Oakmont Tennis Club.

Mules On Rebound For Albright In Tourney Opener

The Muhlenberg Mules culminate their fourth consecutive season of national cage prominence, when they enter the Middle Atlantic States tournament at the University of Delaware, in Newark, on Friday and Saturday.

MEET THE CHAMP . . .

BERT WESSMAN

Hubert "Bert" Wessman, Middle Atlantic Collegiate Wrestling Association 175-pound champion, is only a Sophomore at Muhlenberg. Bert, pictured above (as Charles Atlas would like to see him), won his first collegiate wrestling title last week. However, Bert is no newcomer to tournament competition, since he won several titles for himself as a wrestler for Mepham High School, on Long Island, from which he graduated just previous to his entering Muhlenberg in 1942.

Wessman was the Long Island 154-pound champion in 1942 and the South Shore 165-pound champion for two successive years, 1941 and 1942. In his first season as a collegiate bone-bender, "Big Bert" was a member of the 1943 Middle Atlantic Championship team here at 'Berg. He won second place in the 165-pound class that year. This year, returning from a three-year hitch in his Uncle Sam's Army and twenty months overseas service, Bert quickly won back for himself a varsity berth and, in the regular season at the 175-pound class, won five and lost only two bouts.

Bert is a stickler for conditioning and a real enthusiast when it comes to all sports, but especially wrestling. He feels that the general lack of student support for the wrestling team and the frequent injuries to the small squad hindered the team considerably all year. "It was only through the efforts of our coach, Carl Frankett, that the team was able to make such a creditable showing

Friday, LaSalle will engage Swarthmore in the first game of a twin bill, while 'Berg will tangle with its age old nemesis, Albright, in the feature attraction.

Saturday's card presents the Friday victors in a game that will determine the Middle Atlantic States championship. In the preliminary contest the losers will stack up in the consolation games.

Muhlenberg was awarded the opportunity of entering the tournament by emerging victor in the northern division of the Middle Atlantic Conference. Likewise, Albright enters the tournament by virtue of winning the western division of the Conference, while Swarthmore was seated tops in the southern section. LaSalle, although not a member of the Conference, was the tournament committee's selection as the outside quintet to round out the tournament teams.

All four teams possess impressive records. LaSalle, whom the Mules defeated early in the campaign, 59-44, boast a season's record of 15 wins and 5 losses. Other teams who spilled the Explorers are Utah, Penn, Seton Hall, and Georgetown. Among the notable quintets defeated by LaSalle are Seton Hall, St. Joseph's, North Carolina, Temple and Albright. In view of the coming clash, it should be noted that the Explorers twice defeated Albright.

Albright, a thorn in Mule ribs in past court seasons, enters the tournament with a well-balanced outfit. Only several weeks have passed since the Lions gave the Iron Dukes of Duquesne, the hottest team in the state, a battle royal, as they finally lost a close, 55-51, decision. Early in the campaign they bowed to St. Joseph's by a single point. Their only upset defeat was sustained at the hands of Gettysburg.

Swarthmore, southern conference champs, enter the tournament with, but, a single league set-back handed them by Drexel. Penn, Army and Lafayette were the other fives who took the measure of the Garnet. It should be pointed out that the Cadets subdued their rivals by only a single point, while Lafayette had a rough time winning by 4 markers in the closing seconds of the game.

By this time, the record of the Mules has been well impressed upon us all. Among their 17 victories and 7 setbacks were some magnificent games; some brilliant wins and some bitter unexplainable setbacks.

and take third place in the Middle Atlantic tournament," said the Champ when interviewed.

Bert Wessman still has two big seasons before him here at Muhlenberg and is certain to cause plenty of heartaches and headaches for Muhlenberg's opponents on the wrestling mat.

order could be restored and the victims aided, the Japanese, with their noted but oft overlooked stoic calm, set about the task of clearing the rubble to rebuild their city.

Not only are the people calm but they are also scrupulously honest, at times humorously so. Dr. Horn smilingly related the story of the postmaster who continuously, for six months sent him notices telling him he could collect the Japanese equivalent of five cents which was due him. Since the Post Office was too far away to make the trip worthwhile, Dr. Horn neglected to collect the money. One day, long after he had forgotten the matter, a messenger arrived and paid him the amount.

The sudden growth of Japan was probably partly responsible for her later bellicose nature, but even in the few years preceding World War II, many of the people were friendly toward Americans. Late in 1941, when the United States made its missionaries leave the country, many of the Japanese felt hurt and even wished the Americans would stay. Many of her people, Dr. Horn recalled, believed that the defeat of Japan at the hands of a powerful enemy was the only thing that would realign her perspective.

Competently summing up his observations, Dr. Horn said, "If they had imbibed a bit more of the spirit of their development, this war [Japanese participation] might not have been. Their response to their new form of government has been good, however." If it continues to be good, Dr. Horn believes that if the occasion should ever arise, they could prove as valuable an ally in wartime as they can be friends in peace.

Photos Featured In Art Exhibit

his contribution to present-day photography unacknowledged until Miss Berenice Abbott brought Atget's work to this country after his death.

Born in St. Louis, Walker Evans studied at Harvard, visited Paris, and took up photography in the late 1920's. He produced a large series of photographic records for the Farm Security Administration and is now on the staff of Fortune Magazine. From 1931 on, Evans has had many one-man shows, including two at The Museum of Modern Art, New York.

The photographs selected for this exhibition are, both in intention and effect, a collection of statements—comparable to "stills" from a documentary film. Walker Evans presents the contemporary civilization of eastern America as Atget gave us Paris before the war and as Brady gave us the Civil War. Like Atget, he records the average scene, street, town, not as architecture but as symbols, as a record of the men and women who created them. On the faces of the people and upon the facades of the buildings can be read the greed, sham and waste, as well as the aspiration and nobility of a nation. Symbolic fragments of 19th century American taste, the modern factory beside out-moded dwellings the faded grandeur of the old plantation estates, the face of a sharecropper, Front Street, New York, during the depression, are presented directly to the on-looker through the uncompromising precision of the lens.

Der Deutsche Verein

On Monday evening, March 17, 1947, at 7:30 p.m. in the West Hall recreation room, Der Deutsche Verein will conduct the traditional initiation ceremony which will formally admit new members to the Club. Invitations for membership have been submitted to the students of various classes. Those eligible are asked to present themselves on Monday evening.

The meeting will be conducted according to form. The President, Donald T. Miller, will conduct both the meeting and the initiation ceremony, and will be aided by the Secretary, Adolph Wegener.

As usual, a Deutsches Lieder gesang will be held. Refreshments will also be served by the refreshment committee.

Holub, who scored 21 points, and Harry Donovan dominated the spotlight, but Dick McGee's one-handed hook shots in the second canto drew the "oohs" and "ahs" of the hard-to-please Gothamites.

Delp conquered Binder of Gettysburg by the score of 4-1 in the semi-finals, but was outlasted by Shimmer of Lafayette in the finals and succumbed, 8-4. Rudy Amelio, freshman 128-pounder, and Ted Getz, 121-pounder, placed third in their weight classes.

In an election held after the tournament, the members of the squad elected Bill Evans and Jerry Braverman as their co-captains for the season just completed. Braverman was a co-captain of last year's squad, and Evans was a member of the 1943 Championship team.

Another M.C.A. group, whose theme was "Higher Education and the Christian Heritage", had its first meeting in West Hall on Wednesday evening, March 5, at 7:30. In the absence of the scheduled leader, Donald T. Miller, the group was led by Ralph Boyer. Three faculty members, Mr. Goosen, Dr. Shoemaker and Dean Mercer attended. The 17 students and 3 faculty members discussed the topic "Does College Teach Living" and extensive ramification thereof.

Election Returns

The Juniors returned to the poles to reaffirm their faith in Howard Haring by placing him back in office as President.

Pete Horgor was named Vice-President and Ernest Wallender, an Allentown boy, and Arthur Damask from Atlantic City, were victors in the race for Secretary and Treasurer, respectively.

Sam Krouse and Ernest Hawk, co-chairmen of Election Committee, charged with conducting the elections, have declared the Sophomore elections invalid because of an infraction of the rules. 187 ballots were turned in to be counted, but only 169 names appeared on the sophomore list of voters. The discrepancy of 18 votes, unaccounted for, was enough to invalidate the whole election.

Another election for Sophomore class officers will be held on Tuesday. The ballots will appear the same as in the previous elections.

Glase Adds To Business Staff

In order to specialize the duties of the business department of the WEEKLY, and provide for an adequate supply of advertising, the Business Manager has appointed Carl Luppold and Richard Muller advertising managers.

The functionalizing of the business department will allow the business manager to devote his time entirely to the overall management of the WEEKLY's financial policies; with the advertising managers being responsible for the acquisition of all needed advertising.

Both Muller and Luppold are members of the Junior Class and the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

College Opinion Divided About Honor System

What do you think of the idea of establishing an Honor System at Muhlenberg?

Ernest Wallander, Junior:

"Frankly, I approve of it very much. After all, we are supposed to be men here at Muhlenberg, and if we can't be honorable among ourselves, we might as well give up the ghost and go home."

Dean of Students Perry Kendig:

"I think it is a poor idea. Specifically because I think we have plenty of boys that are honest enough not to cheat, but they are not ready to report their friends and have them kicked out for cheating. The Honor System must not only be supported by the students, but enforced by them and them alone. The faculty is out. If the Honor System fails, it is a debacle."

Robert Balbirnie, Freshman:

"I'm against it. I think there is far too much cheating going on to be stopped by putting the boys on the Honor System. In fact, I think it would increase cheating. I never saw so much cheating as there was on that last final exam in Bible."

Dr. Elmer Kilmer, Dept. of Education:

"I think the Honor System is a good idea if you can make it work. It would be foolish to try it now, but it would be a good thing to think about it."

Herb Needelman, Junior:

"You can't just give the students an Honor System. You have to indoctrinate them, and it has to be backed by tradition."

Mr. Lee Van Horn, Dept. of Romance Languages:

"In theory, I think it is all right, because certainly a major part of a man's education ought to be in morality. However, in practice I think the system would bog down. I do not like the idea of one student turning another in. It's too much like 'ratting'."

Gerald Clymer, Freshman:

"Excellent in theory, but how are you going to make it work?"

"American minorities: What about them, yesterday, today, and tomorrow" will be the topic of Dr. Jeremiah P. Shalloo's address this evening in the Science Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Dr. Shalloo is a noted speaker and is very much in demand. Tonight, he will discuss discrimination, protests, problems, proposed programs for solving these difficulties, and the value of these programs.

Marines Return To Muhlenberg

The U. S. Marine Corps is detailing an officer to Muhlenberg on Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22, to provide students with information on the Platoon Leaders Program being operated under the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve.

This program is designed to give college students the opportunity to gain commissions in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve without interrupting their college education. This program is open to any Freshman, Sophomore, or Junior who can meet the physical and other requirements of the Corps, and will eventually lead to commissions as Second Lieutenants, US Marine Corps Reserve, for students enrolled in the program.

Captain J. J. O'Donnell, USMC, will be in the northwest basement room of the Library on Friday and Saturday to answer all questions of students who are interested in this program.

Christian Association Groups Discuss Peace And Education

Dr. Johnson Discusses United Nations Set-Up

"The Organization of the United Nations" and "The General Assembly" will form the specific topics for discussion at the initial meeting of the MCA-sponsored student discussion group on "The Nations and Christian Citizenship," next Wednesday evening in West Hall reception room at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Victor Johnson, Assistant Professor of History, will lead the group for several successive Wednesday evenings in a study based on the book Power for Peace, by Dr. O. Fredrick Nolde, Dean of the Graduate School of the Mt. Airy Lutheran Seminary former consultant to the United States delegation at the San Francisco conference, and vice-chairman of the Federal Council of Churches' Commission on a Just and Durable Peace.

The studies outlined in the book emphasize particularly the activities of the United Nations, pointing out that contributions of the "Colleges And Christian Heritage" Topic Wednesday

Richard Rau, chairman, announced this week that the faculty-student group which has been called by the Muhlenberg Christian Association to discuss "Higher Education and the Christian Heritage" will have an opportunity at its second meeting next Wednesday evening, March 26, to discuss Muhlenberg's curriculum with several members of the official curriculum committee which has been appointed by the college and is presently at work.

Dr. Carl Boyer, Professor of Education, as well as the several faculty members who have attended the first session of the group, will be on hand to participate in the informal exchange of ideas on a subject which the discussion leaders feel is of personal importance to every student. Mr. Rau emphasized, however, that the evening will be most fruitful if the students who plan to come will do some study beforehand.

All Freshmen Must Attend Meeting

Dean of Freshmen, Harry A. Benfer announces a special meeting of all first and second semester Freshmen. The meeting will be held in the Science Auditorium on Thursday, March 27th, at 1:15 p.m.

Because of the importance of the subject to be presented at this time ALL men of the Freshmen class are required to attend. If the meeting should run over class time men will be excused for lateness.

Dean Harry A. Benfer requests that any person knowing the whereabouts of the 1925, 1926, and 1927 issues of the CIARLA, contact him.

Phi Kappa Tau Celebrates 41st Founders Day

On Saturday evening, March 15, the Eta Chapter of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity held its Founders Day Banquet in the General Trexler Room of the Americus Hotel. This celebration marked the 41st year of the fraternity's founding, and was attended by a large group of alumni, active brothers, and pledges.

The program was opened at 6:45 by the invocation by Reverend Harry Cressman, former college chaplain. Following the invocation the meal was served. The intervals between courses were filled by group singing led by Frank DiPierro.

The Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Ralph Boyer, then introduced several of the alumni brothers in attendance.

Dr. Clayton Wotring, the speaker of the evening, addressed the group on one of the most vital questions facing Americans today, the War Debt.

Following the address, John Moore, president of Eta Chapter, made a few remarks concerning the house.

Attorney Kenneth Koch then presented the alumni scholarship award, given annually to the outstanding student in his 2nd and 3rd semesters, to Edward Blair of Stroudsburg.

The President of the Graduate Council, Mr. Lloyd Zimmerman, briefly spoke to the gathering.

A comedy skit was presented by some of the brothers and pledges. Those participating were U. Peter Horger, Frank DiPierro, Edward Pickert, William Raines, Lew Wence, Richard Miller, and E. Robert McCready.

Mr. Hap Angelo, National Field Secretary and graduate of Mississippi State, then addressed a few remarks to the group.

The meeting was closed by the singing of "In The Name of Phi Kappa Tau" by the entire group.

'Independent' Candidates Win In Soph Election

The "Independent" Party candidates took all four offices in the Sophomore class elections on Tuesday.

Accompanying the victory of John Keefe as president were the elections of Bill Lybrand as vice-president, Ramon "Pat" Carazo as secretary, and Earlin Lutz as treasurer.

'Prodigal Sons' Pre-Theo Topic

A forum on the subject "What Is Wrong With Minister's Sons" is to be conducted at the John A. W. Haas Pre-theological Club's next meeting to be held on Monday evening, March 24 at 7:00 p.m. in Room 22 of the Library.

George Ulrich and L. Samuel Krouse, both sons of ministers will present the topic from this viewpoint. On the other panel are Earlin Lutz and Donald Stewart. After this short presentation of the subject the meeting will be open for discussion.

The question, just how good are the off-spring of parsonages, should inspire a lively discussion, with many opinions and examples, pro and con.

A program of future activities, including the formation of an intramural softball team and group visitation to various theological institutions is being planned for the Spring.

All members, or pre-theological students interested are requested to attend this meeting to assist in formulating a program of activities of interest to all.

The treasurer, Theodore Getz, asks that all members, who have not given him their dues to date, do so immediately to facilitate in planning future programs.

Student Body Meeting Tomorrow, 11:25 A.M.

Council Seeks To Rewrite Constitution

Tomorrow morning at 11:25 a.m. when the Student Body meets in the Science Building Auditorium the Student Council will request authority, through the form of a motion passed from the floor of the assembly, to appoint a committee to rewrite the Constitution incorporating the new amendments.

The new Constitution, once rewritten, will be presented at a Student Body Meeting which will be held Thursday, May 1, 1947. The final draft must then pass by a two thirds vote of the quorum.

One amendment to be proposed tomorrow at the assembly will supercede Article VII of the Constitution which calls for two thirds of the student body to be present to constitute a quorum. The new amendment will be the second to be added to the Constitution. It reads as follows:

Article II—Quorum

Section 1. At all meetings of the Student Body those members present shall constitute a quorum.

Section 2. At all meetings of the Student Council a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum.

Four amendments to the By-Laws of the Constitution, Articles VI, VII, VIII, and IX, will also be proposed for ratification. The amendment labeled Article VI rescinds and renders inoperative Section 5 of Article 1 of the By-Laws which calls for a fine of two dollars in forfeit for not voting in any of the regular elections.

The establishment of a fee to cover all the Muhlenberg publications has been under consideration for some time. Article VII, which will give funds for the publication of the "M" Book and The Arcade in addition to the WEEKLY and the CIARLA, is offered as the solution to this problem.

Pre-Med Club Plans Program; Speaker Named

"A broader understanding of the medical sciences through fellowship" might well be the theme of the newly organized Pre-Medical Club's activities as they map out their program for the spring season.

Continuing in their efforts to bring interesting and authoritative men in their fields to the campus to speak to the pre-professional group, the officers of the Club have announced that the next guest speaker to appear on March 26 will be Dr. Phillips, prominent physician and eye specialist. This meeting, as in the past, will be held in Room 304 of the Science Building at 7:30 p.m.

On Wednesday evening, March 12, the organization heard Dr. Murray Iobst, a graduate of Muhlenberg College and the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School. The topic presented at that time was on "Trends In Modern Veterinary". The meeting was open to all pre-veterinary students on the campus regardless of their connection with the club.

To provide for an equitable dues and initiation assessment among the members of the various classes, some of whom will only hold membership for the remainder of the semester before graduating, the following fees were established: For sophomores and anyone joining and desiring a key or pin, $6; for seniors without a key or pin $2.50; and for juniors without the key or pin $4.50. The payment of this money covers both dues and initiation fee.

On April 23 the Muhlenberg Pre-Medical Club will join with similar groups from the entire Lehigh Valley to attend a Banquet to be held in the Bethlehem Hotel, Bethlehem, Pa.

"CHAPEL PROBLEM"

One hundred overcrowded students standing in the back of the Chapel—are not exactly conducive to an attitude of worship. Yet this is the condition at least four days of the week in Chapel.

The only way in which Muhlenberg College, designed to accommodate five hundred students, has been able to provide education facilities for thirteen hundred men has been by increasing the number of faculty members and the number of classes. For example, where there were once twenty sections of freshmen English, there are now double that number. Only in this way has the increased number of students been accommodated.

We believe that the application of this principle to the "Chapel problem" is a solution.

More Services

It has been suggested that additional chapel services be added during the week. Perhaps they could take place on Tuesday and Thursday at 10:00 o'clock for students who don't have classes then. Or many men might be able to attend Chapel from 12:30 'till ten minutes of one. Again, Sunday morning services might be instituted on the campus with Chapel credit allowed. The exact time can best be decided by a voicing of student opinion at tomorrow's Student Body meeting.

At any rate, the important thing is to hold extra services during the week to drain off the surplus at present services. This idea, it seems to us, is the most logical and convenient way of making for proper conditions of worship in Chapel.

It would not require a change in the present system of two required attendances a week, but the plan would allow the student body to worship under better conditions.

To the Chaplain, the scheduling of additional services would not necessarily mean extra work, as there are seven ordained clergymen on the faculty, plus qualified laymen.

Additional chapel services during the week strikes the WEEKLY as the sane and sensible solution to the so-called "Chapel problem."

MID-ATLANTIC CHAMPIONS

The Middle Atlantic Conference Basketball Tournament must have been very exciting. The newspapers said so.

As far as the average Muhlenberg student was concerned, the games might as well have been played on the moon. We understand that the powers-that-be, in selecting a site, ruled out Philadelphia's spacious, convenient Convention Hall because they wanted to keep the games "in a college atmosphere."

Since the Palestra was being used for school-boy basketball and Lehigh's Grace Hall was taken for wrestling bouts, choices were limited. But just why the field house of one of the most southern schools in the conference had to be chosen, when two teams were from Philadelphia and the others north of the Quaker City, remains a mystery.

Be that as it may, Coach Bud Barker and his squad deserve the admiration of the College for winning the Tourney, compiling so fine a record, and setting a new Muhlenberg scoring record by averaging 60.5 points per game.

"Red" Baldwin, captain of the squad, is the only Senior. In his three campaigns wearing the Cardinal and Gray, he achieved both fame and popularity. He'll be a hard man to replace.

With the rest of the team slated to return, prospects look bright for next year. In his second season as the Muhlenberg mentor, Coach Barker should produce an even better team than this year's hardwood aggregation.

THE GREEN, GREEN GRASS

"In Spring a young man's fancy . . ." This is the flowery way in which at least one editorial always begins this time of the year.

Somewhat wearied of the series of barbed wire entanglements, chicken-wire barricades, rock piles, and sundry devices (especially near East Hall) that dot the campus, we think we can sum up the essence of the battle, the People vs. Al Hartzell or How Green is our Valley:

"Esaelp, peek ffo eht ssarg!"

Which, spelled backwards, spells . . .

Student-Faculty Committee Meets

The recently organized Student-Faculty Relations Committee held its second meeting last Monday evening in the Ad Building.

The Student Council and five faculty men listened to several members of the Student Body, taking action on some of their complaints and recommendations.

The next meeting of this committee will be held on Monday, April 14, in Room 110 of the Administration Building, at 7 p.m. Any students with complaints or suggestions are requested to be present.

IN PROFILE—

Perry Kendig

"Come on in. Yes, I can spare a few minutes of my time."

The words emanated from the tall man leaning back in his desk chair, the man known by the student body as the frank, genial Dean of Students, Mr. Perry F. Kendig.

With that "sit down and let's see what I can do for you" attitude that puts his visitors at ease, it was not difficult to learn that with the exception of the war years, when he was on active duty with the Navy, Mr. Kendig has been on the Muhlenberg faculty since Nov-

The small number of students who take advantage of the entertainment provided for them in the student assembly programs already know, from such offerings as "The School for Opera", the Fritz Krueger and Betty Jean Kimble program, and the enlightening Dr. Allan Tarshish, that Mr. Kendig fills the semester schedules with an attractive bill because his interest in that field is genuine. That interest is a broadened and matured continuation of his extracurricular activities during his days at Franklin and Marshall where he was a member of "The Green Room Club", the F. and M. dramatic society.

The existing but unexplained apathy for extra activities here at Muhlenberg, might be alleviated, specifically in the case of aspirants to Mask and Dagger, when it is learned that Mr. Kendig, who directed many student plays in the pre-war years, confessed that, "The nicest part of directing plays was taking the leading lady home." New applicants for memberships in Mask and Dagger will please form a double line outside the Science Auditorium.

It is not known whether or not, as a boy, Dean Kendig had an avid liking for cowboy and western films, but if that was the case it would readily be explained by his love for horses. He rides frequently, and looks forward to the time when he might own his own horse. More than just an average fan, he saw eighteen horse shows last season, in this country and abroad, as well as England's famous Grand National. Mr. Kendig is a victim of that widespread but welcomed malady whose toll includes Bing Crosby, Louis B. Mayer, famous, cavalrymen, and countless others.

Bass fishing and ornithology are only two other of his diversified interests. It is his desire to see the formation of an Audubon Club on campus.

ember, 1938. From that time until his entry into the service he was in the English Department. On returning to Muhlenberg last autumn, he became Dean of Students and Director of Student Affairs.

In spring of 1942, Mr. Kendig entered the Navy with the rank of Lieutenant junior grade. In the Intelligence Department, to which he was assigned, writing was a large and important part of his work. He helped to write speeches, histories of Navy activities, and prepared many intelligence reports. In 1946 he was discharged with the rank of Lieutenant Commander.

An Open Letter . . . To The Commons Students

Some time ago there was severe criticism, admittedly justified, of the lack of silverware in the commons. Accordingly, new silverware was purchased and brought out, and the complaints ceased; everyone was happy with the favorable turn of events.

Now the criticism has started again—"where are the spoons?" "What, no knives again?" Smarten up, George, bring us some hardware."

Unfortunately, the story behind the shortage this time is not a pleasant one. It has to do with petty thieves and saboteurs, guys who feel they need the silverware to brighten up their rooms. It's no joke, fellows; it's embarrassing to college men. For example, out of 120 knives put into circulation a month ago, there are only 69 left. Small wonder there isn't enough to go around.

The solution is simple, though hard to face. Clean out your rooms, men; search around for that knife you borrowed—and forgot to return—to cut that last cake from home. Bring them back to the chow hall, and let your buddies use them too. Thanks.

Soph-Frosh Hop turned out to be a 4.0 affair from all reports. Nice turnout, good music, and the committees did an all around first class job . . .

Did you note the classy attire sported by Cy Davis and Mike Fisher? The only answer could be the two lovely loveliest that hiked all the way from Cornell to be with the boys. Bobby and Jody were certainly on the ball, and had the gents all agog . . .

Jack Gaskill got himself all tied up with a "charmer" from Bethlehem recently . . . Scarcest face around these parts is Prent Beers. Home life must be agreeable . . .

Looks like someone put the screws to our boys at the recent Mid-Atlantic Tourney; no jackets, no watches, no miniature basketballs, tch, tch, tch; someone dropped the ball. Apparently it's going to be up to the school itself to pay a little tribute to a bunch of guys who had tough sledding all the way and finally came out on top . . .

The WEEKLY has had several inquiries regarding the CIARLA for the coming year. Yes to the best of our knowledge, the class of 1947 is forgotten. Our suggestion for some action on the matter would be to bombard the WEEKLY, the CIARLA, and the STUDENT COUNCIL with letters on the matter. This ought to get results, AND FAST.

We got final word from Earl Feight, Editor of the 1948 CIARLA, regarding the pictures of the class of '47. Plans call for individual pictures of the graduating seniors along informal lines, taken around school. Earl has assured us that the pictures will be taken, and will be made up into a nice looking layout . . .

New additions to the roll call or muster list—as you prefer, are now in force at the homes of Jim Crawford, Earl Repp, and John Flayhart. Looks like the census man is gonna have his hands full. Good luck to all the new arrivals and their proud Mammys and Pappys . . .

Cy Davis and his golfers are gonna have to make out for themselves this year. The Athletic Office came through with the final shut-out for the boys for this year at least. Too bad too, there is some fine golf talent aboard and even though it most likely wouldn't help the pocketbook any, might have added a bit of good publicity . . .

Mikionis traveling in some fast company recently but he can undoubtedly keep the pace . . . Did you check the champ Burt Wessman limping around the place after a rough basketball scrimmage?? Wrestling season was too soft for the boy so he went and got his lumps the hard way . . .

The local pubs and lockups did a land office business, and the shamrock was predominant. Sure and some of the boys are still recuperating from celebrating. Poor Jim Kessock and Scotty Renwick hid under the stairs all day with their pipes and kilts . . .

Didja know?—Doc Wright pinch hitting at Cedar Crest and giving the gals the benefit of his vast experience . . .

Alumni Memo

John H. Wagner—Alumni Secretary

Congratulations to the basketball team on their fine showing in winning the Middle Atlantic Conference Championship last week end. Congratulations are in order to Coach Bud Barker for his leadership in taking the squad through a difficult season.

I should like to quote a paragraph from a letter which an alumnus recently mailed to all the members of his class. In it, he points out just how the alumni feel about Muhlenberg and athletics.

"Recalling your Alma Mater should be a very pleasant experience these days. The little college we attended has grown up. Not only that, our Muhlenberg is now a nationally known institution. National recognition in basketball has come to be accepted as the regular course of events—and to have national football prominence as well is like the icing on the cake. Good!"

The alumni indeed appreciate the fine records made by all athletic teams representing the College. Keep up the good work.

'M'-Club Schedules Try-Outs For "Sheepskin Derby"

With preliminary arrangements and plans just about completed, the annual production of the Varsity "M" Club is about to swing into rehearsals. "SHEEPSKIN DERBY", the title of this year's show, will follow the customary variety type show with musical, comic, and chorus numbers, sharing the spotlight.

Under the supervision of a committee of club members, the show will be presented on May 15, 16, and 17. Admission is by ticket only and the charge is $1.00, tax included. Activity cards are not good at this function.

"SHEEPSKIN DERBY" will feature such "outstanding and talented" students as Sisto Averno, Len Ellis, Rodger Volpe, Harry Donovan, Oscar Baldwin, and scores of others. A cast of approximately 65 men plus the Muhlenberg Choir will take part in the performance.

Music will be under the direction of the "Mule Kicks", featuring Jim Gross, Yip Yaneli, Nat Smith, Tom Evans, Al Berger, and Leon Loch. Gross has written original music with lyrics by Gordon Daggy and Mike Rogers. Beside their duties in the pit while playing for the show, The "Kicks" will have a featured spot all to themselves in the show itself.

Properties and staging will be handled by a committee headed by Gordon Daggy and Dave Lukens. Over 150 costumes will be used and will be secured from one of the outstanding costume houses in Philadelphia.

Business details, ticket sales, program advertising and other financial matters will be handled by various committees under the leadership of John Growitch, treasurer of the "M" Club.

George Bibighaus, President of the club has announced that there will be a general try-out for parts in the show tonight, March 20, at 6:30 p.m. in the Science auditorium.

OBITER DICTA . . . How To Revive A College Paper

by Dave Tyson

It might have been a good idea for the WEEKLY to close up shop several weeks ago, as it was considering doing. Then the staff would have had a good excuse later on to throw a big banquet with a famous guest speaker at which the WEEKLY could be revived amidst toasts, speeches, and fanfare.

That's what happened up at New Haven, Connecticut, recently when The Yale Daily News was dug up from its grave after a three year death. No less a personage than Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador to the United States, was the principal speaker when an interim board of The News, oldest college daily in the country, turned over control of the paper to a student staff at a dinner for 300 guests.

The Yale Daily News once had the reputation of being the best college paper in the country. In May 1943 the staff decided to call it quits and The News became a war casualty.

After frantic effort on the part of ten Yale alumni, former staff members, the corpse was dragged to its feet, given a shot of adrenalin, and publication resumed this past September, with the ten alumni acting as an interim news board.

Bucking a complacent student body, it wasn't until now that the alumni could interest enough men of old Eli to get together a student staff and take over publication of the sheet.

Present at the resurrection of The News, in addition to Lord Inverchapel, were members of the Yale faculty, and prominent journalists from Connecticut and New York City.

Since there is no student council at Yale, The News is the only outlet for student opinion, and is now plugging for the formation of a student government. In a recent poll, Yale voted 4 to 1 in favor of the move.

So Muhlenberg is farther along the road to reestablishing a normal campus life than some of us have believed up to now.

Dr Tyson Speaks To St. Patrick's Day Banquet

The Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick heard Dr. Levering Tyson, president of Muhlenberg College, speak at their 176th annual banquet at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia Monday evening, St. Patrick's Day.

SON OF ST. PATRICK . . .

DR. LEVERING TYSON

Dr. Tyson was one of four guest speakers, along with Hon. Owen Brewster, United States Senator from Maine. He replied to a toast to "Pennsylvania" given by Mr. John W. Laird, toastmaster and president of the Society which was organized in 1771 "for the relief of Emigrants from Ireland".

The Society is composed of Protestant and Catholic men from all walks of life, and numbers among its past members General John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg, who joined in 1802. He is listed in the Society's history as a General in the Continental Army, Congressman, and Senator.

ed students report at that time. Participation in the show is NOT restricted to club members and all men are invited to take part.

Mike Rogers, director and producer of the show, has announced that rehearsals will be held at convenient times to those involved and will begin this week. It is planned to rehearse individual acts rather than the complete show at one time, so as to facilitate the meeting of casts and handling of the show. The complete show rehearsals will take place the last two weeks before the show.

Introducing Your New Officers

G.I. INFO

by Wally Wirth

It has long been the policy of the WEEKLY staff to print the articles and columns which it feels will most appeal to the student body. Due to the fact that the largest part of that group are veterans, we are going to initiate in 'Berg's journal, a veterans' column.

The purposes of such a column will be many. First, the veteran will be constantly informed and kept up to date on the changes instituted in the G.I. Bill. Many such changes have already taken place since the bill was made a law. How many of us are aware of that?

Secondly, any questions turned into the WEEKLY office on matters pertaining to veterans' welfare will be answered. Many times in the halls of the buildings and on the campus you have heard some vet question another as to, if it is true that a bill was passed giving every veteran a car, or when is the state bonus coming through? We have the answers to all those questions, and what answers we don't have, we can get.

Thirdly, any information desired by the veterans investigating the various veteran organizations will be given. At no time, shall this column act as an organ for any such groups.

Fourthly, non-veterans will be kept informed of the many and various changes in the draft laws. Much of just such information reaches your correspondent before it gets to the public press.

When handing in questions or problems to be answered in the veterans' column, kindly make that point clear to the WEEKLY staff member to whom your question is given. This column is for the benefit of you veterans and non-veterans alike, and we hope that it receives your whole-hearted cooperation.

New Freshman officers are, left to right, Joel Skidmore, secretary; Jim Bensinger, vice-president; David Hoh, treasurer; and Walter Dobenstein, president.

From May 21, 1922

In an oratorical contest held in the chapel on Friday evening, George Sowers '22 was chosen to represent Muhlenberg College in the Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest to be held at Gettysburg on April 8. The subject of his speech was "Americanize the Americans". Among the alternates in the contest were Russell W. Stine, who spoke on the topic, "My Country Right or Wrong";

At a chapel service on March 8, President Haas discussed a subject very poignant on the campus at that time, "The Abuse of Fraternities". In this talk he said that many times the fraternities in competing for prospective members resorted to vicious and degrading tactics. He emphasized that the candidate was often wine and dined by the brothers and encouraged to engage in activities wholly unbecoming any student. Frequently, he stated, the revelry was not restricted to the campus but permeated the faculty and administration.

Concerning lectures, it was mentioned that Dr. Fritsch had just completed a series of lectures at St. John's Church, Quakertown, for which he was presented with a gift by the congregation. Dr. Ettinger was busily engaged in presiding at a debate between Allentown and Bethlehem High Schools, delivering an address before the Leighton High School, talking on "Education" before the Parent-Teacher Associations in the Monocacy Building, Bethlehem, and presenting initial address before the opening meeting of the Interstate Circulation Managers' Association and the mass meeting in behalf of the Day Nursery and Children's Home, and Volunteers of America.

It was announced that Prof. C. B. Bowman of Northwestern College, Illinois, was elected to the chair of Economics and Sociology at Muhlenberg.

The Eta and Xi chapters of the Phi Kappa Tau celebrated their 16th Anniversary with a banquet at the Berkshire Hotel in Reading. Dr. Isaac M. Wright acted as toastmaster and introduced the representatives from both Muhlenberg and Franklin and Marshall.

The Lutheran Students' Association of Eastern Pennsylvania held its annual conference at Christ Lutheran Church on April 28, 29, 30. The accredited delegates were two students from the Lutheran group in each school in the jurisdiction.

Compliments were paid to the Glee Club for its successful season. It was noted that the organization appeared before more than 10,000 people and that the solo and chorus work was of exceptional calibre during the year.

LOOK RECORD REVIEW

TOPS IN WAX—Shared by two great trumpet men, Roy Eldridge waxes Hoagy Carmichael's opus: Rockin' Chair and Yard Dog; and Billy Butterfield records Jalousie and Steamroller. All four sides rate playing but the stand-outs are Rockin' Chair and Jalousie. On the former, Roy "Little Jazz" Eldridge gives his full range trumpet a complete work-out and in a mood of relaxation that must rate bows from Hoagy, the composer. Roy catches the precise feeling Hoagy originally intended, and, in addition, Roy lends careful support through the background music, in the use of his band (Decca). On Butterfield's Capitol label of Jalousie and Steamroller the great horn of Billy predominates throughout except for a spot given to Bill Stegmeyer for clarinet. Billy sings Steamroller, and production remains along the line of Cement Mixer—a good novelty.

DANCE—Leading off, Benny Goodman makes a good choice of a standard marching band number for background and solo work in the Columbia recording of Benjie's Bubble. He backs it with A Gal In Calico, with vocal by Eve Young. Both Sonny Dunham (on Vogue) and Freddy Martin (on RCA Victor) have worthwhile recordings of Save Me A Dream. Exclusive Records offer a jumping novelty, T W A by Joe Liggins and The Honeydrippers, then back it with a moody Last Night Blues. Another new Exclusive release is the highly playable album, by Johnny Moore's Three Blazers, three 10 inch discs with these titles foremost—Gloria, St. Louis Blues and Now That You're Gone. New York's sensational quartet, the Joe Mooney Quartet, have a four star topper in September Song and Just A Gigolo (Decca). Tommy Dorsey does two titles from his new picture, "The Fabulous Dorsey", a mellow instrumental, At Sundown, featuring his trombone; and the reverse, To Me, which Stuart

Foster sings (RCA Victor). Victor also offers the Mary Lou Williams Trio in Humoresque, a relaxed and carefully arranged instrumental. On the reverse, the Trio does Waltz Boogie, one of her originals. Columbia has one of the last Doris Day vocal choruses with the Les Brown band in Sooner or Later and reverses it with a Jack Haskell vocal of Years And Years Ago, with Les Brown.

VOCAL STANDOUTS—Topping all the vocals in the nation is Jack McVea's novelty recording, Open The Door, Richard and backed by Lonely Blues. Richard started as a gag tune that Jack and the boys do regularly on engagements; Hoagy Carmichael then, they made a recording on Black & White label and it took the nation by storm. Another "Richard" is done on the Enterprise label by Dick Peterson—and in Swedish dialect. Jewel has one top side of Marion Morgan, ex-James vocalist, singing December and backed by Embraceable You. Ben Pollack and band support her with production music. Top juke rater, Old Buttermilk Sky has an especially good recording by the composer, Hoagy Carmichael on Decca. Among the high rating titles: Guilty, as done by Johnny Desmond on RCA Victor; You Can't See The Sun When You're Crying—Vaughn Monroe with the Moon Maids, RCA Victor; For Sentimental Reasons, a Dinah Shore on Columbia; September Song as done by the perennial Bing Crosby (Decca); Huggin' And A Chalkin' on Capitol by Johnny Mercer with the Paul Weston band and She Didn't Say Yes, Peggy Lee with Dave Barbour and his orchestra—Capitol Criterion.

Faculty Opposes Bonus, Favors Stassen In '48

Only 35 members of the faculty bothered to answer the questions in the WEEKLY public opinion poll, although ballots were placed in the hands of every instructor at a recent faculty meeting.

Those answering show that the faculty disagrees with the student body on the question of a Bonus, 14 saying Yes, and 21 saying No. The student body voted 75.2% in favor of it.

The Honor System question seems to split the faculty right down the middle, with 16 Ayes and 16 Nays. The students favored this question also by 62.0%.

The faculty likes the looks of Harold Stassen in the 1948 presidential election. Tom Dewey, the student body winner, was placed second.

Three faculty members did not know if they voted in the election last November, (or else they "read the question wrong").

The number of those answering was too few to make a worthwhile break-down of the results. Seventeen said they belonged to the Republican Party, nine Democratic Party, and nine Independent.

Do you favor a bonus for veterans?

'Berg Eligible For Photo Contest

The second annual 50 print Collegiate Photography Exhibition, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Mu, national pictorial journalism honor fraternity, will be held at the University of Missouri during "Journalism Week," W. J. Bell, secretary, announced today.

Deadline for entries is April 30, 1947. Prints will be judged by three outstanding judges, who will also select those for representation in the fourth annual "Fifty Print" professional show.

The winner of the show will receive a new Eastman twin-lens reflex camera, donated by "Popular Photography" magazine.

Floyd Bright, University of Oklahoma, was last year's winner. He received a week's all-expenses paid trip to Chicago.

Fifty-eight photographers, representing 16 colleges and universities, submitted 185 prints last year.

Any college or university student is eligible to enter from one to eight prints, using news, features or pictorial subject matter.

There is no entry fee, but pictures must be sent prepaid. Prints may be any size but must be mounted on standard 16" x 20" boards.

Phi Sigma Iota Meets Tonight

Napoleon's mother, Letizia Bonaparte, will be the subject of David O. Tyson's paper before the regular meeting of the Phi Sigma Iota honorary romance language fraternity this evening.

The meeting will take place at the home of Mr. Lee Van Horn, 1624 Union Boulevard, Allentown, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

ATO Initiates 14 Pledges

Fourteen men were formally initiated into Alpha Tau Omega over the past weekend. Upon completion of initiation ceremonies, the new brothers were guests of the chapter at the sixty-sixth anniversary Founders' Day dinner at the Hotel Traylor.

The Hon. James F. Henninger, President Judge, Lehigh County Courts, was toastmaster, introducing Dr. H. Sherman Oberly, National Educational Adviser, Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, who was the principal speaker. More than three hundred chapter and alumni brothers attended, representing, in many cases, three generations of Alpha Taus.

The new initiates are: James Chafey, Bay Head, N. J.; John Davey, Philadelphia; Richard Douthit, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Kenneth Fetter, Atlantic City, N. J.; Paul Frick, Pottsville; Lawrence Miles, Northport, N. Y.; Charles Parker, Pitman, N. J.; Carl Saueracker, Plainfield, N. J.; Joel Skidmore, Huntington, N. Y.; Nathan Smith, Leighton, Pa.; Oscar Snyder, East Stroudsburg, Pa.; Wallace Vogler, Hinsdale, Ill.; James Weldon, Davenport, Ia.; Duane Williams, Wayne, Pa.

EASTER VACATION:

Easter vacation, according to the college catalog, is to start officially at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 3rd, and is to end at 8:00 a.m. on Wednesday, April 9th.

Officers of Alpha Nu Chapter

Officers of the Alpha Nu chapter of the Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity, recently reactivated on the Muhlenberg campus after being dormant through the war years, include: Norman Cohen, Newark, superior; Irwin Kreindel, Allentown, historian; Paul Steinberg, Atlantic City, vice superior, and Herb Garber, Philadelphia, secretary-treasurer.

MUHLENBERG ALUMNUS COACHES SOCCER TEAM IN MONROVIA, LIBERIA

The creator of the notorious character of Bennet I. Fisher has now carried the name of Muhlenberg to the depths of the Dark Continent.

Ernest H. Flothmeier, class of 1940, a missionary teaching at the Muhlenberg School at the American Lutheran Mission, Monrovia, Liberia, recently sent a check for $60.00 to the Muhlenberg Christian Association with a request for soccer supplies, balls, T-shirts, and Muhlenberg stickers. He is organizing a soccer team at the mission school, and needs the equipment to get the team started.

Franklin Sherman, president of the MCA, and the Athletic office, collected the equipment and sent it back to Rev. Flothmeier together with his check for $60.00. He was asked to keep the MCA up to date on the success of the team and on his work at the mission.

Ernie Flothmeier, as a Cheerleader, member of the "M" Club and member of the Freshman Tribunal, did more than any other student in recent years to instill college spirit in the Muhlenberg student body.

It was largely through his efforts that the first Lehigh bonfire was staged the night before the game in the 1938 season. When the pile of wood was set off prematurely on Thursday night, a spirited student body worked all day Friday collecting scrap lumber in time for the official igniting

Students To Study Legislation At Meeting

Students from all leading Pennsylvania colleges and universities are studying parliamentary procedure, drafting bills, and discussing state legislation in preparation for the 10th annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Conference on Government.

This year's meeting, slated for Harrisburg, April 18-20, will take the form of a model state legislature. Eleven legislative committees will set up to give preliminary consideration to all bills introduced.

It is expected that Governor James H. Duff will address the opening session on Friday morning, April 18, in the education forum.

This will be the first time it has met as a model state legislature, with the student delegates pretending that they are members of the General Assembly and introducing, debating, and adopting bills which have been previously drafted on their respective campuses.

Previously the conference has met as a model state constitution, model national political convention, model interstate governors conference, and a conference on post-war reconstruction.

Political science students will comprise the bulk of the "politicians" at the convention. They will meet in a legislature that will operate under the present Pennsylvania Constitution, except in so far as the constitution provides for two houses and for certain legislative procedures which time and space will not permit. The model legislature will be unicameral.

BEHIND YOUR TELEPHONE is one of the World's Greatest Machines

When you pick up a telephone receiver . . .

You can route your voice through any one of thousands of local central offices, some with dial mechanisms so complex they stagger the imagination, yet so efficient they seem to work like lightning; others staffed by operators whose work sets a heart-warming standard for cheerful, helpful service.

You have at your command literally millions of miles of telephone wire and cable.

You can direct your call to any one of some 28,000,000 telephones in the United States, and to an equal number throughout the world.

The telephone business is far-reaching. It takes hundreds of thousands of people to run it. Invested in it are savings of nearly 700,000 men and women.

But this machine, vast as it is, is not yet big enough to give telephone service to everyone who wants it!

Here in Pennsylvania, for example—this year—we are planning to expand it to the tune of some $65,000,000; to build 14 new buildings and to install in them new, central office equipment; to make major additions to 15 other buildings; to enlarge almost every central office in the state; to place 450,000 miles of wire; to add nearly 200,000 telephones to the total now in service.

You're Faded, Champs

The victorious Mules engage in a little post game relaxation. It looks like Red Baldwin just rolled a natural. You can catch a closer look at the three cups any time in the Athletic Office.

SIDE COURT STABS...

by Herb Needleman

It's about this time of the year that sports editors, large and small, talented and otherwise, start on a diet of Anacin and Chesterfields, as they try to get suitable material for their sheets.

With basketball, wrestling and other winter sports taking their curtain calls, and baseball yet to make its entrance, the dailies are forced to use almost any stories they can lay their typewriters on as copy. Pick up any paper, turn to the sports page, and you're virtually sure to get the latest box scores on the championship shillelagh bouts in Glocca Morra, or the outcome of the croquet matches held at Knickerback-on-the-Bottle, Eng.

The situation's pretty tight, but due to break with the debut of the tennis and baseball seasons, so bear with us, and we'll try to give you the dope as best we can until then.

Red Baldwin bowed out of the ranks of 'Berg cagers last week, playing the last game of his college career at Delaware. Not too many Mule fans were there to witness Red's finale against LaSalle, and we'd like to toss in our bundle of posies. Pivot men of Baldwin's rank don't come along very often, and the guy's scoring punch will be sorely missed next year.

I don't think that we're putting on a show of sour grapes when we question the tournament committee's choice of the outstanding ball player of the Middle Atlantic Play-offs. We hear that at a conclave of the coaches following the first night's games, the honor was unofficially conceded to Harry Donovan, last year's recipient of the cup.

Fasnacht of Swarthmore is a fine ball player, needless to say, but we can think of quite a few men who seemed to be more logical contenders for the title, and who played both games.

Something else that seems just a little bit unright to us is the fact that while last year's winners received gold watches for their efforts, our ball club has nothing more to show than a few blisters.

Bud Barker and club get a round of congrats for taking the tourney and shoving three bright trophies in front of the open eyes and mouths of the fair weather fans, who changed sides more times than a flea in a kennel. Good going, Bud.

Lacrosse, considered by some to be the roughest sport in existence is played at many leading colleges and universities.

Flying Dutchmen Drub Eagles As Intra-Murals Get Underway

The second week of I-M sports has produced more of that winning spirit as the hardwood was burned up again in West Hall.

In the first game of this league the Flying Dutchmen are still flying on the win column as they downed the lower flying Eagles 49-26.

The Hotshots really lived up to their name in the second game as they came back after trailing 16-13 at half time to down the Sigma Phi Epsilon club 38-25.

The Whoopie Scrubs and the Commoners looked as if they were going to battle a close contest but Lesko ran wild for the Scrubs, scoring 13 points in the second half in addition to one from the floor in the first stanza for a total of 15 points. Final count, Scrubs 37, Commoners 24.

League II

In the first game of the week for this league, the Scholars regained a little of the prestige lost last week by downing the Pillow Five 37-31. Michels and Kleitz led the attack for the winners with 12 points each from the floor.

In another close game the Horlacher "9" were just one hop below the Four Handed team in a game that saw the score tied right up until the dying minutes when the brew boys were drowned in a last minute spurge to lose 38-34.

Four Handed			Horlacher "9"
G	F	Pts.	G	F	Pts.
Becton f	1	0	Warlicher f	3	0
Alberts f	4	0	Branton f	1	0
Weldon f	3	0	Schlauch f	0	0
Godecke c	5	0	Geist c	4	0
Junest g	3	0	Efersh c	0	0
Rank g	0	0	Bisbing g	4	2
Angel g	3	0	Holznan g	4	0
	19	0		16	2

The ATO boys certainly showed the Pros that they need some professional advice as they romped all over them in a free scoring contest 54-10.

League III

The Misfits repeated their first appearance performance on the court as they knocked off the low flying Blue Birds by the score of 64-52. Rollo led the attack with nine field goals and two charity tosses for a total of 20 points.

In the second game of this league the Lambda Chi battled to all ends with Phi Epsilon Pi boys before they downed them to the tune of 40-37. It was a close game throughout and the last few minutes saw the winners pull their 3-point margin out of the hat.

The Park A. C. stopped the Clowns from their pumping victory of last week as they downed them by 20 points, 45-25.

Bill expressed his opinion to the writer of this column that now that two weeks play has been officially recorded there is a growing tendency to get away from the old style "RITTER BALL", and the boys are really settling down to some classy play on the hardwood.

LEAGUE I

There were two games played in this league and one forfeit. In the first tilt the Sigma Phi Epsilon club won their first game by downing the Commoners 21-11.

In the second game the high flying Jokers made it another 30 point victory by pouncing all over the Hotshots 52-22. Schanz and Olsen led the winners with 13 points each.

In the first forfeit in any of the leagues, the Whoopie Scrubs took the decision over the Blue Beetles.

LEAGUE II

The A.T.O. boys were victorious as League II held the Spotlight Monday evening. A.T.O. was just too much for the South Hall Toads as they downed them to the tune of 44-30.

The Horlacher "9" must still be using some of that secret brew formula as they came through to knock off the Pros. 34-19.

In the last game of the evening, the Four Handed seemed to have each man outfitted with just that many as they romped all over the not too speedy Tornados 56-24.

Golf Team No Go

It was definitely made known this week by Floyd Swartzwalder, temporary athletic director, that there will be no golf team at Muhlenberg in 1947. More interest has been shown this year than any other year, due to the return of many servicemen who have taken the game seriously. According to official reports, golf was not included in the Athletic budget for 1947. Swimming and Tennis, also non-paying sports, have been chosen by the committee in order to allow more students to participate in collegiate athletics.

A successful football and cage season next Fall may provide the hopes for a team in the Spring of 1948.

Mules Capture Middle Atlantic Tourney Defeating Albright 58-55, LaSalle 45-41

Vets Bolster 'Hoss' Lough's Baseball Team In Early Drills

Making it's bow with warm weather and spring, the Muhlenberg baseball team is readying for its opening tilt on April 3rd.

Under the tutelage of "Hoss" Lough, the Mule diamond candidates are now at work sharpening up in all departments. Last season the team earned a .500 percentage with 7 wins and 7 defeats.

Lough will have several returning lettermen from last year's squad around which to build, together with ex-Mule ball players from other years, and some untired talent.

On the mound, Cliff Kindred, Walt Busch, Lefty Meyers, Paul Snyder and possibly Diz Dean will make up the staff.

Holdover infield candidates include George Bibighaus, Bill Lybrand, Ed Schwob and if he's not on the mound, Diz Dean may again cover the hot corner.

Paul Karobeinick, who handled the catching chores for 'Berg last year, will either again don the mask or move to an infield spot. He's a classy ball player at any spot and should be ready for a great year.

Also working behind the plate is Rog Talosky who has shown up well in practice. If Talosky gets the nod, Karobeinick will most likely go to second or third.

The outfield contingent is headed by Hank Henry and Cy Davis of the '46 and '43 squads respectively. Several men are battling for starting berths but it appears as though both Hank and Cy are on the inside, so far, for two of the garden spots.

Many top notch opponents will be faced this season, including N. Y. U., Penn State and Lafayette.

Coming from behind in real championship style, the Mules annexed the Middle Atlantic States Basketball title by dumping a good LaSalle team, 45-41.

The game was a close thriller all the way down to the wire. The lead changed twice at the beginning of the festivities, and the quarter ended with Donovan & Co. on the long end of a 13-10 count. Walters and McCann then got hot for LaSalle, and 'Berg trailed at half-time 25-19.

The Explorers led all through a torrid third period, and with but four minutes left in the final stanza, they held a 41-38 advantage. It was here that the Mules rose to the occasion and showed their championship calibre. Theisen and Saemmer each scored from the field, Saemmer converted from the charity line, and Schwob hit from underneath. That made it 45-41 and the ball game.

ALBRIGHT ANGLE

Muhlenberg, playing for the second consecutive year in the Mid-Atlantic tournament, at the University of Delaware basketball court, defeated Albright in the semi-finals 58-55. The game was hard fought and tied five times in the third period. The difference between the two teams was the more experienced competition that 'Berg had to face during the regular season.

Albright which had qualified for the tournament by winning the Western division of the Mid-Atlantic conference had a surprisingly tough team and matched Muhlenberg point for point in the first half which ended with 'Berg leading 32-31. In the second period, Anlian of Albright scored four baskets, one being a set shot three quarters the length of the court as the period ended.

In the third period the score was tied at 34, 36, 38 and 45 all. However, at one point the Mules were behind by three points, 45-42, but 'Berg scored seven straight points. McGee scored four straight points, Pfeiffer followed with a lay-up and Saemmer added a foul.

In the final period with Muhlenberg leading by 57-51, Oscar Kreibel of Albright scored two quick baskets to bring his team within two points of the Mules who however, succeeded in holding their lead. Kreibel of Albright was the star of the second half scoring twelve of his sixteen points for Albright then.

The game was well played and unfortunately there were only 2200 fans, and less than a hundred Allentownians witnessing the fine ball played. Baldwin and McGee controlled the backboards and Mackin, Theisen and Loneragan constantly broke up the Lions' plays. The Mules were outscored from the floor 25 baskets to 22 but won the ball game from the foul line, scoring 14 out of 21 free throws while Albright made five out of nine. Harry Donovan and Saemmer were high scorers for 'Berg, scoring 17 and 16 points respectively. However, high scorer for the game was Eddie Anlian of Albright with 22 points.

Howie Morenz, grand wizard of the ice hockey world, was still one of the top notchers of the game when he died suddenly at the age of 47.

LEADS ON LASALLE

Walters of LaSalle was playing his last game for the Explorers, and he made it a honey by netting 13 points and turning in a fine floor game. Foust, LaSalle's king-size center, might as well have had boxing gloves on.

This 19th win in 26 starts against top-flight opposition was a glorious team victory, and marked the second time this season that the Cardinal and Grey whipped the Philly cagers. It was a sweet triumph for Coach Bud Barker, who brought 'Berg its first Conference title.

Eddie Schwob and Al Saemmer stole honors in the scoring department with 12 and 11 points respectively. Harry Donovan played his usual fine game, although he went through the second half with four personal fouls against him. Harry, along with Brother Eddie and Dick McGee, had things pretty much their own way under the boards. "Red" Baldwin donned his familiar number 13 for the last time, and he made his last game a good one. He was excellent on the defense and set up plays like a master.

berg College a Publication Fee of $9.00 on or before the opening of college, in lieu of the former Muhlenberg WEEKLY, and the CIARLA Fee as listed in Section 1, Article V, of the By-Laws.

Section 2. This Publication Fee shall provide for the publication of the Muhlenberg WEEKLY, the CIARLA, the M Book, and the Arcade. The money received from the Publication Fee shall not be used for any other purpose except student publications.

Section 3. The money received from the Publications Fee shall be allotted by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, which is composed of the members of the Student Council and the faculty members who shall from time to time serve on that committee.

Section 4. The Student Council and the Dean of Students shall use the assembly fund to provide speakers or entertainments for the student assembly programs.

The CIARLA which was, previous to the war, published by the Junior Class for the graduating class in the Spring of the year will now come out in the Fall and cover the Graduation of the previous Spring. The provision for this is incorporated in Article VIII.

Article VIII—CIARLA Officers

Section 1. The responsible CIARLA officers shall consist of an Editor-in-Chief, and a Business Manager, whose duty it shall be, with the advice of the Dean of Students and the Business Manager of the College, to publish the college annual, the CIARLA, covering the events from September 1 of one year to September 1 of the next year.

Section 2. Section 4 of Article 1 of the Articles in Amendments to the By-Laws shall be rescinded.

Article IX—Vacancies in the Student Council

Section 1. If any vacancy occurs in the Student Council, a new election shall be held to fill that seat.

These proposed amendments will be finally voted upon at a Student Body Meeting which will be held Friday morning, March 28 from 11 to 12 a.m. in the Science Auditorium.

All classes tomorrow after the meeting will be one-half hour later than scheduled.

Important Vets Confab, March 26

Veterans who were enrolled for the semester beginning September 24, 1946 must report to the Science Auditorium Wednesday, March 26, 1947. There will be two meetings. The first meeting will consist of those men whose last names begin with letters from A to L inclusive. The reporting time will be 4 p.m.

The second meeting will be comprised of those men whose last names begin with letters from M to Z inclusive. This group will report at 5 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting will be to complete Veterans Administration form 7-1963, a report of compensation for productive labor received during the semester beginning in September and an estimate of compensation to be received during the present semester.

This applies to all students under Veterans Administration Law and whether employed or not. It is important that every veteran understands that if this form is not completed, his subsistence will be stopped.

The Veterans Administration wishes to make clear that the initiation of all action pertaining to beginning or ending of school, compensation, etc., is the responsibility of the individual veteran. The V. A. does not perform this duty. It is advised that all action be initiated early in order that it may be completed at the earliest possible time.

Low Rossi Bosses "Arcade"

Low Rossi presided at a meeting last Monday afternoon in the English Seminar in West Hall to discuss further the proposed issue of the Arcade, 'Bergs literary magazine, which will be published early in the Spring.

The Arcade is the medium of expression for Muhlenberg's literary and artistic geniuses and any student will be free to enter articles in the magazine. After the organization is complete, it is hoped that prizes can be offered for the best story and art work submitted. When funds for publication are assured, work will go ahead and the call for articles will go out.

Those that answered the call for help on the staff are Jim Reppert, Art Damask, Bob Fratscher, Lewis Hawk, Dave Tyson, Lewis Haines and Everitt Wilson. It was pointed out that more help along journalistic lines will be needed in the future and the call is still out for staff members. Future meetings will be posted.

German Club Initiates Six Members At Meeting

Der Deutsche Verein held its regular meeting on Monday evening in the recreation room of West Hall. Of paramount importance was the initiation of new members into Der Verein.

The meeting and initiation ceremony were conducted by Donald T. Miller, Vorz., capably aided by Adolph Wegener, Schriftfuhrer. The new members of the Deutscher Verein are Earlin Lutz, Charles Schellenberger, Edward Treichel, Paul Weiss, Harold Alibert, Martin Martzall.

After the business session and initiation, an enjoyable program was presented. Most interesting were the autobiographies which were presented by the initiates—in German. Capably rendered, these humorous stories introduced the men to other members of Der Verein. Group singing, led by Dr. Wood, was also enjoyed. Dr. Barba prompted the playing of gay German games.

Forensic Tournament For All Freshmen Planned

On Monday evening, March 24, in the West Hall auditorium, the first meeting of those interested in the Freshmen Debating Tournament will be held at 7:00 p.m.

Those participating in the contest will choose team mates if they have not already done so, and schedules will be made up.

The orthodox method of debating is the style to be employed in the Tournament. Using this method, both members of the affirmative side and both members of the negative side will offer an 8 minute constructive speech and a 5 minute rebuttal speech.

All Freshmen are eligible to enter this war of words, and the topic to be discussed will be Resolved: That the Federal Government should provide free medical care for all its citizens.

The Forensic Council Trophy, now on display in the Library, will be presented to the winners on Monday evening, May 5, when the Tournament will end.

The purpose of this contest is to discover and develop new material for varsity debating. The Varsity debaters have been quite active this year and in previous years. E. Philip Bollier has announced an extensive schedule for next year. Debates with colleges in the east and, possibly, some western colleges are expected.

Tomorrow afternoon, at 4:00 p.m. in the West Hall auditorium, Robert M. Smith and James D. Wilder will represent Muhlenberg against Haverford. The national question will be discussed.

Paper-bound copies of the text, which was written especially for such study, will be available for any interested students who wish to join the group next week.

Preparatory material was presented at last Wednesday's Christian Association meeting by three talks, which were followed by general discussion: "The Church and World Peace", by Franklin Sherman, "The U. N., San Francisco to Now", by Adolf Wegener, and "America's Present Foreign Policy", by David Johnson. It was emphasized, however, that it is not necessary to have attended this meeting, or to be an active member of the Muhlenberg Christian Association, in order to participate in the sessions with Dr. Johnson.

acted as secretary for the committee which prepared the Harvard Report on General Education in a free society, will report on some of the conclusions which that group reached. Books and periodicals in the Muhlenberg Library will provide information on such other outstanding or newly revised curricula as those at Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. John's, and the University of Chicago.

Such questions as the following have been listed: How can the college best educate its men and women for a society and a world in which all people, regardless of race, color, or nationality, will have the opportunity to share alike in all relationships of life? How can the schools prepare students to help create the conditions essential to sound family life? How can the social sciences be taught so as to provide adequate tools for citizens who must tackle the jobs now confronting our democracy?

Next Wednesday's meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Dean Mercer (across Chew Street from the President's Home). The entire group will probably meet from three to five times more this term, going to discuss Democracy in the Student Body, Faculty, and Administration, The Place of Religion in Higher Education, the Relation of Our Colleges to Our Society, and other topics.

New Wrestling Coach PROCURED For Matmen

Miss Fifi LaTrine, of Mauch Chunk, Pa., has been named new wrestling coach at Muhlenberg, the Athletic Office announced this week.

Miss LaTrine, nicknamed "Bunny" by her friends, graduated from Cedar Crest in 1942, and took her M.A. in Physical Education in 1944 at Lehigh, a college in Bethlehem, where she gained her experience in wrestling.

No stranger to Muhlenberg, the husky Bunny LaTrine faced Bert Wessman in the finals of the Middle Atlantic tournament in 1943 and managed to throw him with a Body Press in the last 2 seconds of the bout.

The Athletic Committee expects a record-breaking turn-out of candidates for wrestling next year as a result of Miss LaTrine being signed as coach, and to accommodate all, Jayvee and Freshmen squads will be organized. Prospective candidates will be pleased to learn, however, that Miss LaTrine can handle all squads.

Miss LaTrine, who is not the washed-out character her name might imply, weighs in at 175. Asked by a WEAKLY reporter if she cared to disclose her other measurements at this time, she replied "Soitenly not!"

Business Men's Group Won't Meet

Thaddeus Q. Articulate, President of the Muhlenberg Business Men's Ass. (that's association), has announced that there will be no meeting of the group tomorrow, Tuesday, April 1 at 3 a.m. in the bread locker of the College Commons kitchen as was not originally scheduled in the first place due to the bread which got there first.

Thad, highly indignant because of the circulation of a rumor which seemed to make the inactive Business Men's Ass. active again, released the fact that the Society has not met for some three decades and has no intentions for promulgating such drastic action.

Emerging from post-war inactivity, the group plunges right back into the inactivity which they have always enjoyed, unchallenged and unabated.

The President wishes to announce that no plans have been laid in the past for doing anything, no plans are currently being effected for any action, and no intentions, honorable or otherwise, are in order for the future.

Anyone not afraid of doing nothing is eligible for membership.

Dean Sherwood Mercer wished to draw the attention of the student body to an important item which was to have been announced in this space, but inasmuch as Dean Sherwood Mercer did not notify the WEAKLY of his intention so to do until five minutes before our deadline, his announcement does not appear in this issue of the WEAKLY, so we can only urge you to keep your eye on the bulletin board and on the pages of forthcoming WEAK-deadline, his announcement which will appear at some future date.

Noted Surgeon Passes On Dope About Local Trees

An exclusive interview with Mr. Hartzell revealed to this WEAKLY reporter the answer to the question on everyone's tongue as spring roles in on the peaceful Muhlenberg campus. Why has the bark been scraped off the trunks of all the trees about the campus at a point some four feet from the base of the tree?

Mr. Hartzell has an official title, Superintendent of Building and Grounds. Ah yes, we thought. Being an eager reporter we shall go to the Ad Building and hunt for the office marked "Superintendent of Building and Grounds". But such simple bliss — among the myriad of offices in the catacomb-like edifice no such office was to be found. Moreover finding no such office, no such Mr. Hartzell was in.

Undaunted we pressed our attack onward, and finally found our object out on the campus hiding behind a rhododendron bush waiting patiently for Spring to drape "his" Campus in beauty. Spring, he hoped, would step in where maintenance men feared to tread — or is it tread?

Few people know that this Dean of Carbonology at Muhlenberg College is in reality the world renowned Dr. Alvin W. Hartzell, Tree Surgeon Extraordinary. Dr. Hartzell, being an unassuming and modest man put away his medal for first prize in the "Tree of the Year" Contest and proceeded to disclaim or minimize a past record which has vaulted him to the coveted role of "the world's most ambidextrous tree surgeon".

The Doctor, upon prodding, admitted that since childhood at the tender age of three he was prone

Scribes Scribble Among Schmoyer's Sloppy Shrubs

Saturday, March 29 was a day which will be long remembered by the members of the WEAKLY staff. Adhering to the authority who said, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," all of the staff who were fortunate enough to have the name of Jack, retired to Schmoyer's Barn in Trexler-town to engage in extracurricular festivities.

Owing to the fact that the journalistic mind is not frivolous by nature, the affair rather dragged for the first few minutes. However, upon the appearance of soda-pop and hor' d'overes, the formality disappeared and great fun was had by all.

The dignity of the WEAKLY staff cannot be denied when one takes note of the celebrities who were present. Miami Mike Rogers, realizing the precedence he had to set as co-editor, escorted none other than Hortense Dingdong of "For Whom The Bell Tolls", fame. Dave "Knucklehead" Tyson was seen heading for the haypile with our new wrestling coach, Fifi LaTrine. Everybody who was anybody was there including everybody who was nobody.

Among the activities which were participated in, Spin-the-bottle seemed most popular. Morals hit rock bottom as boy kissed girl, man kissed women and man kissed boy.

Dean Kendig honored the staff by attending. His entrance was nothing less than spectacular as he came charging into the barn on his favorite horse, Sparkplug, shouting those immortal words of Red Skelton, "Whoa horse whoa".

The whole affair was a huge success and it lasted until the wee hours. (wee hours being the hours when those who feel inclined, run about shouting, "WEE WEE"). Accordingly the WEAKLY will not go to press this week.

When asked how they enjoyed the party the staff had this to say, "Hic-hic urp slurp hic—whew—wow humnnnnnnn?"

Guests at the party included outstanding journalists from all over Emmaus, Macungie and Nazareth.

Weakly Pole Reports

Final results of a WEAKLY Pole to determine an unbiased and impartial answer to one of the most pertinent questions of the day have been computed from more than 1000 persons interviewed on the campus.

This pole was purposely not given any advanced publicity. It was conducted in a quiet manner in an attempt to obtain from the student a spontaneous answer to the touchy question and not a pre-formed answer influenced by pre-pole ballyhoo.

Although admittedly a delicate question to broach to the average student, some of whom it is supposed are still quite young, the procedure of interview drew no distinction between race, creed or age.

Confronted with such frankness some were noticeably shocked; still others hesitated as the blood rushed to their heads. Many in answering either in the affirmative or negative offered qualifying statements to their decision.

Final tabulation showed that 78.2% of all those questioned were in favor of it. 18.3% were definitely not in favor of it under any circumstances. 2% were obviously on the fence, while the remainder didn't seem to know what we were talking about.

"OOPS, Pardon My Gloves"

Moll Rats On Crooks; Store Theft Plot Flops

An alert WEAKLY cameraman aided the long, sinewy arm of the law as it descended last Friday on three Muhlenberg men—"Clepto" Kenny Conrad, Harry "the horsethief" Boretsky, and John E. T. "Slippery Digits" Rogers—as the trio were about to abscond with cash receipts and sundry other items from the College Cooperative Store where they are employed.

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS

An official letter from the War Department, Washington, D. C. addressed to all students studying under the G.I. Bill of Rights, Pub'c Laws #346 or 16, has been received by the V. A. representative on this campus. With world conditions as they are, it's tone is somewhat disturbing. It reads:

Quote — GREETINGS!—Unquote.

Signed, H.S.T.

The crime which had been carefully planned weeks in advance would have succeeded if Barbara "Put de Blame on Mame" Schantz had not tipped off the WEAKLY just two hours before the crime. Miss Schantz was originally to have been "cut in" on the deal since for many weeks she has been fixing the books to cover discrepancies in school store receipts. It was learned that the this intramural gangster's moll had for some time been in love with "Slippery Digits" Rogers for whom she held no small passion. However "Digits", who is currently in rehearsal for the part of the poor man's Hamlet in the Play of practically the same name, being deluged with many such rapturous fans, had repeatedly spurned the beauteous underworld siren. Spurned, frustrated love, then, was listed as the motivation for her squealing to the police and the WEAKLY.

Quick justice was executed following the crime. Charged with petty larceny, grand larceny, misappropriation, embezzlement, absconding, abscondulation, contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile (Miss Schantz), malfeasance, malefaction and malnutrition, the three crooks are being held at the local hoosegow on $2,000,000,000 bail, a mere fraction of the national debt. Miss Schantz in lieu of her age and good record is being held without bail as a key witness for the persecution.

Although "Clepto" Conrad is expected to plead for leniency, indications are that he will return to his former place of residence by the river in New York, Sing Sing Prison. If such is the case Conrad for sentimental reasons will be asked to be incarcerated (imprisoned, that is) in cell block 12, cell number 28 where one or another of his family have kept a seat warm for over five decades.

Conrad admitted to questioners that he began stealing pennies from the store's cash register as far back as October and increased the denomination from pennies to fifty cent pieces by February. A modern Jean Val Jean, Conrad claims that's his only purpose was to provide more homogenized milk for his children at home. "I just couldn't stand the look on their faces when I said I'd have to cut out the Homogenized because it was getting too expensive", said the emotional Conrad.

Conrad's road to inglorious has its pitiful aspect. He acquired the monicker "Clepto" because of an incurable inherited cleptomaniac which has been passed down through the genes of the chromosomes in the Conrad family ever since great-great-grandfather Conrad pocketed the compass on the Mayflower on the way to the new world. Instead of playing marbles and hide-and-seek like good boys should, Conrad spent most of his boyhood frequently the local five-and-ten cent store doing his Christmas shoplifting early.

Boretsky, a hardened criminal, was the only one of the trio who showed no remorse when faced with a long prison term. "Horsethief Harry" did not come by his name accidentally. His family tree is literally crawling with horsethieves, and in his own little way Boretsky sought to sustain family tradition. Boretsky, who upon rough grilling admitted to selling 253 "Histories of World Civilization" on the side at 25 cents a copy, had this to say: "It was no easy job"—selling the books he means. On the foiled attempt at robbery he had this gem to add: "I never wanted da' dame in on and da deal anyway. I told Clepto and Digits it would queer da ting. Womens is bad luck."

"Slippery Digits", when confronted with the charges piled up against him, broke down completely and bawled in true Shakespearean style. For Rogers the "stretch" will be the first time he

Remodeling Program For Memorial Chapel

In keeping with the current modernization and improvement program being carried out on the campus, Chaplain Doberstein announced this week that he had submitted extensive plans for the refurbishing of the chapel and the redesigning of chapel services.

"I'm tired of seeing the boys come to chapel with sour looks on their faces and go away still sourer," Dr. Doberstein said in an exclusive interview with a WEAKLY reporter. "We're going to make this a chapel of distinction."

Prominent among the scheduled improvements for the chapel is the soft indirect lighting system which will replace the ugly Gothic lamps now there. The walls, according to Dr. Doberstein, are to be redecorated in restful pink, and the ceiling is to be done over in a lively pistachio green. Dr. Doberstein also assured this reporter that the wiring for the public address system will be ripped out, to make it possible for tired students to sleep without being disturbed by service or sermon.

Modern, individually reclining upholstered chairs will replace the hard wooden benches now in the chapel, the chaplain continued, and there will be numerous ashtrays provided for those who do not wish to extinguish their cigars or cigarettes upon entering the chapel.

A unique feature of the new chapel will be the cooperative student bar which is to be built into the foyer. Free drinks will be available at this bar through the courtesy of the Christian Association.

Interesting speakers will also form a part of the new chapel programs, the chaplain continued. Among the first of these, he added, will be Dr. James Edgar Swain, who will speak on the topic "How To Run A Cooperative Bookstore Successfully, and Get Away With It."

Expressing his opinion that chapel attendance requirements have been far too heavy in the past, Chaplain Doberstein emphasized the fact that under the new system the number of required attendances have been cut from two per week to two per semester. There will be no chapel attendance slips in the future, the reporting of students being entirely on the honor system.

IN PROFILE-

Bennet I. Skiouros

It was difficult procuring an interview with Bennet I. Skiouros, Editor-in-Chief of the 1947 CIARLA and the most industrious student on the campus. But, when he finally consented to the question barrage, he proved the perfect host.

"Sit down," he said, proffering a large beautiful hazel nut. "What is it you would like to know?" Thus, we sat on the campus under his favorite tree, nibbling on hazel nuts. We became fast friends.

"Well," I began, there is much speculation as to just how you obtained the office of editor-in-chief of the 1947 CIARLA. Would you mind explaining that, please?"

"Not at all. You see, I had known for quite some time that no provision had been made for the 1947 CIARLA, consequently no editor-in-chief. Following the example of a friend of mine from Georgia, Bennett I. Talmadge, I rushed to fill the existing vacancy. I plastered the bulletin boards with broadside announcing the coming CIARLA election. The students responded in their usual manner, and hence I was swept into office actually unopposed, winning by one vote—my own."

"Thank you," I said, "but aren't you in disfavor for that piece of work?"

"An contraire," he answered smiling broadly and flashing both his beautiful incisors. "Ever since I did it, everyone has been displaying an increased affection for me, calling me 'Sweet Bennett.' Of course, that's a bit long for a nickname, so they abbreviate it and just call me 'S. B.'"

While the conversation continued I noticed that Bennett I. Skiouros, unlike the other squirrels . . . students on the campus, had a habit foreign to the American college student; that is, he spends hardly any of his time sitting on his broad tail.

Knowing that here was a typical student whose answers would reflect all student activity and opinion, I asked, "What, Mr. Skiouros, is your attitude toward cooperation in reviving a dormant school spirit?"

"Nuts!" he replied.

"Thank you," I said, and took another hazel nut from his outstretched arms. Then, getting no further answer from him, I changed the subject. "Are you going to the big dance?"

"Oh yes," he brightened, "I'm taking that lovely Benedicta I. McSupine from the Beta Glocca Morra house over on the hill. The dance is being held in the band shell at West Park, and Bennett I. Lumplunk and his famous 'Swing Fifteen' will furnish the music. Just think, they got him to play from 9 to 12, and he's only asking 150,000 dollars." Skiouros continued excitedly, emblematically. "Yes sree, it's going to be a big weekend—first I'll be cheering at the beanbag playoffs, and then dancing to the music of Lumplunk's Swing Fifteen."

Much as I hated to do it, I had to leave at this, the very height of his volubility. I rose, and he scrambled up the tree to the level of my face, then he turned and gazed quizzically into my eyes.

"Bennett," I said with much effort, "It may be a long time until we will talk like this again." I slowly extended my right hand which he grasped. "Until then, luck go with you and," I faltered, filled with emotion, "nuts to you."

"Many thanks, friend," he answered gravely. "Au revoir." He turned quickly, and disappeared among the branches overhead.

As I watched him vanish from my sight my face became flushed, my eyes filled with tears, a large lump stuck in my throat. I was choking on a hazel nut.

Welcome To Muhlenberg

DR. FINGERNAILBITER

PROF. POOFERNAGLE

Announcement was made this morning that two new members of the Muhlenberg Faculty would assume their positions right after Easter vacation.

Coming to Muhlenberg after twenty-three years in the staff of the Virginia State Institute for Wayward Women, Dr. Lemuel X. Fingernailbiter will conduct his world renowned course in, "The Paste Pot Revolt of 1775". This course is an advanced study of the relative merits of using paste over ordinary glue for the purpose of sticking together with shipmates.

DORMS DORMANT! SQUIRRELS OBJECT! BABIES BENEFIT!

The new dormitories on the northeastern corner of the campus will undoubtedly be opened for occupancy by no later than September, 1966, according to a new announcement superseding all previous announcements issued by the business office. All married students who have children under the age of two or who are expecting children within the next five years or so, and who are contemplating sending said children to Muhlenberg should register their youngsters' names with the not yet created 'Berg Baby Bureau (the BBB), so that rooms may be reserved for them.

The business office has informed your reporter that the new date has been set because of conditions beyond its control. The unexpected delay in the arrival of a specially designed squirrel-exterminator because the inventor was recaptured by attendants from the local insane asylum while in the last stage of perfecting his work, and the adamant refusal of local labor unions to work with squirrels throwing nuts at them all day long are but two of the problems facing the Business Manager. There is also a shortage of cinder blocks, concrete, lumber, beer pretzels, bar room fixtures, slot machines, diapers, dill pickles, tile roofing, nylons, and Bourbon to contend with. In short, there's a shortage of nearly everything in Allentown except students and squirrels.

A portal-to-portal pay suit may be expected to develop any day now, since the workmen employed on the project prior to the cessation of construction experienced considerable loss of time in dodging fertilized areas in the vicinity of East Hall on their trips to the College Store in search of the genuine pure vanilla. However, with labor at present prices the suit will probably not exceed $100,000.

Another interesting situation has been caused by the Veteran's Housing Authority's failure to advance the necessary funds to complete the incomplete buildings. A spokesman for the Authority has informed Mr. Keiter that the Muhlenberg application probably got mixed up with a recent batch of Civil War veterans' bonus

Both of these interesting courses will be conducted in the basement of the Science Building in the Men's Room. Students who are interested must first qualify for the classroom work by presenting to the instructors a sample of homemade scale models of the Hanging Gardens of Babylon. These must be accurate in detail and must not cost over $5,786.97.

Accompanying Dr. Fingernailbiter will be Professor Axhandle J. Poofernagle. Professor Poofernagle has done much research work in the field of Squirting oil from rusted oil cans while traveling at top speed and will conduct a course entitled "Oil-You Squirr." The Professor received his masters at University of Smorgasbord, and took advanced work at the San Francisco Home for Broken Down Seamen.

New Sochiation Inschtituted

Twelve hundred and ninety-seven men, women, and children of Muhlenberg were initiated into Bromo Seltza Bromo, national honorary alcoholic fraternity, at the first meeting of the organization at its new headquarters located on Drinksp Avenue. Initiates included the student body, which was inducted en masse, the majority of the faculty, six janitors, Miss Funk, two cleaning ladies, a dozen squirrels and one drunk.

Following the initiation ceremony, which included the chuggalugging of a quart of beer by each pledge, everyone gathered about the huge horseshoe bar donated to the fraternity by the late I. Lovebrew, multimillionaire bootlegger of prohibition days. The fact that beer, Scotch and Bourbon, (but no water) flowed from all taps in the house delighted the majority of the inductees, although there were some complaints that it was difficult to work up a lather with a combination of beer and soap in the washrooms. There were also some comments that the floor show was a bit risqué, since none of the lovelies involved wore

Hot Flashes !!!

Dick Brown, West Hall proctor, was slightly injured on Tuesday when a gust of violent wind snatched him up from the campus and deposited him on the eleventh story of the P. P. and L. building. He was walking in front of the Science Building at the time of the catastrophe.

Brown, who weighs a sturdy 103 lbs. soaking wet, commented only: "It was a thrilling experience, but I can't see how it happened, especially since I had lead weights in my pockets. Charley and I'll have to figure something else out."

Mr. Bo Malmstrom, Swedish exchange student now studying at Muhlenberg, did not speak at German Club this week, nor did Mr. Malmstrom attend the meeting of the German Club this week.

In fact, Mr. Malmstrom was last seen heading for New York with "Man the Unknown," "The Communist Manifesto," and Harry Boretsky tucked under his arm.

MULE KICKS

Dear Mule Kicks:

We, the undersigned, would like to express our approval of the fine job the WEAKLY staff has done since September in turning out a paper of a high degree of journalism.

All the articles, both straight news and features, have had a high readability interest for every one on the campus.

YE AWFUL TRUTH in particular is a column worthy of the New York Times.

All of us would be only too glad to lend the WEAKLY a hand if we felt we could write anything worthy of publication.

Best of luck, and keep it up.

Dear Mule Kicks:

I have a legitimate gripe.

Why doesn't the Business Office do something about the lighting in the classrooms on the third floor of the Administration Building? The situation is abominable. The lights are too bright. More than one fellow has walked out of late afternoon classes in the past few months blinded by the high wattage.

Why doesn't the Business Office replace those big banks of 300 watt bulbs with some of lower power? In the first place, it's a waste of electricity, and the college is trying to save dough.

I know a letter to the WEAKLY will bring results.

Myoptically yours,

WILLIAMS, SLAUGHTER, PESKY TO PLAY FOR MUHLENBERG

In a recent exclusive release to the WEEKLY, Dean of Admission Haps Benfer announced that Wilbur Williams, Hog Slaughter, and Pierre Pesky have entered Muhlenberg, and will play first trumpet, second glockenspiel, and third Spanish guitar for the 'Berg band this season.

More Trees

to climb trees. He led the neighborhood Tarzan Club before he learned to talk. At the age of seven he decided upon surgery for tree's sake as his life ambition. The arborial wizard needed to consult no textbooks for the answer to our pertinent question. "Our purpose," said the famed one "for notching the trees on the campus as you see them is three fold. First, this circular notch gives us a reference point to mark the tree's growth each year. For instance, if the mark is four feet above the ground on June 1, 1947 and four feet six inches above the turf when June 1, 1948 rolls around we can deduce that the tree during the interim has grown one-half foot." These rapid calculations the Doctor attributed to the mental acumen developed through years of experience in the profession.

"Secondly," said the surgeon "it helps in the tree formation. In the Spring when new branches come out they will look down and see the notch below them. From this they know to grow up instead of down. Can you imagine what our campus would look like with the trees all growing upside down?" Abominable, Dr.—simply abominable.

"Thirdly," the Doctor confessed rather sheepishly, "I am a lover of nature and have been ever since I earned my Bird Study Merit Badge. The project gives me a chance to add four new specimens of bark to my tree bark collection which I am having mounted on the living room wall at home."

Office Announces New Ticket Policy For Games

Coach Floyd Schwartzwalder announced a new ticket policy for 'Berg students Monday. Cross-eyed polydactyl students will be admitted free of charge to all golf and polo matches. It was also announced that all golf and polo matches will be held at Little Rock, Arkansas this year.

Barker Has New Defense For Fast Breaking Teams

Fasting forwards have consistently been a headache to basketball coaches the world over. Bud Barker, our own court mentor, announced today that he will display a new and revolutionary type of defense designed to stop the fastest fast break. In addition, he will be able to utilize his entire squad under his own bucket.

Success of his plan embodies a little cooperation from the committee in charge of the new field house. If they will but install a swimming pool under the playing floor, 'Berg will be assured of complete victory in the contests to come. Oscar "Red" Baldwin will be brought back to press the button that will slide back the opponent's half of the playing floor, as their speedy forwards come charging down the court. Swimming suits will be provided for the opposition.

SISTO AVERNO

Sisto "Lord Fauntleroy" Averno was elected Captain of Muhlenberg's newly-formed Bean-Bag team on Friday afternoon when the team met in the Dome Room of the Library.

With a tough spring schedule coming up, including such powerhouse teams as Raub Jr. High School and the Phoebe Home, the team gave Averno a big vote of confidence, only one vote being cast for another candidate. (That was for Bennet I. Fischer. Fischer told a WEEKLY reporter that he cast one vote for himself.)

Rising to the occasion after the balloting, "Skinless" Averno had a few words to say to his teammates: "Thanks, fellas," said Skinless. "You can depend on me for leadership during this rough season comin' up here. As soon as I recover from my recent attack of Borderline Anaemia, you'll see me out there playin' 60 minutes of every game."

Frank Tucker, embryology major, has been delegated by the Biology Department to conduct hormone injections (with Averno as guinea pig) in an effort to produce a superior type of man. Tucker expects to show some results before the Bean-Bag season gets underway.

The opening game is with the Campfire Girls Jayvee on Saturday, May 3rd, in the Rose Gardens.

Lough Swamped By Diamond Hopefuls

A new record was set at 'Berg today as 6000 candidates turned out for the 1947 baseball campaign. This is made all the more interesting because of the fact that there are only 1300 men enrolled in college.

Because there are so many men to handle, Coach "Hoss" Lough announced that the weeding out process would be carried on in the form of a contest. For the benefit of you who wish to play, here's all you do:

Send in to the Athletic Office a 100-word discussion on whether or not air rifles can have beebies, along with $5.00 to cover the cost of living.

These must be in before January, 1948, as the season gets under way in two weeks. Rules also state that all candidates must do their own work. Anyone caught cheating will have their choice of the gallows, the gas chamber, or taking Mr. Goesser's Bible Course.

Joe Louis will make the twenty-fourth defense of his heavyweight boxing crown this summer at Yankee Stadium. His opponent will be Russ Everitt.

"LOVE THAT SMELL" SAYS PRESIDENT TYSON

"MAKES PLENTY SCENTS" SAYS DEAN SHERWOOD MERCER

"DROP DEAD" SAYS BURKHOLDER

The Muhlenberg College Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Dumb Athletes, meeting at the Jacques Strop Cafe, announced last night the appointment of Calvin Parris as Athletic Director of the college for a five year term.

The step was calculated to place Muhlenberg on an athletic par with Notre Dame, UCLA, and Catwba. Mr. Parris, in accepting his new position said, "Muhlenberg is entering its golden era of sports, and I promise that Muhlenberg will never sustain another defeat on the athletic field of combat."

Mr. Parris comes to Muhlenberg following a successful New York business career. He was highly recommended by ex-'Bergmen Rank Rilchok and Sonny Dilling-er.

The Society announced new measures to clean up the rumors regarding subsidization. The outright paying of salaries to athletes will be henceforth abolished. The new system will set a wage rate on the basis of campus after school work. The minimum hourly rate will be $1.85 with a 50% cost of living bonus thrown in.

Already assigned to work grant positions are Eino Degenerate, and Percy Hardnose, stellar tackles of last year's squad. Their work will include keeping the eight day clock in the Campus Tavern wound, a 168 hour a week job, and maintaining order in the line outside the football field ticket window—except during football season. An arrangement with Huck Brothers, local clothiers, is expected to be completed this week, whereby all deserving members of athletic teams will be granted a $500 a year wardrobe allowance.

The proposed field house received an added boost when ex pari mutual manipulator, "Fixed" Race, donated a two dollar, across the board, ticket on Slugbut—1949 nominee in the Kentucky Derby.

Said Mr. Race of his worthwhile contribution, "It's really nothing that I'm doing for Muhlenberg considering what they did to me." "Fixed" was of course referring to his course in ze economics, and ze accounting that prepared him for the career.

After the short business meeting, a light lunch of brala suet and crab grass was served.

The society closed the get-together with the singing of "Pepsi-Cola" and a wrestling match featuring Dean Nerser and Dean Hendig. Nercer took the bout with a lock and hammer at 1:15 of the third period.

It was this pure passion for a meat roll (note the picture) that lead him into the throes of the more experienced reprobates.

Presumably, the three men were of sterling character, and it was a complete shock to the manager of the Store, Dr. James Edgar Swain, that his confidence in the men should be thus shattered. The three stand possibility of from 30-40 years at hard labor in payment of their debt to society.

Diamond Coach Lough Names Team For 1947

In an exclusive interview with the Muhlenberg baseball coach, Frank "Hoss" Lough, the WEAKLY today learned that the diamond squad for this year has been completely chosen and is in the process of polishing up for the season opener.

For the first time in years, 'Berg will field an all veteran team having nine experienced men. Eight of these men are returning lettermen and one is a veteran of the Civil War.

Lough has stressed speed on the basepaths in his drills and has devoted much time to the art of signal stealing. The fastest man on the team has proven to be Jugglin' Jimmy Swain who swatted three balls over the fence in practice and was tossed out at home on only two of the trips.

Rapid Robert Horn, star twirler for the Mules garnered a record of 0 wins and 37½ defeats last season. The half defeat occurred when Cedar Crest piled up 89 runs in the fifth inning and the game was called on account of darkness, and a scream in center field, where Lucky Luther was holding sway.

Joltin' John Shankweiler compiled a batting average of .002 last season and is again looking forward to a top year inasmuch as he has undergone an operation in off season to remove a growth on his left toe, known as "Cornus Muhlenbergus". Elsewhere on this page are photographs of the team stars.

A Tip 'O The Slung...

Don Miller, president of the Deutscher Verein, did not, of course, deliberately put the meeting of the Verein on St. Patrick's Day instead of St. Boniface's Day.

Monday, you see, was the day for the regular meeting of the organization.

But Don by a slip of the tongue offended all Irishmen present who knew German well enough to understand him.

In the little ritual the Verein uses to initiate new members, Don, dwelling up the values of friendship was to use a phrase which may be translated by, "When we shuffle off these mortal coils."

Now the German word for "mortal" is sometimes "irdisch". But Don dropped the "d" and made it "irisch". So what he really said was:

"When we shuffle off these Irish coils."

And that on St. Pat's day.

The back of me hand to ye, Donny, me boy.

Weakly Sponsors Essay Contest

Owing to the great reserve in funds accumulated by the FOOL-EMBERG WEAKLY, the staff has unanimously voted "Yea" to a proposal to sponsor a student essay contest. According to the Business Manager's latest report (which may not be accurate due to a great increase in "miscellaneous expenses") the present balance accredited to the WEAKLY is $6,000,000,000.18 which if left intact is likely to attract some undesired attention. Consequently we are offering this wonderful opportunity to the student body to exploit their talents and profit in doing so.

The requirements of this contest are comparatively simple, and anyone between the ages of 20 and 20¼ is eligible.

Please follow instructions carefully:

1. Write (in old English) in 20,000 words or less on, "Will Sex Ever Replace Baseball As A National Pastime and Why?"

2. All entries must be typed on onion skin, Hammermill Bond, toilet paper.

3. Send your essay together with 400 WEAKLY tops, to Dr. Milton Hilton in care of the WEAKLY.

All entries must be postmarked no later, Feb. 30, 1966.

All contributions will be judged according to neatness, originality, and stupidness and prizes shall be awarded as follows.

First Prize—One week subscription to the WEAKLY, absolutely free!

Second Prize—An autographed, lifelike picture of the editors!

Third Prize—A 1958 convertible Roadripper with the motor built right in!

Trainer Trains M.S.L.O.L.F.F. With Wings

Dr. John "Just call me Sparrow" Trainer is forming the Muhlenberg Society of Lovers of Our Little Feathered Friends. All students and other menaces to society who like to tear their pants and shirts by climbing trees for dirty, old birds' nests, will be welcomed at a meeting to be held in the little Love Nest, Room 304, in Formaldehyde Hall this evening at 8:00 P.M.

No one will be admitted unless he brings at least two crow's eggs for the egg roast to be held over Bunsen burners at the end of the meeting. Dr. Trainer has stated, "You don't have to know anything to join the M.S.L.O.L.F.F., (Ed. Note: Silly, man, what 'Berg student does?) but you must be just nuts over birds. I love cuckoos myself."

Banders Bandy Bang-up Brawl With Music

The maestro himself, Anthony Jagnesak, and his side-kick, Marty Shemalla, are all set to roll (almost, anyway) on the first band concert of the year. The date: May 6th: right outside of Doc Tyson's home, on his front lawn. (Ed. note: the Doc's going to love that.)

This is no lie; this story is straight dope. No foolin'.

Keeping in mind the fact that the sun is setting later and later these days, the time for the concert was set as 6:45 p.m. "The reasons that this time was chosen," says Shemalla (rhymes with Fella), "are it will be light and no extra lighting will be necessary, AND, most of the students will be coming from chow and they can relax a bit by coming to the concert before they hit the books."

The members of the concert band have not been chosen as yet, but keep your peepers on the WEAKLY for further details.

Shemalla asked us to print the following letter to all band members (Unless you're a band member, don't read it) . . .

NOTICE TO ALL BAND MEMBERS:

It is important that all band members be present at all of the rehearsals. The concert date is set and the time is short. Rehearsals are every Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in the Dome Room of the Library.

Mercers's Moans Mean Meet Medico

Is your leg broken? Did you have a runny nose? Did your mother-in-law have the croup? See Dr. Weaber for your little blue excuse, ya bum. The Dean doesn't punch cards for hang-overs, housemaid's knee, rheumatism, and other ailments.

The WEAKLY has just learned that Dean Mercer has placed a machine gun directly inside his door to be used on the next brat—er, student—who comes to him for a sickness excuse. (Attention, Russell Everitt: Here's your chance to be a hero!)

Donning his black, academic robes and speaking with an air of official dignity, Dean Mercer this week made the following statement, "See the saw-bones, you jerks. I ain't giving no slips for sick studes. If Doc Weaber is crazy enough to believe you, he'll give you that important little blue card."

This new rule will be effective starting yesterday so hurry if you plan to make it on time.

Dean "Little John" Kendig, representing Sherwood's Forest at the gathering, and honorary high alcoholic, expressed complete satisfaction with the new fraternity while paddling happily about in a vat of Four Roses in the recreation room.

"Wonderful!" exclaimed Mr. Kendig enthusiastically, at the same time playfully squirting several shots into the interviewer's eye, "Marvelous! We've needed something like this around here for years!" Whereupon he took a deep breath and disappeared beneath the surface.

At the business meeting held prior to the social hour, one Harold Hutton of Tankerbury, N. J., was elected high alcoholic cum laude. The Wild Irish Rose was selected as the fraternity flower, and Miss Barbara Schantz was named mascot.

A good time was had by all.

Muhlenberg's Magic Mighty Musicians

The Shamrocks, the newest musical organization on the campus, features "Hot-Lips" Baldwin on Trombone, Bill "Daddy" Bell on the Drums, and "Chopsticks" Tolosky on the Ivories. Also featured are "Nickel" Beers, hot violin Virtuoso, and "Satch" Sbordone, playing the alto sax.

The boys already have made an outstanding arrangement of the hit tune, "Taming Dr. Jekyll's Hyde". Flushed with enthusiasm, the group will give their first concert in the newly decorated men's room of the Ad Building.

Scott T. Shoe is faculty adviser for the Group.

'Berg To Hear Noted Author, Dr. Henry Leach

Dr. Henry Goddard Leach, author, editor, and president of the American-Scandinavian Foundation, will lecture in the Science Auditorium at Muhlenberg College, 8:30 p.m., Thursday, April 17. While in Allentown, he will be staying at Hotel Traylor and will make some time available for interviews by news reporters.

Dr. Leach is a well-known authority on Scandinavian literature and an exponent of international education, particularly between the Scandinavian countries and America. In 1945 Dr. Leach was chosen by Uppsala University in Sweden to be awarded the only honorary degree conferred upon a foreigner at its 350th anniversary. This distinction is signified by his wearing the gold ring of Uppsala.

Dr. Leach's name is linked with many important events in various fields of interest. From 1922 to 1940 he was editor of the FORUM and CENTURY magazines. Under his editorship, the publication increased from two thousand to one hundred thousand. The FORUM was a "magazine of controversy", a periodical in which the public could present opposite points of view and which Carl Sandburg declared to be "the barometer of American intelligence". It was during this period that Dr. Leach became a familiar lecturer in American universities and various civic organizations, as he could so capably present complete and unbiased pictures of political, education and literary theories and practices.

At the beginning of World War II, Dr. Leach suspended publication of the magazines, giving his full time and energy to the American-Scandinavian Foundation, an educational institution engaged in advancing intellectual relations between Americans and Scandinavians. Throughout his life his chief interest and ambition has been to further international education between Scandinavia and America, and as a result of his tireless efforts in this direction, the number of American students and scholars studying in Scandinavia has steadily increased, and those Scandinavians desirous of furthering education in American universities have likewise increased.

Phi Sigma Iota Hears Menzel Paper

Initiation of five new members and presentation of a paper by Walter Menzel were the features of the regular meeting of Lambda chapter of Phi Sigma Iota honorary romance language fraternity at the President's Home, 2401 Chew Street, last night.

New men initiated included Joseph Fleischman, Richard Brown, Benjamin Chorost, Joseph Harakal, and John Kerin, all Juniors.

Menzel's paper was on Josephine Beauharnais, Napoleon's wife who became empress at the coronation of the famous French general, and who Napoleon finally divorced to marry Marie Louise of Austria.

Guest of the chapter at the meeting was Dean Sherwood Mercer.

'Berg Alumnae Hold Luncheon

The Spring Luncheon of the Muhlenberg College Alumnae Association was held on Saturday afternoon, April 12, at the Allentown Elks Club.

The 63 members present enjoyed a talk by Reverend Clarence Rahn of Temple, Penna. and also a musical program.

Guests at the afternoon luncheon were President and Mrs. Levering Tyson and Dr. and Mrs. I. M. Wright.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Maude J. Cole, President of the Association.

Special Bach Recital For 'Berg Students, April 28

Muhlenberg students will have an opportunity to hear the well-known Bethlehem Bach Choir in a special concert for students at colleges in the Lehigh Valley on Monday evening, April 28th, at 7:30 in Grace Hall, Lehigh University.

The annual Bach Choir concert on the Lehigh campus each spring for years has drawn thousands of people from all parts of the world to hear its rendition of Bach's Mass in B Minor. Every year the choir has given a concert in Carnegie Hall, New York, and this year in addition it presented a program to a packed Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Fifty members of the Philadelphia Orchestra will join the choir in its concert on the 28th. Ifor Jones, director, will lead the group in selections from the Masses and Cantatas.

Reservations for tickets can be made starting today at the Student Bank Window in the Treasurer's Office. Prices for tickets are $1.00 plus tax. There is no charge however, to undergraduate students who are entitled to admission under their student assembly privileges as long as the allotment to Muhlenberg College of the total 2800 seats holds out.

Applications will be filled in order of receipt, and actual tickets will be delivered to applicants at the Treasurer's Office on Friday, April 25th.

Inasmuch as the special concert has been arranged primarily for

'Arcade' Material Deadline Set

The Spring issue of the New ARCADE is soon to appear. Those men who have planned to submit articles, stories, or poems are urged to complete them and hand their material in by April 25th. This is the maximum deadline the printer will allow. Copy may be left with Professor Rickey's secretary or with any of the following staff members: Lou Rossi, Art Haines, Earl Feight, Jim Reppert or Everitt Wilson. Mr. Rickey's secretary is located on the third floor of the library's East wing.

Any member of any class taking either A.B. or B.S. courses is welcome on our list of contributors and may submit any amount of material on any subject which interests him or on any topic on which he has original ideas. No one's material will be shoved out by lack of space as arrangements have been made to expand the magazine in direct proportion to the productivity of the student body.

Practice For 'Hamlet' Enters Final Stages

Undaunted by such weighty obstacles as the Great Telephone Strike and the competition of one Maurice Evans, production of the Mask and Dagger's spring offering of Will Shakespeare's Hamlet is now well under way for presentation on April 30, May 1 and 2.

The selecting of the cast, with the exception of one minor role, has been completed. The complete cast is as follows: Hamlet, John Rogers; Claudius, Gerald Rogers; Queen, Eunice Feight; Polonius, Ed Deam; Laertes, Lewis Rossi; Ophelia, Dorothy Campbell; Horatio, George Eichorn; Voltimand, Bill Wegener; Cornilius, Ed Pickard; Marcellus, Ernest Wallander; Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, Bob Oswald and George Bannon; Osric, Lou Wentz; Player King, Jim Hammond; Player Queen, Jean Boomhower; Player Villain, William Kulp; Ghost, Bob Hale; Ladies in Waiting, Bernice Horn, and Gladys Wikely; Spear Carriers, Dick Gallos and Wally Steffy. Two roles which are still undecided are those of Fortinbras and Barnado.

As a precaution against repeating an accident which occurred during the staging of Macbeth by the Mask and Dagger in 1945, (when, in a practice session after the matinee performance, Macduff actually drew blood from Macbeth) the broadswords in the play have been replaced by rapiers. John Rogers and Lewis Rossi are being instructed in the use of these weapons by Mr. Andrew H. ("The Old Maestro") Erskine, of the English Department, who is also directing the play. So far, no

Trexler Named Student Pastor

Colonel Charles D. Trexler, Muhlenberg alumnus of the class of 1903, assumed his duties as student pastor on April 1st, returning to his Alma Mater after a tour of duty of six years in the Army as Chaplain.

He was introduced to the student body in Chapel on Wednesday morning, April 2nd, by Chaplain Doberstein, and has since become familiar to many by his Chapel talks.

COL. CHARLES D. TREXLER

Born in Bernville, Berks County, he is the son of Dr. Daniel D. Trexler, a prominent Lutheran clergyman in Pennsylvania. Following his graduation from Muhlenberg in 1903 and from the Philadelphia Seminary in 1906, he founded the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd in Brooklyn and served as its pastor until 1930.

Inter-Frat Ball At Castle Garden Tomorrow Night

The I-F Ball of Muhlenberg College will be held on the 18th of April at Castle Gardens. Music for the affair will be provided by Bernie Parsons and his band. The committee for the dance is headed by Walt Menzel ATO.

The I-F Ball is a yearly affair sponsored by the five Greek letter Fraternities on the campus. All fraternity men now attending 'Berg whether there is a chapter of their fraternity on the campus or not are cordially invited to attend. Admission will set you back two bucks, but the dance is well worth it.

The music for the affair will be provided by Bernie Parsons and his band, a bunch of boys well on their way to fame. Before the war Bernie played with a good many name bands, then he organized one of his own. The war interrupted Bernie's career but while in the Army, he organized a great many post bands that were a great success.

While in Kansas, Bernie's band was playing a lot of outside jobs off the post in their spare time and men in Kansas who knew their bands tried to get him to stay on after discharge and organize another band.

The call of the Pennsylvania woods though was too great and Bernie came back to his native state to start anew. He is now one of the leading bands in the state and well known for his sweet music at most colleges throughout Pennsylvania.

Don't forget April 18th, Castle Gardens, nine o'clock, the I-F Ball, all Greek letter men on the campus invited.

Graduates Note!

All men who plan to take their degrees in June must attend a meeting in the Science Auditorium at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, April twenty-fifth.

Constitutional Revision Starts; East Hall Dorm Council In Operation

Earlin Lutz, chairman of the newly formed East Hall Dormitory Council, reported on the first meeting of the group to the Student Council this week. The cleaning situation, provision of better telephone and message service, improvement of the bulletin board situation, and increase in lighting facilities both inside and outside the Hall were discussed, and certain plans are being carried out.

Lutz, elected chairman by the council itself, was appointed by the Student Council as C Hall representative at its last meeting, along with the following: Homer Robinson, A Hall; Lewis Fluck, B.; Donald Woodworth, D.; Richard Ebb, E.; Tom Lane, F.; and H. Arrison, G. Hall.

Phillip Mitterling, Student Council treasurer, reported balances of $2033.10 in the Student Body Fund, $2048.29 in the Social Fund, and $2053.53 in the Assembly Fund, as of March 21, 1947. He noted that Student Council funds have now been transferred from the general college accounts into the Student Bank, where they are under the sole control of the Student Council Treasurer.

Appropriations of $200.00 from the Assembly Fund to the Arcade, to cover costs of setting up that magazine again, and of $75.00 from the Student Body Fund to the Forensic Council, for their activities for the present term, were made after some discussion. In addition, final approval was given to payment of $600.00 from the Student Body Fund to the Chaplain for the Council-sponsored Chapel windows. Several new stained glass windows, bought with donations from student organizations and representing student activities in their symbolism will be installed soon in the Muhlenberg Chapel.

Action of the Council to pay the admission price for any student who wishes to attend the special rehearsal of the Bach choir open to Muhlenberg students is reported elsewhere in this issue. The council also approved a proposal made by Dr. Tyson that costs of publishing the "M" book, as well as responsibility for writing it, be divided, in the future, between the Student Council and the Administration. A committee including the Dean of Students, the Public Relations Officer, and two members of the Student Council soon to be elected, will be set up.

President Harold Helfrich announced the appointment of a committee for the present term, were

Barn Party Follows Ball For Sigma Phi

Sigma Phi Ep will follow up the Inter-Fraternity Ball by holding a party for all of its members and pledges and dates at Schmoey's Barn on Saturday, April 19th. Festivities will get under way at one p.m.

A stage show will be the highlight of entertainment for the evening. Carl Petersen, an old crooner from way back, intends to give all the lads and lassies a treat by impersonating Al Jolson in a number of songs. "The Beer Barrel Swisher Sextet", which is composed of Gerry Clymer, Marty Schmella, Billy Schneller, John DeLong, Bob Haldeman and John Mock, will go on stage and present a number of selections from Bock, Wagner and Strauss. Charles Moyer and the "heart-throbs" will wind up the show by doing their own interpretation of the world famous Apache Dance.

The Committee, which is headed by George Bournias, is composed of Marty Schmella, John DeLong, Charles Moyer and Gerald Clymer.

OBITER DICTA . . .

April Fool Joy Ride

by Dave Tyson

Was that April Fool issue too hot for you to handle? Were you insulted? Did any of the barbs catch you?

The WEEKLY in that week of the big issue cast all inhibitions to the winds, and came up with (a) a gagged-up edition in which staff members worked off some insane journalistic ideas that had been burning inside them since September, and (b) a gagged-up barn party out at Trexlertown at which staff members worked off some insane journalistic ideas that had been burning inside them since September.

We all feel we're a calm and collected group now, ready once again to hack out such masterpieces as "Alpha Kappa Alpha, honorary philosophical fraternity, met Monday evening at the home of Kermit McDermott to hear a paper by Dexter Shrdlu, etc., etc."

Though nothing but compliments have reached our ears, we can't help but feel that some people somewhere on the campus were stung, but are keeping quiet. Nothing but compliments? That just doesn't add up. Somebody somewhere must have found a typographical error, a misspelled word, or a name omitted. And with all those nasty things we implied about all those people . . . no gripes? no scathing letters to Mule Kicks? Unbelievable!

Obviously some people, (who would like nothing better than to set off a time bomb in the WEEKLY office,) are stifling their emotions. To them we say: it was all in fun . . . no harm meant.

The staff seriously considered putting out such an issue every week. But in talking it over we all came to the conclusion that sooner or later we'd run out of ideas and would have to hire a gang of gag writers like Bob Hope does. The Student Council, we decided, would frown on the depletion of student body fees that would entail.

Then too, there might come a time when something serious had to be given space in the paper. Dean Mercer might want to announce another battery of IQ tests for the Seniors; Dean Kendig might want to announce that Ellis Arnall was to speak at an assembly. Nobody would believe us if we printed such stuff. We foresaw the time when every April Fool's Day the WEEKLY staff would be putting out a serious edition with nothing but straight news, just as a gag.

Cool reason eventually triumphed. "Back to the script!" was the cry taken up by the staff. Result: the same old journal with its usual quota of typographical errors, misspelled words, and omitted names.

'BERG ALUMNUS HEARS ALL

By Larry Tully

The tale of the adventures of Rusty, the old mascot of that grand and glorious campus of Muhlenberg College, is something that only a dog of his caliber could rightly deserve. We all remember the dog as being one of exceptional intelligence, and not at all like other dogs who knew enough to come in out of the rain.

Well, we weren't the only ones to see the great promise in the old dog's future, for his second owners also were on the ball, and once they found that Gismo wouldn't do any of the acts that normal dogs are supposed to do, they immediately decided a school was the best place for him.

The first thing that came to their minds was a school for the training of Seeing Eye Dogs, but once Gismo got there his aptitude was so much higher than the other dogs, and even better than some of the instructors, they decided that he was one of the few dogs fit for the latest development of dogs endeavoring to help his fellow human beings, namely, The Hearing Ear Dog Society.

Now it is not well known just what this latest thing in dog schools has in mind for the furthering of Human-Dog relations, so for the next few sentences I'll try to bring the readers up to date on that score.

A hearing Ear Dog is so much above the Seeing Eye Dogs that naturally they are inclined to be a bit on the snobby side and have a total disregard for the other whenever they chance to meet. This, of course, causes considerable friction in the higher dog society, but as that happens to be taken up in one of the Social Science Major's term paper, I won't go into the subject at all. A brief outline of the duties of Hearing Ear Dogs is as follows: These dogs are trained to help those people who are afflicted with bad hearing, and that's where the dogs take over. A Hearing Ear dog not only is trained to hear what is being said to his master, and to relate to him the contents of the conversation, but also to be able to properly censor the message and repeat only the things pleasing to his master's ear.

For this reason, a course in ethics at some credited college is necessary for the completion of their education, and when asked what college he would like to attend, Rusty remembered his old friend, Dr. Stine and naturally chose Muhlenberg.

Yes, that's the straight dope. Rusty is now impersonating some unshaved Human Being and is a red-headed A student in Ethics. He is also going with a female impersonator over at Cedar Crest, who is naturally having a harder time explaining things because of the great difference between women and female dogs.

We wish to express our sincere hope that Rusty is able to come through the rigid tests that are to confront him in his new role as a student Hearing Ear Dog, and will wind up happily united with his Cedar Crest friend, with a little family that will some day in turn make life easier for Human beings.

Dear Members of the Student Body:

I want to thank you, on behalf of my sponsor and my fellow workers, for voting the Pepsodent Show the most popular radio program on your campus. Shows rare good judgement . . . I should say. At least, I'm sure that's what old "Spons" would want me to say.

Seriously, thanks for your vote of confidence. We're glad you like the Show and hope you will continue to enjoy it.

The Awful Truth

by Gordon R. Daggy

The short but much appreciated vacation is over and once again the frustration of hard work descends upon us. The evidences of many an enjoyable Easter are to be witnessed in the tired countenances and bloodshot eyes of the fun-loving element of our student body. Into this category falls our jovial editor, Mike Rogers, who, after a vigorous vacation, has once again deemed it necessary to entrust this column to strange hands. Mine are those "strange hands" and in authorizing the use of them I was required to take the Oath of the MUHLENBERG WEEKLY: "I swear to tell the truth the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me Mike."

THE SCREAM OF THE WEEK originates in the wilds of New Jersey where the dogs are big and rough. Seems like one J. Gaskill made a snippy remark to one such dog, who in a fit of anger, took a chomp out of one J. Gaskill. Jack is now sporting a new pair of pants. The dog died shortly afterwards!

Many favorable comments have reached this office concerning the recent April Fool Issue of the Weekly. To all who appreciated said issue the staff is sincerely grateful. To those who claim it cast dispersions on certain individuals we have only to say, "it was written, edited, published, pasted, censored, etc., by a Fischer named Bennett".

Someone once said, "Behind every great man there is a woman" and from all appearances the faculty is in favor of it. Maybe it's the weather or the season or maybe its something we can't talk about, nevertheless certain members of the faculty are tying the matrimonial knot in the very near future. Congratulations and words of caution go to Charles Hollister, Prof. Rickey and Dean Kendig.

Our spies in the A.T.O. house report strange activities on the part of one Phil Mitterling. Seems Phil has been rather moody of late, and rather hard to get along with. Intimate associates report this condition is all due to a well known malady and at present she is staying at Cedar Crest. Better put away the history books for awhile Phil, what's bothering you isn't in them . . .

The Mask and Dagger, not to be outdone by any professional competition, is diligently working away on its forthcoming production "Hamlet." With its fine cast and casting, we feel quite sure that the author of the play will have nothing but the best to say about this show . . . John E. T. Rogers who takes the lead roll in "Hamlet", has requested, that upon the initial success of the production, his fans will please refrain from asking him for his autograph. Mr. Rogers has a dread fear of "writers cramp".

Not to be outdone by flagpole sitters or marathon runners, two earnest 'Bergmen, Messrs. Egan and Esbach have formulated plans for a trip to Florida this summer. To make the trip more interesting, the pair have decided to travel exclusively by motorcycle . . . I would prefer a pogo stick myself.

The fine tonal quality of our own accapellaa (or something) choir is to be preserved for posterity. Today the voices of these men will make their first debut to a microphone as select selections are being recorded . . .

"All by Myself" Harry Donovan is becoming jealous of his two brothers. Rumor has it that they are going steady . . . with each other.

Cedar Crest had a formal dance last Saturday . . . everybody from Lehigh and Lafayette was there, also present was Mulchaney of MUHLENBERG COLLEGE, The big school with the little front.

There is a nice little jearnt over on seventh street that is becoming quite popular of late. The main attraction seems to be the bartender who is also a main attraction at Muhlenberg. I'm not one to mention any names but his initials are Ken Conrad.

The officials of the "M" club have requested that I "plug" their forthcoming production, "Sheepskin Derby". As it is not the policy of this publication to subscribe to select organizations, I regret to inform these men that I will not be able to report that "Sheepskin Derby" will undoubtedly be the best "M" Club show yet produced . . . sorry.

HOPE HOPPED UP OVER SHOT WITH LAMOUR

By Bob Hope

I'm supposed to get out of character and do a serious piece for your newspaper . . . all about interesting sidelights on life in Hollywood, dodging Colonna, making movies and records with people like Dottie Lamour.

No kidding, that's what they asked for. Make it unemotional, they said. Give us the straight dope. Tell us how it's done.

Imagine! Did you ever try being unemotional with your favorite brunette taunting you all over the set? Did you ever try singing over Dottie's shoulder and keeping your eyes on the sheet music?

It can't be done. Anyway, who wants to be unemotional about a thing like that?

Take our last picture, for example. I could have won Dottie in the first ten minutes. That didn't make sense when all I had to do was insist on a script rewrite so I wouldn't get her until the end.

That made it easy to stretch out shooting time—and rehearsals with Lamour. You really have to sneak up on these things or they'll happen and be over before you have a chance to enjoy them.

The last record we made could have been made from two songs we knew well. But that meant I'd only have a few minutes singing with Lamour.

So what did we do? Somebody wrote a tune we had to learn. Of course they stole the title from the name of the picture (My Favorite Brunette), and that was silly because the tune didn't turn up in the film.

But it gave me an excuse to take more time with Dottie . . . time to sit and stare and try to hold my hands steady . . . time to keep from lunging across the studio . . . time to hold back the growls welling up in my throat . . . time to hang over her shoulder and rub cheeks like it was the singing I was interested in.

Believe me . . . it's hard to subdue the beast in me. I'm such a man.

Somehow I have the feeling this whole thing is beginning to sound like a scriptwriter's nightmare for Colonna.

Then, we allowed ourselves to be talked into singing "Beside You" on the record. They wanted me to steal the song from Dottie in the picture, but after all, she's a nice girl and I couldn't do that to her.

But I couldn't resist their pleas for the record song.

Now they're sorry about the picture . . . in one way or another.

Anyway, everybody who hears the record says I ought to trade radio shows with the Metropolitan Opera.

Now . . . that's really getting too serious.

Come to think about it, I'm not going to do that calm and unemotional article for your paper after all.

I'd rather chase Lamour!

Out Of The Files —

From the Muhlenberg WEEKLY of April 11, 1922:

One of the most attractive features of this issue is the fine Easter cover, which greatly enhances this holiday number.

It was announced that George Sowers '22, won first prize in the oratorical contest held at Gettysburg College, sponsored by the Intercollegiate Oratorical Union. As his topic, he used the theme "Americanize the Americans" the same one that won him the place to represent Muhlenberg during the contest held on the campus. The others representing Muhlenberg were Ira Fritz and R. C. Miller.

In a chapel lecture on Thursday evening, Dr. Charles Clark, a former professor of Latin at Yale, gave a highly interesting talk on Roumania. During his discourse, he discussed the enmity existing Hungary and Roumania, the influence of Roman colonization on that country, and the customs, habits and social conditions prevailing today in that region.

At a chapel talk on Wednesday, the Rev. John Wiegand, pastor of the largest Evangelical associations in the city, gave a talk on the subject of the Prodigal Son, in which he stated that the boy who ran away from home showed greater love than the calculating elder brother who remained at home.

With the conclusion of a song contest held on the campus, the judges revealed that Ira Fritz, '23 and Jack Wright, '24 submitted the best songs from the student body and that Arthur Freitag '21 was the winner in the alumni group.

Mr. Fritz's song was "My Muhlenberg, My Muhlenberg" and Mr. Wright's was "Who put the Mule in Muhlenberg".

A new schedule of courses in Business Administration and Sociology was released by Prof. Bowman, of which the following will be offered: The Elements of Business, Principles of Economics, Advanced Economics, Principles of Sociology, and Practical Sociology.

In the Phi Delta Epsilon contest for an editorial on "The Practical Value of a Cultural Education", the paper submitted by Ira Fritz was adjudged the best from Muhlenberg. His paper was then submitted to the central committee, whose decision has not yet been announced.

Because of the unusually victorious football season, great interest was aroused over the prospects for the coming year. It was felt that the sooner the spirit of "getting ready" pervades the student body, the more assurance there will be of another successful football season. To no small part has this attitude been encouraged by Coach "Johnny" Spiegel, who has brought the team through the victorious and colorful season. Following was the schedule for the coming season:

Sept. 23—Muhlenberg vs. East Stroudsburg Normal.
 Sept. 30—Muhlenberg vs. Syracuse University.
 Oct. 7—Muhlenberg vs. Delaware.
 Oct. 14—Muhlenberg vs. Lafayette.
 Oct. 21—Muhlenberg vs. Gettysburg.

Tigers Drub Mules 7-5

With a four-run surge in the first inning, Princeton University went on to defeat the Mules 7-5 last Thursday on the Tigers' home diamond. It was the first game of the season for both clubs.

Berg trailed all the way, but succeeded in cutting Princeton's lead to one run in the fifth frame. Jim Anthony, Tiger hurler, shut the door however, and the Orange and Black garnered another tally in the last half of the eighth to put the game on ice.

A.T.O., Jokers, Lambda Chi Lead As I-M League Closes

Just prior to the Easter holidays, some classy basketball was displayed in West Hall and it has continued right up to the last games of some of the participating teams. The intramural league will wind up its activities this week and some really good ball is looked forward to in those playoffs which will get underway next Wednesday.

LEAGUE I

The Whoopie Scrubs were not out to be fooled as they drubbed the Sigma Phi Epsilon team to the tune of 42-30.

The Jokers didn't let the date fool them either as they knocked the Flying Dutchmen from their perch by the score of 38-33. Swartley led the attack for the winners with 15 points.

The Blue Beetles and the Hot-shots battled end on end in a low scoring contest which saw the Beetles down the shots 21-18.

In their final game of the season the Eagles really had to fly high in order to take the long end of a 30-29 count over the Sigma Phi Epsilon boys.

In the hottest game of this league witnessed thus far this season, the Jokers were extended to an overtime period in order to keep their slate clean—they drew the long end of the 41-40 count as they downed the Whoopie Scrubs.

LEAGUE II
A.T.O. managed to keep its slate clean and continue to lead this league as they downed the Hor-lacher 9 boys to the tune of 52-45. Clausen led the attack for the winners with 7 baskets from the floor and three free tosses for a total of 17 points.

The Fourhanded boys didn't seem to fare so well against the South Hall Toads as the Toads were able to move over them in the final count 39-35.

The Tornados in a sweeping whirl caught the Pillow Five with their heads down as they whirled them to defeat by a count of 47-20.

LEAGUE III
The Phi Eps looked good as they snowed the Breakfast Club boys under by the score of 40-28. Richman led the attack with 15 points.

The Danks were out clipping again as they nipped the Blue Birds in a tussle 45-27. Crandall led the attack with nine field goals and five charity throws for a total of 23 points.

Mules Bang 14 Hits To Cover 5 Errors, Routing Temple, 8-3

Ol' Sol smiled favorably on the Mule nine as they copped their initial home game last Saturday afternoon—belting out a decisive 8-3 win over the Temple Owls.

"Lefty" Tillburn shut out the 'Berg batsmen for the first two innings, while his teammates, aided by some erratic defensive play on the part of the Mules, established a nearly 2-0 lead.

Muhlenberg scored its first run in the third and added another in the fourth. In the top half of the fifth inning, Temple took the lead for the last time in the game with a single tally. 'Berg added two runs in their half of the fifth stanza, and continued the scoring parade with a brace of runs in both the sixth and seventh frames.

Walt Busch, except for periods of wildness, hurled commendably. Although he was tagged for ten hits and was constantly in hot water, he consistently throttled a threatening Temple rally. Big George Bibighaus, whose athletic talents are not limited to the grid-iron, led the Mule batsmen with a triple, double and single in four appearances at the plate. Center fielder Henry also collected three bingles, while Roger Talosky and Ed Schwob each hit for two.

SPORTS CHATTER . . .

By Herb Needleman

Ed. note:—Any mistakes in this week's efforts are due to your reporter's recent loss of cheerers. Anybody finding same will be rewarded with an issue of the GLOCCA MORRA TELEGRAPH, if he will return them to the young fellow with the tin cup seen bumping into trees on campus.

The enthusiastic response that has made the intramural program the success that it is, is both gratifying and surprising to those that have watched the failure of so many other projects on this campus.

The caliber of the games played, the increasing turnout of spectators, and the general interest in the standings of the teams stand in direct contradiction to the idea that college students "don't give a damn."

Plenty of good, close ball games have been played in the West Hall Coffin, and more prospective varsity material (in our estimation) has been walking around loose than you'd think.

From here, the Jokers look like the class of all three leagues, with A.T.O. running a close second. The A.T.O.'s just a wee bit cocky last week, almost had their streak snapped by a humble but rough Tornado outfit, in two overtimes.

Up to now, the balance of power has been pretty well split up, with no one group showing any distinct edge. The advent of softball on the scene should swing the advantage over to the more highly organized groups, i.e., the frats and dorms, leaving the independent clubs out in the cold unless they start hustling now. It's no easy job to find eleven vertical men on the campus these days, much less to form a ball club out of them.

On the other side of the ledger stands the dismal failure that was to be the 'Berg varsity swimming team. Mainly through the efforts of a couple of guys, namely "Haps" Benfer and Fred Brause, the athletic board was persuaded to allocate enough funds to support a tank squad. The ball was then handed over to the students, who dropped it as if it was a chunk of three month limburger.

It's somewhat disappointing to find that out of 1300 students on campus, there aren't ten who can't jump into a pool without drowning. Plenty of clamoring has been going on in an attempt to get the athletic office to support a few minor sports in order to enable more men to take part in varsity athletics. This latest fiasco didn't do the campaign any good.

Plenty of backs are the story out on the practice field these days, but Ben Schwartzwalder would give his last smoke for a couple of ends and centers.

With guys like Bill Bell, Harry Mackin, Jack Crider, and Ed Sikorski, back from the last season to handle the ball carrying chores, and Marty Binder, Joe Pujazon, Russ Strait, and Pechillio looking good in the spring drills, the back-field situation is pretty well locked up.

Out on the ends, the tune is a little different. Beef is abundant, but know-how scarce. Diz Dean has his name on one slot, with Miller, Schreiber, and Mangus bashing heads over the other.

The center spot is woefully weak. Jim Schell, letterman from last year, is the only experienced ball player at the position which well may be the key to the team's success next year. With Schwartzwalder finagling around with some new stuff to pull on this year's opponents, the season may hinge on the strength around center, which from here doesn't look too good.

The costumes for the play have been ordered, and are expected to arrive on or about the 21st of April. Great concern over this matter was expressed by one of the less shapely members of the cast this week, (whose name would of course be withheld by request (or threat) if he knew he was being quoted), as he said, "My God, what will I do if they send me tights?"

The performance of April 30 is scheduled to be a matinee, presented especially for the benefit of the local high school pupils. The performances of May 1 and 2, at 8:30 p.m., are free to all members of the student body, their dates, and, since they are listed as assemblies, to the members of the faculty.

Earl Feight is production manager for the play, and John Drake is in charge of the business managing. Work on the sets is being done by a stage crew under Jim Reppert. This stage crew can still use additional members, W. Robert Oswald, president of Mask and Dagger said this week, and anyone interested in this work is urged to see either Jim Reppert or Mr. Oswald.

All veterans whose last names begin with H-O inclusive must report during the month of April to the Veterans Administration office on campus to complete their periodic supervision reports.

"Sheepskin Derby"
Tickets On Sale

Rehearsals of this year's Varsity "M" Club show, "Sheepskin Derby" are continuing in spite of recent hindrances.

With the dropping of school by Jim Gross, a new pianist was secured to join the "Mule Kicks". The new man, Fred Mahler, was a student at 'Berg two years ago and will re-enter school this summer. Mahler is an accomplished musician, having worked with several professional organizations in this area.

Also of serious consequence to the show plans was the announcement of a baseball game at Scranton University on May 16th at 4 p.m. Through the efforts of Dr. Tyson, President and "Hoss" Lough, baseball coach, the game has been advanced to 2:30 p.m. which will allow those members of the team in the show to return in time for the curtain at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale for the three performances at various places in town and on the campus. Those places handling ticket sales right now are the College Store, Athletic Office, Rosemark and Home Restaurants. Tickets are also available from club members and are priced at $1.00 per person, tax included.

The three performances are scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, May 15, 16 and 17, at 8:30 p.m. in the College Little Theatre in the Science Building.

Medico Notes!!!

1. All students requiring medical attention on Tuesday, April 22nd, are requested to report to the Student Health Officers in East Hall before 9:45 a.m. These shortened hours will prevail for this date only and are necessitated due to physical examinations being conducted for the U. S. Naval Reserve.

2. All students whose home is in New York City and surrounding areas are requested to contact the Student Health Office prior to April 21, 1947, to arrange for vaccination against Small Pox. In the event that vaccination has been performed, kindly be ready to verify this fact by appropriate certificates.

'CIARLA' Calls For Campus Photos Again

Several weeks ago a plea was put forth by the staff of the 1948 CIARLA for pictures taken on the campus during the September-February term. To date no replies have reached the CIARLA office. The time is rapidly drawing to a close when these pictures will be needed for use in the Ciarla.

It is our desire to make this, the one-hundredth anniversary issue, the biggest and best Ciarla yet published. But to do so we need the cooperation of the entire student body. If there are any men on the campus who have any and all types of pictures taken on the campus, in the dorms, or on the athletic fields, please contact the Ciarla office any afternoon or contact the Editor in the Public Relations Office.

Within the next several weeks all the pictures of the Junior class must be taken. There is a schedule posted on the bulletin board and all men graduating in June, 1948 are asked to arrange to have their picture taken before May 2, 1947. Also within the near future all other pictures will be taken; please watch for the schedules to be posted on the bulletin board, and be prompt when your group is to be photographed.

The staff is now formulating the final layout of the 1948 Ciarla, and will be glad to receive any suggestions from the student body. Again all suggestions should be addressed to the Ciarla office. Let us all work together and make this an edition worthy of the anniversary it will represent.

Got A Weekly???

In a move to complete the files of the WEEKLY, the staff has issued a call for any old issues of the paper which students, faculty, or staff members may have on hand.

Due to wartime conditions and lack of facilities, the existing files have been removed or disrupted. The present staff would like to rebuild a complete file of back issues of the WEEKLY.

Anyone in the school having access to back issues, of any year and are willing to part with these issues, is asked to kindly contact the WEEKLY editors or staff members.

Pre-Meds Hear Prominent Surgeon

Dr. Kerwin Marcks, prominent plastic surgeon, was the guest speaker at the Pre-Medical Club's meeting held on Wednesday evening, April 9 in the Science Building.

A speaker who held the interest of the medical aspirants, Dr. Marcks was informative and highly convincing in his lecture. Illustrating his lecture material as he proceeded were a series of Kodachrome slides especially adapted to the subject.

Dr. John V. Shankweiler, faculty sponsor and adviser to the organization, gave a report to the members concerning entrance to medical schools this fall. The report, compiled as a result of extensive correspondence with the various medical schools in this area, painted a rather discouraging picture to those who seek entrance this fall and have not as yet been accepted.

Cap and Gown . . .

Prof. Luther Deck requests that all Seniors graduating June 1947 give him their cap and gown sizes. This is the last call!

Each graduating Senior is required to be at Baccalaureate Service on Sunday, June 1st, and the Commencement Exercises on Monday, June 2nd.

Further information will be sent to graduating Seniors in May. The rehearsal for Commencement will be held directly after the Baccalaureate Service.

Each man graduating will receive three (3) tickets for admission of relatives and friends to each exercise.

'SPRING SWING' SPORT DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT

Assembly Tonight Features Famed Organist, E. Power Biggs

E. POWER BIGGS

Tonight, at 8:30 p.m., the Muhlenberg series of lectures and concerts will be climaxed with the appearance of the world-renowned organist, E. Power Biggs. Mr. Biggs is one of the country's most popular organists, appearing every Sunday morning on a national hook-up over the Columbia Broadcasting System and also, at frequent intervals, with various symphony orchestras.

This is an event which has long been anticipated both by Allentownians and Muhlenberg students and it is expected that the Chapel, where the recital is scheduled to be held, will be filled to capacity for this important musical event. Prominent music critics credit Biggs with being the man most responsible for the revival of interest in the organ which has taken place during the last few years.

E. Power Biggs is one of the world's most accomplished organists and has distinguished himself by his artistic interpretations of great classical works. His playing is renowned for its electrifying effect on audiences. Mr. Biggs' appearance this evening will feature many of the best loved compositions of great composers.

Mr. Biggs' repertoire includes all phases and styles of music, embracing the classic, modern, and romantic. His performances have always been rated as tops in entertainment value.

He is best known in this area for his work with the Bethlehem Bach Choir. His talented renditions of Bach's music have won him many plaudits from followers of the Bach Festivals. In addition to his regular appearances over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Biggs frequently appears as an organ soloist with such distinguished orchestras as the Boston Symphony, Chicago Symphony, Cincinnati Symphony, and the Berkshire Symphonic Festival orchestra. The virtuoso also appears in the Library of Congress recitals.

Both at Harvard and Columbia, Biggs has achieved the musical feat of playing through the entire organ repertoire of Bach. These performances were acclaimed by the press as "unique for our day and age". He is best known for his masterly interpretations of Bach and Handel, whose works he plays with new vigor, appeal, and flourishes. He has also been featured in first performances of modern concertos by Harris, Poulence, and others.

Policy Speech By Phil Mitterling

Philip I. Mitterling, president of Muhlenberg's chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary historical fraternity, was one of three student speakers in a panel discussion at the monthly Student Forum of the Foreign Policy Association in Philadelphia on Saturday, April 19th.

Representatives from colleges in Philadelphia and adjacent areas met during the morning at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in the last Student Forum of the year to discuss the topic, "Latin America in the World Panorama".

Among the colleges sending delegates, many of them women students, were Rosemont, the University of Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's, Temple, Haverford, and Muhlenberg. Those students representing Muhlenberg were Philip I. Mitterling, John H. P. Reumann, David O. Tyson and Ed Schellenberger.

After the Student Forum, the delegations attended the luncheon discussion of the Foreign Policy Association to hear speeches by Hon. Martin Luis Drago, Argentine Minister and personal representative of President Peron in the United States, and Hon. Ezequiel Padilla, former Foreign Minister of Mexico and recent candidate for the presidency of Mexico.

Mitterling spoke during the morning in the panel discussion on Latin America which followed a series of round table discussions among small groups of the student delegates.

Seniors Prepare For Graduate Record Exams

All Seniors graduating in June will meet in the Science Auditorium at 11:30 a.m., Friday, April 25th, to discuss the coming Graduate Record Examinations.

The examinations themselves will be held on May 5th and 6th. President Levering Tyson, Dean Sherwood W. Mercer, and Dr. Carl Boyer will give the seniors valuable hints to enable them to make high grades on the examinations.

These Graduate Record Examinations, concentrating in the student's major field but also covering many college subjects, have been designed to give some record of the extent of the student's knowledge upon graduation. They are much in demand by graduate schools.

College Entrance Exams Given At Muhlenberg

Muhlenberg College played host to two hundred nineteen men and women, mostly High School seniors from the surrounding territory, last Saturday, April 10, as that group was on campus engaged in taking college entrance examinations for next fall.

The college entrance aspirants, seeking admission to various colleges in eastern Pennsylvania, were assigned to this school for the series of examinations. Muhlenberg College has been officially designated by the College Entrance Examination Board as the Muhlenberg Center for the administration of these exams.

Reports of these tests are then sent to the colleges or Universities into which the examined student desires admission.

Among the various types of tests given were the Scholastic Aptitude Test, a Comprehensive Mathematics Test, Achievement Tests in all subject matter areas, and a special Veteran's Aptitude Test.

Some of those on campus were seeking admission to Muhlenberg next fall. Tests required of this group were the Scholastic Aptitude Test and at least three of the Achievement Tests in fields of the student's choice. On the basis of these tests Muhlenberg will award eight full tuition scholarships, grants from endowment which are given each year to deserving students on a competitive basis.

Large Phi Kappa Tau Pledge Group Initiated Into Fraternity

Eta Chapter of Phi Kappa Tau initiated 16 members of the pledge class into brotherhood on Friday evening, April 11.

The men initiated are Robert H. Barnes, Flushing, N. Y.; Sheldon B. Benscoter, E. Mauch Chunk; James L. Bensinger, Ashland, Pa.; Robert J. K. Butz, Breinigsville, Pa.; James F. Christman, Pottstown; David G. Eynon, Collingswood, N. J.; John J. Gehman, Allentown, Pa.; Richard Gutekunst, Allentown, Pa.; Carl S. Herzog, Oley, Pa.; Dale Johnson, Allentown, Pa.; Edward G. Kleitz, Freeport, Pa.; E. Robert McCready, Allentown; Horace E. McCready, Allentown; Richard Miller, Allentown; Henry W. Moehling, Marion Park, Pa.; and Peter Wycoff, Stroudsburg, Pa.

A cartoon in the Boston College "Heights" pictures a smiling student leaving a classroom and holding a smoking pistol as he cheerfully tells his waiting friends, "I passed."

Ed Hall's Band Plays 9-12 At Castle Garden

"Spring Swing" will be the theme of the Student Council's next dance to be held at Castle Gardens on Saturday, April 26. 'Berg men and their dates will dance to the easy tempos of Ed Hall and his orchestra. Hall and his rhythm merchants have won popular acclaim in Philadelphia and other Eastern cities for their smooth rhythms and hot melodies.

This is the first of the two spring dances to be given by the good gentlemen of the Council. Ed Hall's orchestra features a beautiful and talented vocalist, Miss Kay Parker, whose warm voice is guaranteed to keep all men close to the bandstand.

This dance, though no jam session, is to be strictly informal. The girls can use their best tea dresses and the fellows can fall back on the good old sports clothes. Music for dancing will be during the usual hours from 9 to 12.

This will be the last informal dance before that sumptuous, gala affair, the Graduation Ball, the other spring dance.

The spacious, polished floor of Castle Gardens offers plenty of room for the students and their guests to dance in comfort, and it is expected that this dance will be attended by an even greater number than other previous affairs.

As usual, Mr. Philip Mitterling, chairman of the Social Functions Committee, is handling all arrangements for the dance.

Mask and Dagger Issues Call For Stage Crew

Part of the Mask and Dagger cast rehearsing for the forthcoming production of "Hamlet" is shown above. Star of the show, John E. T. Rogers is second from right.

The Mask and Dagger presentation of "Hamlet" starts its three day run in the College Little Theater with a matinee performance for high school students, next Wednesday, April 30. The evening performances on Thursday and Friday, May 1 and 2, begin at 8:30.

Under the direction of Andrew Erskine, the rehearsals have been progressing favorably and point toward a very capable rendition of Shakespeare's famed tragedy of the "Prince of Denmark".

Earl Feight and John Drake are production manager and business manager respectively, while work on the set by the stage crew is under the experienced direction of Jim Reppert. Although the opening date is only six days away, several details of scenery require attention as the set nears completion. Men interested in stage work, regardless of experience, should report to the Science Auditorium today at 3:30, or Saturday morning from 10:00 on.

Eta Sigma Phi Hears Paper On Classic Education

On Tuesday, April 16, Mrs. John Tallmadge, head of the Classical Language Department at Cedar Crest, spoke to the members of Eta Sigma Phi on "Greek and Roman Productions in the Last 50 Years".

A business meeting preceded the discussion, at which time it was agreed to secure money to support one Greek child for one year in a Greek school. The chapters of two other Eta Sigma Phi fraternities will join in the fulfillment of this project.

Dr. Robert Fritsch, Professor Emeritus of Muhlenberg College, will speak on "Derivation of Words" next Tuesday, April 29.

The fraternity is planning its annual banquet for the third week in May. The tentative date is May 21. Election of officers for the following term will be held at this time.

Plan More Phones For East Hall, If Desired

A memorandum from Dean of Students, Perry F. Kendig to Harold Helfrich, Co-chairman of the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, was read at the regular monthly meeting of that group last Monday

Five Students Initiated To Revive ODK

Five undergraduates were initiated on Friday, April 11, into Omicron Delta Kappa, highest honorary group on the campus, as the group, which recognizes student activity was reactivated.

The five men initiated into ODK were Harold Helfrich, president of the Student Council; Jack Reumann, Council secretary and WEEKLY; John Myers, Council member and baseball star; Maurice Horn, Senior class prexy; and John E. T. Rogers, veteran actor and ex-WEEKLY editor.

These men were initiated into the fraternity by undergraduate members of the Lehigh chapter of ODK in an impressive ceremony in Bethlehem. This was necessitated by the fact that there were at the time no student members on the Muhlenberg campus.

Dr. James S. Swain, Dr. Victor Johnson, and Mr. Francis Warlow, faculty members at Muhlenberg, were present at the initiation. Other brothers in the faculty include Dr. Levering Tyson, Dr. Robert Horn, Dean Harry Benfer, and Dr. John V. Shankweiler.

Later in the semester more eligible Seniors and Juniors will be initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa.

ODK, one of the wartime casualties at Muhlenberg, has always granted membership to outstanding upperclassmen for scholastic attainment, extra-curricula activities, and character. It is regarded as the highest honor on the campus any student can attain.

SEEK MORE PHONES

In answering the recommendation for more telephones in East Hall, Dean Kendig pointed out that this had been tried in the past and had not worked because the telephones were always torn out by students who were annoyed by their ringing. Dean Kendig's added, however, that the college will try installing more telephones, provided that 98 percent of the East Hall residents favor the move and that "there be a distinct agreement about who is expected to answer each phone." This problem is a concern of the Dormitory Council.

Regarding the recommendation that towels be furnished by the college to students taking Physical Education, the college said that this can be arranged, at a cost of $5.60 a semester, or $11.20 a year to each student. If three-fourths of the student body wants this service at this price the college "would consider" beginning it next year, this semester being too far advanced to start it now.

PUBLIC AT ASSEMBLIES

The Administration approved for the time being the proposal that Cedar Crest girls be admitted to Muhlenberg assemblies. This was in accordance with a notice printed in Allentown newspapers several weeks ago which stated that the general public will be invited to the assemblies for the balance of this year.

Regarding the using of the basement room in the Library as a lounge and reading room, Dean Kendig said that the Administration believes that the new Recreation

Vivian Patzold

If any freshman who started at Muhlenberg this past February still has the idea that school is all term papers, book reports, six weeks exams and two-bulb classrooms, let him be enlightened regarding the less dismal side of college life. Let him read, heed, then speed down to the first floor of the Administration Building (the power room) and study there the machinery so important in running the college, the office force.

One needs no special mechanical aptitude to notice the abundance of attractive cogs in these wheels of industry. On of these is tall brown-haired Vivian Patzold of the Records Office.

MISS VIVIAN PATZOLD

Since she came to Muhlenberg three years ago, until January of 1947, "Viv" worked in the office of Director of Admissions, "Haps" Benfer. In January, when the dissonant sawing and hammering of the remodeling carpenters resounded through the "Ad" Building halls, she moved to the office across the hall, from the Student Council Room. This is the busy department which handles college records and transcripts and employs two fortunate, much envied young men to help in its maintenance.

When Viv came to Muhlenberg, the Navy V-5 and V-12 units were training here. Very impressive was the sight of a unit review, and Viv was often an interested spectator as were most other people on the campus. An ardent sports enthusiast from way back when, she attends most 'Berg football and basketball games. Unlike some feminine followers of these sports, who pick their favorite team according to the color scheme of the uniform, Viv knows what happens in a game, the how and why.

Had her parents remained in Allentown and not moved to Emmaus when she was a year old, Viv might not have had the opportunity to develop her great interest in hiking, for jostling through a Saturday, Hamilton Street shopping crowd—the habit and fate of native Allentonians—is hardly an invigorating hike. In contrast, the quiet roads and hills near Emmaus are far more conducive to this pastime. Not narrowed to one form of recreation, she also likes to swim; and, on the more placid side, deals a mean hand of pinochle.

Eligible gentlemen, take note, for a reliable source (V. Patzold) has it that the unmarried Vivian loves to cook. Arrangements are being made to enable her to distribute free samples of her favorite opus—chocolate cake—at the door of the Records Office to students who wish to sample the Patzold pantry putterings.

Whether she sees in such a move, less favorable odds, or the inroads of competition, comely Vivian has come out against transforming Muhlenberg into a coed institution. Cedar Crest, in her opinion, is near enough to provide the coed atmosphere, if one is necessary. She would not like to see this traditionally male student body undergo any change. "Change" in the foregoing statement, however, might be construed so as to team with connotation.

Educating Viv's admission that she like her work here, as well as the college itself, was an easy matter. The personable smile that accompanied that admission also confirmed it.

WEEKLY FORGES AHEAD Revelation Of New Secret Weapon Causes Uproar

by Larry Tully

It was quite apparent that this wasn't going to be just another meeting of the WEEKLY staff, for when I tried to walk into the office that morning, I was stopped by two tough looking guys who demanded my identification papers. I brought out the ten odd stories that I've been trying to get published every time I get to see Mike Rogers, which satisfied them and I was allowed to enter.

The place was alive with the electricity of human nerves, and as my eyes followed the outline of the semi-darkened room I noticed Jack Reumann tearing up the chapel chits he had been saving for posterity, Dave Tyson was doing the same thing with his file of old Obiter Dicta and Gordon Daggy was making a fine pile of all the gray hairs he could accumulate. Yes, something was up, and it was soon going to come to a head or Rittersille would have more business than it ever expected from Muhlenberg. No human could stand this strain much longer.

Finally Big Mike pounded on the desk at the head of the office and spoke:

"Men, as you all know, this is the Atomic era, when everything must be expected to undergo a drastic change. We, the WEEKLY has realized that if we are ever to break out of the Bushleagues, we too have to forge ahead. Our plan for attack is simple, although it may sound a little complicated at first. Brace yourselves, here it is."

And with these words Mike reached up and withdrew the curtain that was covering the bulletin board. The gasps of the startled gathering could have been heard all the way down to 7th and Hamilton. Pickard and Needleman fainted in each other's arms. Bob Fratscher jumped under the table and started sobbing, "No, No, No, . . . "The rest of the room was in an uproar.

Rogers acted quickly. "Men," he said, "I know how you feel, but as I said before, we have to act and act quickly. There have been rumors going around the campus of a few other establishments already having gone all the way and beaten us to the gun, but when my spies got hot on the trail, they all proved to be wrong. In the President's office it only turned out to be an electric fan with sharpened edges. The Library had an old injector razor hooked up in some fashion, and the . . . "

At this point Hale broke in with, "Look, Mike, we all promised to follow you in whatever you proposed to do with the WEEKLY, but I think that you have gone too far this time. Can't we settle with a compromise? This is too much . . . "

Democratic-minded Hank Moyer jumped up yelling, "Vote Vote, lets vote on it."

This was unanimously accepted, and after the ballots came in, Mike's plan had it, 31½ to 30, as we only gave one of the more dim-witted freshman a half vote.

The Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

From where we're sitting, looks like the home stretch of this semester is just about upon us. Won't be long now until the final curtain is rung down for many of us, but in the meantime, the few slight obstacles like a thesis, term paper, exams, etc., are doing their best to make it a "hot time in the old school tonight" . . .

Local papers came through once again as they brightened up the society pages with photos from the 'Berg Inter-Frat Ball. Gave some good views of the Prexies of the local frats and their femmes . . . Rog Tolosky raking in the orchids from all corners with the base knocks and fine backstopping for the baseball team. We got the word that Rog already has major league commitments and should be hitting the big time after finishing school . . .

Word says that Paul Snyder and the Mrs. have that baby they were talking about; we're in the dark so how about some confirmation Paul???? "Chip" Fitzgerald headed for a week-end in Jersey with her folks, that left her "Peachy" husband just lying around loose. (Fine play on words we think) . . .

A while ago the WEEKLY reviewed a book entitled, "Mister Roberts". We just got around to reading it ourselves and for our dough it's strictly 4.0. Full of laughs and recollections for all swabbies and also the "doggies" . . .

"Joltin'" Joe Fleischman again taking up the stilts and tripping the light fantastic with that charming Dottie. If only she weren't a couple of heads taller than Joe we could see what was going on . . .

Les Gore and the rumored, Mrs.-to-be making the rounds lately. From what we gather it won't be too long afore that knot is tied . . . And speaking of knots and tying and so on, if Ruth was in town last week-end and Jim Kessock was all lashed up. That too looks like it might work into something more than just plain love, and our Scotch friend might find himself on the business end of a wedding, if so it's O.K. because they're both good peoples. There now, you have my sanction, you can go ahead . . .

Sisto and his gal friend are becoming regulars. Hmmm, that makes a nice couple also, or would you call that a threesome, or even a foursome if Sisto makes two. Let's see now, there's Sisto, the gal and shhhh . . .

New song becoming very popular, "How are Things with Ray Comora?" from the picture, "Andy Hardy and His Electric Gail Bladder" . . .

Perhaps you haven't noticed, but the Collegiate Digest, which we put with the WEEKLY when it's distributed, has been calling for interesting pictures of campus life and activity. Chance to earn some extra dough and help Muhlenberg on the map. If you have any shots you'd like to submit, drop up to the office and we'll be glad to give you all the dope . . .

Ex-'Bergman, Don Peters, now in Boston with an insurance school, and getting ready to set the home town afire with the insurance business when he returns. Got a gander at his offspring last week and he's quite a kid . . .

The superior "commanders", Herb Sachs, and Jerry Rosen are really top men around there, and seem to have everything sewed up. But they better look to their laurels because Swift and "Tall Paul" Smith are moving up fast. The gals go into a "9G" swoon when the "Romeos" waltz in . . .

Larry Tully crowned speed king of this area. He's the guy you see "flying low" over our fair streets . . .

Herb Needleman and Paul Steinberg socializing a couple of local belles, at a barn party. Both men met with accidents and were "bleeding at the mouth" when last noted . . .

Been catching some slick stones from Vi and Jeannette lately at the local beanery. They're quite up to date . . . Closing of Rosemark Barber Shop hit some of the boys right in the head (Joke Son!) Word we got should have the shop opened again shortly. Had your reporter kinda worried; we do have to have our "curls" trimmed now and then—just around the edges tho . . .

Gerry Clymer making with a "Norden Bomb Sight" last Saturday. Bob Haldeman caught me right atop the "noggins" and Clymer got an Oak Leaf cluster for 5 missions over Schmoey's Barn . . .

Weekly Reporter Thwarted; Attempted Interview Fails

The satisfied audience which left the Lyric Theatre after final curtain rang down on W. Shakespeare's "Hamlet," which played there last Thursday evening, was unaware of the pre-curtain time activity between the production staff of the Elizabethan tragedy and the reportorial staff of the WEEKLY.

In a move calculated to stimulate student interest in the Mask and Dagger staging of "Hamlet," which opens with a matinee performance in the College Little Theater April 30, the WEEKLY attempted to arrange an interview with the star of the professional company's "Hamlet" and to photograph that company's "Melancholy Dane" with the lead of the Muhlenberg production, John E. T. Rogers. Accomplishment of this move would have given the student play an immeasurable boost. The star of the road company might have suffered no greater loss than ten minutes of his time, and probably, a gain (if small) rather than a loss to his prestige as a public figure.

The exigencies of success, however, apparently do not allow the granting of interviews with mere reporters of college newspapers. Mellow-voiced Helen Hardy, who is with the staff of the road company production, and an effectual impassé to undesired newsmen, refused, for her employer, to grant the interview.

Miss Hardy is employed as a secretary to one Maurice Evans, a member of the cast.

RED FACE DEPT.

Admirers of the WEEKLY should scan its pages with a reasonable amount of accuracy, otherwise such misunderstandings as the following may result.

DEAR WEEKLY,

The football schedules printed on the rear page of the Alumni Magazine and in last week's WEEKLY are conflicting. The dates in the WEEKLY are not even Saturdays. Please straighten out the situation by printing the right dates and the right prospective opposition for the dates.

Ed. Note: If the contributor of the above letter will look closely he will find that the schedule he is referring to was extracted from a WEEKLY which was printed 25 years ago.

When a student at a Western college was asked how he was going to dress for the Mardi Gras, he gave with the meek reply, "I had thought of going as a yardstick, but I don't go to dances as a rule."

EDITORIALS

Dr. Henry Leach, "well-known authority on Scandinavian literature," stepped to the platform of the Science Auditorium at last Thursday night's assembly program, apparently expecting to face a full house.

Was he ever surprised!! ----

Seven students, two faculty members, and two guests were on hand.

Maybe you don't care a hang about the Assemblies themselves, but the present sad state should not be allowed to continue. Remember that you're paying $1.00 per semester for your Assembly Fee.

Do we want Assemblies? If so, we should turn out for them. If not (apparently we don't want them) we should abandon them.

The next student body meeting is the place to bring it up.

Next Thursday, May 1st, the student body meets to nominate a slate of Juniors for next year's Student Council.

The WEEKLY can't urge you strongly enough to attend this meeting and see that all the competent men in the Junior class get their names on the ballot. Next year's Student Council should be of the highest caliber.

By that time, we hope, Muhlenberg will be better adjusted to postwar conditions. Some lengthy strides in the direction of restoration of a truly collegiate atmosphere should be made. And it is to your best interests to see that the Juniors of your choice are elected.

OBITER DICTA . . .

Snowed Under

by Dave Tyson

Ask any student if he thinks he's getting the most out of college, and chances are ten to one you'll get a resounding No! for an answer. Ask him why, and his answer will be something to the effect that there's too much work to be done and too little time to do it . . . the day just isn't long enough.

Many was the time that Muhlenberg men in service dreamed of returning to college to spend a leisurely scholar's life. (See cartoon this page.) The sad awakening came soon after classes started when those aspiring scholars of leisure were snowed under with class assignments, tests, reading reports, and term papers.

Add to that a normal complement of extra-curricular activities and a normal social life, and the result is a hectic rat-race, a sheep-skin derby, with the entries climbing up each others' backs to get ahead.

Sometime during the course of the year, every one was struck by the realization that certain features of their college life would have to be chucked overboard. The WEEKLY found that staff members had to study when there were stories to be written. Dean Kendig found that on Thursday nights students were staying from his assembly program in droves, not because they didn't like grand opera and ballad singers . . . they had tests on Fridays.

Some "leisurely scholars" were so scared they quit going out Saturday nights. It was a matter of necessity, no ifs or buts about it.

It's not fun. There's no joy in college life when you have to spread yourself so thin you never get below the surface in anything.

What's to be done about it? Some advise you to slow down, take more time on your college career. "You have a lifetime ahead of you," they say. "Spend a few more semesters in college and do a good job."

But competition on the "outside" is pretty tough, so they tell us. It would be to our advantage to get the jump on the other boys, without taking a lifetime to do it.

Then there's the financial end to be considered. Many of us have to get out and make some money to (a) continue our education, (b) start adding to our fast-disappearing

G. I. INFO

by Wally Worth

Evidently the polls, taken at Muhlenberg concerning the veterans ability to survive on the subsistence allowance now in effect, represented not only the opinions of the G. I.'s here at 'Berg, but in most of the colleges throughout the land.

At present there is a group of interested persons going from college to college running just such polls. The last college they touched was the University of Arizona.

Old Arizona's returns were the same as 'Berg's. Married men there said that it was impossible to go to school on $90 per. All were in favor of an increase because of the continued rise in the cost of living. They claim that everything has taken a recent jump including Arizona's tuition, that is, everything but the G. I.'s income.

Pennsylvania Vets should keep their eyes on Harrisburg. Although at this time the bonus bill is in the limelight, there are many interesting bills soon to come before the senate.

One bill of benefit to G.I.'s is the Barr bill. It is known in the senate as "Senate Bill 256" and seems to be receiving a favorable nod. The patron of the bill is Senator Barr of Allegheny County. This bill differs from most of the veterans' benefit bills in that rather than being a cash presentation it is an attempt to give an education and security to the children of the veterans who are deceased or disabled.

At the time of its introduction the bill asked that all children of disabled or deceased veterans be given at the expense of the state two years of college education. Naturally in order to qualify for this bill's benefits, the children shall have to meet the entrance requirements of the college.

It is the opinion of this writer that this bill is one of the most unselfish of any yet introduced. It shows that in one of the best ways possible the people are considering payment of the debt they owe the fellows who suffered and died for them.

There can be no better America than an educated one, and the state will, if the bill passes, be doing its part along that line.

Music Makers For "Sheepskin Derby"

Pictured above are the "Mule Kicks" as they ready for Varsity "M" Show. In usual order are Fred Mahler, Nat Smith, Yip Yanelli, and Tom Evans.

It's down the "home-stretch" for "Sheepskin Derby", the annual Varsity "M" Club show. With less than a month to go, the rehearsals are now approaching final stages. Director Mike Rogers, running into more snags as he plods his weary way along the production trail, is noted daily, quietly munching five hot-dogs at the ptomaine emporium, Kenny's, and muttering to himself, "Bring on the wimmen and thousands of two-humped camels."

GOT A DATE?

BOWLING GREEN, OHIO — (ACP)—A freshman sociology course on dating has been started at Bowling Green State University. The teacher, Dr. Samuel Harman Lowrie, chairman of the sociology department, says he believes this is the first time any college has offered a credit course devoted primarily to dating.

Dr. Lowrie believes that communities should organize to encourage dating under wholesome conditions. He considers it a normal element in social development, a large factor in the personality growth of the individual. He is writing a textbook on dating problems and is thus encouraging the establishment of similar courses in other universities.

Professor—Tell me all you know about nitrates.

Student—Well, er---they're a lot cheaper than day-rates.

The Mid-Atlantic track meet jumped up and smacked the "Derby" right amongst its nose by taking four or five stellar performers out of the cast. But, as per usual, the mighty mastodons of mirth made a great comeback and recruited twelve huskies from the Cedar Crest Jacks team, and two zither players from the local rescue mission.

A mad scramble resulted when tickets were placed on sale at Kenny's, Athletic Office, and with the cast of the show. To date a grand total of one ticket has been sold, and the demand is increasing.

The costumer has encountered difficulty in equipping some of the cast, especially in the women's underwear department. Anyone having access to a size 58 bra and size 52 panty girdle, with removable crotch, kindly contact Sisto Averno.

BACH CHOIR TO SING FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

A special concert of the Bethlehem Bach Choir for students and faculty members of Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton colleges will be held April 28 at Grace Hall on the Lehigh University campus.

Scheduled for 7:30 P.M., the collegiate concert will be approximately two hours in length and will include several Bach cantatas as well as the more imposing selections from the Mass in B Minor. Members of the Philadelphia Orchestra will accompany the Choir in this special program, under the direction of Dr. Ifor Jones.

An outgrowth of Dr. Jones' expressed desire to have the Bach Choir play a greater part in the community life of Bethlehem and the more immediate Lehigh Valley, the concert was suggested last fall by Dr. Levering Tyson, president of Muhlenberg College. It was felt that a concert of this type should be presented exclusively for the college groups who otherwise have difficulty in attending the regularly established performances.

Army Officers Plan Visits For Interviews

A Board of Army Officers, known as a Traveling College Board, will visit Pennsylvania colleges and universities to interview former Officers who left the service to complete their education and who will be graduated from college during the spring and summer of 1947 and are interested in receiving Regular Army commissions, Second Army Headquarters in Baltimore announced today.

Tentative itinerary for the "roving screening board" follows:

PENNSYLVANIA
Villanova College, Villanova,	April 28
Temple University, Philadelphia	April 30
Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia	May 5
Lehigh University, Bethlehem	May 7
Bucknell University, Lewisburg,	May 12
Pennsylvania State College, Altoona	May 14
Carnegie Institute of Technology,	May 19
University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh	May 21

Members of the board are Lt. Colonel Harold E. Hassenfeldt, Major Edgar A. Rickman, Captains William J. Sweet and William T. Cooper and Master Sergeant Albert H. Krause, Jr., administrative assistant.

It is anticipated that announcement of appointments made under this program will be made during the month of September, 1947.

"Men," the co-ed declared contemptuously, "are absolutely lacking in judgment and taste."

"Possibly, my dear," he responded, "but just think how many old maids there would be if they were not."

DR. IFOR JONES

When the plan was broached to Dr. Martin D. Whitaker, president of Lehigh University, who with Dr. Hutchinson, president of Lafayette College, and Dr. Tyson discussed the project, the facilities of the Bethlehem institution were made available to the Choir and Grace Hall was chosen as the site offering the greatest seating space.

Tickets for the Concert have been made available on a proportional basis to the six colleges involved.

The Bach Choir has performed on one previous occasion at Grace Hall, October 20 of the past year, during the exercises marking the inauguration of Dr. Whitaker as president of Lehigh. At the forthcoming Concert, however, special arrangements will present the Choir to greater advantage and permit an audience of close to 3,000 to hear the performance.

A block of 549 tickets has been allocated to students of Muhlenberg College, and were distributed early this week to students and members of the faculty.

Coast Guard Artillery Holds Local Service

A service of recognition for the 213th Anti-aircraft Artillery Group, National Guard, was held in the Egner-Hartzell Memorial Chapel last Sunday morning at 10:45 a.m. Dr. Charles D. Trexler, recently-appointed Student Pastor at Muhlenberg, delivered the sermon.

The 213th Group, with headquarters in Allentown, is one of several units in the eastern part of Pennsylvania which has been designated "The First Defenders" by an act of Congress. When President Lincoln sent out his call for volunteers on April 16, 1861, five companies from this area were the first to reach Washington. Many similar "firsts" have been added to their record since then.

Dr. Trexler conducted the service of recognition along with Chaplain H. R. Blouch of the 688th Automatic Weapons Battalion. Dr. Harold K. Marks was at the console, and Dr. Levering Tyson read the lesson.

The high school Girls' Glee Club and the grade school Boys' Chorus of South Whitehall high school, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Peters, sang several numbers.

Inquiring Reporter . .

What do you think of your new home on the Muhlenberg campus?

The WEEKLY's Inquiring Reporter crossed Chew Street to ask a group of veterans' wives in South Hall the above question recently. While bending over washboards and changing diapers, the following answers were given:

Mrs. Howard Graner, Apartment #2:

"The thing that impresses me most about the apartment is the trouble the FPHA went to in order to make the place so very comfortable and so surprisingly spacious. I am greatly pleased with the kitchen—it's pleasure to work there. The size of the bedrooms surprised me no end . . . We are all happy to be here.

"Without appearing ungrateful for the conveniences already noted, I'd say the addition of clotheslines and sidewalks would be greatly appreciated . . .

"Due to the fact that I am now right in the shadow of the college, I feel like I am a more definite part of my husband's everyday school life. The quiet influence of the buildings tends to make one pleased to be located on the campus."

Mrs. Paul H. Campbell, Apartment #4:

"We like our home very much because it is so spacious, comfortable, convenient, and inexpensive. The kitchen equipment far surpasses anything I had imagined. It is cheerful, yet cozy, and we are not crowded for space. The living room and bedrooms are quite comfortable and attractive. My family, husband, and I are happy to be here.

"There is an unusual amount of closet space for the size of the apartment . . .

"You know, the addition of clothes lines and a hard paved walk would please me greatly.

"Now that I live in sight of the school, I feel as though I am securely fixed in my husband's daily college life. Because we are located across the street from the college, Paul and I have more time to spend with each other, and we have more time to devote to the children. I couldn't be happier if I lived inside the Ad Building."

Mrs. Bertram Wakely, Apartment #7:

"I am certainly one happy person to be living here. Been married for years and this is the first place where we could unpack our trunks. The kitchen is certainly an eye-pleaser. And the other rooms are swell, too. Just being able to look around and see this lovely apartment is a wonderful feeling.

"Concerning additions to make our stay here more pleasant, I'd like to point out the erection of clotheslines, placing of hard paved walks, and above all the building of fences from apartment to apartment to corral the children and keep them from wandering down to Cedar Beach unnoticed.

"Because I live so close to the college, I feel happy and contented. My husband and I sure do enjoy the extra time available since we moved across the street from the college Chapel."

Mrs. Martin Weisman, Apartment #11:

"I like the apartment because it is just the right size for our small family . . .

"The absence of open fire places in America is striking. In all English homes, modern or not, the open fire place is a central system of heating. Please don't misunderstand me, I like the stove we have in our apartment: it warms all the rooms in a jiffy, and serves as an excellent substitute for the long-missed open hearth . . .

"The fact that I can actually see the college buildings gives me a contented feeling. And being able to see the boys moving to and from the school is also comforting. I always think of how soon Marty will be in returning from his classes, and how enjoyable it is to be able to eat lunch and dinner together. I certainly feel that I am a definite part of my husband's life since we moved here."

IT STINKS!

NORMAN, OKLA. — (ACP)—Blotters reading, "If you like the smell of our steaks, try one," is the novel way in which a San Diego restaurant owner will advertise his meat dishes if Dr. Ralph Biefang, professor of pharmacy at the University of Oklahoma can help him.

Dr. Biefang has been asked by the restaurant owner to provide him with cooked meat odor to "scent" blotters. Each blotter would have a picture of a meat dish served by the restaurant and would contain the smell of the meat also.

PENNY PINCHER?

BERKELEY, CALIF.—(ACP)—That harassing question, "how much can you raise in a pinch?" originated in the California gold rush when a clerk was hired as much for the size of his thumb and forefinger as for his ability.

Dr. Ira B. Cross, professor of economics on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, tells his story in a booklet entitled "Californians and Hard Money"

Small purchases in those days were paid for by "pinches" of gold dust, and the ability of a clerk to take a large pinch from a miner's poke was an important factor in getting a job.

The British Empire: A New Challenge

by Russel Everitt

Algernon Swinburne concludes his poem, England: An Ode, with the following lines:

Change darkens and lightens around her, alternate in hope and in fear to be:

Hope knows not if fear speak truth, nor fear whether hope be not blind as she:

But the sun in heaven that beholds her immortal, and girdled with life by the sea.

These lines, though written 43 years ago, reflect the mood in English political circles today regarding the dissolution of the British Empire. The British Empire is undergoing a metamorphosis, which has caused confusion among the various political factions. The atmosphere is aggravated by plans to grant India her independence in June 1948, to withdraw British troops from Egypt, and to transport British commitments in Greece to the United States.

Underlying the situation are two factors.

The first, and most conspicuous, is the chaotic economic conditions in England itself. For the first time since the sixteenth century, the powerful commercial structure that proved to be her life-blood has begun to disintegrate as a result of two devastating wars less than thirty years apart and the tremendous debt contracted during the recent war. As long as she was able to wield this economic force in the areas she controlled, she was able to dominate those areas and hold the empire together.

Today, when she needs the raw materials and trade of her empire, she can no longer obtain them, and estimates say it will be from ten to twenty years before England's exports equal her imports, unless her coal exports in the next five years surpass those of the pre-war years.

For these reasons, Britain has been compelled to relinquish her commitments in Greece, and they can be viewed as motives behind the attitudes of some government officials in pursuing the course of imperial contraction.

The second factor is the presence of conservative elements within the government who still cling desperately to the evanescent liberal policies of Gladstone and refuse to recognize the existing circumstances. They realize that any attempt to disrupt the status quo of the empire would mean, not lifting Britain from her position as a fourth-rate power today, but permanently relegating her to that position. With this approach, should not the convulsions within the colonies prompt an examination of their attitudes also?

What I consider one of the most important pronouncements on British foreign policy today was recently made in a House of Lords debate on India. Quite astoundingly, criticism came not from a Tory or a Laborite, but from a Liberal. Viscount Samuel, according to the Christian Science Monitor, made the following remarks:

"Let us not give appearance here in the Parliament that we are clinging to our old imperial powers, that we are grasping at all commercial difficulties in order to gain brief respite before we are obliged, as we should be obliged in the end, to surrender with bad grace to turbulence and rebellion.

"The effect of what we are doing here today will be felt in relations between the two peoples (Britain and India) for generations to come. Let it not leave behind memories of anger, perhaps of bloodshed, and accusations of bad faith."

In his appeal to history, Viscount Samuel said:

"Mildreds, we often hear it said on one occasion or another that we have reached an historic moment, sometimes when that occasion is merely of temporary importance.

"But today there is no doubt at all that we stand at a turning point in the history of this nation."

"Let us see this debate in its time setting. For 300 years the states of Europe were extending their sovereignty over other continents. This island, with its ships and its seamen, outstripped its rivals and assumed control over nearly one fourth of the land surface of the globe.

"Then we had a century of revolution. In the transfer of power to the Dominions, similar to the British in stock, language, religion, history, that has been easy. But it has proven difficult when the transfer of power is to peoples of other races without that similarity of characteristics.

"That being so, we see the half of mankind which is dwelling in Asia and in tropical Africa claiming their own liberties and their right to take their place in the onward march of civilization. It is not a coinci-

Choir Waxes Album Of Records For Public Release This Spring

Last Thursday afternoon the Muhlenberg College Chapel Choir made a series of records of popular college and sacred songs. The records will be released in an attractive album in approximately three weeks. Three ten-inch records in an album will be sold for four dollars. Included in the album are the "Alma Mater", "Fair Muhlenberg", "Dawn and Desire", and "Alma Mater" by Fred Waring, "Kick of the Muhlenberg Mule"; and two sacred numbers chosen from "Hallelujah, Amen," "Beautiful Saviour", and "Morning Hymn". Pictured above are choir members in the midst of one of the numbers under the direction of Dr. Harold K. Marks.

Is The British Empire Doomed?

dence that at this moment our old rivals in colonization, the French and the Dutch, are faced with exactly the same problem in their dominions . . .

"This great movement of Asiatic and African peoples have been approved and encouraged by the Atlantic Charter which was endorsed and confirmed by the charter of the United Nations. In this document Roosevelt, in behalf of the United States, and Churchill, in behalf of his country, declared that these two countries respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.

"The Government statement made here a few days ago (setting the date for freedom of India and thereby giving other native peoples a definite sign that their own day of freedom is not far off) is the climax of long evolution . . ."

In referring to the alternatives which the chief Conservative speaker was going to propose, the Viscount stated that he still held a blank piece of paper for them; that meanwhile the civil government of India was "running down"; and that innumerable problems were resulting from this condition.

Speaking of the difficulties which the Speaker had in his seven years' preparation of the draft constitution for India, he said:

"From what quarter did his difficulties mainly come? . . . From the fact that he was faced by strenuous oppositions of a large part of the Conservative party, led by indefatigable energy and irreconcilable hostility from beginning to end by Winston Churchill.

"And we have to bear in mind that soon after the Atlantic Charter was issued under his signature, Mr. Churchill declared in another place that it was not meant to apply to India and elsewhere in the British dominions. He said that it was a separate problem—an announcement that was received with dismay throughout the world.

"Now he is leader of the Conservative party, which is reverting to those tendencies which, though from time to time have been in abeyance, have really existed throughout all its history.

"They were responsible for the two great failures of the British Empire, for the loss of American colonies and the long quarrel with Ireland.

"They would have added a third if they had had their way after the Boer War, when, as today, they disassociated themselves from responsibility for what Balfour declared was the rash experiment of granting self-government to South Africa.

"Today apparently they might be willing to add a fourth, in creating an ungovernable India."

Aside from all partisanship, Viscount Samuel gives a lucid appraisal of the trend. It is the frank statement of a condition that can no longer be avoided.

In closing, I would like to say that, in spite of the pessimistic beginning, there is hope the empire will resolve itself eventually into an empire of consent and harmony, which is the only solution capable of sustaining England in the future.

"One Telephone Call, Please"

YOU KNOW, OF COURSE, that you don't order a telephone call as you'd order a candy bar or a cigar. Your telephone call is custom-built, exclusively for you—and it's our job to fill your order promptly, accurately, courteously, and economically—whether you call across the street, the town, the state, the continent, or the world.

IT TAKES A LOT OF PEOPLE and a lot of equipment and a lot of buildings and a lot of know-how and a lot of money to do all this, for the custom-built call you order is only one of over 9 MILLION calls that must be custom-built every day for the people of Pennsylvania alone!

TO MAKE THESE CALLS BETTER AND FASTER—and to make more and more calls possible—we're all-out right now on one of the biggest expansion programs in our history. We have one aim: To provide the world's finest telephone service for everyone who wants it, everywhere in the territory we serve.

Campus Agent Recruits For Naval Reserve

Walter R. Keim, room E-328, East Hall, is the recruiting agent for the United States Navy on the Muhlenberg campus. Information about enlistments in the Volunteer Reserve and the Organized Reserve can be secured from him, or from any local post office.

The Organized Reserve meets in Allentown every Thursday at 8:00 p.m. at the Raub Jr. high school, St. Cloud and Walnut streets. Muhlenberg students living in Bethlehem would find it more convenient to attend the meetings on Thursday at 8 o'clock at Grace Hall, Lehigh University.

Advantages of the Organized Reserve are as follows:

1. Receive one full day's base pay per weekly drill in your rate.
2. Maintain rate in which you were discharged.
3. Accumulate credit for longevity benefits.
4. Opportunity to advance in your rate.
5. Receive full pay and allowances for participation in annual 14-day training cruise.
6. Be assured of service with the Navy in the event of another national emergency.
7. One hundred Annapolis appointments are open to Reserve Personnel.
8. Enlisted Men who can meet qualifications will have an opportunity to be commissioned.

Requirements for non-veterans are as follows:

1. Must be over 17 years of age.
2. Enlistees will be Apprentice Seamen, with pay of $2.50 per drill, $30.00 quarterly.
3. Annual 14-day cruise.
4. Enlist at Allentown Post Office. Physical examination required.

LIBRARY COMMITTEE ANSWERS . . .

Why Have Closed Stacks?

With term papers the rule rather than the exception, students are once asking for open-stacks. However, the problem will not be settled until the end of summer. These facts were disclosed at a recent meeting of the Library Committee.

The stacks were closed about a year ago for several reasons.

- 1) Many books were lost to users of the Library because they were misplaced or actually hidden.
- 2) At the last biennial inventory, many books were found to have disappeared. Even one whole row was stolen.
- 3) The trend for any college library reaching 50,000 volumes is for closed-stacks. Our Library has about 75,000 volumes.
- 4) A system to "watch" students would involve the hiring of an extra person—a rather undesirable position.
- 5) Many books were defaced beyond repair with whole pages destroyed. Some of these valuable books are irreplaceable.
- 6) Reserve books were often taken within fifteen minutes after they were assigned. Sometimes tests had to be postponed because of this.

This summer, an inventory will be taken which will tell the effectiveness of the present system. If the conditions found at the last inventory have not been alleviated, the old system will be returned. Mr. Davidson has made these facts known so that students may know that their case is being considered.

In order to use the Library to its best advantage under the closed-stack system, Mr. Davidson wants the students to know that:

- 1) No matter how many books a student needs, for however large or small a matter it is, he should feel free to ask a librarian for them.
- 2) Students should not hesitate to ask Miss Funk, the reference librarian, for suggestions concerning source material of any sort. This is of especial concern to those writing theses.
- 3) The librarian realizes that the open-stack library is ideal, but at least until after the next inventory of books, the given factors necessitate the stacks remaining closed to the student body.

THIS COLLEGIATE WORLD

From the Duke Chronicle comes the story of the big freshman football player who was up before Dean Manchester at the end of the first semester with a decidedly poor scholastic record. Asked the Dean, "How did you ever end up with four F's and a D?"

"Well," said the boy, thinking it over, "I guess I just concentrated too much on that one subject."

LOOK RECORD REVIEW

TOPS IN WAX—Elliot Lawrence and his Band, predicted by LOOK as tops for 1947, offer two of his best waxings to date: They Can't Convince Me and Let's Put Our Dreams Together. These ballads are both done in the "dream" vein, with vocals taken by Jack Hunter. The first side contains an opening chorus played by Elliot's unusual combination of English Horn, two clarinets and bassoon which, when coupled with his piano introduction, serve to provide a highly arresting mood. The Lawrence band plays a listenable type of music, and through the use of unorthodox instrumentation and styling, is now setting a pace that will be picked up by other bands striving for this mood-type music. (Columbia)

Elliot Lawrence

Don Rodney and The Lombardo Trio (Decca); Anniversary Song—Louis Prima, Prima vocal (Majestic) and More, More, More—Lucky Millinder, vocal by Annisteen Allen (Decca).

HOT JAZZ FOR COLLECTORS

Blue Note Records present Art Hodes and his "Back Room Boys" in two 10-inch records—Jug Head Boogie and M. K. Blues; Low Down Blues and Back-Room Blues, which provide plenty of the Hodes' piano supported by All Stars. Among the participating musicians are: Max Kaminsky, (trumpet); Jimmy Shirley, (guitar); Israel Crosby, (bass); and Sandy Williams, (trombone). All sides show a free and easy jam style of improvisation.

VOCAL STANDOUTS

Mel Tormé, coupled with Sonny Burke's band makes a dreamy, ballad pairing of You're Driving Me Crazy and It's Dreamtime (Musicraft). Columbia has a unique offering of Dinah Shore with Spade Cooley's Orchestra doing a western style ballad—Heartaches, Sadness and Tears. On the backing she joins Morris Stollhoff to sing Anniversary Song. Harry Babbitt has a good ballad side of How Are Things In Glocca Morra? with a novelty Oshkosh Wis. for a backing (Mercury). ALSO TOP VOCALS: Tony Martin's Don't Take Your Love From Me (Decca); Pine Top Schwartz handled by Ella Mae Morse and Her Boogie Woogie Four (Capitol); Santa Catalina sung by Eddie Howard with his Trio and Band (Majestic); and Roses In the Rain sung by Matt Dennis with Paul Weston and Orchestra (Capitol).

Mel Tormé

DANCE—Eddie Heywood—The Piano Man and His Orchestra: Decca makes a scoring with this Eddie Heywood album of four 10-inch discs. The "Piano Man" handles all eight sides with polished styling which combines effective musical contrasts with his tasteful piano interpolations. Rated among the tops are: Who's Sorry Now?, On The Alamo, Lover Man and It's Only A Paper Moon. Tommy Dorsey has a winning combination in one of the best: How Are Things In Glocca Morra? and When I'm Not Near The Girl I Love. Stuart Foster sings on both sides (RCA Victor). Louis Jordan makes a top-riding boogie of Texas And Pacific, then reverses to a novelty, I Like 'Em Fat Like That, then sings on both (Decca). AMONG THE BEST OF THE NEW DANCE RECORDS: Speaking Of Angels—Tex Beneke with the Miller Orchestra, vocal by Garry Stevens (RCA Victor); Howdy Friends (E. T. O. Curtain Call)—Ray McKinley and Orchestra, vocal by McKinley (Majestic); We Could Make Such Beautiful Music—Billy Butterfield, vocal by Pat Flaherty (Capitol); Uncle Remus Said—Guy Lombardo, vocal by

Eddie Heywood

NEW AND WORTHY IMPRESSIONS IN WAX

NIGHT AND DAY—Rickey Jordan with Vivian Garry Trio (Exclusive)
MY NAME AIN'T RICHARD—Reedum & Weep (Jewel)
MOVIE TONIGHT—Johnny Mercer and the Pied Pipers (Capitol)
COW COW BOOGIE—Ella Fitzgerald and the Ink Spots (Decca)
CONNECTICUT—Bing Crosby and Judy Garland (Decca)

SPORTS CHATTER . . .

By Herb Needleman

The head over these two columns is wrong this week. The subject of today's lecture is not sports in the strict sense of the word. Not much can be said about the sporting scene that isn't already known.

So today I'll tell a story. They say that this way that ex-sports scribes like Runyon, Lardner, and Brown got their goose into the realm of the near-great American writers. I mean while trying to beat the deadline with a blank page rattling in their typewriters and a couple of unathletic yarns bouncing around in their minds.

Then if you'll pardon the digression, we'll fill up about eight inches of double column space with a story that did not take place on a grid-iron, hardwood floor, or diamond. The background music wasn't supplied by a college band, but a group of ten rhumba playing, mustache chewing Latins from the back room of Al's Billiard Parlor, Tenth and Snyder, Philly. The spectators, instead of being a mob of howling fans, were thirty or forty tailored and bejeweled members of the horsey set.

You see last week I broke into society.

Through an unusual set of circumstances, I received an invitation to a Main Line affair, and was asked to supply an escort for my date's girl friend. I did, a smart cookie that could handle reportage and women with equal facility.

We checked out to 309 after our Saturday class, and made Philly in about 90 minutes. After showering and smartening up at a handy aunt's home, we took a cab to my date's mausoleum.

They were two smart looking girls, except that both my date, Sandy, and the other girl, Bonnie, seemed to have gotten their eyebrows back from the laundry a little highly starched. They smoked long oval cigarettes with an air that seemed to say, "Life is just too dull."

Sandy filled the silence that always follows introductions by asking how we came in from school.

"It," I said, holding up my thumb, "goes to college."

"Oh, don't either of you have a car?" Asked Bonnie, as if car and pants were synonymous.

My buddy, as I said, is good with the retort swift. "Cars are hard to get, I hear," said the kid.

"Oh I could get you delivery on one tomorrow," Bonnie squealed, "my Daddy has an interest in Mazuma Motors."

"So do I," countered the kid. "I look in their window every time I'm in town. Look, girls, maybe we should have told you before, but you're going out with two starving pre-meds. At present all our money is tied up in cash."

So we took Sandy's car. A powder room on tires.

The party was more or less described earlier. Twenty guys in expensive suits pushed twenty girls in expensive dresses around in time to the blowing, breathing, and sawing of ten pool sharks.

It was not fun.

About an hour and ten Bourbons later, things began to look up. The kid and I looked at each other and winked broadly.

"We're living, kid."

"Yeah, oh pahss me the demi-tasse Mr. Astor; this caviar needs seasoning."

It got progressively better.

Later, in the car going back to Sandy's house, we listened while Bonnie waxed blue over a background of Dawn Patrol jive.

The girl had troubles. Real troubles. Her mother told her she could pick her own birthday present, and she had decided on a fur coat. Passing Bailey, Banks & Biddle yesterday, she had seen a platinum banded cocktail watch, and now she was losing sleep deciding. The story came to an end just as we reached the house, and Bonnie punctuated it with a breathy sigh.

The disk jockey, breaking into the silence with his hourly newscast, announced that starvation was claiming in the neighborhood of 4000 natives a day in India.

We walked the girls to the door.

A.T.O. COPS I-M CROWN, BEATING JOKERS, LAMBDA CHI

The playoff game of Leagues I and II took place on Wednesday afternoon and it was definitely a good ball game. The Jokers and the A.T.O. boys went into this playoff undefeated and one team had to fall by the wayside. In the final count by eight points—final score, A.T.O. 38, Jokers 30.

In the first quarter it seemed as if the game was going to be nip and tuck. The Jokers held a four point edge at the end of eight minutes of play and the count was 9-5. It was in the second quarter that the A.T.O. began throwing them up and made them count as they held the Jokers to only five points while they themselves scored ten points from the floor and one free throw for 11 points. Half-time score A.T.O. 17, Jokers 14.

In the fourth and final stanza was the only frame in which the Jokers managed to outscore the A.T.O. flashes 10-7. This scoring however was not enough to catch that rambling A.T.O. outfit.

A.T.O.	G	F	P	JOKERS	G	F	P
Nies, f	0	1	1	Swartley, f	7	1	16
Mazacca, f	0	1	1	Worst, f	2	0	4
Schroy, f	1	0	2	Olsen, c	1	0	2
Schmunk, c	1	0	2	Shantz, f	3	0	6
Chaffey, c	4	0	8	McGowan, g	0	1	1
Clausen, g	7	2	16	Freyer, g	1	0	2
Wooster, g	2	4	8
Totals	15	8	38	Totals	14	2	30

The second playoff game of the I-M Leagues was played on the West Hall floor on Friday and after 32 minutes of play a new post-war champion was crowned as A.T.O. topped Lambda Chi 44-41.

As the game got underway, Lambda Chi matched A.T.O. point for point and managed to hold a one point edge over the A.T.O. boys. Quarter score Lambda Chi 13, A.T.O. 12.

Both teams were on even terms as the half-time mark was reached—score 25-25.

As they did in their initial playoff game with the Jokers, the A.T.O. boys scored 14 points as they played a beautiful defensive game in allowing the Lambda Chi only two field goals in the third eight-minute frame. This spurt of the A.T.O. proved too much for the losers and it was here that the game's winner was decided, although another 8 minutes remained to be played.

Bill Ritter wishes to announce that 14 teams have been entered in the I-M soft ball league which will get underway on April 28. Games are to be played at East Hall will begin at 4:30 and other games will be played on the West Hall ball diamond at 4:30, and 6:30. Several new teams have been added and there is plenty of good sports in the offing.

Sig Eps Upset A.T.O. By 48-30

Sigma Phi Epsilon came through with one of the biggest upsets of the intramural basketball season by trimming the fabulous A.T.O.'s Tuesday night in the West Hall bandbox, 48-30. This was a first-round contest in the Interfraternity Tournament. This victory enables Sig Ep to meet Lambda Chi Alpha, who defeated Phi Epsilon Pi the previous night, in the finals. The Sig Eps surprised the A.T.O. boys by getting off to a flying start, leading 14-2 in the opening minutes and increasing their lead to 24 to 8 at the midway mark, as A.T.O. looked very little like the intramural champs that they are.

A.T.O. made a valiant comeback in the final heat but were still on the short end as the final whistle blew. Scheipe and Paul Evans were the big guns for the victors, each dumping in five field goals. Berger and Clausen each contributed eight markers to the lost A.T.O. cause.

The final game to determine the king-pin of the fraternity basketball will be played at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the West Hall clocet.

Mules In Relays

Friday and Saturday, April 25th and 26th, "Berg's cindermen will compete with other outstanding colleges and universities in the renowned Penn Relays to be held at Franklin Field in Philadelphia.

On Friday the relay team, composed of Al Jessen, John Rullo, Hank Moyer and Tex Rickert with Herb Gernert as alternate will compete in the Middle Atlantic Mile. Saturday, the speedsters will engage in the famous College Class Mile. These same days, Bob Hale will vie with other huskies for the javelin-throwing title.

At Deadline . . . LEOPARDS TRIP MULES, 8-1

Score by Innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Lafayette	0	0	3	2	1	0	0	1	1	8	11	0
Muhlenberg	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	1	4	3

Batteries—Lafayette: Robbins, and Perrotty. Muhlenberg: Taylor, McBreardy and Tolosky.

CLOSE PLAY AT FIRST

Lefty Myers covers first on peg from Bibighaus, to put out a Swarthmore runner. Paul Karobelnick is also in the shot, and you know who the guy in the black suit is.

One Hit Drops Bullets, 3-2

Berg bounced back in the five-hundred column by squeezing out a close 3-2 victory over the Gettysburg Bullets, on a wind-swept home field, last Saturday afternoon.

By winning, the Mules made their season's record read two up and two down. The only previous win recorded by Berg was an 8-3 decision over Temple the previous Saturday.

The time-honored theory that hits win ball games was dispelled by the local battlers, for off the combined offerings of Hummel and Houtz they collected but one bingle.

The Mules dented the plate for two of their runs in the very first inning. Herb led off with a walk, and was sacrificed to the keystone by Schwob. Henry walked, and Tolosky followed with a line single, which sent Herb across with the first run, Henry taking third. A moment later Henry scored on an outfield fly.

Berg scored its final tally in the fourth inning. Tolosky walked, took second on an error, was sacrificed to third, and scored, what proved to be the winning run, on a long fly by Karobelnick.

Houtz, Bullet relief hurler pitched brilliantly.

Mule Netmen Nip G'burg 9-0

Muhlenberg's tennis team opened its season last Saturday with a resounding shut-out victory over Gettysburg college, 9-0. In sweeping all the matches, the team scored its first perfect victory in several seasons. Professor Shankweiler's proteges dropped only two sets to their visitors. Cerney was extended to beat Katz in his singles, but finally triumphed, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2; in doubles, the combination of Wieland and Ranken lost their first set, but then thumped Lehman and Copeland, 7-9, 6-2, 6-3. In all the other matches the Mules won in straight sets.

Muhlenberg was led to victory by a quartet of veterans returned from last year's squad. Bob Ranken, playing number four, is a senior and veteran of several tennis campaigns before the war as well as a member of last year's team. Also returned this year from the season of 1946 are Bob Cerney, Bill Klink, and Howard Haring. These three each have at least one more full season of competition ahead.

Doctor Shankweiler, in an effort to bolster his squad and give more men an opportunity to participate in tennis, has begun to organize a junior varsity squad. This team will face a schedule separate from that of the varsity. Plans have not as yet been completed, but announcement is expected to be made within a few days.

The next match for the Mules will be on this Saturday, April 26, at the Oakmont Tennis Club's courts, 21st and Allen Sts. It will begin at one-thirty. The opposition will be the Greyhounds of Moravian.

The summaries of the Gettysburg match follow:

Singles: Bob Cerney, Muhlenberg, defeated John Katz, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2; Bill Klink, Muhlenberg, defeated Bob Hassinger, 6-0, 6-4; Dick Wieland, Muhlenberg, defeated John Miller, 6-3, 6-2; Bob Ranken, Muhlenberg, defeated Bill Copeland, 6-1, 6-0; Bill Dougherty, Muhlenberg, defeated John Lehman, 6-4, 6-1; Howard Haring, Muhlenberg, defeated Don Issing, 6-1, 6-3.

Doubles: Cerney and Klink, Muhlenberg, defeated Katz and Miller, 11-9, 6-4; Wieland and Ranken, Muhlenberg, defeated Lehman and Copeland, 7-9, 6-2, 6-3; Dougherty and Haring, Muhlenberg, defeated Hassinger and Gordon Grigsby, 7-5, 6-1.

"Verein" Holds Annual Party Featuring Women's Evening

On Monday evening, April 21, 1947, Der Deutsche Verein once again held its annual Damenabend, i.e., Ladies' evening, in the recreation room of West Hall. This marked the revival of one of the foremost features of Der Deutsche Verein which had become dormant during the war years.

Festivities for the evening included group singing; a short talk about Hans Sachs, a dramatist of the 16th century by Dr. Pfeuger; a delightful short comedy by Hans Sachs titled "Das Kaelberbreuten" (Calf-hatching); musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, conducted by Dr. Wood; another short talk by Dr. Pfeuger on the subject of a local author; and the serving of refreshments.

"Das Kaelberbreuten" is the amusing story of a hen-pecked farmer (Donald T. Miller) who, after his wife (Adolph Wegener) has gone to market, makes a general mess of the housekeeping chores and even puts the cattle into the garden where the calf falls into the well. Dismayed, and afraid of what his wife would do to him, he decides, since chickens hatch young from eggs, to try to hatch calves from cheese. Therefore, he sits on a nest of cheeses where his wife finds him when she returns from market. Being able to obtain hissing responses, similar to those of geese, his wife seeks the priest (William Dennis) to drive the curse of the devil from him. The swearing fails, the wife and priest drag the farmer from the basket, the farmer berates them, the priest is thrown out, and the play ends happily — wife and husband toasting their happiness.

Dr. Pfeuger directed the play; Dr. Reichard served as the apple-chewing interlocutor. Dr. Barba served as make-up artist for the characters, and costumes were old European.

Guests of Der Deutsche Verein at this meeting included German students of Cedar Crest College and Moravian College for Women, wives and lady friends of members, Faculty members and wives from Cedar Crest College and Muhlenberg.

'Bergman Art Winner

One of Muhlenberg's former contributors to the ARCADE, Alfred D. Sensenbach, now completing work on his Master of Arts degree at the University of Wisconsin, has been awarded First Prize in the Student Art Show conducted at that institution.

Sensenbach, an Allentown boy, with a distinguished service record in the Army Medical Corps, graduated from 'Berg in 1942 with a Ph.B. degree. In a letter to John Wagner, Alumni Secretary, Sensenbach writes:

"The painting (prize winner), you may recall, is the one I worked up for a mural design to be 'installed' in the West Hall Recreation room. It is an abstract conglomeration of piano keys, elliptical billiard balls, coke bottles, and cigarettes. I reworked a few sections of it this winter and entered it more for fun than in hopeful aspiration."

Nominations For Student Council Thursday, May 1

Nominations for members of next year's student council will be made at the next meeting of the student body on Thursday, May 1, at 11 a.m. in the College Little Theatre.

The Student Council expressed the hope this week that the student body would not minimize the importance of these nominations since the elections for which they are being made will be held before the end of this semester.

The committee for re-writing the student body's constitution, of which Maurice Horn is chairman, is writing the recently passed amendments into the new constitution and will still welcome any suggestions or recommendations which members of the student body might wish to make.

'Berg Trackmen Take Second Place At G'burg

Lehigh defeated Muhlenberg and Gettysburg in a triangular meet at Gettysburg. Lehigh scored 80 3/4 points. Muhlenberg was second with 41 1/4 points and Gettysburg had 32.

'Berg garnered four firsts through the efforts of Summers in the mile, Richart in the 440, Al Jessen in the 220 lows, and Bob Hale in the Javelin. Lehigh took eight firsts and Gettysburg two. Snodgrass of the Bullets set a track record in the discus event as he heaved the plate 132 ft., 6 inches.

Billiard Exhibition Changed

Contrary to publicity released last week, Jimmy Caras, billiards champion will not give his exhibition at Muhlenberg on April 24th and 25th.

Instead, Mr. Caras will appear on May 1st and 2nd in the West Hall game rooms. These exhibitions will be open to all students interested in billiards, and arrangements can be made for free personal instructions by Mr. Caras, through "Haps" Benfer.

Caras, in the course of his demonstration will show how to enjoy billiards and develop skill at the game.

Weekly Forges Ahead

About three weeks later I felt a slight nudge while standing in line for coffee down at Kenny's, and later discovered a sealed note in my pocket telling me to report without fail to the office that afternoon.

Within five minutes after I arrived, a slight murmur was noticed through the halls, and Bill Glase burst in, sporting a long beard and looking as though he had just survived the Normandy invasion. We all gave out with a hearty yell as we noticed that he was carrying a newspaper-wrapped package under his coat. Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald followed the guards in, and they also had a bundle, only this one was a bottle of champagne.

After Russ Everitt and Wally Stefany hastily secured it to the wall, Mrs. Fitzgerald let ride with the Champagne Bottle and the gathering roared at the sight of the Christening.

For three weeks now we have been sitting tight waiting for some danger signal from the front office, and now that nothing has come up Rogers has decided that it would be all right for this top secret to be made public, so here goes. THE WEEKLY HAS A PENCIL SHARPENER!

In answer to a recommendation asking for such a measure typed rosters have been posted in all the dormitories. These are expected to last until more permanent ones can be obtained.

The matter of maintaining more order on the bulletin boards (so there will be separate bulletin boards for official college notices, for notices effecting all students and for notices effecting only certain groups of students) comes under the jurisdiction of Dean Mercer, Dean Kendig said, and since he was in the hospital when the Administration considered this proposal, it was postponed.

FINALISTS CHOSEN AS FROSH DEBATE ENDS

Ascending to the podium on Monday evening, May 5, at 7 p.m., Ralph Kreamer and Bernard Greene having won last Monday evening, will uphold the affirmative side in the final round of the Freshman Debating Tournament, against the negative debaters, Bill Laird and Ray Lentzsch, victors of last night's semi-final debate.

Both teams are contesting for the Forensic Council Trophy which is to be presented by Mrs. Levering Tyson to the winning two. Mrs. Tyson, honorary member of the Tau Kappa Alpha Honorary Forensic Fraternity, will act as moderator.

Drs. John D. M. Brown and James Edgar Swain, professor of the English and History Departments respectively, will decide the winners of this final debate.

The orthodox style of debating will be employed when the two teams meet in the West Hall auditorium to discuss the question, "Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Provide Free Medical Care for All Its Citizens."

Kreamer and Greene advanced to the final round by virtue of their win over Dave Hoh and Ted Haas; Laird and Lentzsch, by their win over Stanford Cooke and Stanley Lewis.

Other freshmen who participated in the tournament were Charles Kessler, Nevin Snyder, Carl Saueracher, Ed Shellenberger, Donald Bieler, Alton Wedde, Walter Roberts and Paul Tudder.

Faculty members who have judged the contests were Messrs. Bosch, Boyer, Criswell, Everitt, Erskine, Jones, Warlow, and Wilbur, and Drs. Johnson and Wotring.

E. Philip Bollier, Varsity Debate Coach, has acted as critic judge and has coached the members of the teams throughout the entire tournament. Ernest J. Hoh, Secretary of the Forensic Council, has managed and arranged for the tournament.

Last October the wives of students on the campus held a Halloween square dance and combined with it a little dinner in the Commons. To their surprise and consternation they discovered that they knew very little about one another, with the result that they have now become organized in order to get better acquainted with each other and to discuss their mutual problems.

This wives of students organization, which as yet is without a name, claims a membership of about thirty women. It was started through the initiative of Eunice Feight, Marcy Gallos and Mildred March. At the present time the acting President of the organization is Eunice Feight and Evelyn Freed is acting secretary.

With the guidance and help of Haps Benfer two rooms were set aside in West Hall as meeting rooms for the group and they have been given the use of the West Hall kitchen to prepare suppers. Meetings are held twice each month on Tuesday evenings and each meeting finds the membership growing. There are still many wives of students on and off campus who have not attended meetings and they are urged to become active members.

At the present time the club is looking for a name that will have some historical significance in connection with Muhlenberg and in due time a charter will be drawn up together with a constitution and by-laws.

A host of social activities are planned for the near future, such as picnics, hay rides and dances which should prove to be fun and relaxation to all. The first of these, a picnic, will be held about the middle of May.

Only one other school in the Valley can boast such an organization and that is Lafayette at Easton. With the advent of women on the campuses of so many of what were formerly strictly male colleges it is not surprising that many such clubs have sprung up across the nation. When the wives of students organize they become a powerful voice of opinion that is not easily ignored, plus the fact that by combining their talents some fine events of a social nature can easily be presented. These tend to alleviate what otherwise may be a rather dull life for the wives.

Pre-Meds Feted At Bethlehem Feed

Thirty members of the Muhlenberg Pre-Medical Club were guests at a banquet on Wednesday, April 23, which was held by the Pre-Medical and Biology students of the Lehigh Valley at the Hotel Bethlehem.

Dr. Ashley H. Montague, associate professor of Anatomy at Hanneham Medical School, spoke on the "Study of Man." In his speech he stressed the relationship of pre- and post-natal influence on modern problems.

Next year, Muhlenberg will play host and hold a similar affair in Allentown which promises to be a gala affair.

It was announced that the Pre-Med Club is donating a window to the chapel.

Cardinal Key Reactivated As Eleven New Men Are Initiated

On Wednesday, April 23, at 4:30 in the College Chapel, the Cardinal Key Society was raised from its dormant state when eleven students were initiated into the Society, whose purpose it is to extend service to Muhlenberg, its faculty and guests.

Four juniors, Joseph Fiske, Ernest Hoh, Frank Giuliano, and Adolph Wegener; two sophomores, Edward Donovan and Herbert Gernert; and five freshmen, Jack Davy, Peter Wyckoff, Walter Doberstein, Dave Hoh, and George Brick were those initiated in an impressive ceremony.

The election of officers for the coming year followed the initiation ceremony. Adolph Wegener was elected president, Frank Giuliano, vice-president, and Herbert Gernert, secretary-treasurer.

Members and guests of Cardinal Key concluded the festivities with a banquet at Bill Trinkle's, at which Dr. John D. M. Brown was the guest speaker. Greetings were also extended by Dr. Levering Tyson and by Mr. Paul Gebert, adviser of the Society.

Cardinal Key is an honorary society which will meet and arrange for the comfort of visiting teams and will serve as ushers at college functions. Every department of the college is requested to call upon any member of Cardinal

Art Dept. Expands; To Offer A. B.

Starting in September, 1947, Muhlenberg College will provide an opportunity to earn an A.B. degree with a major in Fine Arts.

The Department, started before the war under a Carnegie grant, will be expanded and will offer basic courses in art history, art appreciation, techniques, and design. Advanced courses in painting, composition, sculpture, and design will make it possible for the gifted student to reach a high proficiency in these fields as part of a liberal arts education.

Advanced work in art history will prepare students for scholarly study in graduate schools, for museum work, or for teaching. Two members will be added to the faculty, one a specialist in art history, one in sculpture and design. Professor George Rickey will continue to teach painting as well as some art history.

The expansion will make possible participation by the Art Department in the World Civilization Course required of all students during the first two years. Cultural development, as shown in folk art, architecture, and the graphic arts, will be described by members of the Department in lectures synchronized with the political, social, and economic history.

The new members of the Department will be announced by the Administration in the near future.

Adult education classes will be suspended during the summer and will resume in September. A new evening course in basic design will be added.

"Crime and Punishment" Last Art Dept. Movie

Professor George Rickey will present the last showing of the Art Department's program of unusual films on Friday evening, May 2nd, on the third floor of the library.

The pictures to be shown are a French version of Dostoevsky's classic novel "Crime and Punishment", and a surrealist short "Le Chien Andalou".

"Crime and Punishment" is considered by some as the greatest detective story written, and the French production is heralded as the only film to do it justice. The surrealist picture has been used by many psychiatrists as shock therapy, guaranteed to give the audience a high voltage charge.

The program will be presented only once, at 8 o'clock in the library.

executive head of the WEEKLY with this issue, relieving Co-Editors Mike Rogers and Jack Reumann.

Along with Needleman, Bob Fratscher was elected to the post of Managing Editor, relieving Dave Tyson of his job, and Bill Glase was re-elected to the post of Business Manager.

Under the new WEEKLY constitution, adopted this year, the Editor-in-Chief is designated as executive head of the entire WEEKLY staff. He is held directly responsible to the Student Council of Muhlenberg College, and is subject to recall by a vote of the staff.

The Managing Editor and Business Manager, also subject to recall, are responsible for the Editorial and Business Staffs of the WEEKLY respectively, and are directly accountable to the Editor-in-Chief.

M-Club's "Sheepskin Derby" Ready To Roll May 15-16-17

Members of the Varsity M-Club caught cavorting during recent practice session for "Sheepskin Derby".

Elsewhere in this issue you will find some pictures of the very astute gentlemen who are taking part in this year's gigantic production of the Varsity "M" Club, "Sheepskin Derby."

Be not deceived by the appearance of these gentlemen in the aforementioned photographs. They are not as really uncouth as it would seem—they are worse!!!

Never before have so many contributed so little and gotten away with it. This conglomeration of masculine muddleheadedness will be honestly portrayed to the fullest extent when the show becomes a reality.

The show is being directed by a former inmate of the Florida State School for Emmentals where he was involved in a scandal centering around five gallons of embalming fluid. Said director is usually stiff in the joints, but can be seen loosening up regularly at rehearsals.

The star of the show, one Miss Abigail Twitch, has been imported from the successful cast of the successful show, which had a successful run on Sixth Street of one night. Miss Twitch is noted for her interpretive dancing and self-styled costumes. Notable among her achievements is the performance at Carnegie Hall of the "Grocery Store" Dance in which she portrayed a box of Jello, using two lemon wrappers as costume.

Assuming the male lead is one Axehandle Fingerson, known the world over as the Melancholy Dane, or a pretty "Doggie" guy. Mr. Fingerson will be seen in his rendition of that famous Scandinavian play, "In Days of Old", or "Who Took the Rivets from My Tin Pants, Mother?"

The show is scheduled to be complete immediately after the opening night, which is scheduled to be right before the second night. Following this will be the third night. The first night will be a formal affair with all those attending wearing flat hats, mattress covers, and fatigues.

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday are the nights, May 15, 16, and 17 are the dates, the price is $1.00, or seven thousand pounds of Japanese yen, or reasonable facsimile, and the curtain time is approximately, or thereabouts.

REGISTRATION NEWS!

Acting Registrar, Paul Gebert, has announced that registration for the summer session, which had been closed, is now reopened. Men wishing to enroll for this session are requested to see Mr. Gebert.

Also from that office comes the notification that registration forms for the term of September, 1947, will be distributed on May 5th. These forms must be completed and returned to the office of the registrar by May 9th at the latest.

E. POWER BIGGS

Muhlenberg seems to have gone music mad. With two top-notch concerts within a week, the student body by this time should really be edified. "It's all part of your education," they tell us.

E. Power Biggs at the console in the Chapel last Thursday night was well worth giving up a night of studying to hear. And the college created some goodwill by throwing wide the Chapel doors that night and admitting the public, as the overflow crowd indicated.

Some of the students were turned away, which is most unfortunate. But the poor attendance at assembly programs during the year was justification enough for admitting outsiders who can show some appreciation.

As stated in this editorial column last week, something ought to be done about the assembly programs. Last year an attempt was made to hold the assemblies during the day and award credit for Chapel attendance to those who came. Although the success of this idea was doubtful, it might be tried again, since the Muhlenberg student body is considerably larger now than it was a year ago.

But we feel the one big solution to the problem lies in the type of assembly programs put on. Two or three assemblies per semester of the caliber of a recital by E. Power Biggs would be worth infinitely more than a dozen second-rate assemblies.

BACH CONCERT

The Bach Choir, singing in Grace Hall at Lehigh on Monday night, managed to equal, if not surpass, the showing made by Biggs. Muhlenberg's contingent of music lovers was the largest of any of the Lehigh Valley colleges, which speaks well for Muhlenberg.

Dr. Ifor Jones, the Director, was pleased with the response, and the applause given the Choir is something they are not always accustomed to receive.

THE WEEKLY WINDOWS

The staff of the WEEKLY has voted to place a window in the Chapel, which makes the second window this semester to be donated by this journal. Not long ago one of the staff members pushed his fist through one of the windows at H. Ray Haas, Printers. The new pane of glass installed is soon to be inscribed: "Gift of the Muhlenberg WEEKLY, 1946-47."

STUDENT FORUM HEARS MITTERLING

Following is a speech by Philip I. Mitterling at a Student Forum on May 17th at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, sponsored by the Foreign Policy Association.

MONROE DOCTRINE

Since the beginning of our existence as a nation one of the most integral parts of our foreign policy has been our policy toward our southern neighbors, the twenty-one little Latin American republics. From the time of the Monroe Doctrine until the end of the eighteenth century we tried to isolate these countries from the rest of the world.

In the late 1800's the United States changed from an agrarian to an industrial nation. This marked the point when our diplomats began following the American dollar into Latin America, and they interpreted security in terms of bases controlled or owned throughout the Caribbean and maintenance of order and stability within our defense zone.

These had easily slipped over into the practice of military intervention to protect our property and investments. Within thirty-five years the United States had acquired Porto Rico, naval bases in Cuba, the Canal Zone, the Virgin Islands; we had intervened with troops repeatedly and for long periods, in Nicaragua, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, and Mexico. And we had proclaimed the right, as deriving from the Monroe Doctrine, of intervention anywhere in Latin America in order to forestall intervention by nations outside this Hemisphere for the purpose of protecting their citizens or collecting debts. Moreover, throughout this period our financial and commercial interests had extended their empires in Latin America frequently without much regard for social welfare.

GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY

By the late 1920's the Latin Americans were in such a state of hysteria over intervention by the Colossus of the North that the security of the United States, far from being promoted by such intervention, was actually jeopardized. And President Wilson's international idealism, which stressed self-determination and sovereignty, was changing the course of public opinion in the U. S. to louder and louder demands for an end of the Big Stick.

Because of this President Coolidge sent Dwight Morrow to Mexico to effect a compromise to the dispute over the oil interests. Herbert Hoover withdrew our marines from Nicaragua while the world depression was putting a sharp check on economic expansion. Under President Roosevelt our marines were withdrawn from Haiti. In treaties with Cuba, Mexico, and Panama our right to intervene was renounced and the policy of not recognizing revolutionary governments was abandoned.

INCIDENT ALTERS NEW PROF'S COURSE

Dr. Lemuel X. Fingernailbiter, 'Berg's newest addition to the faculty, has recently released some information concerning the institution of his highly specialized course in "The Paste Pot Revolt".

Dr. Fingernailbiter reports that the decision of the administration to conduct the course in the men's room of the basement, has led to some embarrassing experiences in which he claims to have been victimized. The heavy influx of students into the before-mentioned room, was highly encouraging to the good Doctor who immediately thought they had been attracted by the popularity of the course he had to offer, consequently he proceeded to question each incoming student with the following questions. "Why did you come here? Are you interested? How much free time have you? and what's your name and address?"

Unfortunately the men who were approached in this manner had come into the men's room, not to sign up for the nice Doctor's course, but rather to wash their hands, a general misunderstanding was the result. A cross section of the answers received by the sweet Doctor would look something like this: "I oughta punch you in the nose." "Who let you in?" and "Thay, I thought I was the only one in school, I like you."

Naturally, being a pure example of Homo Sapien, the husky Doctor was slightly offended and immediately complained to the administration. Fast action was the result, he is now conducting his course at the Trexler game preserve. Although the animals are quite cooperative, they are not quite college material, consequently the primitive Doctor is offering 25 credit hours to all 'Bergmen who will take his course.

The Game preserve commission is objecting strongly to accepting the burden of the radical Doctor and his equipment. The main objection being the high mortality rate among the ducks and geese eating the paste from the mad Doctor's Pots. According to eyewitness accounts, the insane Doctor's new location is definitely having an affect on his personality. He was last seen atop a buffalo dressed in Muhlenberg WEEKLYs, shouting, "Down with Mercer, Down with Kendig, Down with Mike Rogers, Down with Truman, Down with Lincoln, Down with the Paste and the Pots Down with Fingernailbiter."

At the utterance of the last remark the raving Doctor got down and disappeared into the Brush. Since this incident he has offered resignation to Muhlenberg College, which was reluctant to accept it, in lieu of the great shortage of experienced instructors. The School was successful in inducing him to stay upon promise of large Pots of Paste.

Dear Editor:

"Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary; I am Jehovah (the Lord)." Lev. 26:2

One might ask, if this is a sermon, well, it amounts to almost that. For six months, the students in this college have put up with the most distasteful, wanton talking and sacrilege in the daily chapel service. Many of us are hypocrites at times but I believe we know that that should cease, if not before, when we enter that chapel door. It is not just a building, it is the house of God. Because a man has to go should not give him the satisfaction that he's there and that is all. It is a small percentage that usually causes the disturbance, which ruins it for those who actually are sincere. I wouldn't want to be making noise and have someone look at me and wonder how I was brought up. If a man is an atheist, no slam against him; but, whether atheist or not, he has no right to disrespect and disrupt the religion and faith of others.

I'm sure if we were in a movie theater, and a disturbance started, we would be a very angry and put out. Why is there more demand for silence in a movie theater than in a church of God? How many, when the going was tough, knelt in prayer in a foxhole, or on a blood run deck and asked forgiveness and salvation? How many promised never to forsake their God? Now that we are back again in the comforts of modern, peaceful civilization have we forgotten from whom the power to put us here has come?

If there are those who do not care to go to chapel, then inasmuch as it is required, I think that silence, even if it is reading or resting is far more better than creating a disturbance.

One day this week, in chapel, while sitting in the rear of the chapel singing a responsive Amen, the student in front of me, when he heard me, turned around and laughed. I felt sorry for the individual because apparently he had never been taught by a responsible person to respect another's religion.

"Keep thy foot when thou goest to the house of God; for to draw nigh to hear is better than to give the sacrifice of fools." Eccl. 5:1

Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM C. STACKHOUSE,

A man from New Jersey, who became a resident of Pennsylvania after he was discharged from the service, asked whether or not he would be eligible for a bonus under the existing laws of the State of Pennsylvania. The fellow who asked the question will not be cheered by the answer.

According to House Bill 161, known as the "World War II Veterans Compensation Act," the veteran must have been a legal resident of Pennsylvania at the time of his entry into the service. The proof of such residence shall be either the official records on file in the U. S. War Dept. or on file in any comparable governmental agency of any of her allies.

A second question was brought up concerning the same bill. One of the gang here at 'Berg was free lancing around the country. The spirit moved him while he was in the State of Washington and he joined the army. Because he entered the service in another State he is not certain as to whether or not he will receive a bonus from Pennsylvania. He had been a resident of Pennsylvania before his tour began and claimed such upon his enlisting.

He will get a bonus. The bill is written to the effect that no regard is given to the place of enlistment or induction. The entire matter of eligibility depends on one's having been a resident of Pennsylvania when he entered the service.

To go further with this man's answer I might add that had he settled down in California when he returned from the armed forces he would still be entitled to a bonus from Pennsylvania.

As the bill stands now, men who served in the merchant marine are excluded from its benefits.

He Awful Truth

The recent brawl went over with a BANG. All hands had a great time and orchids to Mitterling and his committee. Also our appreciation to the "girls of the chorus" who helped with the plug for the Varsity "M" Club show . . . The Gordon Fisters, John Wagners, Andy Erskines, Vic Johnsons and other faculty twosomes making the light fantastic seemed even lighter as they whirled to and fro . . .

Russ Strait at dance with Shirley, ("from the country"), says Russ. The young lady looked none too countrified from our view point . . . The Donovan clan in full regalia and along with one Jackson Meyers, and one "Lenny Boy" Mikionis, had the Jersey side well represented . . .

That scream you heard last Saturday was a gal in New York. Her name is Ruth and the silly thing was waiting for Kessock to go to the circus with her. She should have known the ball game had more attraction, (what repercussions this will have) . . . Strongest booster at all the ball games of late is Rickey "That's my Pop" Dean, who really had something to yell about when the old man came through in the right spots . . .

The softball league is now underway, and it looks like it's gonna be plenty "under". We watched the CLOWNS, (a most appropriate name we must admit), and although they might not be the best ball club in this area, they have the finest team for comedy; or haven't you seen "Shanty Hogan" Volpe as yet ? ? ?

Big news from the maternity ward says that Vicki Miller has arrived in good shape. Pop and Mom, Vern Miller from over South Hall way are in good shape also but Pop seems slightly worn. "Hoss" Lough claims an assist on the play as he hauled the clan to the hospital kinda in the middle of the night . . .

Our great big orchid this week to the entire cast of Hamlet, for a swell job. If you haven't caught the show yet, don't fail to do so. JET Rogers is 4.0 and the rest of the kids are surprisingly excellent in their various roles. Hats off for a bang-up job . . .

Greek Dance at the local hang-out had all the boys hangin' on the ropes. Must be pretty strenuous because so many of the guys got themselves worn, and I do mean worn out of course . . .

Joe Podany just can't get it out of his system; still around watchin' the "M" Club rehearsals and almost wishing to get in the act . . . Big Tuss Becker the same way, just a "Strongman" at heart . . .

"Spider" Lyons of the Marine unit of V-12 days about the town to talk over a couple of the old times. Still as sharp as ever, the Spider contemplates return to 'Berg in September . . .

Track team was sorta in the dark at the Penn Relays. Ernie's boys have had some tough luck and injuries haven't done them any good as some proven winners, like Eddie Sikorski, would have piled up lotsa points in many events. But they're out there tryin' and that counts plenty. Bob Hale tossin' the javelin like old times; by the way he's the record holder for the school and they have had some good boys here for field events . . .

Prof. "Ace" Peters now working with the landscaping crew, and Al Hartzell is mighty pleased about it. Peters' new improved "bush-master" tool is a handy gadget for redecorating campus spots . . .

Big new outfit around the college is the gang of students' wives who have banded together. In addition to good looks and knitting ability, the gals will no doubt do some constructive work . . .

Chapel is a must on May 29th when Les Gore and his best girl travel down the aisle for a knot-tying. The best wishes of the Muhlenberg family are riding with Les . . .

IT'S LIKE THIS... IN PROFILE—

E. Power Biggs

The fellows who slave all day over a hot bunsen burner in the science building labs and work their heads to the bone, probably all know Charlie Eisenhard well. He's the short, bespectacled caretaker of the science building, who customarily keeps a few good-natured hellos handy for anyone he might happen to pass in the halls. He's the fellow who keeps the science auditorium spotless so that students do not have to butt their cigarettes on a dirty floor.

Since he moved from South Allentown several years ago, genial cigar-smoking Charlie has lived at Liberty Street near Thirteenth. His tranquil Mountainville home with the large picket fenced yard was a beautiful place but a bit too far from Muhlenberg.

"I used to do a great deal of hunting in my younger days," he answered a query concerning his hobbies.

Although Charlie has not donned the red jacket and leather boots nor shouldered his rifle for the last fifteen years, he used to be an enthusiastic hunter. To the call of the deer and bear seasons, however, Charlie would turn a deaf ear. His enjoyment as a nimrod lay in hunting small game.

West Hall was still Allentown Prep School, and the Chapel was so new that it was not yet vying with the lunchroom for the honor of having the noisiest students between eleven o'clock and 11:30, when Charlie first came to Muhlenberg. That was in 1935. Before that he had worked for many years for the Reading Railroad Company. He started out at Muhlenberg as a night watchman on the grounds but later switched to his present job in the science building.

In the time that he has been here, Charlie has noted many changes in the school—changes for the better.

"Muhlenberg has been put on the map," is his comment.

The campus, he believes, looks far nicer today than it looked

In an interview after the recital, Mr. Biggs revealed that he was born in London. "But now I'm a Damn-Yankee," he said, "living in Cambridge, Massachusetts."

Before embarking on his musical career, he took a three years' course in engineering. Asked about his hobbies, he said he likes to take a car apart.

He attended the Royal Academy of London where he studied under G. D. Cunningham and Henry Wood. Bach and Handel he said were his favorite composers, but all had some special appeal for him.

When asked to comment on the Chapel organ, Mr. Biggs said it was comparable to any, and "it was perfectly tailored for the size and type of the building." He has recently given concerts at North Texas, Princeton, and Harvard. Every Sunday morning over the Columbia Broadcasting System, he gives concerts on the Baroque Organ in the German Museum at Harvard.

Response to this broadcast comes from as far away as the Yukon. Last Christmas he received a letter from a man in the Yukon area, who is isolated for seven months of the year on government service, and one of whose sources of entertainment is E. Power Biggs' weekly broadcast. The program reaches the Yukon at 5:30 a.m. every Sunday.

when he first started to work here. For the faculty, he has only approbation. The greatest change, according to Charlie has been in the student body. The enrollment today is almost triple the enrollment of his first year with the college. But, although the number of students is greatly changed, the students themselves are the same. Except for the fact that, with so many veterans attending, the average age is greater, students, (Continued on Page Four)

The out-of-town students on the campus, (there are some—why shure) who have been moanin' and groanin' about being up to the ears in hearing about the prowess of Allentown High, finally must give a doff of the lid to the kids and their administrators.

In addition to having a spacious gymnasium, the Canaries, by reason of much hard work after raising the money, will have a brand-new football stadium come next fall.

Muhlenberg students note—
1948 intramurals will be played in the West Hall bandbox.

At the close of the Lafayette-Berg ball game, we were sort of inclined to agree with the wag who said that 'Berg's nine reminded him of Shakespeare—"Comedy of Errors". However, the boys showed a complete reversal of form in playing a sterling game against Moravian this past Saturday P. M. to make us and others believe that the team will wind up with a highly successful horsehide campaign.

While sojourning in Jersey recently, we caught a sports picture that must have sneaked out of Hollywood—"The Homestretch". If you enjoy sports and an exciting finish—stay home and play with your yo-yo. The picture, and its ending were as obvious as Sisto Averno's muscles. Instead of seeing "The Homestretch" you'd be better off "homestretched out."

Impressario, massive Mike Rogers let us eye a recent partial rehearsal of the forthcoming "M" Club's "Sheepskin Derby"—and guys—it's terrific! Hustle right over to the nearest "M" Club member and purchase a couple of ducats and after seeing the show we know that you will agree that the entire cast should be charged with inciting a riot—of laughter and fun.

Hats off to the least heralded of 'Berg's sports combos—the tennis team. You may not have noticed, but the racquet wielders have won three in a row and have dropped only one match during this undefeated string. Dr. Shankweiler has done a 4.0 job in imparting his tennis savvy to the squad members with the result that Muhlenberg can boast of an A-1 outfit.

That's all of our initial effort in this spot—see you next week on the same corner and—thirty—

LOUGH'S BOYS SPLIT TWO

The Mule nine split their two games played during the past week. April the 23rd, our boys were scuttled at the hands of the revengeful Leopards by an 8-1 score. Last Saturday 'Berg bounced back in the win column with a nifty 4-1 victory over Moravian.

The Lafayette game proved to be a rout once the Maroon found the range. Their timely solid base knocks were too much for the Mules who were limited to three singles.

An entirely different picture was presented last Saturday afternoon when Walt Busch, ace of the 'Berg mound corps, set down the boys from across the Lehigh with four scattered hits.

While the Greyhounds were being effectively stopped by the Busch slants, the Mules banged out ten hits. Diz Dean paced 'Berg while pitcher Busch aided his own cause with two safeties.

Diamond activity for the coming week includes a pair of games with two ancient rivals. 'Berg battlers engage in their last home game on Saturday, when they tangle with the Bucknell Bisons. Next Wednesday the Mules cross the creek to test the merits of the Lehigh nine.

To date, the Loughmen are playing Even-Steven ball. They have triumphed over Temple, G-burg, (Continued on Page Four)

'BERG TRACKMEN COME THROUGH; TAKE 7 FIRSTS

On Tuesday, April 29, the Muhlenberg trackmen won their first triangular meet of the season, defeating Ursinus and Haverford on Muhlenberg field.

The Mules were paced by Frosh Al Jessen who captured first in the 220-yard dash and 220 low hurdles. Jessen also finished in a first place tie for high jump honors and ended up with a total of 14 individual points.

'Berg totaled 71 points in emerging victorious, with Ursinus placing second with 45½ and Haverford bringing up the rear with 37½.

With the current major league campaign roaring along into its fourth week, the nation's followers of the "horsehide hammerers" feel that this is the year they've been waiting for.

The big leagues are taking on the big-time hue as the pre-war sluggers and pitchers are finally rounding into shape. They find they are not the men they used to be when they returned from the service to the baseball war last year.

Every club appears to have been strengthened despite the fact that the Pittsburgh Pirates have been the most spectacular in their rebuilding campaign. The Pirates appear to have needed a complete rebuilding after their miserable showing of last year. This writer (Continued on Page Four)

Intramural baseball got into full swing on Monday afternoon as three games were played and one postponed.

In the first game played, the Breakfast Club boys started off with a bang by downing the Danks 12-9. Taking into consideration the fact that a total of eight errors were committed gives some evidence of why the score ran wild.

The second contest of the day proved to be a little more interesting as both the Blue Birds and the Flying Dutchmen played errorless ball, and the final count saw the Blue Birds on top. Birds 5, Dutchmen 3.

The Lambda Chi club and the Clowns clouded the oval around in a free scoring contest which saw the Clowns down Lambda Chi 13-12.

The final game of the day between Sigma Phi Epsilon and the Hawks was postponed.

In the only scheduled I-M tennis match the Phi Eps downed the Scholars 6-2. Because of the condition of the courts other games were not played, but this division of the I-M sports calendar proves to be one that will draw considerable attention from the onlookers.

Mules Fail To Place In Relays

Franklin Field in Philadelphia was a beautiful spot on Saturday afternoon, but Ernie Fellows' boys failed in their attempt to dent the stiff competition in the University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival, as the event, the college mile relays, was won easily by Wayne in 3:25.1.

The Fellows coached combination was able to do no better than fifth place as the second place winner was disqualified. Berg's representatives in this feature race were Al Jessen, Bill Rickett, Jack Crider and Eddie Sikorski.

Bob Hale placed just out of the running in the javelin event. His heave of 183 feet netted him sixth place.

Tommy Hitchcock, world renowned polo player, was killed in action with the Army Air Forces although he was past fifty years of age . . .

UNDEFEATED TENNIS TEAM RUNS STREAK TO THREE

Muhlenberg's Tennis team continued to set a torrid pace the past week as they nailed down their second and third victories for the season by shellacking Albright on the 23rd, 7-2, and shutting out Moravian on the 28th, 9-0.

Cerney, Wieland, Ranken, Dougherty, and Haring continued unbeaten in singles competition while the doubles teams of Wieland and Dougherty, and Ranken and Haring are also undefeated.

The victory over Moravian was the second shutout victory for the Mules, who previously had beaten Gettysburg by the shutout method. On Saturday the men in Cardinal and Gray did not even drop a set to their visitors as they won every match in straight sets, in eight of which they allowed their opponents no points at all.

This Saturday Coach John Shankweiler's proteges travel to Easton to meet the Leopards of Lafayette. The summaries of the Albright and Moravian matches follow:

String Quartet On Assembly

A high point of the year's assembly programs will be the visit of the Bennington String Quartet, May eighth. Established three years ago for the purpose of promoting wider understanding of the great string quartets and chamber music in the schools and colleges of America, this group will offer two classical and one modern string quartets in their concert in the Chapel next Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

The program will consist of the Quartet in G major by Mozart; Quartet No. 11 in F minor by Beethoven, one of the very late compositions of that master, which are prized so highly by the specialists in this branch of music; and Quartet No. 7 by Bela Bartok, which will be completely in the modern idiom.

The quartet is headed by Orrea Pernel who made her debut in this country with the Boston Symphony and has appeared widely in Europe and the United States. She is one of the fortunate owners of a Stradivarius violin. The other members of the group are: Mariana Lowell Barzun, George Finckel and Betty Yokell. The first three are at present on the music faculty of Bennington College.

Those who are interested in music in its rarest and simplest and most perfect form should not miss this opportunity.

 feels however, that even the great Hank Greenberg can't turn the Corsairs into a first division club.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals, and the Boston Braves appear to be the class of the National League. The low flying Cardinals seem to be grounded at the moment. Having a losing streak of five straight games at this writing, but they're due to start riding high any day now. A club like Dyer has just can't be held down very long!

Despite the absence of Leo Durocher the Brooklyn Dodgers seem the class of the league. They can count on forty out of forty-four games by just completing their games with the Phillies and Braves, who always play dead before the "Bums". Boston, however, can always cop their share of games in other pastures, and should find themselves about in the same spot they were last September. Cincinnati may be the big surprise team of the National League this season. A good crop of rookies, sparked by the veteran Augie Galan seem a good bet to round out the first division.

The second division appears capable enough to keep the race pretty tight all the way through the campaign. The Chicago Cubs can't be counted out for a long time. Charley Grimm, probably the most astute and colorful manager in baseball today, is capable of pulling a major upset if big Bill Nicholson keeps his early season hitting eye. The Phillies, showing more baseball hustle than Philadelphia has seen in a long time, just don't seem to have the pitching to carry them any higher than sixth.

The pitiful New York Giants can hold their last year's pace without too much opposition. Mel Ott doesn't have a team worthy of even winning the East-Penn League. His much publicised rookie, Clint Hartung, is already on the bench, and it seems that's where he'll stay.

That's about the size of things to come, read 'em in September and weep because they're going to be in this order: Brooklyn, St. Louis, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and New York.

American League next week.

 Chief, are to appoint such Associate Editors and Assistants as they deem necessary to the proper functioning of their staffs. After the meeting on Friday, Bob Fratscher temporarily appointed Charlie Krauss as City Editor, Wally Stafeny as Features Editor, and Joe Ellwood and Paul Steinberg as Co-Sports Editors. Permanent appointments will be made next September.

Herb Needleman, hailing from Allentown, is a graduate of Overbrook High School in Philadelphia, and is now in his Junior year at Muhlenberg. A pre-Medical student, Needleman is president of the Pre-Medical Club and is active in Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity.

A member of the WEEKLY staff since the fall of 1945, Needleman succeeded Art Peters as Sports Editor last September.

Bob Fratscher, the Managing Editor, is from Easton and was a member of Muhlenberg's V-12 Unit during the war, coming to Muhlenberg from the fleet. A Bachelor of Arts student, majoring in English, he is a member of the ARCADE staff.

Bill Glase, a graduate of Allentown High School, was a B-24 pilot during the war. He was elected to the post of Business Manager last May, and the smooth manner in which the Business Staff of the WEEKLY has been run during the year called for his reelection at the meeting last Friday. He is a Business major and active in Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

Succeeding Bob Fratscher as Circulation Manager is Jim Ibbotson. Ibbotson moved up to this position after serving on the city staff.

Six To Be Initiated By Phi Epsilon Pi

Tomorrow evening, the Alpha Nu Chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi will formally initiate a pledge class of six. The men to be initiated are Stan Cook, Sid Greenberg, Art Haines, Jack Soloff, Herb Needleman, and Stan Lewis.

The ultimate goal of the fraternity, a home by next semester, is quietly being attained by the earnest efforts of fraters, pledges and alumni.

 whether the 1935 or 1947 variety, are still the same, was Charlie's observation.

The only disgruntling thing that happened to Charlie in his connection with the school, happened while he was working as the night watchman. One rainy night, while on his tour, he saw something moving in the bushes that fringe the buildings. His investigation disclosed not prowlers but a small animal, indistinguishable in the darkness. When Charlie kicked the bush to scare the animal off, he made the belated discovery that it was neither dog, cat, nor squirrel. The black and white intruder retaliated, and Charlie, sadder but wiser, hurriedly returned home and discarded the clothes he was wearing.

Charlie has been at Muhlenberg for twelve years now, or about the length of time it takes for a student to become interested in attending assemblies. Except for the score he still wants to settle since the rainy night incident, Charlie is content.

Dr. Fritsch Addresses Eta Sigma Phi

Dr. Robert Fritsch, Professor Emeritus of Muhlenberg College, spoke to the Classical Language Fraternity last Tuesday, April 29, in the West Hall Recreation room, on the "Derivation of Words". The topic, ably presented by Dr. Fritsch, was of the utmost interest to all those present. A round-table discussion followed the talk, at which time Dr. Horn, faculty adviser, added many valuable bits of information pertaining to the topic of the evening.

Last Friday, May 2, a ten-minute business meeting was held and plans for the coming banquet were formulated. However, only a tentative date of May 28th was arrived at. Final decision as to time and place will be announced at a later date.

The Muhlenberg chapter of Eta Sigma Phi has experienced in the past year a definite increase of student interest in its activities. Plans are being made for a concerted effort to weave into its schedule for next year new and varied programs, foremost among them being a closer and more frequent intercourse with the Classical Language Club of Cedar Crest.

String Quartet Plays Tonight

The Bennington String Quartet will present a program of famous chamber music in the Chapel this evening at 8:30 p.m. This quartet is widely renowned for their outstanding interpretations of music written for strings. At present, they are touring the East and have been enthusiastically acclaimed in the many cities where they have performed.

The concert for this evening will consist of three string quartets, two of them by classical composers and one by a modern composer. The Quartet in G major by Mozart is one of the best loved Mozart quartets. The Quartet No. 11 in F minor by Beethoven is considered to be of the greatest of its kind. The modern work to be featured on the program is the Quartet No. 7 by Bela Bartok.

The quartet is headed by Orrea Pernel, a well-known concert artist both in this country and in Europe. The other members are Mariana Lowell Barzun, George Finckel, and Betty Yokell.

Dean Perry F. Kendig stated this week that, since a large number of local citizens are expected to attend this important concert, (Continued on Page Four)

Edward R. Murrow Named As Commencement Speaker

Edward R. Murrow, noted newspaper and radio reporter will address 125 graduating seniors at commencement exercises Monday morning, June 10, at ten a.m.

Mr. Murrow is vice-president and director of public affairs of the Columbia Broadcasting System, having been chief foreign correspondent for CBS for eight years. He began his work for CBS in 1935, coming to that position from a place as Assistant director of the Institute of International Education. With Dr. Tyson, Mr. Murrow was one of the pioneers in the field of radio education.

His first assignment at CBS was that of a director of talks on education. In 1937 he became European director of CBS, where he organized a staff for radio coverage of European news up to and during the war years.

A two-time winner of the annual award of the National Headlines' Club; Mr. Murrow won that prize in 1938 with William L. Shirer for their reporting of the Austrian Anschluss, and again in 1944 for his "orchestrated Hell" broadcast which described a bombing run made over Berlin in December, 1943. His "London After Dark" broadcast won for Mr. Murrow a first place award from the 12th Institute for Education by Radio of Ohio State University.

Charles Scribner's Sons, the publishing firm, has chosen him the most influential commentator of the war. In 1943 Mr. Murrow (Continued on Page Four)

MCA To Hit Hills For Planning Trip

The Pocono Mountains will be temporary headquarters for the Christian Association Cabinet this week-end. Officers for the 1947-48 school year, who were elected in April, will meet with the present cabinet, in a week-end "retreat" to plan next year's Christian Association program.

The newly elected officers are Roy Fries, President; Franklin Sherman, vice-president, Henry Johnson, secretary; and Charles Souders, treasurer. Others who will make the trip are Dr. Stine, Dr. Trexler, Mr. Goesser, Ralph Boyer, Richard Bieber, Frank Snow, and Walter Doberstein.

Plateau Lake, near Buck Hill Falls Inn, will be the meeting place for the retreat. The Cabinet will have use of several summer cottages, a twenty-five acre private lake, if they want to rush the swimming season, and 720 acres of woodland if they want to practice for a cross-country meet. Mrs. Vincent May, wife of the caretaker at the lake, will cook the meals; as a result, Cabinet members have abandoned their plan to take (Continued on Page Four)

California Trips Offered As Prizes In Essay Contest

Ten Air trips to Long Beach, California and a week's vacation on Catalina Island or in California are the prizes being offered in the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce Forum Contest now in progress. The outlines for this forum are to be on the aims and needs of the people of the world. All male college students between the ages of 21 and 36 are eligible to participate. The winners of this contest will be given an air trip to the Junior Chamber of Commerce convention at Long Beach on June 9th to June 15th. Following the convention, the winners will then go on a week's vacation on Catalina Island or in California with all expenses paid by the sponsoring organization.

The outlines for addresses to be given in the National Forum of Young Men on World Affairs on Thursday, June 12th, must not cover over two double-spaced, typewritten pages. All entries must be airmailed and postmarked not later than midnight, June 1st. They should be addressed to the National Forum on World Affairs by American Young Men, care of the International Relations Committee, U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, Long Beach, California. All winners must be ready to leave on notification.

Students wishing to participate in this contest may see Dean of Students Perry F. Kendig for further information.

Band Performs On Prexy's Lawn

The lawn of the college campus behind the president's home was the scene of an outdoor concert given by the Muhlenberg College band on Tuesday evening, May 6. "Fight On, Old Muhlenberg," by P. T. Frank, was the first piece on the program in this, the first outdoor concert ever given by the college band. Following this march was a rendition of von Suppe's "Morning, Noon, and Night in Vienna," a musical attempt to capture the spirit of a city that was once the carefree, pleasure-capital of the Europe of another age.

A cornet duet by Leon Loch and Charles Markley was the feature of the next selection, "The Pals Polka", by G. D. Barnard. This was followed by Alexandre Luigni's "Ballet Egyptian".

Turning away from the dance rhythms symbolized by the last three numbers, the band then played the popular march, "American Patrol", by F. W. Meacham. And in striking contrast to the mood created by this martial air, the band followed the American Patrol with their version of Boildieu's "The Caliph of Bagdad". (Continued on Page Four)

Lentzsch & Laird Win Debate

Ray Lentzsch and Bill Laird captured the Forensic Council trophy by defeating Ray Kreamer and Bernard Greene in the final contest of the Freshmen Debating Tournament, Monday evening.

Lentzsch and Laird opposed the resolution that the federal government should provide free medical care for all its citizens.

Dr. John D. M. Brown and Dr. James Edgar Swain, judges, stated that the participants were evenly matched and that determining the winners was exceptionally difficult. Dr. Brown, adviser of oratory, announced the winners, after which Mrs. Levering Tyson presented the trophy. Mrs. Tyson, honorary member of the forensic fraternity, presided at the debate.

The winning orators stressed that although there was a need for improvement in our present medical system, federal responsibility would not satisfy this need.

Bill Laird, a pre-theological student, served with the Army Air Corps in the South Pacific; his home is in Germantown, Pa. Ray Lentzsch, studying journalism, hails from Plainfield, N. J.; he served in the Navy on the Philippine Islands.

The awarded silver cup has been awarded annually to the winning Freshman team since 1933 when it was won by the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity. The Freshmen tournament had been discontinued during the war.

E. Philip Bollier, debating coach, announced that the final contest was the most interesting debate in the entire tournament.

Freshmen Regs Revised; Start Next Autumn

Return of freshmen regulations in full force to Muhlenberg's campus next fall was voted by the Student Council this week. After consulting with both President Tyson and Dean of Freshman Benfer, the Council took action which had been urged upon it at several Student Body meetings this term, setting up again the rules and restrictions through which the "frosh" had been initiated into college life for many years before the war.

"Those of us who experienced this in 1943 and before," said Student Council President Harold Helfrich, "realize that nothing helps so much as the Freshman regulations to boost school spirit and build real friendship, as well as rivalry, among the students. We know that this may be unpopular with a few, but we sincerely believe that it will be for the best of the present and future students at Muhlenberg. We have taken action as an out-going Council; the new men whom you elect will hear your complaints, if any, and will have to enforce the regulations."

These are the regulations tentatively set up:

1. All freshmen (including commuting students) must wear special freshman dinks, black socks, cardinal and gray neckties, and large buttons with their names at all times while on the campus.
2. All freshmen must carry matches and pipe cleaners for the use of upperclassmen at all times. They must learn and be ready to recite at any time the first verse of the Alma Mater and certain cheers which shall be specified.
3. Freshmen may not enter the front door of any building on the

Nine Vacancies To Be Filled As Entire Council Graduates

In the student officer elections to be held next Monday, May 12, in the Ad. Building, the student body will again be able to exercise its voice in student government. The nominees to appear on the ballot were chosen for student council, class officers, Ciarla editor and business manager, and head cheerleader at a meeting of the student body last Thursday, May 1.

The voting will take place in the Student Council room from eight to five on Monday.

The following were nominated for student council: Luke Batdorf, Dutch Wegener, Ralph Bagger, Howard Haring, Ralph Boyer, Donald Kuhnsman, Richard Bieber, Ted Getz, Hank Moyer, Tracy Storch, Roy Kerschner, Earl Feight, Joe Fleischmann, Art Damask, Ray Nies, John McKinney, Bill Glase, Ernest Hoh, Herb Needleman, George Eichorn, Jim Reppert, Lou Rossi, Charles Krauss, and Russ Kirk. Voters will select nine members.

The following were nominated for senior class officers: for president, T. Storch, and Dutch Wegener; for vice-president, D. Kuhnsman, J. Reppert, J. McKinney, L. Batdorf, R. Nies, and T. Lane; for secretary, Ed Goretzka, Jack Quinn, and Ralph Bagger; for treasurer, John McGrath, G. Eichorn, Titus Trupe, and Dick Bieber.

The following were nominated for junior class officers: for president, R. Kishbaugh, H. Hilger, H. Wm. Kulp, F. Sherman, Wm. Lybrand, Ed Sullivan, James E. Smith; for vice-president, J. Keefe, Paul Evans, Morris Geiger, John Walters, and R. Rau; for secretary, Wm. Riekert, James Ibbotson, Pat Carazo, Don Steward, Robt. M. Smith, Ed Jones, and Don Biehn; for treasurer, E. Lutz, J. Swift, F. Lambert, L. Eslinger, and G. Rinehart.

Post Time Nears For Cast Of "SHEEPSKIN DERBY"

"Smoking In The Outer Lobby Only", will be the word when the curtain goes up in the Little Theater off Times Square, (Way off Times Square) for the gigantic production of "Sheepskin Derby". The annual Varsity "M" Club show will get underway at 8:15 on Thursday night, May 15th and continue on its merry way for two more evenings.

Dress rehearsals are at present underway and barring unforeseen incidents will continue on after the show. Said unforeseen incidents would include breaking of shoulder straps of Russ Strait, loss of cigar to Lipky Karobeinick, and garter failure to Tom Lane.

Of interest to all is the heretofore unknown fact that Dick "Oink" McKee and John "I part my hair in the middle" Fitzgerald will take active parts in the show. Both are veteran actors and have performed before many of the outstanding audiences in Coplay, Macungie and Conshohocken.

The last report on ticket sales has been somewhat altered and the present time there have been a grand total of twelve tickets sold. Eleven tickets have been purchased by the blind institute and the one other was purchased by the director of the show. Tickets are on sale in the Athletic Office, College Store and from "M" Club and cast members, when not asleep.

Many notables are expected to attend the opening night which (Continued on Page Four)

Cmdr. Wuebbens To Be Baccalaureate Speaker

Commander Everett P. Wuebbens, Chaplain of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis will be the speaker at the Baccalaureate services on Sunday, June 1, at 3 p.m.

A graduate of Wartburg College, Iowa, Capital University, Ohio, and Wartburg Seminary, Iowa, Commander Wuebbens became a chaplain in the Army Reserve in 1933. He served as a chaplain in the Civilian Conservation Corps during 1935 and 1936.

After duty as a Navy Chaplain in California during the early part of the war, Commander Wuebbens became chaplain of the USS North Carolina while that ship was serving in the South Pacific during 1943-44.

Following his return to the United States, Commander Wuebbens, who is a Lutheran Clergyman, was appointed chaplain of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Commander Wuebbens will be presented with an honorary degree at the commencement program.

Recipe for sure fire success in student government:

1. Take one student body of 1200 men.
2. Announce a meeting to elect a council, and officers of the three upper classes.
3. Then stay in the sack and stare at the bathing suits and bodies decorating your walls, or check to Kenny's for a cup of Joe and rocks.
4. Moan like your roommate used your G.I. check to wrap up his second hand chewing gum if the wrong man takes office, or when somebody makes a mistake.

That just about sums up the proceedings at the Student Body Meeting last Thursday. Despite the fact that this meeting was to determine who would be the steering body for student activities, as far as students do steer their activities, only one-fifteenth of the total enrollment rattled around in the Science Auditorium.

Eighty-three men attended Thursday. About one-fourth of this group was made up of men from one fraternity. Are they the only people who took an interest in student affairs?

As some economist with callouses once said, "This is a helluva way to do business."

On Monday the elections will be held. The men elected will be responsible for policies, dances, and other activities of your class. They will be instrumental in the bringing about of improvements for students on the campus.

They will determine whether your class will be considered an active, progressive body, or not considered at all.

If Monday finds the racks in the dorms, the stools at Kenny's, and the pinball machines at the Rosemark doing a land office business, while the electioneers play jacks with each other, then the long, loud groans that will be heard the next time a vital issue is decided will make the Ad Building sound like the main barn at the Lehigh Valley Dairy.

It's your job to see that it doesn't happen.

Audience Lauds 'Hamlet'

Rogers, Campbell, Deam Star

I have seen "Hamlet" twice, and both times I have seriously regretted the scene wherein Polonius was slain. As faultless as was Shakespeare in his writings, here he erred in his judgment, robbing the production of its main fountain of laughs. Edmund Deam lost no opportunities in the portrayal of the prating old quasi-philosopher. He brought a richness of humor to portions that, in the original form, contain none. Especially humorous was his twisting of the phrase, "You'll tender me a fool," referring, of course, to a child that blustering Polonius, no doubt, expected to see drop upon the floor of The Little Theater stage at any moment.

And Fair Ophelia! There was a piece of acting that excelled and surpassed the efforts of Frances Reid of the original Maurice Evans cast. The grief-stricken daughter of Polonius, hemmed in by the forces of melancholy and fate, was shown to perfection by Mrs. Campbell who stole the show out from under an excellent cast, to take top honors and the orchids for the evening. Her chance for stardom came when she fell so superbly into the mental derangement over the loss of her lover and the death of her father.

Playing the part of Hamlet required not only skill but a sense of duty and justice to a long list of Melancholy Danes, starting with David Garrick, running through such notables as John Barrymore, John Carradine, and Maurice Evans, and ending with John Rogers' portrayal could be noteworthy enough to keep all the greats from turning over in their glory, then you've missed a production that will not be duplicated in local dramatics for many years to come. Rogers has a way of making his usual good humor recede into the background, bringing forth, at the same time, a very theatrical expression of feature and talent. His highlight of the evening came at a most unexpected part of the play, the part that follows the King's all-too-hasty exit from the "Play Scene" wherein Hamlet did truthfully "Catch the conscience of the King." Hamlet's gloating nature, which is shared by an equally gloating Horatio, is a marvel to behold. Outstanding, too, was the scene in which he attempts to persuade Ophelia to enter what in Shakespeare's time was known as a shunnery. Without stretching the imagination too far, it was possible to see through the play of words to the true meaning of their inferences.

These three players were outstanding in their portrayals. Also worthy of honorable mentions were George Eichorn as Horatio, who regretfully had too few lines, Louis Rossi as Laertes, who had too few outstanding scenes wherein to show his ability, and Mrs. Eunice Feight, whose dramatic bedroom scene as the Queen was more than realistic.

Also in the cast as supporting actors and actresses were Gerald Rogers, William Wegener, Edward Pickard, Ernest Wallender, Murray Stahl, Robert Hale, Robert Oswald, George Bannon, William Kulp, James Hammond, Jean Boomhower, Louis Wence, Bernice Horn, Gladys Wakely, Richard Gallos, and Wallace Stefany. The entire production was in the hands of Mr. Andrew H. Erskine, whose past and present record as a producer of Mask and Dagger Shakespeare speaks only too well for itself.

IN PROFILE

Eunice Feight

Mathematically speaking
 Stowe Emmaus
 Pottstown Allentown

or, in the language of A.B. students, Stowe, Pennsylvania, is to Pottstown what Emmaus is to Allentown. This seemingly trivial fact emerges as one of paramount importance when it becomes known that from Stowe comes better than half of the Muhlenberg school spirit.

Stowe has contributed not a large number of students, or a star gridman but brown-haired Eunice Feight, who in the past several weeks has earned more column space in the WEEKLY than even the legendary Bennett I. Fisher.

Those students who are in the habit of saving and collecting beer checks, book match covers and old theater programs as souvenirs, will agreeably recall Eunice, if they refer to their November 7 and 8 programs of 1946, as the doting Eustasia of "Dover Road". More recently she appeared in the assembly program one-act play "The Proposal", and last week skillfully portrayed Queen Gertrude in the Mask and Dagger's three-day offering of "Hamlet."

Upon her graduation from Pottstown High School (Stowe is not very large) Eunice enrolled at Drexel, commuting daily to attend classes at the Philadelphia school. Her competence as a student was the kind which many attempt to emulate, few successfully, for in addition to the enviable record of having more cuts than any other woman then attending Drexel, hers was the more enviable achievement of graduating with honors.

Five days a week Eunice is a teacher in the home economics department at East Greenville High School, twelve miles out of Allentown. Seven days a week she is Mrs. Earl Feight, the wife of 'Berg Junior and Editor-in-Chief of the 1948 Clarla, Earl Feight.

Eunice's welcomed invasion of Muhlenberg (formerly a men's school) has not been confined to the acting and make-up departments of the Mask and Dagger. In view of her zealous participation in that organization, a movement is afoot to claim her as an associate member of Alpha Psi Omega, the national honorary dramatic fraternity on the campus.

Last week, when the as yet unnamed organization of students' wives held its election, Eunice came away with the feather of acting President in her already well-plumed cap. As if further evidence of her snowballing popularity were needed, one student present at last week's student body meeting tried to nominate her for the post of head cheerleader.

Aside from a great fondness for steamed clams, Eunice groups her hobbies under one heading, to quote her own answer, "Muhlenberg." That her participation in the college activities is greater than most students' is easy to prove. To prove that she profits in the enjoyment of participation is, when accompanied by her admission, even easier.

The Mask and Dagger Club
 c/o The Muhlenberg WEEKLY

Orchids to the Mask and Dagger men and the several students' wives for their grand job on Shakespeare's "Hamlet." Muhlenberg College can be proud of the fine productions on its stage this past week. Congratulations to you all.

Sincerely,

ERNEST J. HOH, JR.

Editor's note: Our feelings, precisely.

Inquiring Reporter

What do you think of the proposal to grant unlimited cuts to Juniors and Seniors who maintain a C average or better?

Rodger Volpe, Junior:

"I don't think a C average is sufficient, but a B average or better would be all right. Those with a C average would be too apt to flunk, because of the difficult tests they are throwing at us."

Lew Wence, Freshman:

"Why exclude the lower classmen? It sounds good if I were a Senior or a Junior."

Ernest Hoh, Junior:

"College students who reach their Junior year ought to have enough judgment to know what they need to do to maintain their scholastic standing; therefore, why require they maintain a C average? I'm in favor of it, with the exception of the scholastic requirement."

Dave Lukens, Senior:

"I think it's a good idea. I think by the time a man becomes a Junior or Senior he ought to be able to know whether he can afford cuts in any course."

PX Comeback Soon

Ed. Note: An abundance of conjecture has been springing up concerning the purpose of the building being put up at 23rd and Linden Streets. Below is an excerpt of a letter from the owner, explaining the "why" of this construction.

Dear Sir:

Muhlenberg students will soon be able to shop in a store that was primarily designed for the college trade, and owned and operated by a Muhlenberg man. Barring unforeseen difficulties, the new building should be completed and open for business during the late summer months.

The business will feature a modern luncheonette and soda fountain, sportswear, haberdashery, office and school supplies, delicatessen and bakery counter among its many departments. In many respects it will be similar to the ship's service stores (Navy) and post exchanges (Army). As it will include many services that the ex-service men experienced. The basement will be used for sales and recreational activities. The first floor will be given over entirely to sales. As soon as building restrictions are removed future plans call for an addition of fifty-five feet in the rear of the building, to be used for additional floor space for the main store.

The Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

AND HERE COMES BUZFUZ ON THE INSIDE—oops excuse me just a throw back to last week's festivities down Kaintuck way. Our congrats to Cy Davis for his inside info and to ourself, whew, wotta stinker...

Dale Whiteman and Carm Sbordone relaxing at the local "ice cream" parlor and having lotsa laughs with Riccio and the soon-to-be Mrs. Riccio... Big Bad Bixler making like "counter-spy" recently and getting exactly no response; sure we helped but only to make things easier for our pal, yeah pal...

May 18th or 19th should see the ARCADE on the local stands. We have seen some of the raw material and it looks pretty much O.K. from here. Lou Rossi and his crew have turned out some fine material and will have a good publication...

"Fur Trap" Harry Donovan and Russ Strait squiring each other around the town couple days ago. Can't tell if it's a steady affair or just a fill in. Brother Ed and "Oink" McGee likewise seeing a lot of each other... While all this is going on, can't understand why a 4.0 gal like Peg Krause has to buy her own coffee and donuts on a Sunday night at the local beanery...

Coach Ernie Fellows and Mrs. socializing with some of the crew; couple of swell peopoles to have around... Been asked by the local "VA" boss to boost the meeting on May 16 for all vets not going to summer school—muy importante!!!

SCREAM OF THE WEEK DEPT.: Undoubtedly the funniest thing around these parts were the Graduate Record Exams. Sure, everyone tried their best and concentrated on making good scores. But in case you haven't tried to solve one of those "unsolvable" problems; well cast your peepers on some of the queries as handed out...

Exam schedule posted for those ever-lovin' finals. That means more work, ho-hum, what's this college coming to? Getting so bad a fellow has to do some work now. As our pal "Sarge" Pujat would chance to remark, "The academic scholastics are catching up"...

Ray Nies making like a regular customer at Cedar Crest as he and Mickey seem to hit the high spots together. Apparently that guy at 'Berg has nipped the dust once again...

Ex Mule footballer, Pete Gorgone will cavort for the more localized Bethlehem Bulldogs come this fall. On a 24-hour option from the New York Giants, Pete will undoubtedly do some ball carrying this season instead of the regular block-busting assignments he had last year. Along with him, will be another former Cardinal and Gray, Perry Scott, who will move around the tackle or end position for the 'Dogs...

Speaking of former Mule men, no doubt you noticed Al Rubbert, Frank Borrell, and Joe Staudinger about the premises recently. All are returning to school in the near future, which gives athletic stock a shot in the arm...

What campus softball team played what other club last Sunday and won what kind of a prize???? (BURP)...

It's Like This... Chapel Windows Near Completion

We saw, the other day, where a restaurant out West will try to scent their blotters with a cooked meat odor in order to advertise their meat dishes. It might be a good idea, if it's not overworked.

Par example, milady of the exquisite upswipe and the cubit long cigarette holder, browsing through her favorite fashion magazine, goes dreamy-eyed at the exotic fragrance of "Eau de Myosoti Petal" perfume. The he-man perusing "Esquire" and "True," stops abruptly on page forty-seven to breathe in the palsy-walsy aroma of Horstwurstr's Premium Beer. That's good, effective advertising.

But what if other industries employ this method? Suppose two rival chemical companies bought opposite pages in some national magazine, one company advertising hydrogen for toy balloons, the other advertising sulphur. When those two pages got together the result would be disastrous, diminishing the number of readers to almost none. The magazine would sue for damages, the chemical companies would unite for defense, and before long the whole bunch would be investigated for un-American activities.

This form of advertising, surprisingly enough, is not a new one. Radio and Hollywood have been using it effectively for years. Without seeking too hard, one can find any number of broadcasts and "smash hit" movies currently running which exude a definite odor.

The new development might even undergo further ramifications if the politicians get hold of it. In that event, a revolutionary trend in political advertisements will occur, each party advertising the candidates and platform of its opposition complete with its own peculiar smell. The voters' choice will be clear. He will elect the least offensive party.

The whole idea shows ingenuity and progress but excessive exploitation can ruin it. For instance, how could anyone enjoy a short story with an athlete's foot or halitosis ad on the same page, wafting its vital message under his defenseless nose.

Upon completion of the installation of the new stained glass windows in the Gideon F. Egner Memorial Chapel, the original heraldic theme will have been carried out.

Fifty beautiful lancets are being placed in the windows and door openings in the transept, ambulatories, chaplains sacristy, vestibule, reception room and entrance porch. The work was done by the nation's outstanding glass artists and craftsmen. The new lancets will be dedicated at the Baccalaureate service on June 2.

The entrance porch will contain eight panes, representing the seasons of the Church year. A tau cross will stand for Advent, a manger for Christmas, a star for Epiphany, a latin cross and a crown of thorns for Lent, a bursting pomegranate for Easter, a fiery chariot for Ascension, a descending dove for Pentecost, and three fishes in a circle for Trinity.

Four transept windows, two immediately in back of the organ console and two on the other side of the chapel, carry the figures of the early leaders of the Christian Church. The figure of Athanasius, Bishop of Alexandria and leader in the struggle against Arianism, and of Augustine, outstanding Church father of the Western Church are on the gospel side. On the Epistle side are windows honoring Boniface, the apostle to the Germans and Wycliffe, often referred to as "The Morning Star of the Reformation."

Student life and activity is depicted in ten windows in the North and South entrance vestibules and the North and South ambulatories. These windows portray matriculation, commencement, worship, study, athletics, dramatics, art, science, music and journalism.

Figures of the Revolutionary War soldier and sailor dominate the two windows of the ante-room.

The seven windows in the reception room carry the seals of the first seven Lutheran Colleges in America: Gettysburg, Roanoke, Wittenberg, Muhlenberg, Newberry, Susquehanna, and Theil.

The lancets in the sacristy represent the work of the ministry in public function and in his more personal ministry. Medallions in

SPORTS CHATTER . . .

By Joe Ellwood

Ye old Fairview field was a sight for sore eyes this past week as our rambling Allentown Cards swung into action and won their delayed season opener. With a crowd of over 3,000 people, it might be safe in assuming that the local "kill the Ump" onlookers are to be strong supporters of the Red Birds even though it is an entirely new team and manager with exception, of course, in the person of crowd pleasing Hubba-Hubba Smith.

Let's hope that the Birds don't hit the cellar skid as has their parent St. Louis Cards.

The weather man just could not get any cooperation in trying to call a clear day and give those midgets the green light at the Fairgrounds. Lou Heller has postponed the race until this coming Saturday at 1 P. M. Some of you readers are probably midget fans, but for those of you who think there is little or no interest in it for you, I recommend, if possible, that you grab up a couple of pasteboards for Saturday and then hold on to your upper plate. The way some of those boys pass on the outside of the curves is enough to turn your hair white. So come next Saturday listen to the roar as the midgets get underway.

Since the I-M basketball league has been completed, and now baseball is in the limelight, I think Bill Ritter deserves a hats off salute for a job well done. Not only was the I-M league a success, but the boys that participated were really enjoying themselves. Nice work Bill.

On looking over some of the finer figures we see that the old reliable Dixie Walker is making all the young boys take notice as the "Old Gent" is tops in the Nationals with a fancy .439 and brother that isn't hay.

A little help via Joe McCarron's column lets us in on the secret that A. Guedes probably had an objective in making that trip back home other than to see MOM. If this lightweight makes as good an impression on the local blood lovers, we can be assured of some fancy capers to be cut in the near future.

Come June and graduation ye old Alma Mater will really feel the pressure brought to bear by the number of athletes who will be walking for that sheepskin. It isn't bad when you lose one or two, but when a rough estimate runs the total to fourteen, look out boys, the coaches are on the make.

Rain Washes Out Spring Sports

Rain and wet grounds played havoc with the spring sports schedule as far as Muhlenberg's forces were concerned.

The diamond aggregation, slated to meet Bucknell on Saturday, was postponed indefinitely. The baseball forces met Lehigh in Bethlehem yesterday and face Susquehanna on Friday and Penn State this Saturday. Both games are on foreign fields.

The undefeated tennis team's scheduled tilt with Lafayette at Easton was also washed out on Saturday. The racquetters went up against Temple in Philly yesterday P. M. and meet Swarthmore this coming Saturday on the Oakmont Courts.

The trackmen, fresh from a victory in last week's triangular meet, duel two opponents, ole' Jupe Pluevis permitting, this week. West Chester and Bucknell will provide the opposition.

Hopin' and Dopin' . . .

By Paul Steinberg

Since we are gluttons for punishment, here are our predictions for how they will finish in the American League this season. Don't say that we didn't tell you when you read the final standings this September in your favorite sports page.

At this writing, the Pale Hose of Chicago are holding down the first place slot in the junior loop. The Chisox, however, do not have the batting strength to remain in the rarified air at the top rung of the ladder. Ted Lyon's stalwarts will finish no higher than fifth for the campaign.

The team that will nail the pennant to their club house door will be the Boston Red Sox. The minions of Joe Cronin have power to spare, a smooth fielding outfit, and enough good pitching to stave off the onrushing Detroit Tigers. The Beantowners also have baseball's biggest asset and drawing card, Ted Williams, whose potent bat is a tremendous aid to any club.

The remainder of the first division should see Detroit, the Yanks, and Cleveland finish in that order. The Tigers have too much depth in the pitching department for the other two clubs. The Detroit boys will push the Bosox all the way down to the final wire. The Yanks, with their Yankee Clipper, Joe DiMaggio, flying low, will not make a serious bid for the bunting, although they have enough good ball players to finish ahead

MUHLENBERG'S DIMAGGIOS' PESKYS SWING INTO ACTION

Before raising the curtain on spring sports, congratulations go to the Lambda Chi Alpha basketball team. In what looked like a combination of football and wrestling Lambda Chi emerged with a 35 to 29 victory over Sigma Phi Epsilon, to win the interfraternity basketball crown. The 1947 fraternity champions will receive a plaque for their aches and bruises.

"Bull" Ritter umpired the first game on Monday between the Clowns and Lambda Chi Alpha to start League I of the Intramural Softball Tournament off to a riotous start. The first three innings it was difficult to tell who were the Clowns, as the Varsity Basketball team once removed, alias Donovan Brothers & Co., made clowns of their opponents to the tune of 11 to 3. The game looked like a runaway for the Clowns. However, with the aid of a new pitcher and some revamping of their team Lambda Chi made a comeback. The game ended with a 13 to 12 win for the Clowns.

Monday afternoon also saw some high and fancy flying when the Flying Dutchmen met the Blue Birds. The Dutchmen outwinged their feathered opponents by the incredible score of 31 to 5. That evening the Breakfast Club, up a little late, played the Danks. The Breakfasters were the first to cross the home plate. But in the second inning the Danks scored seven runs and held the lead to win the game 12 to 9.

Wednesday the game between the Danks and the Blue Birds was played as scheduled. The Danks salted the Blue Bird's tail to win the game 11 to 5.

Turning to League II, we find that the Scholars treated the Phi Epsilon Pi team in a very unscholarly manner. The Scholars chalked up 15 runs while they allowed the Phi Eps only 2.

The Sinners lost to the Tornadoes 11 to 7 and Alpha Tau Omega proved again their adaptability by beating the Phi Kappa Tau team 13 to 3.

The Whoopie Scrubs and the Jokers had a close encounter. The Scrubs edged the Jokers out 13 to 12.

On Thursday A.T.O. won their second game. They defeated the Scholars 13 to 3.

Phi Kappa Tau dropped their second game, this time to the Jokers.

ers, who hit the horse hide for 12 runs as compared to P.K.T.'s 3.

The game between Phi Epsilon Pi and the Tornadoes was win number two for the Tornadoes by a score of 11 to 7. This seems to be a good set of numbers as far as the Tornadoes are concerned. They beat the Sinners by the same score only two days before. Whoopie Scrubs vs. Sinners was called off after five and a half innings because of rain. At this point the Scrubs were ahead 9 to 5, so chalk up another victory for the Scrubs.

The Tennis and Volleyball Tournaments have been postponed until more courts are available. Monday afternoon previous to ruling, Phi Epsilon Pi's Norm Cohen and Paul Steinberg beat the Scholar's team 6-2. This was the only tennis match played.

The following is a paid notice:

Lost: 1 softball glove during the Breakfast Club vs. Danks game, 1 ball during the A.T.O. vs. P.K.T. game and 1 ball during the Sinners vs. Tornadoes game. It is requested that managers of teams keep a close check on equipment during games. It goes without saying that the grass is very tall on the playing fields and therefore it is very easy to misplace a glove, ball or a bat. At this depreciation rate however it won't be too long before the remainder of the Softball Tournament is played with sawed-off broom handles and ping-pong balls.

STUDENTS TAKE "CUE" FROM JIMMY CARAS

Jimmy Caras of Wilmington, Del., twice pocket billiard champion of the world, gave a sparkling demonstration of cue wizardry Friday, May 2, in the West Hall recreation room.

Caras showed his finesse in running balls on straight shots and also gave a spectacular exhibition of assorted difficult trick shots. He not only thrilled the onlookers with these shots but gave a large portion of his time to 'Berg students who desired individual instruction in the sport.

The large audience enjoyed greatly Caras' demonstration which was sponsored by the Billiard Association of America and the Association of College Unions.

GRIDIRON GLEANINGS

Sweltering in class? Sweating out the forthcoming finals? Well, a sure-fire way to feel cooler (besides downing a bucket of suds) is to let your thoughts dwell on the coming football campaign. Think of those days when you will be shivering in the stands with your gal (all right—so yours is warm) and we're sure you won't feel too humid.

Our favorite football team, the Mules, open their season during Indian Summer weather, facing Lafayette, September 27 in Easton. Exactly two months later the Cardinal and Gray wind up the schedule at Lancaster meeting F. and M. on November 27.

'Berg faces just about the toughest football schedule in their history as they line up against ten foes with only one or two weak sisters on the menu. Don't let any over-zealous press agent tell you that Upsala from over Jersey-way is tough. Key games are with Lafayette, Temple and the sole owners of a victory over the Mules of '46, the U. of Delaware.

Coach Schwartzwalder and his aides, "Hoss" Lough and "Bud"

Barker, had a good look at next year's grid machine for a month during Spring practice and what they think of the chances of another successful campaign they just aren't telling. To us, it appears that 'Berg will have another team which we can all boast—if—and that big "if" is whether or not the coaches can dig up enough competent reserves to spell the veterans who man almost every starting position.

No doubt, you've read in the local gazette that the Mule-Delaware game will be played in Liberty High's stadium in Bethlehem.

"The Muhlenberg Story"—the big team with a small stadium.

Despite being played on "foreign" field this game should attract the largest crowd ever to watch the Cardinal and Gray perform on the gridiron.

Hey, all this talk has given us the old football fervor—we'll have to go and dig out the raccoon coat, hip flask (for coffee, naturally) and start to go steady with that girl who has a heater in her convertible. See you in Easton.

P.K.T. Dance

The annual Phi Kappa Tau Spring Formal Dance was held on Friday evening, May 2, from 9:30 to 12:30 at the Allentown Woman's Club. Hal Haley and his orchestra provided the music for dancing.

On Saturday the planned picnic at Lehigh Parkway was omitted due to inclement weather and a buffet luncheon was served at the house in its place. The remainder of the afternoon was spent bowling at the Wal-Ten Alleys.

Fried chicken was served to 75 members and guests at a banquet at the fraternity home on Saturday evening. Following the banquet the group played games provided by the entertainment committee.

The entertainment committee for the weekend was William Clemson, Chairman, Richard Miller, and Paul Johnson.

Chapel Windows

Openings in the six interior doors in the North and South vestibules and leading into the chancel contain the symbols of the 12 apostles.

The exterior doors carry seals of institutions with close relationship to Muhlenberg College. They are Allentown Seminary, Allentown Collegiate Institute and Military Academy, Allentown Preparatory School, Cedar Crest College, Ministerium of Pennsylvania and the official seal of the Muhlenberg Bicentennial observance.

Commencement Speaker

In January of this year the Writers' War Board commended him for his "consistent expression of democratic philosophy in cogent, forceful terms and for fostering international understanding." The Association of American Correspondents in London has elected Mr. Murrow president for the current year, making the first time that this position was ever held by a radio broadcaster.

The coronation of King George VI was the first assignment Mr. Murrow had in Europe. This was followed by Munich, the Blitz, the campaigns of North Africa and the continent, and finally, the election of the Labor Government in Britain.

During the war, Mr. Murrow flew twenty combat missions with the British and American Air forces.

Last September he was appointed a member at large of the Commission to advise American delegates to the United Nations' Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

MCA Plans Trip

In most colleges throughout the nation, CA cabinets hold these retreats; some schools have autumn as well as spring retreats. Muhlenberg, however, has not had one in many years. "It should result in a stronger, improved MCA next year," says Dr. Stine.

4. Freshmen shall be required to attend all Pep Rallies. Roll call shall be taken.

5. The pajama parade on the night before the Homecoming football game and the shoe rush at the game shall be held as usual.

6. The above regulations shall be enforced until Thanksgiving if the Freshmen are victorious in two out of three of the traditional contests with the sophomores, but until Christmas if they do not win two. These contests are the tug of war at Cedar Creek, the frosh-soph football game, and the flag rush.

7. These regulations shall be enforced by a tribunal including three sophomores and two seniors, to be appointed by the Student Council. Appropriate fines and penalties shall be meted out.

NOTE CHANGE

All veterans enrolled under Public Law 346 and 16 and who are NOT attending Summer school, whose education is being interrupted in any way, OR THOSE WHO ARE TERMINATING THEIR EDUCATION AT THE END of this term, are required to attend an important meeting in the Science Auditorium, Friday, May 16 at 11 o'clock.

There will be no chapel at that time.

The Nats have a few good men, such as Sid Hudson, Mickey Vernon and Gerry Priddy, but they are not enough to overcome the glaring lack of first class major leaguers on the Washington squad. St. Louis seems to be back to their pre-war form—that of being mired deep in the second division. Muddy Ruel just doesn't have the material to poke his head over the top of the bottom half of the league.

Did I forget anybody's team? Oh yes—the A's. Our prediction is that they will finish two games ahead of the Allentown Cardinals and next year will be sponsored by Burkholder's. (He's the guy you see following Connie Mack.)

Blazing Trails in COMMUNICATIONS

TO CONTINUE TO PROVIDE the world's finest telephone service—this is the objective of the Bell System.

It takes the combined efforts of scientists, manufacturers, and associated operating companies . . . such as The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Continuous research and exploration is the function of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. From these laboratories, one of the world's great research organizations, have come significant advances in telephones, cable, loading coils, repeater tubes, switchboards, dial apparatus, coaxial cable, radiotelephone systems . . . the very fabric of modern communications.

From these laboratories, too, are coming developments which will be ready for general use in the near future: Toll dialing, microwave radio relay systems, power-line carrying apparatus for transmitting telephone calls over rural electric power lines, short-wave radio systems for extending telephone service to isolated places out of reach of wire and cable lines.

And for the tomorrow after tomorrow, still more amazing equipment . . . some of it already in the blueprint stage.

Behind each of these developments lie the skill and imagination of many college-trained men and women. More than ever, the communications system of tomorrow depends on the college classroom of today.

GRADUATION MONDAY, JUNE 2, IN CHAPEL

Two Bands Play At Graduation Ball May 31 In Hotel Traylor

Saturday, May 31, is the date set for the annual Graduation Ball, which will be held this year in the Hotel Traylor. Dress for the ball is strictly formal, and there will be dancing from nine until twelve, to music furnished by two orchestras, those of Walt Simpson and Henry Herrera.

Walt Simpson, whose orchestra provided the music for the Senior Ball last fall, had been a noted arranger before he was taken into the Coast Guard during the war. While in the service, Simpson gathered the musicians in his unit and formed a dance band. The band proved such a success that it was made an official Coast Guard band and all the members given musicians' ratings and Simpson the rating of Chief Petty Officer in charge of music. For three years the band was engaged in making bond drives and entertaining service men in this country and in the European and Pacific war theaters. Upon his discharge from the Coast Guard in the spring of 1946, Simpson decided to continue his career as a band leader, rather than returning to arranging. The key men of his present band were members of his original Coast Guard band, and he has now secured the services of Faye Dean as vocalist.

In choosing the second orchestra for the Ball, Phil Mitterling, who as head of the Student Council's social committee, made the arrangements for the affair, remarked this week: "We wanted to give the Student Body something a little out of the ordinary for a change, and Henry Herrera and his Cubans are said to be one of the best and most authentic Latin bands in the nation."

Herrera and his all-Cuban orchestra come here direct from an engagement at the Palm Island Casino in Palm Island, Florida.

The Herrera band has been featured at the Roseland Ballroom in New York, where they also played for the Harvest Moon Ball dance contests sponsored by a leading New York newspaper.

Advertised as one of Cuba's outstanding marimba artists, Herrera plays a marimba which is insured for $20,000, and which is one of only three such marimbas in the country.

"If for no other reason than the attraction of the $20,000 marimba, we expect to see a fine crowd and have a successful ball this year," said Mitterling.

Horn, Warlow Publish Articles

Dr. Robert C. Horn, vice president and head of the Classical Language Department, and Mr. Francis Warlow of the English Department have both had articles published in national magazines lately.

Dr. Horn's article, which appeared in a recent issue of the Classical Weekly, was entitled Some Notes on the Gospel of St. Mark. It treated of the language and style of the original Greek of this gospel, and contained some discussion of the beginning and end of the gospel, as well as many comparisons with classical Greek usage.

The article by Mr. Warlow, who joined the English Department staff last fall, was a short story which was published in a recent number of the American magazine.

Students who plan to attend the Summer Session will be able to obtain registration books from the registrar's office on May 19th. These registration books must be filled out by all men attending the summer semester by May 26th.

Student Work Is Feature Of Art Exhibit

For the next ten days, May eighth through May seventeenth, the Muhlenberg Gallery will exhibit the work of students enrolled in the College or in the Adult Education classes.

About fifty works are shown: drawings in ink and charcoal, pastels, and paintings in oil and water color. Several pasted paper "collages" by the Art History Class, following the technique of Picasso and the cubists, contrast with the more conservative works. Of the latter "Texas City Blast" by Phil Mitterling (his first art effort) and "Jitterbug" by Lewis Hawk are notable.

The brothers Zwickl shine among the Adult Education students, Frank with a lyrical snowscape in a traditional technique and Bill with a surrealist allegory "I Should Have Thought Of This Earlier".

Mrs. Heinrich Meyers from Emmaus and Albert Neubauer present skillful and sensitive portraits.

The exhibition was not juried but contains selections from the work of all students, whether beginners or advanced. It was arranged and hung by the students.

The following are represented:

Students: Harold Geist, Jr., Sidney Greenberg, John Halada, Eugene C. Harmony, Lewis R. Hawk, Lawrence Hoskins, Foster Lapp, P. J. Mitterling, William Raines, Henry Roth, W. A. Smith, Jr.

Adult Education Class: Jennie Casazza, Carolyn Kirby, Claire Leeds, Jeanne Leeds, Mrs. Heinrich Meyers, D. Edward Morse, Albert Neubauer, Sara Scheidy, Mrs. John Wagner, William R. Zwickl, Frank Zwickl.

Dr. James Swain News Editor Of "Historian"

Dr. James Edgar Swain, head of Muhlenberg's Social Studies Department, has recently been named to the position of News Editor of "The Historian", official publication of Phi Alpha Theta, National Honorary History Fraternity.

"The Historian", which is published twice a year, is a general historical journal as well as conveyor of fraternal and chapter news. Dr. Swain was nominated for the position by the Editor, Dr. Earl Pomeroy, of Ohio State University, and confirmed by the National Council.

With a national membership of over 5,200, and chapters numbering 43, the position of News Editor will be a large task. With present plans for instituting some changes in the publication to make it of a more permanent nature, Dr. Swain has assumed a job which should take considerable time in completing.

The Kappa chapter on Muhlenberg campus was founded in 1929 with Dr. Swain as a charter member. At present, Phil Mitterling is the President of the fraternity's Muhlenberg chapter.

ALL non-resident students should obtain their copy of the ARCADE at the Mail Room during exam week, beginning Monday morning, May 19th. Students residing on campus or in fraternity houses need not call at the Mail Room as copies will be delivered to them.

DO NOT FAIL TO OBTAIN YOUR COPY. YOU HAVE PAID FOR IT!

ODK HONORS 19 MEN IN CHAPEL CEREMONIES

Nineteen men were initiated into the Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary college fraternity, Wednesday, May 14.

The candidates were tapped for the fraternity in an impressive ceremony in the College Chapel at the 11:30 a.m. service, Wednesday morning. Maurice Horn, president of the fraternity, presided at the ceremony and gave a short talk on the ideals and aims of the Omicron Delta Kappa. The nineteen candidates were then invested with the fraternity colors by John E. T. Rogers, the secretary-treasurer.

The tapping of the candidates was followed by the formal initiation of the new members at 4:00 p.m. with President Maurice Horn again presiding in the Chapel. Members in faculite present at the initiation were: Dr. Robert Horn, Dr. James E. Swain, Dr. Victor L. Johnson, Mr. Francis W. Warlowe, and Mr. Warren W. Swenson.

The fraternity's initiation day was climaxed with a banquet at the 1760 House, Trexlertown. The feature of the evening was an interesting and inspiring address by Dr. Robert Horn, vice-president of the college.

Only 407 Cast Votes In Student Elections

Harrison Moyer, Howard Haring, Ralph Boyer, Adolf Wegener, Tracy Storch, Herbert Needleman, Earl Feight, Ralph Bagger, and John McKinney, in that order of popularity, were chosen by vote of 407 students in Monday's general election to be Senior members of next year's Muhlenberg Student Council. Seated with them on the 1947-1948 Council will be James Reppert, elected vice president of the Senior Class, William Lybrand, Junior president, James Bensinger, Sophomore president, and the president to be chosen by the freshmen entering in fall.

About one-third of the student body turned out for the election of both Council members and class officers. Members of the election board revealed that many positions were very closely contested. Juniors, with 74 men voting, chose "Dutch" Wegener, James Reppert, Ralph Bagger, and John McKinney for the offices of president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer respectively. Runners-up were Peter Horger, Ray Nies, Edward Phillips, and Richard Bieber.

One hundred thirty-seven sophomores elected William Lybrand, John Keefe, William Rickert, and Graham Rinehard for the usual offices, with Richard Kishbaugh, Richard Rau, Ramon "Pat" Carazo, and Erlin Lutz as the closest contenders. For Clara officers, they chose Richard Kishbaugh as editor, and Richard Rau as business manager. Freshmen, registering 135 ballots, elected James Bensinger, Thomas Evans, Lewis Wence, and Carl Herzog. Runners-up were Walter Doberstein, Peter Wyckoff, Joel Skidmore, and Nathan Smith. Theodore "Ted" Getz was elected head cheerleader.

The polls will be open today, Thursday, until 4:00 p.m. for the election of president, vice presi-

Seniors Hear Murrow; Baccalaureate Sunday

On Monday morning, June 2, one hundred and nineteen seniors will be awarded their diplomas in the college chapel at a service which will begin at ten a.m.

Principal speaker for the commencement exercises will be Edward R. Murrow, Columbia Broadcasting System vice-president and news commentator. Mr. Murrow has a distinguished list of citations and awards, most of which he earned for his factual and human-interest reporting during the recent war. He is best known to many American radio listeners for his broadcasts from London during and after the Blitz.

At the preliminary baccalaureate services which are to be held in the chapel on Sunday afternoon, Commander Everett P. Wuebbens will be the speaker. Commander Wuebbens, a Lutheran clergyman, is currently serving as the chaplain of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Degrees will be given to three groups of men, those who completed their work in August, 1946, in January, 1947, and the last group, whose work was finished with the end of this semester.

Men who will be graduated with honors are the following: Peter Bossart, Donald A. Brobst, Richard

Victory Reunion Dates, Events Announced

Muhlenberg's first post-war get-together, in the form of a gala Victory Reunion, will be held over the weekend of May 30 and 31, on the college campus.

The program planned by the reunion committee for the celebration is as follows:

Friday, May 30
10:00 A. M.—Junior Oratorical Contest—West Hall Auditorium.
1:00 P. M.—Luncheon for graduating seniors—Hotel Traylor.
3:00 P. M.—Last Chapel for seniors—College Chapel.
3:00-5:00 P. M.—President's Reception—President's Home.
6:00 P. M.—All Alumni Dinner—Under the Big Top.
8:30 P. M.—Alumnae Party.
9:00 P. M.—Alumni Party—Hotel Traylor.

Pre-theological Club Speaker Dr. Trexler

The Pre-theological Club assembled for its final meeting of the current semester on Monday evening in the Haas Room of the Library. Chief business transacted at the session was the election of officers, who will take office in September and serve throughout the 1947-1948 academic year.

Those chosen were: Ralph W. Bagger, president; Theodore E. Getz, vice-president; Donald A. Steward, secretary; and Erlin H. Lutz, treasurer.

The guest speaker of the evening was Dr. Charles Trexler, student pastor of the college, whose subject was, "The Chaplaincy". He spoke from many years of experience as a chaplain in both world wars, and told of the numerous and varied problems and experiences, joys and sorrows, which come to one engaged in this work.

Words of farewell were spoken by Raymond A. May, retiring president, who will complete his college work this summer; and by Dr. John W. Doberstein, who completes his work as adviser of the club by virtue of his call to a professorship at Mt. Airy Seminary in Philadelphia.

dent, secretary, and treasurer of the Student Council. All regularly enrolled students are entitled to vote.

EDITORIALS

PARTING SHOT

The end of May always brings a deluge of eloquent speeches, articles, and editorials, conforming to the general "Men-you're-about-to-step-out-into-the-cruel-world" tone. They're as inevitable as March taxes, and with few exceptions, just about as inspiring.

This is one time that all the speeches, articles, and editorials will be more fitting and accurate than ever before.

On June second, about one hundred men will step up, take their diplomas, and walk off the campus into a different sphere than they or anyone imagined it would be when they entered Muhlenberg.

Forgetting the poetry, it is a rugged world. Remembering it, it's a baseball that's been knocked around more astral parks by more cosmic Ruths and Williams than the Heavenly Scorekeeper would like to think about.

The seniors are on the mound now. They've got plenty of speed, control, and stuff on the ball. Only time will tell whether they're major league material.

At any rate, the whole school is in the boxes along first base, rooting for them, and wishing them all the luck they deserve.

FOLLOW THROUGH ON ELECTIONS

Elections are over. You voted, fulfilled your responsibility. Now get out from under. Your friend may have lost or won. It doesn't matter any longer to you—your temporary interests have been met. Let "them" run things. From now on, ignore the vital issues on campus and after action has been taken on them, gripe, cry to your mamma that they are feeding you grass instead of spinach.

Quite the contrary, let's have some interest in student government, a little stimulation in the right places. Back your elected representatives; give to each of them the concerted drive of the entire student body, make their words potent, not perfume.

Know what's coming off on campus—be informed. Follow both student and administrative policies and if they affect you—find out how and why. Know your rights and when they are trampled on, holler—to Student Council. Keep them awake day and night. Guard what you have jealously, or lose it.

Don't stand still. Progress is important and Muhlenberg needs plenty of it. Move constructively and progressively through your elected representatives. Spread your ideas; suggest new plans to the right people. Make your opinions a force; unite, and get things done. The ball starts rolling with you.

Inquiring Reporter

What do you think of the proposal to introduce coeducation at Muhlenberg?

Henry Rosner, Senior:

"Excellent idea, as I think it would bolster school spirit, extra-curricular activities, and interest in class work."

Mr. Karl Wittrich, Department of Social Sciences:

"That's not an easy question to answer. It depends on whether it would improve the behavior of students. It might have a definitely uplifting effect. And if so, I'm all for it."

Joe Fisk, Junior:

"Well, there's an obvious answer. I think it would be a fine idea. It would be a great inspiration for the male students."

Jim Wilder, Senior:

"It sounds wonderful, but would anyone ever get any work done? It would be nice to have them around if we could keep them out of the classes."

William Hillegass, alumnus, Class of 1946:

"I'm in favor of it, the chief disadvantage being the small size of the school. As for the typical argument against women in class—if you can't concentrate in college with women present, what are you going to do in business or in the professions where concentration is just as essential?"

John E. T. Rogers, Senior:

"I think it would be an excellent idea because it would coordinate educational life with a social life. Inasmuch as we have to get out in the world where many of our co-workers are of the female sex, no better opportunity is afforded to understand the female sex than in the formative days of college life."

Walter Doberstein, Freshman:

"It would be an excellent thing. Fellows coming from families with sisters find it easier to adapt themselves to society. Since men and women relationships are here to stay, why not teach the lads how to get along with women as members of society?"

The height of conceit is the person who works crossword puzzles with a fountain pen.

The Awful Truth

by Mike Rogers

From where we're sitting, it appears that the curtain is about to ring down on our career as college boy, journalist, (I use the term lightly), and man about the campus. Not one for tear jerking, we would like to bid our farewells, and say our "Thank You's" with all the sincerity we feel and still keep our tear ducts intact . . .

The past week has been going on around us, and we have been rather oblivious to it all. Such startling events like Bob Bosch's dog giving birth, just leave us cold. Just our preoccupation with "SHEEP-SKIN DERBY" is the reason for the lack of attention-----And speaking of the "DERBY", we'll be looking for you on one of the big nights, starting this evening at 8:15. Lotsa laughs, some good music and dancing, and those beauteous belles of the football squad should take your mind off your worries . . .

John "Goaler" Umlauf and Mid are firmly entrenched in their 'adobe hacienda' and making like all married peoples . . . Bums finally giving themselves a break and taking some of Peg Krause's time . . .

Checked "Red" Lewis and a Frau strolling last Sunday about town . . . Rumors say that many 'Bergmen move to City Park as local pub templates closing . . .

Don Stoughton avid WEEKLY critic and sack hound par excellence, has apparently been awake long enough to ring some unsuspecting lass. Our congratulations are hereby extended and----"Come on Don, stay awake"!!!!

New York publishing company will undoubtedly get a real boost when Dr. E. T. Fluck reports for work. Muhlenberg will miss the popular Latin instructor . . .

"Wedding Bells and Orange Blossoms" for Elsie Mittl and Lou Schreiter on consecutive weekends. Much luck and happiness to the newlyweds . . .

Bob, the night janitor, back to duty after a layoff to recover from illness . . .

Mrs. Tyson just receiving her driver's license and following in the Dr's footsteps, or car tracks. Latest reports say—"SWISH"!!

That's it for now fellas—good luck to all hands and my sincere thanks for past favors . . .

G. I. INFO

by Wally Worth

To you who are looking for an apartment or house, greetings. You have a benefactor in Harrisburg at last and believe me he is all out to get you a home. The gentleman's name is Rose and he is the patron of House Bill 1010.

This bill, which was referred to the committee of military affairs on March 26, '47, is considered by some people to be radical but there are many others who feel that, radical or not, it hits the nail on the head.

The purpose of the act is to aid in alleviating the acute housing shortage by authorizing housing authorities to provide housing for veterans and families of servicemen. The bill makes special mention of the fact that many G.I.'s are being denied their rights to education because of lack of housing.

ing at the various educational institutions and therefore an emergency exists which justifies the expenditure of public funds.

The following means, for the purpose of making housing available for G.I.'s, are given in the bill:

1. Exercise the power of eminent domain for the acquisition of real property.
 2. Construct housing of a temporary character, to be removed at the end of the emergency period.
 3. Borrow money and accept grants from the Federal Government.
 4. Take any action necessary to carry out the purpose of this act.
- Well there you have it, fellows, and it shows that there is someone in sympathy with our cause. Now what will you do about it?

Poetic Genius Contagious

But Imitation Has Complications

Great things often inspire men to do great things, much like one with a cold inspires another to catch the same. Perhaps that isn't one of the better analogies, but it all adds up to the fact that one can catch the bug by merely looking or hearing about some one already having the same.

For this reason I am very fond of English Literature, for the gents who glory in that stuff write mostly through inspiration, and the effect a certain scene or person has upon them. If a particular poet happened to be eating his soup and came across some foreign matter in the form of an insect, he promptly would write something which would go like this:

"Swim, bug, swim if you must, But not too long, or you'll rust, I trust."

The great depth of emotion in the above lines would hit another poet right between the eyes and he would have to retaliate with:

"The cock-roach walking on the greasy spoon, fell to his death, this afternoon."

From this humble start, writing about kitchen pests would skyrocket to fame, and once the public got into the swing of it, D.D.T. would be outlawed, and the common cockroach might even find a birth in every man's home in the same capacity that dogs enjoy. Because the foundation happened to be weak, the insects would return to their status quo, once some scientific experiment discovered that bugs don't rust.

Don't hold that the public is merely putty in the poet's hands, but I'd like to bet that there would be a lot more pillows on the market if some writer happened to encounter a situation which demanded his writing the following: "My twelve foot leap was aided by a goat who had a very good eye." In time every college jumping event might even have two contests, with and without the aid of some goat. Who knows?

The pay-off to the whole situation could easily be that of race suicide or mass homicide, depending upon what the particular poet happened to do before or after he wrote some stirring poem.

All this would be forgivable in my eyes if I could only lay my hands on the guy who knocked off a bottle of a popular soft drink and set the following words to music: "Pepsi Cola hits the spot, Twelve full ounces, that's a lot" . . . as I hold him responsible for the state that modern advertising happens to be in today.

The Muhlenberg College Athletic Department has received a very commendable report on the recent road tour of our baseball squad.

From the Lewistown Hotel, in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, the hotel officials have written that they were most favorably impressed with the conduct of the entire team, and wished to state it publicly.

This is quite an honor to any kind of road tour and exemplifies the Muhlenberg reputation. From all indications, future Cardinal and Gray representatives will be most welcome when they take to the hinterlands.

Advent Of Amazons Sobers Graduating Seniors

Glimpse Into Future Confirms Fears

Another spring, another graduation. So it goes. Every year sees a capped and gownned army of young men and women file up to the platform, and, stifling a throat-lodged sob, grasp their sheepskins, then march off resolutely and happily to face the world and its problems.

At Muhlenberg this spring, however, the happy confidence has faded into the background. Only the resolution is present.

Noting the grim tenseness in the faces of 1947's seniors as they went about their tasks, an enterprising WEEKLY reporter delved into the matter in an attempt to uncover the root of this recent noticeable change.

The WEEKLY staff, upon learning the nature of the story, at first considered hushing it up, but further consideration necessitated its recognition as an inescapable fact. To the staff, their course was clear. It had to be printed. This morning the WEEKLY went to press.

The fact which has turned Muhlenberg men, and men in other colleges, from confident leaders to worry-ridden little men, is the growing dominance of women throughout the world. The haunting truth is that their fears are well-founded.

If among the WEEKLY readers there remain a few skeptics, let them look ten years into the future and be convinced.

It is 1957. Two hundred men, home economics majors, are seated on the lawn of President Funk's home on the Muhlenberg campus. They are listening to a commencement address by Eunice Feight, Director of Dramatics and Adviser to the Mask and Dagger Club. Bo Malmstrom and Harry Boretzky, President and Vice President of the Muhlenberg Husbands' Club are Valedictorian and Salutatorian respectively. Watching the ceremony from the door of the commons is Chief Dietician, Charlie Eisenhard, formerly a janitor in the College Little Theater.

The Crestiad is running a story about a tea dance in the Dome Room of the Library by the Ed Pickard Alumnae Association.

Haps Benfer is rounding out his third year as secretary to Vivian Patzold, Registrar. Head of the Social Science Department and instructor in the popular course, "History of the Female Species," Professor Barbara Schantz, Ph.D., D.D.T., H.L.A.M., S.W.A.K., reports a huge profit from the college cooperative store. Dean Marjorie Vetter has devised a formula to determine the number of credit hours needed for graduation. Director of Student Affairs, Marcia Gallos, is inaugurating a course in horseback riding and bird lore. Elsie Mittl, public relations expert is keeping the public posted on the Soph-Frosh quilting tournament.

In short, women will have taken over everything. Women will comprise the faculty, women will run the government, women will take the initiative in dating men, women will . . . What are we saying? That's good!

"NO TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION" HEARD AGAIN IN PENNSYLVANIA as teen-age youngsters storm Senate Gallery in State Capitol to protest Governor Duff's proposed Soft Drink Tax. Youngsters carried placards reading: "Don't Tax Our Soft Drinks"; "The Grown-Ups Ducked a Tax — Don't Slap It On Us"; "We Protest Taxation Without Representation!". Senate Minority Leader John Dent who opposes the tax pointed out that youngsters under twenty-one constitute 80% of America's soft drink consumers, and warned that soft drink levy could turn Pennsylvania's youngsters into booze hounds. The Senator also pointed out that the entire proposal was counter to the national current of cutting down on high prices and was out of line with President Truman's economy drive.

It's Like This . . .

by Wally Stefany

The kids have hit the headlines again. This time it's one of the biggest problems they have yet faced—the proposed Soft Drink Tax in Pennsylvania.

Typifying teen age feeling on the issue, one wide-eyed high school beauty weightily opined, "Gee Whiz, I mean after all."

At first the new tax measure seems to indicate that Penna. is taking a header in a direction opposite to that which H.S.T.'s drive to reduce high living costs is taking. This is, of course, an illusion. The revenue will probably be used for improvements. It follows that if Pennsylvanians are going to pay a higher tax for gasoline, they will want to drive on better roads, and the funds for road improvements must come from somewhere. Uh-huh.

The really relevant argument (it says somewhere in the Senate in large print) is the effect a soft drink tax will have on our teenagers. The soda pop levy might put soft drinks into the same price brackets as alcoholic beverages and drive our children to hitting the flask (from the same large print) when the birch beer gets low.

This angle throws new light on the subject. We didn't think, until now, that passing the Soft Drink Tax bill would automatically repeal the law which now prevents bartenders from selling joy juice to minors.

The measure affects the adults too. If the kids take to unwholesome drinking habits as a result of the tax, parents will have to peel a more wary eye when Junior leaves the house for an evening at the local juke joint. This inconvenience will prevent parents from discharging the more pressing duties of movies, bingo, a short nip at the club, and reading books on juvenile delinquency.

When we were youngsters we didn't give a hang what kind of legislation was being aired in Harrisburg. But times have changed. We think it's wonderful that the tykes showed enough interest to storm the Senate Gallery last week without advice or suggestion from anyone. Oh brother.

Seniors Doff Mortar Boards; Look At School In Retrospect

by Gordon Daggy

Former Feature Editor, Muhlenberg WEEKLY.

On June 2, 1947, approximately one hundred names will be added to the files of the alumni association of Muhlenberg College. The significance of the above statement lies not in the fact that the ranks of the alumni will be swelled nor that the ranks of the student body will be depleted, rather it lies in the unique character of the class of '47. This class has the distinction of being the first post-Mercer group to take leave (honorably) of the old Alma Mater. Its contributions, direct and indirect, to an institution in the throes of readjustment are undeniable and will prove a great asset to a broad-minded receptive administration.

The senior class presents a great cross section of ages, abilities and interests which undoubtedly have caused some conflict with the reorganized administration. However this type of opposition may be classified as constructive, during this critical period of readjustment. Some of the graduating seniors are returned service men whose education had been interrupted, some have attended Muhlenberg all through the war years and others were first acquainted with the institution while serving in Uncle Sam's Navy.

The unobligated duty of these men to set example and formulate precedence for the disposition of future classes, was carried out with a reactivated post war spirit. Extra-curricular activities were rejuvenated along with the re-institution of several fraternities on the campus. Social activities again became synonymous with college life as frequent dances and parties were successfully held. The student body became aware of its significance and its duties with the advent of frequent student body meetings. The Ciarla is again on the campus and the MUHLENBERG WEEKLY has been renovated and improved.

With a new policed administration and a misunderstood veteran student body, the job of readjustment is far from complete, but progress is being made. Laying our cards on the table we see a definite lack of school spirit which is not healthy for any school. The solution of this problem is beyond the scope of the graduating class but it is not impossible.

Hats off to the Class of '47 who have started the ball rolling, with the sincere hope that it will not be dropped and that succeeding classes will follow in their footsteps towards a better institution.

by Robert G. Hale

Vice-president, Senior Class, and former WEEKLY City Editor.

For the majority of the Class of '47 the shortest distance between matriculation and graduation was not a straight line. It was a long, tortuous, and interrupted pathway to sheepskin.

We entered college in 1941; ours was to be the Class of '45. I remember 1941 well because it was the year that Elmer's Tune plagued the country's juke boxes. In that same year while the familiar Ink Spots "falsettoized" I Don't Want To Set The World On Fire, London burned by night, dug out by day during the great Blitz. It was a year of Lend-Lease acceleration, a year in which the morning light of the third F.D.R. term dimmed the flickering Wendell Willkie star, a year that saw us "play house"—children that we were—with a couple of toothsome Japanese envoys and send them on their back-stabbing way. 1941 was a year of restlessness and fear, punctuated intermittently by the reassuring and cultured, "I hate war". Then on December 7, in her waning moments, 1941 gave birth to the "day that will live in infamy". There had been better times to start college.

A usual display of emotion for seniors, upon graduation day, is to write a "Will" to the undergraduates, leaving behind to erstwhile beneficiaries certain things in trust. The Class will, you will remember, is a favorite high school stunt.

"We, the Class of '39, '40, '41 or what have you leave the following to those remaining behind. To Joe and Betty: the bench at the end of the main corridor (that's typical). To Ethelbert: the bar bells (Ethelbert, of course has no physique). To Fred: Mary Jane's autographed saddle shoes (touching)."

Another procedure for the erudite senior, presumably choked up over the prospect of leaving his Alma Mater's portals forever, is to write a eulogy on his dear old days at Siwash—undergraduate days gone forever.

If you don't mind, I'm leaving no Will; I'm writing no eulogy, for Wills seem to me the last desperate throes of a dying generation, and sentimental eulogies smack of insincerity. What, then, can I offer as my swan song if I am not to treat lightly in passing of my college days and not to become involved in ornate adjectives? I can do just this. I can speak frankly, honestly, constructively. I can focus my eyes on the Alumni Day ten years hence will be an occasion for the members of the Class of '47 to do a little reminiscing. Yes, by the year 1957, when we return to our Alma Mater, most of us will have forgotten that our class was one of those war babies composed of men who have been determined to get a higher education, in spite of war and the many other obstacles. Men from the classes of '44 and '45 and then those who started college under the V-12 program are now preparing to terminate their six or seven year college program. To many, college has been a grind, a never ending struggle; to others, college has been a pleasure, an inspiration to learning. No matter what our views and purposes might be, on June 2, we will be together in receiving our diplomas; and ten years hence, on Alumni Day we will be together again reminiscing our college days at "dear old Muhlenberg."

The sight of Muhlenberg's campus, enveloped in green foliage will revise nostalgic memories. The trials and tribulations of our interrupted college programs will be superseded by the pleasant memories. We will laugh about over-due reports, quizzes, and voluminous notes; we will jest about over-crowded corridors, and dark classrooms. We will boast about the athletic record Muhlenberg has made; and we will brag about our Alma Mater. We will be proud of our diplomas, and we will proclaim the Muhlenberg tradition. And then, indeed, we will finally be compelled to admit that from the day of our matriculation deep down in our hearts we have always been proud of and grateful to our Muhlenberg.

Then, with this insight to the future, we can now assuredly express our thanks to Muhlenberg College—the faculty, administration, and our fellow students. The Class of 1947 is grateful to you.

faults as well as the virtues of my college experience. I can speak of the Muhlenberg that was, the one that is, and the one that is to be. In the years since 1941 both the individual of the Class of '47 and the institution which has played so important a role in his life have undergone many changes.

In 1941 Muhlenberg was a small community of from 500 to 550 men who were here because they wanted a liberal education. Those men, with few exceptions, had chosen

Many outstanding athletic aggregations, high school and college, have been shattered with the advent of graduation. The mighty West Point gridiron machine, having run rampant over all opposition for three years, will be reduced to a third rate football power when the majority of its first-line bone-crushers don cap and gown in June. All over the nation high-gear sports machines are destined for the same fate. No such alarming degradation is predicted for the Cardinal and Gray; however, graduation will exact a heavy toll from the athletic resources of the school. Familiar court, track, diamond, and gridiron figures will be conspicuous by their absence when Muhlenberg teams raise the curtain on the 1947-48 season. Among the athletes deserving a vote of thanks from school and students as they depart from these halls are:

George Bibighaus came to Muhlenberg from Lehigh, Pa., High school where he had covered himself with glory as a three-letter winner. At Muhlenberg he played three years of varsity baseball and football and constituted a menace to opposing twirlers, linemen, and backs. George's college training was interrupted by a lengthy sojourn in Uncle Sam's navy; however, he returned to school to wreak havoc with the opposition. His spectacular play in the past season won him a berth on the Little All-American football squad. When he departs from 'Berg he will take over a coaching position at his old high school. With capable George as a guiding hand, Lehigh should become a sports power in the valley.

Oscar Baldwin prepared for stardom at London, Ky., High School and Geneva College and then completed his climb to glory at Muhlenberg. Although his two years of baseball are not to be overlooked, it was on the basketball court that he really made his mark. "Red" captained the squad through a successful campaign this past season. A good set shot and a heady floor man, he was responsible for many a 'Berg success. When hostilities commence next season, Coach Barker will have a rough time filling the dynamic redhead's shoes.

John Sweatlock was one of the headiest centers that ever pulled a cardinal and gray jersey over a pair of shoulder pads. He learned his football at Mt. Union, Pa., high school and learned it well. His aggressive, high speed tactics broke up many opposing plays before they could get under way. Johnnie was an indispensable cog in the sensational 1946 squad and, in addition, captained the team through the Tobacco Bowl contest. He also won a letter in wrestling before leaving for naval service.

James Capehart came to Muhlenberg with the Marine unit, previously, having attended Marshall college, and distinguished himself on the track and basketball teams. At the conclusion of the war he returned to the campus to complete his education. When Jim graduates we will be saying farewell to a likeable chap and a fine athlete.

Carl Reimer hails from Bath, Pa., and is a product of Northampton high school. His experiences as a member of the army, infantry prepared him for rough duty with the Muhlenberg line. Carl held down a regular guard berth on last year's rugged squad from the initial contest right down to the Tobacco Bowl game, and made his piston-like driving power an important factor in every contest.

Richard D. Miller left Chester High School in 1941 and attended Bethany College in W. Va. The war brought the marine unit and Dick to the local campus. He lost no time getting in the athletic groove, distinguishing himself on the track and basketball squads. The end of the war brought him back to the campus to the completion of his college education.

Morris Quint was an outstanding sports figure at Claysburg, Pa., High School where he was a letter-winner in three sports. He came to 'Berg from Juniata College as a marine. During his Junior year he was active in track and football, but in his last year confined his talents to the football field alone. His absence will be sorely felt when our football squad takes to the gridiron to uphold last year's record.

Robert Ranken is a contribution of the Quaker City and William Penn Charter School. "Bob" wields a mean tennis racquet and was the mainstay on the undefeated tennis team several years ago. Doc Shankweiler will feel no pleasure when he next counts racquets and finds that this AAF vet has departed from ye olde college.

Blair and Bob Krimmel present a strikingly similar picture. These brothers hail from Audubon, N. J., and the high school of the same name. Both made their presence felt on the gridiron and both will leave a difficult gap for Coach Schwartzwalder to fill. Bob was

From Dr. Tyson To The Class Of '47

An official and public "good-by" to the seniors from the President of the College must not be interpreted in any sense as an expression of our pleasure in seeing you leave Muhlenberg. I am confident that all of us would like to have you here longer,—for several more terms at least—so that we could do a little bit more to round out your collegiate experience, academically and otherwise. For, as you are aware, the College, as well as each one of you, is adjusting itself after the war, and we haven't reached the point yet where we can say "good-by" to a senior, satisfied that he or we have done the best of which we shall ultimately be capable. However, as you leave, you know you have our best wishes for every type of success, and may God bless you all.

Message From V. Pres. Horn

Society expects some special and worthwhile service from those who have had the advantage of a college education.

You are supposed to have learned how to study; to have cultivated qualities of mind and heart such as persistence, reliability, honor, and integrity; to have learned to direct the heart and soul toward truthfulness, sincerity, and true nobility; and to have a place for God in your life.

People will expect you to have a reasonable fund of ideas, to be inspired with a desire to know and understand things and people; to be able to think logically and to express your thoughts clearly in speaking and writing; in addition to this they will expect you to have learned how to live with others, with sympathy and consideration for other points of view.

You certainly should have learned how to train and care for your body so as to keep it under control and to make it a fit dwelling place for an active mind. You should also have cultivated tastes in reading, art, literature, and music above those of the crowd, and to have equipped yourselves for the better enjoyment of leisure time.

If you think the world expects too much of you, at least direct your aim toward the ideal. Your education is not finished; it has barely begun. If you have enjoyed the experience up to the present time, I wish you happiness and joy in the years to come. When the Greeks wanted to express their congratulations and best wishes for the future, they said "Tyche Agathe"; and the word which is still used for farewell really means rejoice, be glad, "Chaerete". With such words I speed you on your way.

Retiring WEEKLY Editor Reumann Says - - -

Way, way back in the dim, distant pre-war days—say about 1938 or '39—a couple of now-balding seniors signed a matriculation book, filled out the accustomed forms in quad-triplicate, and donned a Cardinal and Gray beanie. This was the beginning of the present Senior Class, a non-descript term for an assorted bunch of intellectual prodigies, athletic stars, lounge lizards, Chapel dodgers, squirrels, welded together by the simple fact that they have completed and recorded on their records that magical total, 128 hours, or something thereabouts.

Meanwhile, some of the same men who are now part of this chaotic Class of '47 were still teething in junior high schools or struggling with the intricacies that Muhlenberg. It was not, then a question of where you could fit in, but rather, as it should be, where you wanted to fit in. The survival of this school during the war years was not accidental; it was based on good record, capable administration and a desire for service to country. Naturally it necessitated a different Muhlenberg adapted to extraordinary conditions.

Now, with more than double the enrollment, the atmosphere of 1941 is stifled in the crowd. In the rapid expansion something had to give. The personal touch was destined to suffer. True, there is a duty now to the veteran seeking admittance to colleges, but if, in the attempt to accommodate him, the effectiveness of instruction, of counselling, of atmosphere decreases the question still exists: Are we really aiding the vet?

Muhlenberg should never go back to the small pre-war enrollment, but I am convinced that eventually a levelling off at 800 or so would, in the long run, be the best service this college could render the nation.

The role that extra-curricular activities play in the college scene can never, in my opinion, be over-phased. Recollections of sports, fraternity, dramatics, journalism, frosh regs will reside in the mind long after the book larnin' has faded into the dim recesses. Education, someone has said, is what you have left after you have forgotten all you ever learned. That residue, to a large extent, will be a result of what we did in college—outside the classroom. Since the war and the record enrollment at 'Berg, participation in extra-curricular work has taken a lamentable slump. Instead of a proportionate increase in interest, there is a decline. There are valid reasons why this has occurred. First, the average veteran, being older and more solely interested in getting his degree and gettin', refuses to be bothered or enthused over activities. Secondly, the intensification of academic work, the pressure brought to bear on the student by the instructor makes it imperative that he (the student) devote all his time to study in the mad race to survive a competitive system. I believe, at Muhlenberg, this is the case to a tee.

Outside activities, if one feels he can afford them at all, must be adjusted to his schedule as time permits. But the crescendo of assignments seem to make it possible in most cases for the student only to sleep, eat, and drink books—books. As more men become accustomed to college life and its various demands on the individual, I hope the prevailing attitude will change.

Next year frosh regulations will again be reinstated—this time, I hope, in earnest. A minority will rebel against this. Some of their arguments are good, but generally this return to tradition will do more toward reestablishing the "old order" of healthy campus spirit than anything else. Muhlenberg now lacks proper spirit, and one of the principal reasons is because each student fails to believe thoroughly in Muhlenberg. This "belief in Muhlenberg" might be a rather nebulous phrase, but there are some who know what I mean. College spirit has reached its low ebb and is now on the flood again. Next year will tell much.

When I look for the weak spots in the Muhlenberg I leave I cannot miss the whole problem of student government. The gallant but too, too futile attempt made this past year must not be repeated. A free college press and effective student government are the two most potent constructive instruments—not weapons—in the hands of the student. A farce is always worse than nothing at all. Recent student government was not farcial, but it certainly left much to be desired. The fault hovers over both student and administration, students for obvious apathy in self government when given the chance, administration for occasional failure to sense stu-a member of the AAF, while Blair served in the navy.

Bethlehem Nurses Offer "First Year Frolic" Dance

Richard Holben, now a resident of Bethlehem, Pa., captained the 1943 Mule football squad. A bruising tackle, he tore gaps in the enemy line and smothered opposing carriers with amazing consistency. Unfortunately all good things come to an end; the ex-swab jockey dons cap and gown next month and leaves the gridiron wars far behind.

Robert Haldeman comes from Lansford, Pa., and Seton Hall Prep. During his tour of duty at this institution, Bob served on the football and track squads. He did a commendable job and his aggressiveness will be long remembered.

Robert Hale, a navy veteran from Lansdowne, Pa., will leave his successors on the track something to aim at—the school javelin record which he established in 1943 with a toss of 185' 4".

Benjamin Celian is a product of John Bartram High School in Philadelphia. Ben played varsity basketball and football at Muhlenberg in 1941-42 and then transferred to Penn and duty with George Munger's Bruisers. He returned to 'Berg and resumed activity on the gridiron under Coach Schwartzwalder. He is a veteran of the Navy Air Corps.

dent consensus. In order to gain any measure of popularity and support the government must always be the "champion of the masses". Next year the new Council must exhibit early in the term at least one victory or sensible compromise in their arbitration of student problems with the administration. An admission that final settlement of any problem rests ultimately in the hands of the administration is, at the outset, to recognize impotency.

Many colleges and universities have experimented with veteran organizations on the campus and found them to be highly successful. I am in favor of such an organization on this campus. However, it should not supersede the Student Council but rather work through that representative body in behalf of the veteran.

These various observations I have made are only a few which could be made. Whereas Muhlenberg has failed in some ways to live up to my expectations during this new period in her history, she has also responded, on the other hand, remarkably well in adapting to change. I see her shortcomings only against the background of future triumphs.

REUMANN CONCLUDES

a good bit of Gaul is in tres partes divisa.

So comes the war, and off went the members of these classes to serve in the four corners and a few other assorted crevices of the world. After the usual interval they came back to 'Berg to pick up the fragments of their education.

Meanwhile, the teething Latinists had grown up, came to the "Mule stables," and been accelerated on their course toward a degree. And so when Fall, 1946, rolled around, this assorted group of Seniors gathered for a weekly tete-a-tete on Thursday evenings in the Science Auditorium with Henry L. Snyder, said subject being Law and the Citizens. This was a brief discussion of how the average citizen can understand the "ins" and "outs" of legal processes and then why he should take his problems to some legal-eagle in the end.

At any rate, one evening somebody got the bright idea that the Seniors should organize and thus begin class organization again. In the election Carl Reimer was chosen president, with Bob Hale the vice-president. Maurice Horn won in the balloting for Secretary, while Walter Menzel became treasurer.

Biggest event of the year, and in fact about the only one for the class, was the Senior Ball, held December 13. At Castle Garden two bands, those of Walt Simpson and Randy Brooks alternated for dancing from nine 'till two.

The entire affair was planned, organized, and carried out by Seniors, especially the Student Council members and the class officers. Committee members included Carl Reimer, Mike Rogers, Gordon Daggy, Harold Helfrich, and other councilmen, while the big boss was Phil Mitterling. Decorations, featuring a red and green Xmas theme and climaxed by a decorated twenty foot Christmas tree on the stage, were in charge of Bob Hale, Jack Reumann, and Ernie Hawk.

The second semester found the class somewhat handicapped: with Law and the Citizen at an end, there was some difficulty in getting all the Seniors together at one time and in one place, outside of the Chapel or Kenny's store. Neither place was deemed appropriate, but at long last an election was held for life officers—that is, officers who would serve for life.

Maurice Horn jumped up to the presidential chair from his former secretarial duties. Runner-up Bob Hale became the v.p., and John Edward Thompson Rogers dragged all four of his names into the secretary position. The new treasurer is blah blah blah.

No one will probably ever write a Senior history thesis on the present senior class. There just isn't enough material. And now, come June 2, the more than 100 seniors will grab their sheep-skins, pack up their wives and kids, and head for the hills or the four corners of the world, to seek fame and fortune. Behind them they will leave a pile of soiled tee-shirts, battered copies of Moffat's Economics, a host of memories, and a few ideas and traditions that mean Muhlenberg. Thus has the class of 1947 come through college.

Mutuels Give 8-5 That Varsity Show Goes Over

Above are six lettermen caught in final rehearsal.

Tonight, at precisely 8:15 the Varsity "M" Club of Muhlenberg College will present an extravaganza of mouldy mirth which will undoubtedly result in a strange and hurried disappearance of many members of the cast.

For weeks the student body of this fine institution has been plagued with signs and posters, advertising a high quality, expertly produced variety show to be entitled, "Sheepskin Derby", for the viewing of which you will be obliged to pay one dollar.

I have seen the dress rehearsal of this show and I was most shocked! I can't possibly imagine why anyone would pay any money to subject themselves to such risque frivolity. I don't mean to be prudish, but I think it quite necessary to inform an unsuspecting student body of the exact nature of this production.

These men actually have the nerve to parade themselves on the stage dressed as women, with bare legs showing and wearing lipstick. That's not all, they even go further to create the disillusion they are women, they use padding in the most obvious places! Honestly, I was embarrassed and horrified at the sight of them. They even go through the motions of love making, dancing with each other and kissing! It is a revolting sight to see liquor bottles displayed on the Muhlenberg campus along with the degrading action of these men.

When you graduate, you will have one of the finest opportunities to learn to fly ever offered young men in peacetime.

The Army Air Forces' Aviation Cadet Training Program gives you that chance. It cannot be duplicated anywhere at any price. Leader in new things for aviation—in jet and rocket propulsion, far-ranging heavy aircraft, improved navigation facilities, and many other of the latest developments in a fast-moving field—the AAF can help you begin a brilliant future.

The Air Forces have reopened Aviation Cadet training to qualified civilians 18 to 26½ years of age. Men selected for training as pilots under the terms of the program must be single and have had at least two years of college education, or the equivalent, in an accredited institution. Upon successful completion of the course, graduates will be commissioned Second Lieutenants, Army of the United States, and assigned to flying duty with the Army Air Forces.

Reactivation of the Aviation Cadet program is typical of the AAF's continuing effort to provide selected young men every opportunity to earn advancement. Cadets who-win their wings as today's pilots will be the same kind of men who, in wartime, built and manned the world's mightiest air arm.

Make your plans now to get in at the start! By applying immediately after graduation, you can take your qualifying examinations and enter the July 1st class, or—if you want a summer vacation—you can take your examinations now and be ready to enter the class beginning October 15th. Further information is available at AAF Bases, U. S. Army Recruiting Stations, local Civil Air Patrol headquarters, or by writing to the Commanding General, Army Air Forces, Washington 25, D. C.

Mules Enter 40 Men In Middle Atlantics Saturday

Saturday, May 17, Coach Ernie Fellows will journey with 40 trackmen to Rutgers U. stadium. The occasion is the annual Middle Atlantics track meet which will get under way at 1:30 p.m. with the field events being held as the meet opens.

SPORTS CHATTER...

by Paul Steinberg

Although Eddie Schwob, who played both on the diamond and hardwood for Muhlenberg, has left college and is playing professional baseball, rumor has it that the diminutive Eddie will return to Berg in the fall. Schwob is playing for his Dad's Nyack team in the North Atlantic loop.

Eddie likes to play basketball and it is our guess that he will make a bid for the team if he should return to school. The big question that will arise in a lot of minds is, "Is he eligible?"

There is no doubt in our mind that he has every right to play—the governing body of all amateur sports—the A.A.U.—has set the precedent. You may recall the Howie Schultz case of a few years back. Schultz, now of the Phillies, was playing first base for the Dodgers and at the conclusion of the baseball season returned to Hamline University and when basketball season rolled around he was stretching out his six foot six frame for dear old Hamline. (Love that name!). There was quite a furor raised, but the A.A.U. ruled that an athlete could play a different sport other than the one in which he had turned pro, as long as the athlete in question had not received his degree.

Journeyed down Atlantic City way in Bob Vetter's covered wagon this past weekend and while there we went out to the Atlantic City race track. The spring meet opens on the 26th of this month (the day of accounting finals) and the bangtails will certainly have a beautiful place in which to run. This particular site of the "sport of kings"—and two dollar bets—has improved tremendously. The track is surrounded by huge pine trees and the infield contains a miniature lake, bordered by marine plant life. You can even lose your money over multi-colored glass brick windows. That certain guy with the cigar giving out hot tips might be an aged ex-editor of the Weekly—you run across the darndest people at race tracks!

We just want to add our bit to what's already been said elsewhere in this edition about our athletic stars who are to be graduated on June 2. 'Berg will certainly miss these fine athletes, not only because they are outstanding in the sports field and have brought fame

There will be 21 schools and universities competing for the title which an experienced Rutgers squad gained last year. 546 athletes will vie for fame and individual glory. Rutgers, also entering 40 men, will have the largest squad along with 'Berg.

The defending champions won the title last year by garnering a little more than 30 points—18 by one man. The members of the 'Berg team feel confident that they can amass more than this amount and are eagerly awaiting the starting gun so they can start what they feel will be a successful bid for the title.

Wednesday, May 21, the cinder-men will duel a valley rival, Lafayette, on Muhlenberg field. The final meet of the season will see the Fellows disciples competing against Temple, Saturday, May 24, also on the home grounds.

Coach Fellows has done a terrific job with a somewhat inexperienced team this season and the entire school will be rooting for the tracksters to bring back the trophy from Jersey for him.

TEACHERS GIVE LESSON TO 'BERG TRACKMEN

Berg's tracksters were greeted quite inhospitably by the West Chester State Teachers, taking a 77½ to 48½ pasting on the Teachers' home grounds, Wednesday, May 7. Nine of the fourteen firsts went to West Chester plus an ample number of the runner-up slots.

The Cardinal and Grey men who registered victories were: Rickard in the 220-yard dash, Summers in the two-mile run, Jensen in the 220 low hurdles, Brown in the 120 high hurdles, and Hale with the javelin.

Summaries:
100-yard dash: White (WC); Rollo (M); Trett (WC). Time, 10.1.
220-yard dash: Riekert (M); White (WC); McGinley (WC). Time, 22.6.
440-yard dash: McGinley (WC); Riekert (M); Hoerner (WC). Time, 52.3.
880-yard run: Boon (WC); McDowell (WC); Dennis (M). Time, 2:04.5.
Mile run: Evans (WC); Fleischmann (M); Freiler (WC). Time, 4:39.3.
Two mile run: Summers (M); Melody (WC); Albert (WC). Time, 10:31.2.
220-yard low hurdles: Jensen (M); DeCompli (WC); Trayton (WC). Time, 25.4.
120-yard high hurdles: Brown (M); Ketterer (WC); Williams (M). Time, 16.6.
Shotput: Jurich (WC); O'Schell (WC); Bodgiewicz (M); O'Schell (WC). Distance, 115 ft., 6½ in.

Racketeers Drop First Decision

Dropping their first decision in four starts this season, the Muhlenberg tennis team last Saturday fell before the power and experience of Swarthmore by the shut-out score of 9-0. Swarthmore gained victories in all the matches when Muhlenberg was able to salvage only four sets in the afternoon's proceedings. Bob Ranken won his first set from Buck Shane, but could not maintain his pace and was finally defeated. Bill Dougherty also won one set in his singles, his second set, but was conquered by Herb Dordick. Ranken combined with Haring to take one set from Schmidt and Quint. Bob Cerney and Bill Klink, playing together in the number one doubles position, took their second set from Bodenger and Frankel after a hard fight in which the set went 14 games.

Yesterday the Mules were entertained by Drexel at Philadelphia. On Saturday, the Mules will play host to the Bisons of Bucknell on the Oakmont Tennis Club's courts at 2 o'clock.

The J.V. squad was given its first opportunity to show what it could do in a match on Friday, but was defeated by the Lehigh University J.V. squad, 8-1. Marty Diefenderfer, playing number two singles, defeated Hinlein in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. David Hoh won his first set of singles, as did his older brother, Ernest, but both were subsequently defeated. Schelly and Brossman, in the number two doubles, also won one set.

The summaries for both the varsity and J.V. matches follow.
Muhlenberg-Swarthmore
Singles: Bodenger (S) defeated Cerney, 6-2, 6-0; Frankel (S) defeated Klink, 6-0, 8-6; Kirschner (S) defeated Wieland, 6-1, 6-0; Shane (S) defeated Ranken, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3; Dordick (S) defeated (Continued on Page Six)

RAIN DAMPENS I-M ACTIVITY

"Do you think the rain will hurt the rhubarb?"
"We don't know about the rhubarb, but it certainly washed out League II this week."

League I was fortunate in having clear weather on their playing days. Tuesday saw the Whoopie Scrubs whip the Tornadoes 13 to 1. Alpha Tau Omega won its third straight defeating Phi Epsilon Phi 17-6.

The Jokers and the Scholars took this one 9-3. The Sinners came through with their first win of the tournament defeating Phi Kappa Tau by 10 runs. The final score was 21 to 11.

Thursday again saw League II in action with the Jokers trying their luck against A.T.O. They too were subdued by the unfortunate score 16 to 1. In a game that tallied 44 runs in all, the Tornadoes beat Phi Kappa Tau 24-20.

The Whoopie Scrubs enjoyed their fourth victory and handed the Phi Eps their fourth loss. The final score sheet read Whoopie Scrubs 17, Phi Ep 9. In the closest game of the week the Scholars edged out the Sinners 15-14.

The Whoopie Scrubs and A.T.O. are tied for first place in League II, each having a total of 40 points. Second place honors at this time go to the Tornadoes who have 35 points. The entire League II standings at present are as follows:

Whoopie Scrubs	40
Alpha Tau Omega	40
Tornadoes	35
Scholars	30
Jokers	30
Sinners	25
Phi Epsilon Pi	20
Phi Kappa Tau	20

Mules In Shutout Win

Friday, May 9, 'Berg traveled to Susquehanna and chalked up a 6-0 decision behind the seven hit pitching of Frosh "Lefty" Bob McBrearty. In his first starting assignment, McBrearty pitched shutout ball and was greatly helped by the 12 hits supplied by his teammates.

Muhlenberg scattered its runs over the full nine innings pecking away with one in the second, two in the fifth and single tallies in the seventh, eighth, and ninth.

'Berg Short' Circuits Engineers Of Lehigh 8-5

Coming back from a two-day road trip, 'Berg's diamond aspirants took the measure of Lehigh University 8-5. Behind excellent fielding and "Berg's Booming Bats", Diz Dean chalked up his first win of the season, scattering five hits and allowing two runs in the six and two-thirds innings of mound duty. Taylor relieved Dean and gave up three runs on as many hits.

Muhlenberg pushed a run across in the first inning but Lehigh came right back with two in the top of the second. The big four run rally in the fourth started when Hank Henry was safe on an error. Koch-enash sacrificed Henry to second. Tolosky was safe on an error, and on the same play, Herb came across with a marker. Swartley stole home, and Tolosky tallied the fourth run on Karobeinick's fielder's choice.

In the sixth inning Swartley cracked out his first home run of the season. It was a well hit ball that cleared the right field fence by five feet.

M C A Returns From "Retreat"

The MCA Cabinet returned to campus on Sunday morning after a week-end "retreat" in the Poconos. The purpose of the retreat was to review this year's MCA activities and then to plan ahead in detail for the 1947-48 college year. The Cabinet held the retreat in the Poconos in order to be free from the distractions of telephones, bells, women, and class-work always attendant on campus.

Participants in the retreat spent more than a dozen hours in planning sessions Friday evening and Saturday. The program started with a discussion led by Dr. Russell Stine of Muhlenberg's campus life and students' interests. Franklin Sherman presented a historical review of the MCA's activities since its founding. Saturday was devoted to a general discussion of the Association's program, and later to more detailed arrangements for CA monthly meetings, "interest groups", and Freshman Week.

Nine students—old and new officers and other cabinet members—and two faculty members—Dr. Stine and Mr. Goesser—took part in the retreat. Roy Fries, newly-elected president, took over his duties on Saturday; he will keep the Cabinet functioning through the summer from his home in Rochester, New York.

Franklin Sherman, retiring MCA President, expressed the general viewpoint by saying, "I believe the week-end was a success. We've capitalized on this year's experience to plan what we expect will be a strong, worthwhile program for next fall."

Bucknell Takes First In Three-Way Meet Here

Muhlenberg's 55 points were just 8 short of the meet-winning total amassed by the Bisons of Bucknell in a triangular track meet held on the local cinders. Drexel garnered 34 points to be the also-ran of the event.

Rollo was victorious in the 100-yard dash, Jessen in the 220-yard low hurdles, Summers in the two mile jaunt, Becton in the broad-jump, and Hale's toss of the javelin was tops for the event to complete the list of first compiled by the 'Berg aggregation.

Summaries:

100-yard dash: Rollo (M); McMahon (B); Mosney (B); Dettler (D). Time, 10.3.
120-yard high hurdles: Hanlon (D); Brown (M); Wandolph (D); Keith (B). Time, 15.8.

to Muhlenberg, but, more important, each has conducted himself as a true sportsman on the field at all times. It can honestly be said, I believe, that no finer group of gentlemen and true sports have ever been graduated from Muhlenberg College. Our best to them in whatever they undertake, for they have made the saying, "take part in a sport and be one too", a reality.

'BERG ALUMNUS RETURNS TO PRACTICE

DR. EDWARD F. JUDT

After serving nearly three years as a captain in the army dental corps, Dr. Edward F. Judt has become associated with Dr. Joseph T. Hummel in the practice of general dentistry at 44 N. 9th St.

Dr. Judt, a resident of Allentown all of his life, resides with his sisters, Ella and Alma, at 207 N. 2nd Street. He was graduated from the Allentown High School, where he played varsity football, basketball and baseball, in 1929 and from Muhlenberg college, where he was a member of the basketball team in 1933. While a student at Muhlenberg, he spent summers as a playground instructor.

After graduating from the University of Pittsburgh Dental school he became a lieutenant in the army dental corps. The last 30 months of his service he spent at the Personnel Replacement depot and separation center at Camp Beale, Calif.

C. Harrier, Paul C. Hazleton, Maurice R. Horn, Frank Milnes, John H. Reumann, James G. Wilder, Robert K. Bosch, Melvin Dieter, and Roscoe W. Ward. Of these men, Harrier, Reumann, Bosch, and Dieter took honors in all the years of their college careers, and will therefore be graduated Summa Cum Laude.

Of the one hundred nineteen graduates, thirty-five are B.S. men, 83 will receive A.B. degrees, and one will be awarded a B.S. in education. The education degree goes to the only woman in the graduating class, Marguerite C. Reiter, a graduate of the Muhlenberg Extension School.

There will be no valedictorian or salutatorian this year, Dean Mercer announced yesterday. Due to the fact that so many of the graduating class have accumulated at least part of their credits at other schools, the Dean said, it would be unfair for the college to choose the single man who should receive top scholastic honors. This will be the case for the next few years, until conditions around the school are closer to normal, and it will be possible to choose a valedictorian from some one who has spent all of his college years at Muhlenberg.

MORE DERBY

The show is insulting to say the least, with several acts directed in a derogatory manner, right at members of the administration.

I will say no more, it is too horrible to repeat. You have been warned, dear students, let your conscience be your guide.
